New Principals At Point Webster, Broad Meadows

Christine Barrett, Daniel Gilbert Move To New Schools

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro has appointed new Principals for Point Webster Middle School and Broad Meadows Middle School, repositioning Sterling Middle School Principal Christine Barrett to Point Webster, and Snug Harbor Principal Daniel Gilbert to Broad Meadows.

The shuffling of the two principals into their new roles moves Dr. John Franceschini, the Assistant Principal of Sterling Middle School, to the Acting Principal of Sterling, and Assistant Principal of Snug Harbor Margaret MacNeil to the Acting Principal of Snug Harbor.

"There has been many significant retirements in the Quincy Public School

CHRISTINE BARRETT

System and in order to ensure that we have the right people at the right places we had to take into consideration who would fit well in each place," said DeCristofaro. "We wanted to have the positions in place (acting principal positions) for any summer work that needs to be done. We will take the two positions and post them in early October, inside and outside of the school system in order to take a look at a lot of different applicants."

Gilbert was the principal of Snug Harbor for five years and was previously the assistant principal at Lincoln Hancock Community School and a teacher at Point Webster Middle School.

"Dan has been nothing but outstanding at Snug Harbor for the past five years. He has a great connection with the children and families in that community," said DeCristofaro. "He is a natural and knows the students and connects to the community."

Gilbert has been with Quincy Public Schools for 15 years and was a student teacher before being hired full time in 1998. He said that although he is sad to be leaving Snug Harbor he is excited to be starting a new chapter and work with some of the same students he had at Snug Harbor.

"I will miss it. I have missed and will continue to miss each school I have been able to work at. It's difficult to go but it is exciting to start a new chapter," said Gilbert. "I am excited to serve the community in a different capacity and I am excited to be back at middle school."

Barrett has been the principal at Sterling Middle School for five years and prior to that she was the assistant at Sterling and a Dean at Quincy High School.

"As we looked at the retirement of Jim (McGuire) we wanted to make sure the culture and climate that he and his staff established at the school would continue and in order to accomplish that we contacted Christine," said DeCristofaro. "She will be a great fit for the Point community."

Barrett is a lifelong Quincy resident who attended Merrymount Elementary School, Central Middle School, and Quincy High School. She said she is looking forward to moving into the Point Webster Principal role.

"I am hoping I can bring the same things I was able to bring to the South West Quincy community to the Quincy Point community," said Barrett. "I have big shoes to fill. Jim was an icon in the Quincy Point community and I look forward to working there. Sometimes change is good and I am going to embrace it."

As for the open Assistant Superintendent position, once Colleen Roberts retires, DeCristofaro said the hope is to fill the position in the fall, after his recommendation to the School Committee is reviewed.

"The Assistant Superintendent position is appointed by the Quincy School Committee," said DeCristofaro. "I will make a recommendation to them and present my recommendation in the fall and they decide from there. I am hoping the position will be filled within the reorganization of the main office."

Quincy Animal Shelter Dog Joins Bourne Police Dept.

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

When Dutch, a 10-month-old Chesapeake Bay retriever mix, entered the Quincy Animal Shelter over a month ago, the shelter's Canine Manager Nancy Harris quickly contacted the Quincy Police Department to see if he would be a good candidate to join a police force.

"When a dog comes into the shelter and I think he might have potential to be accepted into a police force I contact Officer Brian Mahoney of the Quincy K-9 unit," said Harris. "So when Dutch came in I sent him a picture and kind of took a chance hoping they would be interested, which they were.

They just looked at him and said he was perfect."

Dutch was surrendered to the shelter due to a housing issue but Harris said that he was a beautiful dog that if put up for adoption to the general public would have been adopted out very quickly. Dutch is the second dog from the Quincy Animal Shelter to go to work for a police unit.

"He barley made it on the floor. People interested understood that he might be heading to work with the police department," said Harris. "It's always rewarding to have a dog adopted out of our shelter, but it is rewarding in a different way when they are being adopted out to help the community. He is going to have a family life and a job just like us. He is going to be helping the community and keeping busy, which dogs like to do. It's a win, win, win."

Dutch was recently adopted by Officer Chris Wrighter and was later transferred to working with Officer Lee Desrosiers of the Bourne Police Department. Dutch will be working in the Bourne school system as well as being cross-trained for friendly finds for Alzheimer's patients and lost children.

State Regulators Find Squalid Conditions In Psychiatric Unit

QMC 'Committed To Providing Compassionate, Respectful Care'

By SCOTT JACKSON

State regulators ordered Quincy Medical Center's senior psychiatric unit to stop accepting new patients for a week in late May after finding squalid conditions during an unannounced visit.

Inspectors with the state Department of Mental Health visited the hospital's Geriatric Behavioral Health Unit on May 23. The inspection found a number of issues, including missing privacy curtains, an unattended and unlocked housekeeping cart, an activity room being used as a makeshift closet, and dirty and worn furniture in the ward's dining area.

"The unit generally looked dirty, had an odor permeating throughout, and was in need of a thorough cleaning," the report stated.

The inspectors also found unattended patients in the unit, including one woman who was left lying in her own bodily waste.

"She stated staff would not answer her bell," the report said. "The patient in the bed next to her was almost cowering and very frightened. The odor coming from this room could not have been missed by anyone in the hallway, yet no one was responding to the patient."

Hospital officials began to address concerns raised during the visit that same day when staff were shown a video produced by the Cleveland Clinic called "Empathy, the Human Connection to Patient Care," according to a letter QMC President Daniel Knell wrote to the department on June 11.

"We continue to be deeply disturbed by the findings," Knell wrote. "We are committed to providing compassionate and respectful care to all of our patients, especially the most vulnerable. The conduct and job performance of staff on the unit was both unacceptable and unprofessional. We are working with the Massachusetts Nurses Association to address the disturbing and concerning findings."

In response to those findings, the hospital's human rights officer met daily with each patient in the ward for a week, and has been meeting the patients once a week since then, Knell wrote.

Several staff members associated with the unit were terminated following the inspection, according to the letter, and other staff went through patients' rights training and operating and training manuals for the unit were updated. None of the nurses assigned to the unit were fired, but they were given revised procedures and training to remedy complaints raised by the inspectors.

"We're taking the report seriously and working with management to ensure quality patient care," David Schildmeier, director of public communications for the Massachusetts Nurses Union, said in a phone interview Monday. "There are some training components ongoing as part of the corrective actions."

The hospital also cleaned the unit thoroughly, repainted much of the ward, installed privacy curtains where needed, replaced substandard furniture, and de-cluttered the activity room.

There's never been a better time to buy a first home

Three reasons why:

- 1) Rates are at all-time lows – a huge advantage for first-time homebuyers. Your money goes further. And you get to lock in historically-low monthly mortgage payments.
- 2) The eastern Massachusetts real estate market tends to be resilient. Prices here have stabilized...or are starting to move up. Waiting now could cost you later.
- 3) With Colonial Federal's First-Time Homebuyer Program, you get: > A reduced downpayment with no PMI required > A mortgage with a competitive rate > You work one-to-one with our responsive lenders, professionals who want to help you get into your first home > All from a local neighborhood bank specializing in helping people buy homes since 1889.

This is an outstanding opportunity – most likely once-in-a-lifetime – for first-time homebuyers. Is that you...or someone you know? Come see us. Or call VP/Retail Lending Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750.

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Remembering Ray

The city and especially the baseball community lost a dear friend June 24 when longtime Morrisette Legion baseball manager and former minor league baseball player Ray Cattaneo passed away at the age of 82.

As a ball player, mentor and manager, Ray was the "real deal."

One of the greatest ball players to ever come out of Quincy, had the circumstances been a little different earlier in his career, Ray or "the Cat" as he was called during his playing days could have landed in the major leagues, a dream he had since he was a small boy growing up in West Quincy.

After playing for Boston College High School and Morrisette, in 1949 Ray signed a professional baseball contract with the Boston Braves and was assigned to Owensboro, KY. Originally signed as a shortstop, he was moved to third base and hit .383. The following season, he moved up to Evansville and had an all-star season with 102 RBI, 24 doubles, 8 triples and 15 home runs.

But Ray never had his shot at the major leagues. The Braves had another third basemen - future Hall of Famer Eddie Mathews.

Had Ray been with another team - or been born later in life when major league baseball expanded from 16 teams to 30 - most familiar with the Ray Cattaneo story would agree he would have excelled on baseball's biggest stage.

"There's no doubt in my mind had the circumstances been a little different, Ray Cattaneo would have been a major leaguer. No question," says Dick Laracy, 81, a retired Quincy police sergeant and former Babe Ruth coach in Quincy.

Dick can also attest to Ray's baseball greatness because he actually played against him while they were in the Army.

Dick was a catcher for the Ft. Eustis Wheelers while Ray was a third baseman for the Ft. Belvoir Engineers, both in Virginia. Dick's teammates included future Hall of Famer Willie Mays and Vern Law, a pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"Ray and I happened to play against each other in 1953 up at Fort Belvoir. Vern Law pitched a few innings. I'm not sure if Ray got a hit against Vern but I do know that Ray Cattaneo was one of the toughest ballplayers you'd ever want to meet. I was a catcher and if I had the ball waiting for him (at home plate) I knew I was going to get knocked on my rear end. I knew that.

"There was no way he was going to twinkle toe around me. He was going to crash me and knock me into the dugout. Also, if I was waiting for the ball, he would slide and he would come in with spikes right up into the ear. And you knew you were going to get them somewhere."

Laracy also paid this towering tribute to his future longtime friend.

"Ray Cattaneo was a ball player who wanted to win. He'd win at all costs. Willie Mays was the same caliber as Ray Cattaneo. In a game against Camp Lejeune, we were leading 19-0 and Willie Mays stole home.

"Willie and Ray wanted to win at all costs."

Dick and Ray didn't grow up knowing each other but Laracy was well aware of Cattaneo's baseball pedigree. "I knew he was a good ball player - a great ball player."

They played two games against each other during their Army days.

"I remember talking to Ray after the games but it was brief because at that time you did not talk to the opposition," Laracy recalled. "You didn't have your picture taken with the opposition. Even before the games warming up conversation was not part of the game."

Between the lines, Ray was all business - the business to win.

"If I were on third base and we were friends he wouldn't talk to me. He might say 'nice play' but he was all business. In my opinion, he was a great, great ball player."

RAY CATTANEO

Laracy says Ray has his rightful spot among the city's best ball players, including those who made it to the big leagues such as Dick Donovan and Ralph McLeod.

"I can't remember anyone around here who was better than Ray but there were some who were just as good as Ray. And Ray could hit for power, he could run, he could field, he could throw.

"He was a great coach and a great teacher. We were very good friends."

Ray, of course, was a terrific manager for Morrisette. He won his first game as coach in 1970 - the first of 609 total victories. His managerial resume is impressive most notably the 1975 team that reached the American Legion World Series after capturing the Northeast Regional Finals right here at Adams Field.

"I remember being in the stands when they beat Oldtown, Maine and won the regionals at Adams Field to reach the World Series," Laracy said. The opposing coach that night was Brian Butterfield, currently the Red Sox third base coach.

"Ray was the happiest guy I'd ever seen," Laracy added.

Cattaneo guided Morrisette to 32 winning seasons and along the way won trips to three other Northeast Regional Finals (1979, 1992 and 1998), two state championships (1975, 1992) and two 30-win teams (1975 and 1992).

His success as a baseball manager cemented his legacy.

"Ray Cattaneo was a great teacher, he was a great coach, he knew what he was doing. He wanted to win - no matter what - he wanted to win," Laracy said.

"He was the type of guy I would have loved to play with and we became very good friends coaching through the years."

Ray received a big honor three years ago when the third base home dugout at Adams Field was dedicated in his name. The "Ray Cattaneo Dugout" could be called Ray's second home. For 40 years he coached hundreds of young men and helped them improve their baseball - and life - skills along the way.

Laracy thinks another honor should be bestowed on Ray: his number 21 should be placed along side the other retired numbers on the right field fence at Adams Field.

Raymond C. Cattaneo - a baseball legend who served his city with distinction and pride.

He'll always have a presence at Adams Field and a place in the hearts of all his fans.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1911 postcard is a view inland from Great Hill at the end of Hough's Neck. The dike with the road on top was built just after 1900 to enclose the Metropolitan Commission's new high level sewer main that went to Nut Island. The building of the dike and sewer plant was a devastating blow to the Fensmere Beach Resort that was on the left. It previously had a sandy beach around an open tidal inlet from Quincy Bay, which is on the right. The resort opened in the early 1890's and featured the four-story 40-room Fensmere Hotel that is out of view on the left. Their advertisements claimed it to be the most popular summer resort on the Atlantic Ocean combining Country and Seashore, bathing, boating and fishing. The large building in the left center is where they had "Genuine Rhode Island Clambakes" and served locally caught fish dinners. They also featured sports and amusements of every kind, dancing, music, and etc. And it was only a five-cent fare on the electric trolley to Quincy. The dike and the sewer plant eventually took their toll on the resort although the hotel lasted until the 1930s. Fensmere Beach has been filled in and later became home to the Great Hill School; it is now Brill Field Park. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

C-Mart's Second Appeal Is Like A 'Crying Baby'

I, and, maybe many others, are in disbelief, irritated, and frustrated by C-Mart's second appeal.

Why won't it accept this second decision with grace and understanding? The process was fair and thorough.

What a waste of City Council's time and Quincy taxpayers' money.

C-Mart is like a baby crying because he or she didn't get what it wanted. Oh, take that back.

C-Mart IS a crying baby. Enough said.

Quincy Celebrates Nation's Bicentennial

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy celebrated the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence with four days worth of parades, bonfires, concerts, and field days.

On Friday, July 2, Quincy Heritage hosted a concert and bonfire – the city's first Fourth of July bonfire in 20 years – at Pageant Field.

Three events were organized for Saturday – a field day at Welcome Young Playground, a band concert at Merrymount Beach, and a block party at Heron Road Beach.

On Independence Day, children's field days were held at Faxon Park and O'Rourke Field, and a field day and parade were both held at Merrymount Beach.

On Monday field days were held at Fore River Field, Baker Beach, Pageant Field, the Wendell Moses Playground, and Heron Road. A re-enactment of the Battles of Lexington and Concord was held in Squantum.

As part of the celebrations, the city dedicated Freedom Park. The 1,200-foot long by 90-foot wide park was dedicated at a ceremony at the corner of Upland Road and Dimmock Street. It was meant to serve as a link between Adams Academy and the Adams National Historical Park.

Quincy Heritage also hosted weekend long softball and tennis tournaments to celebrate the bicentennial.

PATRIOTISM, FLAG SALES SOAR

As the nation's 200th birthday approached, patriotism and flag sales in the city were noticeably up.

W. Edward Wells, owner of Eagle Flag Co. in Wollaston, said many customers were purchasing a Bennington Flag instead of the traditional Old Glory or a specially designed bicentennial flag. The Bennington Flag, so-named because it was flown by the Vermont Militia during the Battle of Bennington in 1777, features red and white stripes and a semicircle of stars around the number 76 in the blue field.

"This started last year in this area at the time of the big celebration at Lexington and Concord," Wells said. "The popularity of the Bennington Flag began to take hold, not just here but across the country."

Wells said he'd sold more than 10,000 12-inch by 18-inch flags since the beginning of the year. Other popular flags included the Betsy Ross Flag with 13 stars in a circle; the Grand Union Flag, which has a British Union Jack in place of the stars; and the Star Spangled Banner, a flag with 15 stars and 15 stripes replicating the flag flown in 1814 during the Bombardment of Fort McHenry that inspired Francis Scott Key to write the future national anthem.

"There's been a promotion of patriotism and flag display through a variety of sources, both national and local," Wells said.

Mayor Joseph LaRaia had recently proclaimed a 21-day flag display period in the city.

Saturday, Aug. 17

McAlpin's Corps & His Majesty's 63rd Regiment of Foot

10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

What was life like for Americans who remained loyal to King and Country during the tumultuous years of the American Revolution? Join McAlpin's Corps and His Majesty's 63rd Regiment of Foot as they portray British army camp life in the 18th century.

McAlpin's Corps of Loyalist Rangers, members of General Burgoyne's ill-fated campaign in up-state New York, were doomed to failure thanks, in large part, to Patriot militia from New England. This entertaining, informative, and interactive event will highlight a forgotten aspect of the American Revolution and the many different groups of people who were affected by the upheaval of the times.

The Tory Trail

Norma Jane Langford

1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

Local historian, writer, educator, and author of The Tory Trail, Norma Jane Langford will discuss Massachusetts Loyalists who, she says, were portrayed as "enemies of the country." "Many colonists" Ms. Langford asserts, "were loyal to the Crown." "We usually think of them as being villains," said Langford. "Actually they gave up a lot, they lost their homes, they lost their families" for their beliefs.

The Vassal family, former owners of John Adams' Old House in Quincy, were just such a family. Ms. Langford, who teaches a class called "The Tory Trail" at the University of Massachusetts-Boston, will highlight the lives and times of these often misunderstood members of Colonial society.

Defiant Brides

Nancy Rubin Stuart

2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Award-winning author and journalist, Nancy Rubin Stuart, will discuss her latest book, Defiant Brides: The Untold Story of Two Revolutionary-Era Women Who Married Political Radicals, an intimate look at the lives and times of Peggy Shippen Arnold of Philadelphia, who helped her husband, traitor Benedict Arnold, betray his country; and Lucy Flucker Knox, a "Boston Belle" and wife of patriot hero General Henry Knox. Defiant Brides looks at the way in which two young brides, married to famous, and infamous, men during the upheaval of the American Revolution, maintained their identities and their beliefs in turbulent times. During her last appearance at Adams National Historical Park, Ms. Stuart discussed her book The Muse of the Revolution: The Secret Pen of Mercy Otis Warren and the Founding of a Nation, the fascinating account of one of the Adams' closest confidants and the era's most brilliant and controversial female writer. A book signing will follow.

Spicy Lentil Salad With Yogurt

With the summer here we're all making salads galore and I made one that was given to me via e-mail from my niece Anita who lives in Arizona and who said she makes today's recipe with lentils all the time.

She said she brought to one of her neighbors to taste the last time she made it, and they raved over it and asked her for the recipe.

SPICY LENTIL SALAD

- 1 cup cooked lentils (drained and cooled)
- 1/1/3 cups plain Greek yogurt (low fat)
- 4 tablespoons olive oil
- ¼ cup cilantro (finely chopped)
- 1- garlic clove (minced)
- ½ - teaspoon cumin

- ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 10 cups salad greens (I used arugula mix)
- 1 medium tomato sliced
- 1 small cucumber

Cook the lentils according to directions. Drain and transfer to a bowl, and let cool. Add the yogurt, two tablespoons of the olive oil, the cilantro, garlic, cumin, and cayenne pepper. Gently stir and season with salt.

Divide greens into 4 plates. Mound the lentils in the center. Place the sliced tomatoes and the cucumbers on the side, and drizzle with the remaining olive oil

This dish may also be served in a large platter instead of the individual ones.

Chicken With White Vinegar

I recently prepared chicken thighs (my favorite) and used my daughter Ann Marie's recipe. It's made with white vinegar and so easy to make, and very gourmetish.

CHICKEN, ROSEMARY, WHITE VINEGAR

- 6 chicken thighs (I skinned them)
- 1 small package mushrooms (sliced)
- 1 can artichoke hearts (or frozen)
- 2 tablespoons Rosemary (fresh or jarred)
- 1 potato cooked and cut in small pieces

- 1 garlic clove (chopped)
- 3 tablespoons either olive or vegetable oil
- 1 cup of white vinegar

Season the chicken with salt and pepper and the Rosemary. In a deep skillet, in the hot oil and garlic, add the vinegar and then the chicken and cook covered turning frequently until done.

Now add the mushrooms, artichoke hearts, potato, and cook uncovered until juice is absorbed.

Serve with rice, pasta, or potatoes.

Project for the Week of July 8th - Construction vehicles

STORYTELLER'S SERIES

On July 9 at 7 p.m. in the Main Library Large Meeting Room storyteller Sharon Kennedy will bring stories from Ghana to the Thomas Crane Library. Kennedy visited West Africa for a month this past winter and collected stories to tell to American audiences.

When she shares "The Hunter and the Tortoise" the audience will sing Tortoise's song and they will also help the Hunter speak to the Chief of the village. In the Ghanaian tradition, no-one is allowed to speak to the Chief directly. Therefore the audience will have to help out the Hunter by telling the Chief about the wonderful Tortoise he has found.

The audience will be asking the Chief if the whole village can come together to hear this Tortoise sing and play his accordion.

Another story from Ghana which Kennedy will tell is "The Beautiful Girl with 500 Marriage Proposals." Which man will win her hand in marriage? Her family is setting up a series of difficult tests to find the best man.

This family is also planning a trick for all of the suitors. Which suitor really loves the girl, not just her beauty and her money?

Come join the storyteller for these stories and for chants and songs. At the end of the program join in the dancing to the music of Ghanaian drumming. Everyone will form a circle of dancers.

Kennedy will teach a few West African dance moves and you can show off your own if you want. For those who don't like to dance, the storyteller will bring a half dozen instruments for you to play. Stories, drumming, and dancing from Africa - come and enjoy.

This program is for children ages 5 and older. Sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

I DIG VEHICLES!

On Thursday, July 10th from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Adams Shore Branch Library children of all ages accompanied by an adult are invited to join us at the Adams Shore branch library for a chance to see some DPW trucks up close and personal and learn about what they do. Parents, bring along a camera for some great photos.

Since this program must be outdoors the rain date is Thursday, July 11.

'LET'S PLAY TOGETHER'

PAJAMA STORYTIME

Storyteller Cheryl Dunford presents "Let's Play Together," pajama story-times designed especially for children ages 2-5 and their parents.

Every Wednesday evening, July 10th through Aug. 14th at 6:30 p.m. will be filled with activities for children and adults to do together.

Come see Dunford for an hour of interactive stories, partner dances, playing in a band and singing together.

This six-week program is designed for adults and children to enjoy stories and songs as a family. This is a great time for you and your children to sing, dance, listen and talk with each other.

This program is cosponsored by the Quincy Arts Council and the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Supports Healthy Youth Bill

It is encouraging to see reports that the teen birth rate in Massachusetts is on the decline. But given the troubling increase in teen birth rates in Quincy, it is even more important that our community leaders support teen pregnancy prevention efforts in our City's schools, including comprehensive sexuality education programs.

It's necessary for us to provide young people with the tools they need to make positive and healthy life decisions. I was fortunate enough to grow up in a community that valued this type of education starting at young age and it made the difference for me and my peers, helping us avoid destructive decisions. This is what I want for the community I choose to live in.

When it's done right, sexuality education keeps young folks safe and healthy. That's why I hope Senator Keenan and Representatives Mariano, Ayers and Chan will support An Act Relative to Healthy Youth, which will require any sexuality education taught in our schools to be medically accurate, age-appropriate, and comprehensive.

Currently, there is no way to ensure consistent sex education across the state, and some students are still receiving abstinence-only sexuality education, which has been proven ineffective. Since the Healthy Youth bill keeps the decision about whether to offer sexuality education in the hands of school districts, it is a great way to promote healthy behaviors without a government mandate.

'ArtText' Painting Exhibit At Crane Library In July

Artist Catherine V. Holmes will exhibit her ArtText paintings during the month of July in the Coletti Reading Room of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy. The exhibition is an exploration of the written language in visual art.

The use of written language has been one of the most defining developments in visual art of the twentieth century. The words printed in a book or written on paper have meaning of intent just as choice of words and use of language can evoke a reaction or response. The same principles can be applied to text in art.

Text isn't just limited to language. It has introduced a new mode of thought to artistic practices that can be used to create unique pieces of motivational art with a purpose. A simple phrase or solitary number can have special meaning when presented with complimentary imagery. Each unique combination of imagery and letter/number symbols explores feelings of curiosity and personal connections.

ing by crafting works that explore many artistic personalities with an impressionistic feel that cannot be tied down to a specific style. She has pursued a number of recent projects ranging from old world faux frescoes to complex architectural works to splashy expressionistic aerial interpretations of seaside towns. Her work has won numerous awards and her paintings are owned by private individuals as well as corporate collectors.

Emerald Necklace Conservancy Slide Show Topic At Library July 8

One of the Commonwealth's most significant treasures – The Emerald Necklace Conservancy – will be topic at a free slide presentation of current and historic photographs Monday, July 8 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Jeanine Knox of the Emerald Necklace Conservancy will explore the history of the Emerald Necklace, the unique landscapes of each park as well as the vision and effort it took to create them, and the role of the Emerald Necklace Conservancy in preserving and protecting this treasure for generations to come.

Designed by Frederick Law Olmsted, long revered as the Father of Landscape Architecture, the historic Emerald Necklace is a six-mile linear park system that winds its way from Boston's Back Bay Fens to Franklin Park in Dorchester, offering visitors over 1,000 acres of green and open space, woodlands, wilderness and waterways, and unique structures along with a wealth and diversity of flora and fauna.

Knox is responsible for conservancy communications, visitor services and public education. In addition to overseeing newsletters and publications, she develops and administers programs and materials that enrich the visitor experience including tours, presentations, docent training, events, and exhibits.

Prior to joining the conservancy, Knox worked in both the public and private sectors as an educator and marketing director. She received her BA from Boston University and her MEd from Bridgewater University.

The presentation is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

A TOUCH OF GLASS
Enameling is the technique of fusing glass to metal that creates beautiful pieces of jewelry characterized by deep, rich colors. Perhaps the most famous of enameling techniques is "guilloché," which is a decorative engraving technique (called "engine turning") that involves scratching fine patterns and designs on metallic surfaces. The indentations are then filled with different colors and opacities of enamel to create an intriguingly beautiful effect. While Fabergé may not have been the first person to use this technique, he brought guilloché to its most heightened effect in the form of his famous Fabergé eggs. Although the machines used to create guilloché are no longer produced, beautiful enamel pieces in various forms remain very popular.

Enamel jewelry has been around since the time of Romans and Egyptians. It is available in different shapes, sizes and designs. Today, more and more people want enamel jewelry as they are undeniably beautiful and they make great gifts for any occasion. Our store is conveniently located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center where our professional and knowledgeable staff is anxious to work with you to make sure you have the best buying experience possible. Enameling adds a beautiful touch to jewelry by taking a "regular" piece of jewelry and making it unique. Call us at 617-773-3636, and allow us to assist you.

Michael Shanahan New Director Maria Droste Counseling Services

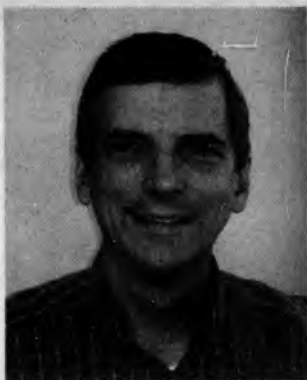

The Board of Directors of the Maria Droste Counseling Services announces the appointment of Michael Shanahan as the agency's new executive director.

Shanahan replaces the late Sister Lorraine Bernier. Sister Lorraine began directing the agency in 2008 when she replaced Sister Joanne Westwater, who founded the agency in 1992.

Shanahan holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Creighton University in Omaha, NE and a Master's of Divinity from the Jesuit School of Theology in Berkeley, CA. He graduated from the Post-Masters Family Therapy Training Institute in Milwaukee, WI.

Shanahan is licensed by the State of Massachusetts as a Marriage and Family Therapist, a trained mediator and is CANS certified.

During his career he has

been involved as a psychotherapist or clinical director in several agencies throughout the United States: St. Luke's Hospital, Racine, WI, Hiawatha Valley Mental Health Center, Winona, MN and most recently New Life Counseling & Wellness Center in Randolph. For several years he served as an Adjunct Professor at St. Mary's University, in Winona, WI where he taught Master's Level classes.

The Maria Droste Agency is affiliated with the Sisters of the Good Shepherd and was created to give counseling with compassion, empathy and humility, in a place of peace, to all clients of all ages regardless of their ability to pay. The agency's clients are usually persons who "fall between the cracks" of the community's mental health care system.

The agency's mission is carried out because of the steadfast collaboration of a dedicated board, devoted staff and the significant contributions of many dedicated mental health professionals. Board directors said they are confident that Shanahan will move the agency forward to complete an aggressive five year plan set in motion by Sister Bernier before her sudden passing and in the same caring and compassionate manner as the two previous directors.

BRANDI PARKER (middle), Impact Quincy Peer Advocate participating in group work at CADCA (Community Anti-Drug Coalitions of America) Forum.

A Message From Impact Quincy

'Take A Risk And Speak Out'

My name is Brandi Parker and I am a Quincy High School student and a Peer Advocate for Impact Quincy.

Through the coalition, I had the opportunity to attend the CADCA (Community Anti-Drug Coalitions of America) Forum held in Washington, D.C. CADCA is an organization that is made up of community coalitions across the country to raise substance abuse awareness about underage drinking and substance abuse. Many of these coalitions have succeeded in reducing use and accessibility to drugs and alcohol to youth.

At the conference, I was given the occasion to speak to people with the power to enforce these specific laws. The forum educated me with new information and ideas.

During my time at the forum I visited several workshops. One particular workshop at the forum was specifically for youth to come together and brainstorm each other's ideas and efforts. I was only able to attend one of these youth summit workshops, but I quickly engaged with other youth and found out what they are doing in their own communities. In groups we suggested things which would best describe what a leader was and what they did.

Based on my own surroundings, I have made the observation that there are too many children who abuse and have easy access to substances. However, not enough is being done to eliminate our youth's accessibility to these substances and there are not enough people involved to bring forth the message to our community. At the forum I learned to "Take a risk and speak out." As a Peer Advocate I hope to convey the message that underage drinking and substance abuse has become a problem in our community. Hopefully, I can make a difference on a level that is relatable to my peers.

I thoroughly enjoyed myself at the forum, especially meeting other youth and learning the ideas and efforts of others. I look forward to see many of the forum's ideas come alive in my community as well as across the country.

PAT DIMATTIO of Quincy, an Army veteran of World War II, will celebrate his 88th birthday on the Fourth of July. Here he holds the Bronze Star, one of the medals he received for his military service.

Quincy Veteran Celebrates Nation's And Own Birthday On 4th Of July

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

For lifelong Quincy resident and World War II Army veteran Pat DiMattio, the Fourth of July is not only about celebrating Independence Day but also his birthday.

"It's a great day, and like everyone else I watch the concerts on TV. I don't feel extra special being born on the Fourth of July," said DiMattio who turns 88 tomorrow (Thursday).

"To me it's just another day, just another day older. I don't make any plans; you never know what's going to happen. At my age I just live one day to the next. I live for today, and enjoy today and if I'm here tomorrow I'll enjoy tomorrow."

"I've had that feeling since the day I went in the Army. If I make it home I make it home, if I don't, I don't. I had no control over that."

DiMattio, who went to the Adams School, Daniel Webster Middle School, attended one year of trade school before he was drafted into the Army in 1943 at the age of 18.

"I was 18 on the Fourth of July, and by the end of July I was drafted and I was gone in September," said DiMattio. "Serving in the Army and serving in World War II was an honor. It was something that had to be done and I did it."

DiMattio served in 1st Cavalry Division as a part of the 5th Cavalry Regiment as an ammunition carrier and rifleman in the machine gun unit. He was sent to the Philippines in 1944 during the invasion and served there for 18 months. He served in the Army for close to 30 months before returning home.

"I am so proud of the outfit I was in, the 1st Cavalry division. The proudest moment that I had in my career in the Army is when we rescued 4,000 prisoners at the Santo Tomas University in January of 1945," said DiMattio. "That was one of my proudest days when we rescued those people. I think that was one of the happiest days of my life, when we rescued prisoners of war and civilians."

During his time in the Army he received a number of medals including a Bronze Star, and the Good Conduct Medal, which he says he is particularly proud of because he did get himself in trouble every now and then.

"I got caught selling a bed sheet, which was government property, so you either got company punishment or you got a court martial, so I took company punishment, but I never had to do it. The second time, a buddy of mine was stationed nearby so I went down and saw him, and when I came back I found out they had roll call to do something, and I wasn't there, so then it was the same thing. I could either pick court martial or take company punishment. It was all minor things. Otherwise I stayed out of trouble," DiMattio said.

"I'm proud I got the good conduct medal. When I saw that I almost flipped. I can't believe I got that sucker."

After the Army, DiMattio married and worked for Boston Gear Works for 39 years. During that time he and his wife Francis had two daughters and now have four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. One of his grandsons is an Army Ranger who has served in Afghanistan and Iraq and received a Bronze Star just like his grandfather.

"Family is important to me," DiMattio said. "A medal is just another medal to me, but I was very proud when my grandson received the Bronze Star."

Jr. Morrisette Blanks Franklin

By BILL GRIFFIN

It was a statement game and Morrisette's Junior Legion team made quite a statement.

Dave Suslowitz hurled a complete-game four hitter and struck out five, and Morrisette broke open the game with a five-run fifth to roll past Franklin, 9-0 in Zone 5-6 action last week.

Franklin entered the game with just one loss. Morrisette boosted its record to 7-0-1. Post 294 trailed Norwood in the points race for first place at the end of the week, but that was because Norwood has played more games. Morrisette was the only unbeaten team in the zone starting this week's action.

"We're playing great," said coach Rick Beach. "Our defense is excellent, we're running the bases and scoring runs. Our pitching has been consistent as well."

Suslowitz controlled the game. He threw a good fast-ball, mixed speeds well and had excellent control.

"That is his strength, locating the ball," said Beach. "He moves it around and changes speeds to keep the hitters off balance."

Brendan McDonald led the way on offense with a 3-3 game at the plate. He also walked and was hit by a pitch. Josh Helfrich helped out with two hits and a stolen base for Morrisette who has run the bases well since the first pitch of the first game.

Ethan Yau was 2-4 with two stolen bases and a run scored. Brendan Collins was 1-2 with a stolen base.

Troy Shepherd started the fifth-inning rally with a single, and Suslowitz helped his own cause with a single which drove in a pair of runs.

Shepherd was excellent at shortstop and Yau had three assists and handled himself well at first.

"Right now, we are making all the plays," said Beach.

Morrisette will play Cohasset Friday. The site is still to be determined.

Righthander Tom Garland fired a two-hitter and boosted his record to 3-0 to lead Morrisette past Holbrook, 16-1 in a Zone 6 East American Legion game last week.

Andrew Currie had two hits and an RBI while Pat Verhault chipped in with a hit and was on base three times.

Tyler Beach had a hit and scored three runs. Robbie Munroe had a single, scored three runs and was on base Morrisette and Braintree played each other twice last week. Braintree won, 11-7 in eight innings at Adams Field Friday. Earlier in the week, Braintree dropped Post 294, 7-5.

In the 7-5 game, Braintree jumped out to a 4-0 lead on five hits in the second inning. Morrisette drew within, 4-3 in the third. After Braintree went up, 7-3 Morrisette rallied to within 7-5.

Post 294 had two runners on in the sixth trailing by a pair of runs, but could not score.

Matt Davis was the hitting star for Morrisette. He went 3-3, scored twice and had a stolen base. Currie and Verhault had two hits apiece while Verhault also had an RBI.

Munroe blasted a triple for Morrisette.

Morrisette finished last week at 6-3 and is at Holbrook Tuesday (Sumner Field, 5:45) and at Hyde Park Sunday (5:45 at Catholic Memorial Field.)

'We're Here To Honor Mr. C. One More Time'

By BILL GRIFFIN

It was as though a higher power ordained that the setting would be just right for the ceremony celebrating the life of Ray Cattaneo at his beloved Adams Field Friday night.

His night fell in the middle of a dreadful stretch of gray days, rainy nights, loud thunderstorms, and hard humidity. Yet when the tribute began, the sun peeked from behind flimsy white clouds, a gentle breeze rolled out towards right field and the air turned cool and clear for a precious few hours. It was baseball weather. It was as if someone knew this was how it should be for one night in Quincy.

The ceremony was scheduled for 7:30. The game against Braintree began at 8:00. Cars were parked along the Southern Artery, and crowds streamed in before 7:00. Most stood six and seven deep behind the backstop and shared fine, old stories about Cattaneo and teams from Morrisette's past. The dugout along the first baseline which is named for Cattaneo was draped with American flags.

Men touched by age from Cattaneo's generation came in leaning on canes and walkers. Some limped holding to the arm of a friend or a loved one. Ex-players from age 20 to 50 found old friends with a hug or a handshake. There were teenagers

Longtime Morrisette Manager Ray Cattaneo Remembered At Pre-Game Tribute

'RAY CATTANEO is one of the finest people I've ever known,' Mayor Thomas Koch said during a pre-game ceremony honoring the late longtime manager of the Morrisette Legion Baseball team last Friday night at Adams Field. Morrisette and Braintree Legion baseball teams lined up on the third and first baselines respectively during the tribute. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth in clusters near the snack bar and kids skittering in the dirt chasing after a ball.

There was the mayor, a state senator, city and legion officials. There was a toddler riding in a red and gray wagon drawn by his parents. There were folding chairs lined in an uneven trail along the first row behind home plate. Many who sat kept score when the game began.

There were blue, yellow and gray tee-shirts with "Morrisette" displayed proudly across the chest. There were blue hats with a big yellow M in front worn by loyal fans and former players. In front of the first-base dugout, a blue jersey with number 2 and a yellow jersey with number 21 hung from a chain-link fence. Ray Cattaneo's number was 21. Morrisette's colors are blue and yellow.

Morrisette coach Steve Maze was the master of ceremonies, and Mayor Thomas Koch was the first speaker.

"Mr. C. was a coach and a friend to all of us. We're here to honor him one more time," said Maze.

"I've been told that Ray was one of the finest baseball players ever to come out of Quincy," said Koch. "I can tell you he was one of the finest people I've ever known. He helped so many people in so many different ways."

Jimmy Walker, who played on the first team Cattaneo ever coached, was the next speaker. He said it was fitting that Braintree was the opponent this night because Morrisette and Braintree have been the best of legion clubs over the past 45 years.

"I feel as much a part of this, as much a part of Morrisette baseball as I did as a player 45 years ago," said

Walker. "I look out and I see all my teammates. They feel the same way. We are always with you. That's the way Mr. C. built it."

Maze then presented flowers to Cattaneo's granddaughter Susie. Nasbeed "Noe" Morad, a longtime friend and member of the Morrisette Legion Post, sang a moving version of the national anthem as the flag unfurled and the trees swayed in the quickening wind in right field.

Cattaneo's grandson, Mark, then threw out the first ball, or to be precise, the first two balls of the game. One of Cattaneo's favorite tricks was to throw two baseballs at the same time from the same hand. Mark proudly imitated his grandfather by firing two strikes to home, one to Morrisette catcher Andrew Jaehnig and one to Braintree catcher Colin Rios.

Maze finished the ceremony with a thought which was fitting and proper for the moment.

"We will carry on for you, Mr. C., as you taught all of us. We love you, Mr. C."

Then it was time to Play Ball which is probably just the way Ray Cattaneo would have wanted it.

Morrisette Battles But Bows To Braintree, 11-7

By BILL GRIFFIN

The pre-game ceremonies in memory of Ray Cattaneo were simple, gracious and moving. The sun was shining. Morrisette had a five-run lead in the first inning and it seemed like a long, emotional day would have just the right ending.

However, the opposition was Braintree and Braintree is excellent. First-place Post 86 battled back with a 14-hit attack, gave just two runs after the first and edged Morrisette, 11-7 in eight innings for its 11th win in its first 12 starts in a Zone 6 East game played at Adams Field Friday night.

The day began at 10 a.m. for Morrisette coach Steve Maze and his team with a memorial service for Mr. Cattaneo at St. Mary's Church. It ended more than 12 hours later in a game which Post 294 wanted dearly and which was several times tantalizingly within its grasp with leads of 5-0 in the third and 7-5 in the fourth.

"It was a long day," said Maze. "But it was for the right cause. We were doing what Mr. C. would have wanted, playing a game before a good crowd. We hurt ourselves with mistakes and Braintree is a good, very good team."

Morrisette, perhaps lifted in tribute to Cattaneo and ignited by the large crowd, came out firing. Post 294 rapped out five hits and a sacrifice fly in the first inning. Five of the first six batters hit safely. There were no bloopers or bleeders here. Morrisette was hitting shots.

"It reminded me of the the 1990s," said Maze. "There was a big crowd here and I think it inspired the kids. They had a lot of people behind them and it fired them up."

Andrew Currie doubled. Jason Pekkinen and Andrew Jaehnig singled. 1-0. Tyler Beach bunted safely for a run. Robbie Munroe absolutely crushed a two-run triple to left. Josh Hayward belted a deep sacrifice fly and it was 5-0 after one.

"We came out on fire. I think we can hit with anyone and we showed that in the first inning," said Maze.

Once again hitting was not the issue. Munroe, who is simply destroying the ball, had two triples and three RBI. His second triple went to his favorite right-center power alley and rolled into shadows near the 365-foot sign. It would have been out of most ball parks. Jaehnig had two hits, a run scored, and an RBI. Pekkinen had a hit and scored two runs while Beach had a single and a run scored. Pat Verhault had a single and an RBI. Verhault also turned a great pivot at second on a 5-4-3 DP in the first.

"Munroe is hitting the ball hard and I mean hard," said Maze. "He keeps his hands back and has power to the opposite field because he waits on the ball. Mark Perdios worked with him on the high school (Quincy High) team on hitting the ball the other way and it helped him."

Righthander Tommy McDonald started, and just as in the Hyde Park game, deserved better. He pitched six innings, gave eight hits, just three earned runs, walked one and struck out eight. His fastball was good, but his curve was especially sharp and he threw it for strikes.

"We have high-caliber pitching. We have to make the plays behind our pitchers. If we did that tonight, we win the game," said Maze.

Another ghost from the Hyde Park game, the defense, hurt Morrisette again. Braintree scored four unearned runs in the third to scramble back into the game within a run at 5-4. Twice McDonald was a cleanly-made play away from escaping the inning, but mistakes hurt Post 294.

"You can't give a team like Braintree extra outs," said Maze. "I said from the beginning of the year that defense would be the key for us. We'll hit and our pitchers will throw strikes. If we can make 21 outs without making an error, we'll win a lot of games."

Munroe and Verhault had RBI to up it 7-5, but Braintree tied it at 7-7 with singletons in the fifth and sixth. Morrisette had a runner to third in the sixth and to second in the seventh, but couldn't score.

"It shouldn't have come down to that. We need to improve our defense," said Maze.

Braintree won it with four in the eighth. The game Morrisette wanted badly to win for Mr. Cattaneo slipped away, but there was more to the day than a win or a loss. The service at St. Mary's was full of stories from the rare, old times. The pre-game ceremony was just fine. The night was fair and cool with clouds floating above the beautifully-lit green of Adams Field. Two grand old rivals, a rivalry that Mr. Cattaneo knew well, played out a terrific night of baseball. That's not a bad tribute to a great man. Not bad at all.

BODY WEIGHT'S COMPOUNDING EFFECT

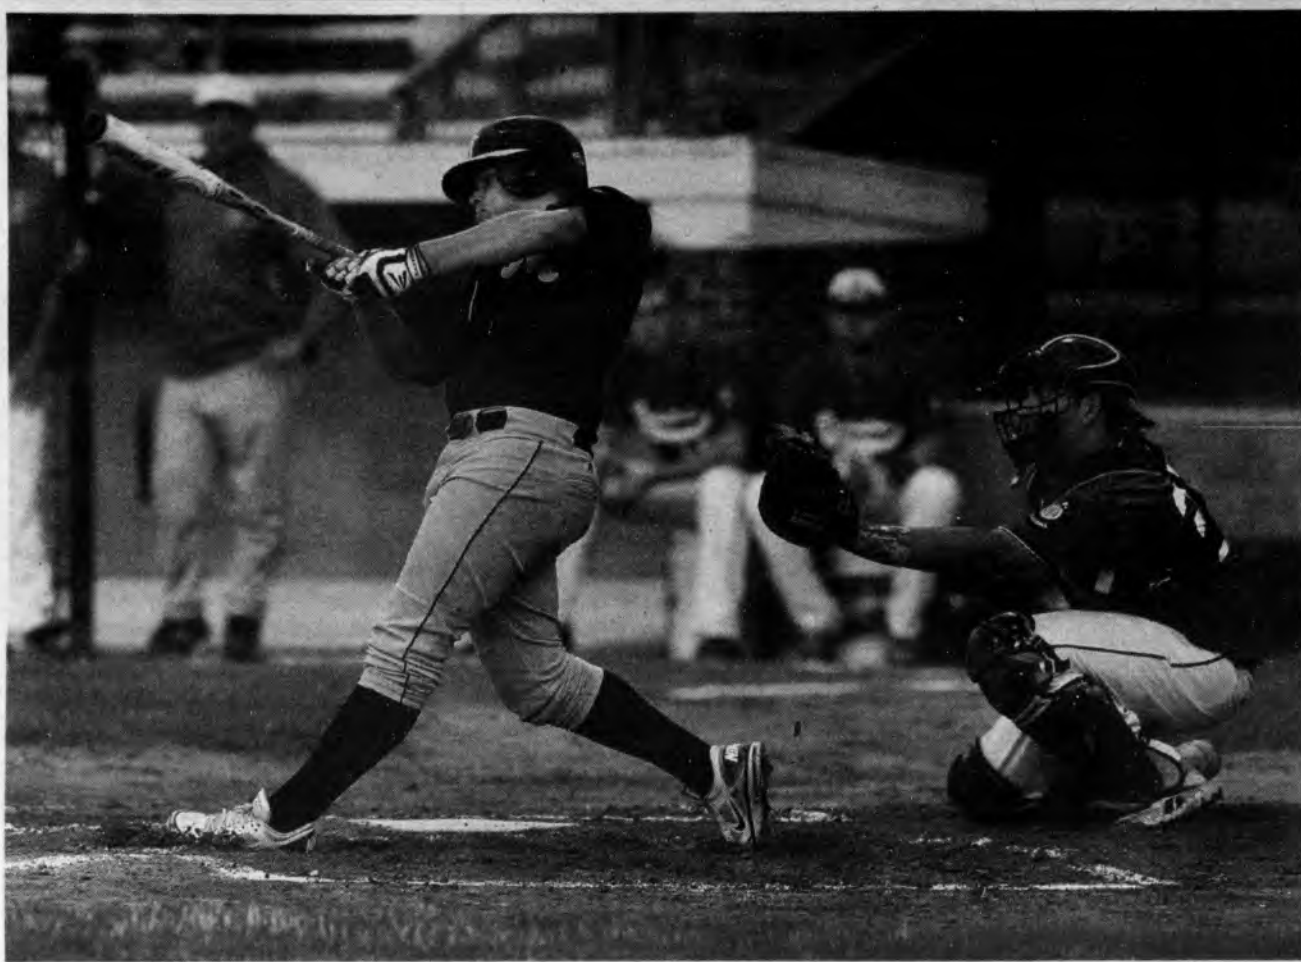

Health experts recommend that overweight individuals with arthritic joints lose extra pounds because, for every pound carried, the body thinks of it as five pounds. Due to compound load stresses, then, being ten pounds overweight feels like 50 pounds on the body's frame. Even small amounts of weight gain are amplified across the knees, hips, and ankles, placing undue strain on connective tissue and joints. Spinal joints are quite vulnerable to this effect, and back pain is the common result. Fortunately, weight loss can help reverse weight-related stresses to the same degree that weight gain creates them. Remember that, for every pound lost, the body reacts as if it were five. Chiropractic treatment can provide further weight-loss incentive.

Nutrition, diet as well as weight loss are important components of pain management. Once a patient has worked with a doctor to determine whether or not he or she is in need of weight loss, the patient is ready to develop an exercise and diet program to achieve the desired level of weight loss. Jason Pekkinen Making An Impact For Morrisette Legion

Two Years After Impressive Legion Tryout, Archies Standout Now An Accomplished Third Baseman

By BILL GRIFFIN

Steve Maze had tryouts, but there were no reason to have them. There were no open spots on the team, no room at the inn. He knew every player, every position. His lineup was set. His bench was set. Nobody need apply. Morrisette was not hiring.

"I knew my team and I knew we would be good. I knew the roster. I had no open spots," he said.

In 2011, Morrisette legion had a championship baseball team. There were two players who went on to Division 1 college ball and one who played in Division 2. Post 294 won 20 games, swept to zone and district titles and made the final eight in the state. They were loaded.

At these tryouts, which really aren't needed, this young sophomore from Archbishop Williams grabs a bat. He hits a line drive. He hits more line drives. The ball is jumping off his bat the way a golf ball jumps off a 1-iron. He's hitting for contact and power. He's drilling shots into the gaps and into the deep reaches of the outfield. Maze, the coach who thought his roster was in place, had to take a look. He had to take a good, hard look.

"I didn't know who he was, but he just crushed the ball. I had to keep him," said Maze.

Jason Pekkinen made a gold-medal first impression on his coach who not only found out Pekkinen could play, he found out the reason for his nickname: "Cheeks".

"They call him 'Cheeks' because he never stops smiling," said Maze.

"I just went out for the fun of it actually," said Pekkinen. "I was trying to get my name out there and I just had a good day."

Two years after those tryouts, Pekkinen is an accomplished third baseman. He led Archbishop Williams in hitting with a .418 average, hit two home runs, and drove in 25 runs. He was the Catholic Central League All Star at third base. He hit a memorable walk-off home run to beat Bishop Fenwick in a playoff game. For Morrisette through 10 games, he is hitting over .350. He has soft hands, quicksilver reactions and a powerful arm at third. He is the complete package.

He passes the "eye test." He looks like a ball player. His setup and approach at third is that of a college player. He is ready. He knows when to charge and when to play back. He knows the hitters and the situation. At bat in the No. 3 hole, he can pull the ball for power and take the outside pitch the opposite way. He knows how to play the game.

"He is a student of the game and it shows in his play," said Maze.

"It comes from taking a lot of ground balls. I've taken a lot of them," said Pekkinen who was a three-sport athlete at Archbishop Williams (football, basketball, baseball) and started at third base from the middle of his freshman year.

He has flourished on the legion level. In that first summer of 2011, Maze's confidence in him grew so quickly that he used Pekkinen as a pinch hitter in the final game of the state tourney. There was great talent around him and he took the opportunity to learn from it.

"Playing on that team was amazing experience," said Pekkinen. "Legion ball is faster than high school. It's the best of the best. That team had great players. The biggest thing I learned was hitting the ball where it's pitched. If it's outside, take it the opposite way."

The lesson served him well last year in the legion playoffs against Walpole. Morrisette trailed by a run in the sixth. Walpole intentionally walked the previous hitter to get to Pekkinen. The pitch came in on the outside plate of the plate, and, just as he learned on the championship team as a rookie, he took it to right field for a two-run single which won the game.

"I felt some pressure when they walked the hitter in front of me, but I was able to block it out once I got to the plate," he said. "What I learned about going with the pitch definitely helped."

"It was the biggest hit of the year for us," said Maze.

Earlier this year, Pekkinen and fellow captain Tommy McDonald visited Ray Cattaneo before the season. Cattaneo, who passed away last Monday after serving Morrisette for over 40 years in a legendary career, wanted to talk the captains of his team.

They sat and listened to Ray like he was Babe Ruth or Ty Cobb, said Pekkinen.

"It was amazing to meet him. We didn't talk much. We just listened," said Pekkinen. "Mr. C. talked mostly to us about being captains and what it meant. He talked about being role models for the younger players and showing them the right way. Tommy and I have tried to do that."

He loves to play the game. Maze found out how much on a difficult day when Archbishop Williams was eliminated from the state tourney this spring.

"It was an emotional loss for them," said Maze. "I told Jason to take a day off from practice, go to the beach, be a kid for a day. He said: Coach, I'll be there tomorrow."

"He was the first player at practice the next day."

Just like two years ago, there was a spot to fill, and Jason Pekkinen filled it.

Senior Legion Playoff Format Revamped

By BILL GRIFFIN

The Massachusetts Senior American Legion playoffs will operate from a two-tiered, revamped format for the second season this summer.

By July 5 (Friday), every team is scheduled to play the opponents in its zone twice. Each team is scheduled to have played 16 games at this point.

Playoff games between the top two teams in each zone will be played. Morrisette is in Zone 6 East. Braintree and Hyde Park were 1-2 in the standings at the end of last week. The team in first place in the East would play the team in first place in the West.

The eight winners from the zone playoffs would then compete in a single-elimination playoffs at Holy Cross to determine the state champion who would then represent the state and advance to the regional tournament.

While the playoff games are being played, the remainder of the legion teams will continue their regular schedule. When teams are eliminated from the playoffs, they will resume their regular schedule. Any games that are missed because of the playoffs would have to be made up on open dates.

At the conclusion of the season, there will be district playoffs with the same format that legion teams have always used.

The eight winners of the district playoffs would play a double-elimination tourney. The winner will be intra-state champ and capture the Commander's Cup.

The winner of the Commander's Cup will not advance to the regional or national tourney.

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Undefeated

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth - on the strength of strong pitching, excellent defense and timely hitting - have started the season with nine wins and no losses.

The pitching staff has allowed just a total of 11 runs. The team has made only five errors this year and has turned six double plays.

Dillon Darcey leads the staff with three wins. Other key contributors include Tyler Braun one win and two saves, Bobby Freeman one win and two saves, Jonathan Leviellee one win and one save, and Nolan Flynn one win.

Leading the defense is catcher John Marsinelli, who has thrown out five base runners. Anchoring the middle infield positions are Mike Pugsley, Braun, Kevin Mullin and Flynn. Mike Carnevale, Leviellee, Matt Kerin and Bill Campbell hold down the corner infield positions. Padraig Geaney, Chris Kerin, Matt Kerin, Ben Martin, Mike Saccoach and Anthony Gustin have played errorless ball in the outfield.

Timely hitting has been the key to Wollaston's unbeaten start. Many players have contributed with game winning hits including: Matt Kerin twice, Marsinelli twice, Martin, Campbell, Dave Cooper and Mullin. Chris Kerin leads the team in multi-hit games. Matt Kerin and Braun lead the team in home runs with one each.

In recent action:

Wollaston beat Hingham 6-0 on June 23. Braun and Freeman combined for a five hit shutout and struck out eight batters. Wollaston scored early and often. In the first inning Geaney and Marsinelli both reached base on singles. Chris Kerin advanced the runners with a sacrifice. His brother Matt knocked in Geaney and Marsinelli. Pugsley then plated Matt Kerin. In the second Carnevale reached base on a walk and was plated by Geaney's double. Marsinelli knocked in Geaney. Marsinelli scored on an infield out by Chris Kerin.

On June 25th Wollaston came from behind to beat South Boston 7-3. After giving up two runs in the first inning, Darcey settled down and limited South Boston to one run over the next six innings.

Wollaston started its comeback by scoring two runs in the second inning: Darcey singled, Marsinelli singled and Braun, Mullin and Pugsley all walked.

In the fifth inning Pugsley singled and scored on Dave Cooper's double. Marsinelli walked and both Cooper and Marsinelli scored on Campbell's double. John Johnson-Tatelbaum singled Campbell home. Darcey was helped by his infield who turned three double plays.

On June 27th Wollaston blanked Braintree 5-0. Freeman pitched a five hitter and struck out nine batters. Braintree threatened Wollaston in the third inning as they loaded the bases with one out. But a double play, Pugsley to Flynn to Matt Kerin, ended Braintree's threat.

Wollaston scored four runs in the second inning and one in the 7th. Marsinelli and Pugsley had key runs batted in.

MAYOR THOMAS KOCH (left) attended the Mass and reception honoring the Rev. James F. Hawker. Hawker, who formerly lived at Sacred Heart Parish, has known Koch since he was a young boy.

'I Enjoyed My 30 Years At Sacred Heart Parish Very Much' Fr. James Hawker Celebrates 50th Anniversary Of Ordination

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Rev. James F. Hawker, who spent 30 years at Sacred Heart Parish in North Quincy, celebrated the 50th anniversary of his ordination earlier this spring.

Fr. Hawker, 75, grew up in Boston's South End in the shadows of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, the principle church in the Archdiocese of Boston. More than a dozen priests lived at the cathedral, and Fr. Hawker was so impressed by the example they set that he decided to join the priesthood.

"I grew up in the Cathedral Housing Project right across from the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, and during my elementary and high school years I was very much involved with the church and the parish. There were 13 priests living in the cathedral when I was growing up and they all very much impressed me," Fr. Hawker said.

In 1963, Fr. Hawker was ordained by Cardinal Richard Cushing. Cardinal Cushing, who spent 26 years as archbishop of Boston, followed that up by giving the homily at Fr. Hawker's first Mass, something he still remembers to this day.

"He ordained me and then he preached at my first Mass. He was sick but he still preached for 45 minutes. Certainly that was memorable — the cardinal of the archdiocese giving the sermon at your first Mass," Fr. Hawker said.

"During his talk he said 'the fact that a boy from the South End, the so-called depressed area, is being ordained is a good omen — the South End will rise again,'" Fr. Hawker recalled. "It certainly has."

Fr. Hawker has a recording of Cushing's homily on CD. He gave copies of it to the 20 priests who attended the 50th anniversary celebration, held on April 14 at Our Lady Comforter of the Afflicted Parish in Waltham, where Fr. Hawker first served as priest. In attendance for the anniversary celebration, which included a Mass and a reception, were a number of Quincy residents Fr. Hawker met while living at Sacred Heart, including Mayor Thomas Koch, former Lt. Gov. and Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti, former Treasurer Tim Cahill, and City Clerk Joe Shea.

"It was a very nice get to-

FRANCIS X. BELLOTTI (left), a former lieutenant governor and attorney general, attended the celebration honoring the Rev. James F. Hawker for his 50 years in the priesthood. Fr. Hawker gave the invocation in September when the Quincy courthouse was renamed for Bellotti.

TIM CAHILL (right), a former state treasurer and city councillor, was one of the many Quincy residents who attended the celebration recognizing the Rev. James F. Hawker's 50 years of service as a priest.

gether," he said.

Fr. Hawker lived at Sacred Heart's rectory from 1972 to 2001. During that time he was highly involved with the archdiocese's educational program, serving as director of education for the Catholic schools of the archdiocese from 1973 to 1983, and then as director of CCD programs from 1983 to 1993. During his 30 years at Sacred Heart he traveled across the country to meet with other Catholic educators, and was even called to the Vatican as a consultant on occasion.

Throughout that time he also said Mass every week at Sacred Heart. He also led worship services at Star of the Sea Church in Squantum and Our Lady of Good Counsel Church on Sea Street. He still fondly remembers his time in Quincy.

"My 30 years here at Sacred Heart were excellent.

ELEANOR BENNET (left) and Charlene Kelly (right) were among the Quincy residents who attended the 50th anniversary celebration for the Rev. James F. Hawker (center) at Our Lady of the Afflicted Parish in Waltham. Hawker began his career at Our Lady Parish before residing at Sacred Heart in North Quincy for 30 years.

The people and parish were excellent to deal with. The priests in the rectory were very, very outstanding," Fr. Hawker said. "I enjoyed very much being at Sacred Heart."

For 20 years at Sacred Heart, Fr. Hawker lived with the late Rev. Cornelius Heery, the parish's beloved longtime pastor.

"Everybody loved Father Heery. I was very blessed to live with him for 20 years of the 30 that I was there," Fr. Hawker said.

From 1995 until 2001 Fr. Hawker served as vicar for education in the Archdiocese of Charlotte, commuting to North Carolina while still living in Sacred Heart.

"It was like living in two different worlds. I was living in the south all during the week and then I was living in the north on the weekend. They're very different places," he said.

The Catholic community in Charlotte was much different than the one in Boston, Fr. Hawker went on to say.

"It was very, very Bible oriented, more so than here. You're in the Bible Belt in Charlotte, North Carolina and there was much more of an emphasis on the Bible down there. The Catholic community was much tighter knit down there because they were in the minority whereas up here the Catholic community is the majority," Fr. Hawker said. "It makes quite a difference."

In 2001, Fr. Hawker left Quincy to serve as a parish priest in the Charlotte Archdiocese, and continued to work as the vicar for education there. He retired from administration in 2008, and now lives in North Quincy. Currently he assists three parishes with their services, counsels people struggling with drug addiction, and visits the Suffolk County House of Corrections in Boston every Monday. He plans to stay involved with the church as long as he can.

"As long as you have your health and your well-being then you're able to pump along. There's certainly a lot to do," Fr. Hawker said. "In different stages of your lives you can do different things. For example, as you get really older what is your responsibility? To pray — pray for this or pray for that or whatever. As long as you have life and breath you can do something."

Declare Your Independence With My Social Security

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Independence Day is a good time to declare your independence from heavy traffic, long lines, and visits to crowded offices by taking important matters into your own hands. When it comes to doing business with Social Security, you can!

Anytime, anywhere Social Security's website is waiting to let you take care of important matters yourself, independently, without the need to visit or call an office.

All you need to do is visit www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount to set up a my Social Security account so you can do business with Social Security the easiest, fastest, and most convenient way.

We're only halfway through 2013 and, already, more than six million people are registered for a my Social Security account. They use it to easily get information and service — without needing to visit an office or make a phone call. That's a great reason to set off some fireworks!

The things you can do using your account are as varied as the menu at a Fourth of July picnic! For example, you can use my Social Security to obtain a copy of your Social Security Statement to check your earnings record and see estimates of the retirement, disability, and survivor benefits you and your family may be able to receive.

If you are already receiving benefits, you can join the parade. We recently expanded my Social Security for those receiving benefits; now you can use your account to view, save, and print a benefit verification letter, check your benefit payment information, and even change your address and your phone number in our records. You also can start or change your direct deposit information. You can do this all from the comfort of your home.

Whether you are currently getting Social Security benefits, or you are planning for that day in the future when you do, you can easily access all your important Social Security information by creating a my Social Security account. Just visit www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

Before you go to your Independence Day picnic and fireworks, declare your independence from traffic and lines by saving a trip to the office and going online to www.socialsecurity.gov. And happy Independence Day!

Keohane Funeral Home Staff Help Decorate Graves At National Cemetery

Keohane Funeral Home team members recently helped decorate the graves of 56,000 veterans buried at the Massachusetts National Cemetery in Bourne in observance of Memorial Day.

"I have had the honor of caring for the families of many veterans buried at the Massachusetts National Cemetery," said funeral director Megan Dunn. "Placing flags on their graves for Memorial Day is a beautiful way to honor them for the sacrifices they made for our nation."

Dunn, Katie Ollmann and Ollmann's son, Conor, a 4th grade student at the Squantum Elementary School in Quincy, drove to Bourne the Saturday before Memorial Day. They joined others who braved the rain to honor the memory of those veterans buried at Bourne.

"We are fortunate to have team members so engaged in the communities we serve," said firm Co-President John Keohane. "Megan and Katie provide great examples of our firm's commitment to honoring those who have served our country."

Megan and Katie said they look forward to joining with other Keohane team members to be back next year and keep the Memorial Day grave decoration tradition going.

A Tribute From Longtime Friend And Former Mayor Francis McCauley

Remembering Ray Cattaneo

By FRANK MCCAULEY

I read with sadness of the recent death of Raymond C. Cattaneo. I had known Ray for almost 70 years. During World War II, the Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) established a baseball league and most South Shore parishes sponsored teams—among them several Quincy parishes, including Sacred Heart of North Quincy, St. John's of South Quincy, St. Mary's of West Quincy and Blessed Sacrament of Hough's Neck. It became apparent to me when we first came up from Hough's Neck to play the St. Mary's team at O'Rourke Field that both Ray and his older brother, John, were going to be great baseball players. (As for me, I was a run-of-the-mill, good field-no hit type of player.)

Our paths would cross again in the fall of 1944, when Ray and I enrolled in the freshman class at Boston College High School. B.C. High, in those days, was a tough college preparatory high school run by the Jesuits. Our class president, Mike Heffernan, said it best: "B.C. High was like Marine Corps boot camp, only it lasted four years instead of 11 weeks." It was no surprise to me that Ray made the varsity team during his freshman year, starting the year at shortstop. Ray played all four years in the baseball program at B.C. High. His teammates elected him team captain his senior year. He also played hockey during sophomore and junior years, and in his senior year he played on the football team.

On June 10, 1948, the original class of 599 members (pared down to 371 members) staggered across the finish line, Ray and I among them, to receive our diplomas. After B.C. High, Ray played minor league baseball for a number of years. He served in the army during the Korean War and was a longtime active member of the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post 294. In 1972, Mayor Walter J. Hannon appointed Ray as a member of the Park Department. (Mayor Hannon also had played against Ray for Blessed Sacrament in the CYO League.)

When I became mayor in the 1980s, I remember attending Ray's installation into the B.C. High Athletic Hall of Fame. Fifteen years after Ray Cattaneo joined the staff of the Park Department, I was pleased to appoint him to the position of executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department, succeeding Richard J. Koch Sr., who had passed away.

Over the years, Ray Cattaneo was a good friend and supporter of mine. He was a credit to his family, his school and to the city of his birth, the City of Quincy.

I shall miss him.

City Hall Bricks To Be Stored, Organized During Construction

The commemorative bricks purchased by Quincy residents nearly 20 years ago to help pay for renovations to the plaza in front of City Hall will be stored and catalogued while construction on the Adams Green and old City Hall building get underway this year, the office of Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday.

The several hundred bricks, bearing names of residents or their loved ones, will be preserved and organized at the Department of Public Works while the projects are ongoing, officials said.

"The bricks will be maintained, stored and catalogued, and contractors working outside the building have been directly informed to take special care of them," said Chris Walker, a spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch.

In the immediate term, underground utility work for both the Adams Green park and the restoration of the old City Hall will require that that bricks be removed from the site during construction.

The renovation of old City Hall includes improving the building's functionality for public use and meeting space, and that calls for utility upgrades outside of the building. That work is beginning now, with the full restoration expected to begin this summer.

The fate of the bricks and where they could be displayed after the two construction projects are completed has not been determined, Walker said Tuesday.

Dog Left In Car Dies; Owner Charged With Cruelty To Animals

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

After an incident Monday when a dog was left in a hot van for over five hours and died, Quincy Police are reminding residents to never leave an animal or person in a car during the hot summer months.

"We want to urge people not to leave animals or people in a car on hot days," said Quincy Police Captain John Dougan. "Leaving animals or people in a car on a hot day can cause serious injury and even death."

At 4:43 p.m. Monday officers responded to the Stop and Shop parking lot at 495 Southern Artery to a report of a dog who had been in a van since 11 a.m. that morning.

"Officers responded to the Stop and Shop parking lot to find a Dodge Caravan with a dog inside," said Dougan. "The dog, a Beagle, was laying on its side motionless. The officer smashed the car window to gain entry and noticed immediately the inside was extremely hot and stuffy. The dog was left in the car without water. I don't believe even we could have survived those conditions."

Dougan said that the dog had a dog license on him registered to a Michael Cabral.

Cabral, 58, whose address is listed as Littlefield Street in Quincy, had been picked up by ambulance and taken to Quincy Medical Center that day at 12:30 p.m. outside a dental office on Spear St. as an unwanted party, according to Dougan.

"In the supermarket's security footage we see a white male parking the car and walking away from it towards Quincy Center, not entering the business at any point," said Dougan. "It is unclear what he did from that point until he was picked up as an unwanted party at the dentist office. We do know he had been drinking and had taken prescription drugs."

Dougan said Cabral was charged with cruelty to animals by custodian, a felony in which he can spend up to five years in a state prison.

Dougan urged residents to call police at 617-479-1212 to report pets that appear to be unattended and in possible danger in locked vehicles.

Visiting Hours Friday From 4-8 PM For 11-Year Department Veteran John Austin Funeral Saturday For West Quincy Firefighter

By SCOTT JACKSON

A funeral Mass for a 37-year-old Quincy firefighter who collapsed and died unexpectedly Monday afternoon while responding to an emergency call will be celebrated Saturday morning.

The Mass for John Austin, a Quincy resident who joined the Fire Department in 2002, will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at Holy Trinity Parish at Most Blessed Sacrament Church, 40 Darrow St., in Houghs Neck. Interment will follow at Pine Hill Cemetery in West Quincy.

Visiting hours will be tomorrow (Friday) 4-8 p.m. at Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock Street, Quincy.

Flags across Quincy were lowered to half-staff and black bunting was hung at the West Quincy firehouse as the city mourned Austin's death. Mayor Thomas Koch praised the fallen firefighter as hard working, respected, and well liked.

"Our entire community is deeply saddened by the loss of Firefighter Austin. He was a hard working, respected, well liked young man from a wonderful Quincy family," Koch said.

The mayor also expressed his sympathy to the Austin family and the department's firefighters.

"My deepest sympathies and prayers are with his mom and dad, Lillian and John, his immediate family and his family in the Quincy Fire Department as they begin to cope with this heart-breaking loss," Koch said. "It is a sad day for the City of Quincy."

Deputy Fire Chief Joe Jackson said Austin was highly regarded among his peers in the department.

"John was very highly regarded on the job," Jackson said. "We're all just devastated by this loss."

MOURNING A COMRADE - The American flag was lowered to half-staff and black bunting hung from the façade of the West Quincy firehouse on Copeland Street following the sudden death of a 37-year-old Quincy firefighter Monday afternoon. Flags were also lowered at the city's other fire stations.

Austin had been assigned to Engine 5, which will carry flowers during the funeral procession.

Austin, who served in the Marine Corps before joining the Fire Department, was stationed at the West Quincy firehouse on Copeland Street. He was inside the firehouse, at around 3 p.m. Monday, when he collapsed while responding to an emergency call.

"In the process of responding to the call at the firehouse Firefighter Austin became unresponsive," said Chris Walker, a spokesman for the mayor. "Firefighters and EMTs tended to him at the firehouse until he was taken to Quincy Medical Center where he was pronounced dead."

The cause of Austin's death had not been determined as of Tuesday afternoon, and the state medical examiner's office will conduct an autopsy to determine that.

Mr. Austin's complete obituary was unavailable before The Sun went to press Tuesday afternoon.

The obituary will be posted on The Sun's website at www.thequincysun.com when it is available.

The Adams Green - It's Still Early

If the Adams Green design process were a baseball game, it would only be entering the second or third inning so it's still too early to tell what "elements" will be incorporated into the new $15 million public space when the construction phase begins.

That includes the companion statues of John Adams and Abigail/John Quincy Adams that currently face each other across Hancock Street from their vantage points at McIntyre Mall and United First Parish Church respectively.

Will they be part of the new space? Or will they be relocated somewhere else.

Mayor Thomas Koch says no final decision has been made yet. The design phase is only at the 25 percent stage.

What we do know is that a call has gone out for new statues for John Adams, the second President of the United States, and John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence who were both born in Quincy.

But nothing is etched in stone right now, Koch says. Even the name Adams Green could change.

"We're in the early stages of design. We're very comfortable at this time with the general layout and how the walkways will be, how the utilities will be, now we're getting into the elements of the park - what will be where.

"It's still a little early to say exactly who and what will be where but we have put out a national call for sculptors to look at a potential new monument/statue to John Adams, and a new monument/statue to John Hancock as two very large figures in our history," Koch said.

One thing is certain:

The mayor is determined to make the Adams Green park the most magnificent public space south of Boston.

"It will be as grand in scale to anything in the Boston area," Koch said in a recent interview. "And the city with its rich history deserves that."

The Adams Green will be span space between United First Parish Church and the James R. McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall) and McIntyre Mall as well as the area from the Munroe Building to the Stop and Shop Building (along the City Hall side). That portion of Hancock Street will be vacated.

The first part of the project that will get underway this fall will be to rebuild the intersections all around the area to create new traffic flow and move all utilities as necessary.

As for the park itself, Koch said 75 percent of the design phase is still in play.

"We're at 25 percent design with Halvorson and our city team but we have a long way to go," Koch says. "But within that park we are looking at a hardscape promenade that would not be as large as a road but bigger than a walkway, be tree lined with benches that will make the connection. If you're walking Hancock Street you could continue along the promenade (from the Munroe Building to Stop and Shop building) and make the connection through."

It is at each major entrance to the park - at each end - that thought is being given to erect major monuments to John Adams and John Hancock. Within the park may be elements such as fountains, a park area for concerts and space for public events.

"It will be magnificent as far as the landscape trees and setting that we'll be creating and I think it will augment the beauty of the Hancock Cemetery," Koch said, noting the city's historical burial ground is bounded today by buildings and concrete.

"We have a long way to go before we reach the final design phase and final elements. There are a lot of folks who are involved and we have a committee that is working very hard and putting a lot of thought into this."

The idea of placing larger statues in the park has ruffled a few feathers, including some Quincy Sun readers who have expressed strong support for keeping the current Adams statues. The statues - created by famed sculptor Lloyd Lillie - were commissioned by the Quincy Partnership. Some members of the Partnership have expressed their displeasure over the idea of relocating the statues.

Koch, who is a part of the Quincy Partnership, says he will continue to work with the Partnership in hopes of working this out.

"These statues are beautiful and they have a place but I do think for the contributions that John Adams made to this nation, I think he is a bigger-than-life figure and I'm not suggesting that the statue itself will be bigger-than-life but the monument - the area or setting - should be bigger-than-life to really give him his due as far as the contributions he's made to his nation, to his state and to his community.

"The Partnership statues are not going to be discarded," the mayor emphasized. "They will have prominence wherever they are placed whether it's in Quincy Center or on the Green or some other historical location in the city. It is my hope that we can work this out."

There is also a call for a new Abigail Adams statue but not in the size capacity as the new Adams and Hancock statues. It is possible the existing statue of Abigail and John Quincy Adams as a young boy would be used for her statue on the Green. It's also possible that a monument to John Quincy Adams, the nation's sixth President, will also factor more prominently in the new park space.

Koch said he is very sensitive to what the Quincy Partnership - a group of local businessmen and women and community activists - has done for the city. The group has raised thousands of dollars for municipal improvements including new welcome to Quincy signs, exterior lighting at some historical sites and those two bronze statues downtown.

"They have been a phenomenal group who has a great passion for this city and I respect that. We have a world-class park designer, we're going to have world-class sculptors involved in this park."

"It's my expectation that when this is completed, it will be a world-class park that will really raise the bar for public spaces south of Boston. That's not a criticism of the elements that are out there," Koch continued.

"That's just the path we're going down and I think there will be some other elements that we're going to have to find some new homes for whether they are within the new park or in Quincy Center. We have a lot of beautiful public spaces which is what the public wanted when the discussions began (on this project)."

One "element" that will remain although its location could change slightly is the Granite Gazing Ball.

And the mayor wants the public to know that any memorial impacted by the new downtown redevelopment will not be forgotten.

For instance, the Ross Parking Garage, named in honor of former Mayor Charles Ross, will be razed as part of the downtown project. Koch said one idea is to name the new parking garage that will be built during the redevelopment after the city's 20th mayor.

"We will not be removing any names from anything that was affixed. Perhaps the major new garage becomes the new Ross Garage again. In any way, we will continue to memorialize his contributions to the city, no question," Koch said.

The $15 million Adams Green project will be funded from the state's ICube program. New state revenue generated by the new downtown development (such as sales tax) will be credited back to the program so that another community can utilize the ICube.

Koch says the Adams Green will be a for everyone - visitors and residents alike.

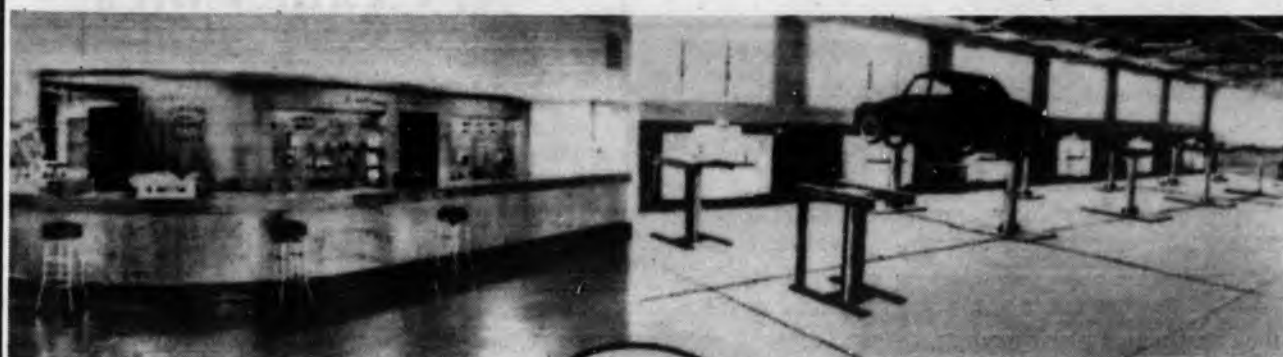

"I want (the park) to be a place where people feel comfortable, safe and proud to go to, bring their families and enjoy the parking setting," the mayor said. "It's going to become an additional destination point for tourists. It also becomes the front door of our new downtown."

For quite some time there's been consideration for a national monument to John Adams but those plans, so far anyway, have not come to fruition. The Adams Green could pick up that slack.

"I don't know if there will ever be a national monument to John Adams," Koch said. "I believe what we're engaging a sculptor to do could end up being of such significance that it could be of national stature. I'm taking about the place setting. The area around it, part of it may be bronze, part of it may be granite. That's what the artists will look at."

"I think it will be significant in size - the whole area. But nothing has been nailed down, nothing is etched in stone. We're still discussing things."

Scenes From Yesterday

QUINCY MOTOR CO.

85 QUINCY AVE.
QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS

THIS IS A 1946 postcard published by George A. Daley, Jr., owner of the Quincy Motor Company when he opened his new 15,000-square foot automobile showroom and service facility one a two-acre lot at 85 Quincy Ave. The company, which always sold Fords, was founded in 1924 and before moving here it was located in the building at two School Street in Quincy Center, now home of the Firestone store. Daley had bought an interest in the company in 1938 and owned it outright until 1957 when his estate sold it to Leo Darr, a well-known South Shore auto dealer. In its prime, the Quincy Motor Company was one of the largest Ford dealers in New England. But, over time, economic pressures and increasing foreign imports took their toll on U.S. manufactured automobiles and after nearly 60 years in business, Darr closed the dealership in 1980. That same year, two other South Shore Ford dealerships closed. Today, this building is home to a Citizens Bank branch on the left, a Tedeschi Food Shop in the round showroom and the Hairplace One hair salon in the service bays on the right. Calls Fang's Discrimination Claim 'Laughable'

I am getting sick of Michael Fang's fight to put up a supermarket in Norfolk Downs, at the old Boston Gear Works site. The location is ill-suited for the intended use. He may have a Land Court Judge on his side as he tries to force his will on elected officials and the residents of Quincy.

He is accusing Mayor Koch of intimidating the members of the Quincy City Council into voting against the site. I watched the council meetings on TV. They certainly were not under the mayor's control. It is very common for one or more to vote against bills, sent by the mayor, to the Quincy City Council for their approval.

This tactic by Mr. Fang's shows either his ignorance of Mayor Vs. City Council relationship or a willful attempt to mislead the Land Court judge.

The massive increase of the Asian population in Quincy in the last 20 years has certainly presented challenges for the city. However, the city officials have met the challenge with a welcoming approach. Many Asian businesses have won approval from the Zoning Board, the Planning Board and the Licensing Board regularly.

So Mr. Fang's subtle insinuation that he is being discriminated is laughable. I wonder how well he would fare trying to build his market in his home town of Dover. I forgot - Dover has no need of an Asian market.

Supports Hancock Statue Same Scale As Adamses

I fully agree with Claire Fitzmaurice about the proposed statues for Adams Green. The scale of the statues of the Adamses that we have now is good and, yes, approachable, just like the granite ball is now in this original location. The deadline for bid submittals is July 16. Let's hope that no one submits bids for these monumental statues!

What I would support, though, is a statue of John Hancock, along the same scale as the Adams statues, to be added to Adams Green. Governor Hancock is sorely overlooked in Quincy's recognition of our important historical figures. Doug Morrill is a John Hancock reenactor and is helping to raise awareness. Let's round it out with a statue of user-friendly proportions!

Save the money for education.

Other Ideas For The New Downtown Park Space

I fully support Claire Fitzmaurice's letter last week in strong opposition to the proposed creation of new, larger statues of John and Abigail Adams and John Hancock for the new Adams Green.

I offer additional objections to the idea:

Having a 'slightly smaller' Abigail statue would be a grave insult to her and to all other women who have struggled to be good citizens, to raise families and to serve our country. I am very disappointed that this could even be suggested in the 21st century.

The downtown redevelopment plan has been guided by public discussion since the planning charettes many years ago. I do not recall any such discussion on the statues.

Hopefully, it will be forthcoming

It does not matter which public entity would provide the $1 million estimated cost of the statues. I strongly believe such an expense is still a waste.

If the funds must be used for park-related up-grades: what about recognition of John Quincy Adams and his First Lady Louisa Catherine? How about art in the small parks sunlighting Town Brook??

With hopes for full public discussion on this matter.

First Sidewalk Bazaar

By SCOTT JACKSON

Some 70 Quincy Center stores, shops, and other businesses were scheduled to participate in the first Sidewalk Bazaar.

In addition to the merchants the bazaar, which ran from Thursday to Saturday, more than 30 special events were scheduled. They included minstrels, a banjo band, barbershop chorus, and other concerts and singers; the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Contest; square dancing; an arts show; classic movies "The Bank Dick" and "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," played at the Strand theater at discounted prices; an antique auto parade; and sidewalk dining at Murphy's Restaurant, Sherrell's Delicatessen, and W.T. Grant Co.

The special mid-summer promotion was organized by the Merchants Division of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce. Remo DeNicola of South Shore Television and Appliance was chairman of the bazaar.

"We expect this to be the biggest summer promotion ever held in Quincy or the South Shore," DeNicola said. "It's going to be a good time to shop. And it's going to be a good time. There's going to be plenty doing for all ages."

SURVIVAL, INC. LAUNCHES $250,000 DRIVE

Survival, Inc., a new organization founded to help Quincy residents dealing with substance abuse, planned an all out, door-to-door and store-to-store campaign to raise a quarter million dollars for its programs.

The Quincy City Council had already pledged 10 percent of that amount, allocating $25,000 to the project.

Survival, Inc. planned a program to respond to the drug crisis that included the establishment of a walk-in center, establishment of a treatment center, purchase of home to provide living quarters for up to 30 addicts, and creation of an informational hotline that would run around the clock.

The plan was to use Quincy City Hospital as the immediate treatment center. Location's of Survival, Inc.'s treatment center and residence hadn't been determined.

Dr. Charles Djerf, a Quincy pediatrician and former School Committee member, was president of the professional group spearheading the drive to aid in rehabilitating addicts.

Working with him were Dr. William Ridder and Dr. Russell Irons, Dr. Stanley Sagon of the South Shore Mental Health Center, attorney Edward Joyce, officials from the School and Police Departments.

Joseph Whiteman and Louis Cassani were in charge of the fund drive.

Planned fundraisers included two rummage sales organized by Dr. Djerf to be held in the back of the Bargain Center on Faxon Avenue and a special night at the South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset.

'Discover Quincy Day' Saturday

Discover Quincy, the tourism agency of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, will offer its first of three "Discover Quincy Days" this tourist season Saturday, July 13.

Other "Discover Quincy Days" are set for Aug. 10 and Oct. 5.

On "Discover Quincy Days" visitors and residents can experience Quincy and all of its rich history for one admission price.

Participants may purchase a Discover Quincy wristband for $5 that gives them admission for the day to the Adams National Historical Park, Josiah Quincy House, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Quincy Historical Society, and United First Parish Church.

"Many visitors to Quincy are familiar with the Adams story and the National Historical Park tour of the birthplaces and the Old House at Peace field," said Donna Mavromates,

Vice President and Director of Tourism for the Quincy Chamber. "Fewer are familiar with the 'Quincy' story, one of Massachusetts' leading families, and the Dorothy Quincy Homestead and Josiah Quincy House. We wanted to bring that inclusive experience to all visitors and residents alike and make it easy and affordable for them to enjoy more of Quincy's rich history this summer."

With the purchase of a wristband, visitors can visit one, two, three, four, or all five historic sites on Discover Quincy Days. They may use their own transportation and travel from location to location or they may take advantage of a shuttle that will depart from the Quincy Historical Society and run on a continuous loop between the sites from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

In addition, participants can explore Quincy's history by walking in the footsteps of John Adams. A Walking Tour map provides a self-guided tour for visitors from the Adams Academy/Quincy Historical Society down Hancock Street. Along the way, a variety of statues and markers, such as the John Adams and Abigail Adams/John Quincy Adams statues and Granite Ball are highlighted. At the Hancock Cemetery, located across the street from the United First Parish Church, a historical interpreter will be on hand to guide visitors through the town's earliest cemetery.

Discover Quincy wristbands will be sold at all of the participating historic sites on Discover Quincy Days and in advance at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St. or the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, 1400 Hancock St.

For more information, visit TheQuincyChamber.com or call the Quincy Chamber of Commerce at (617) 471-1700.

ATHERTON HOUGH SCHOOL students are thrilled to be the first school in Quincy to team up with MassDOT's Safe Routes to School (SRTS) program, says Principal Robin Moreira. The program is designed to increase walking and cycling to school among elementary and middle school students.

Atherton Hough School Joins MassDOT's Safe Routes To School

Atherton Hough School in Houghs Neck recently became the first school in Quincy to team up with MassDOT's Safe Routes to School (SRTS) program. SRTS is a federally funded state program designed to increase walking and cycling to school among elementary and middle school students.

"We're thrilled for this partnership," said Atherton Hough principal Robin Moreira. "Working with the SRTS ties in nicely with the district wellness initiatives we've been implementing throughout the year."

"Participating in an SRTS program will help strengthen the wellness and achievement of our students as well as continue to promote the great community in the Houghs Neck neighborhood," she added.

Services provided by SRTS include education of students on walking and cycling safely to school, encouragement of "active transportation" through various events, and infrastructure improvements to facilitate walking and cycling. Only 13% of students walk or ride their bicycles today, compared to around 48% in 1969.

Joining SRTS is Atherton Hough's latest effort to increase physical activity among students and to increase both walking and cycling to the neighborhood-oriented school. Initial programs at the school will focus on pedestrian and cycling safety, with pedestrian safety emphasized for lower grades and cycling safety taught to upper grades. Participating in SRTS will also allow the school to apply for federal funding for infrastructure projects such as sidewalk improvements and signage.

In addition to the initial safety-oriented programs, the PTO will be working with SRTS to organize groups of walkers and bicycle riders at different locations in Houghs Neck, to encourage activity through the safety of a larger group. SRTS programs at Atherton Hough will be rolled out in the fall.

An Afternoon Of Oldies

The Friends of Wollaston Beach will again sponsor an afternoon of 50's and 60's music at the Kennedy Center (Quincy Council on Aging) on Friday, Aug. 23rd from 1 to 3 p.m.

Light refreshments will be provided.

Registration is required for this event.

Marie's Kitchen

Cheese Cake, Graham Cracker Crust

There are so many recipes for cheese cake some of them with various types of ingredients added to the cream cheese.

Recently I found today's recipe for an easy way to make graham cracker cheese cake which came out just the flavor I wanted.

CHEESE CAKE WITH GRAHAM CRACKER CRUST

3-8 ounce package cream cheese (softened)

1- cup sugar

3 eggs

1- teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 350.

In a bowl, place the beaten eggs and the sugar and mix. Add the cream cheese and the vanilla and mix until well blended. Set aside.

You can either use a store bought graham cracker crust or make it from scratch as I did.

Here is the recipe for the crust.

GRAHAM CRACKER CRUST

1 ½ cups graham crackers (finely ground)

1/3 cup sugar

6 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

½ teaspoon cinnamon

Mix the graham crackers, sugar, butter and cinnamon well. In an eight or nine inch pie plate, place the graham cracker mix in the plate pressing down on the bottom and sides. Bake the crust in a preheated 375-degree oven for seven minutes.

Let cool a bit, and then add the cheese-cake mixture and bake in a 350-degree oven for 30-35 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean from the center. Chill before serving.

If you are using a store bought crust, bake it just the same as the homemade one.

Gardner Museum Heist Topic Of Book Discussion Monday

In her best-selling literary thriller, The Art Forger, author B.A. Shapiro offers an alternate history of the infamous Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum heist of 1990 and a tantalizing glimpse into the possibilities surrounding this mysterious and audacious crime.

Shapiro will appear at the Thomas Crane Public Library Monday, July 15 at 7 p.m. to discuss some of the interesting facts she uncovered in her research into the Gardner heist and art forgery, and how she created her story of Claire Roth, a struggling young artist with her own scandalous past, who discovers that that there's more to this crime than meets the eye.

The event will be held in the community meeting room at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St. Quincy.

Shapiro has written six novels, four screenplays and the non-fiction book, The Big Squeeze.

She has also directed research projects for a residential substance abuse facility, worked as a systems analyst/statistician, headed the Boston office of a software development firm, and served as an adjunct professor teaching sociology at Tufts University and creative writing at Northeastern University. She lives in Boston with her family and is working on her next novel.

A Monthly Chronicle Of The Adams Family 'In Their Own Words'

By KATHLEEN SULLIVAN-MORAN

Today (Thursday) we celebrate John Quincy Adams' 246th birthday - son of John and Abigail Adams and our nation's sixth president.

To mark the occasion, United States Naval personal will place a wreath on John Quincy's tomb at United First Parish Church - popularly known as the "Church of the Presidents."

In the privacy of his diary, John Quincy reflected on the anniversary of his birth. Let's look at several of his diary entries as he, in his own words, acknowledged the significance of the day:

July 11, 1812

I am forty-five years old. Two-thirds of a long life are past, and I have done nothing to distinguish it by usefulness to my country or to mankind. I have always lived with, I hope, a suitable sense of my duties in society, and with a sincere desire to perform them...I have no heavy charge upon my conscience, for which I bless my Maker, as well as for all the enjoyment that He has liberally bestowed upon me. I pray for his gracious kindness in future. But it is time to cease forming fruitless resolutions.

July 11, 1836

With praise and prayer to God, and a solemn sense of my earthly condition, and hopes of a better world, I enter upon the seventieth year of my pilgrimage...

July 11, 1841

My birthday happens this day upon the Sabbath. Every return of the day comes with a weight of solemnity more and more awful. How peculiarly impressive ought it then to be when the annual warning of the shortening threads sound in tones deepened by the churchbell of the Lord's Day! The question comes with yearly aggravation upon my conscience. What have I done with the seventy-four years that I have been indulged with the blessing of life?

Strong Start For Quincy Schools Community Service Pilot Program

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The Quincy Public Schools' community service pilot program is underway and going strong a year after being implemented by the school committee and run by teachers Meg McMillen from Quincy High and Kerry Ginty from North Quincy High.

"Our high school students reap the benefits of various life lessons and experiences that they simply cannot be taught in the classroom, and the community benefits from their hard work, time, and sacrifice," McMillen said at a recent school committee meeting.

"Our strategy going into this project was to reach out and eventually connect with as many service organizations, non-profits, and student groups as we could in order to advertise and market all the opportunities for community service as possible. In doing so we created a database of agencies and organizations in the area that could be used as an ongoing resource for our students looking to fulfill the requirements."

The pair created a database containing over 35 different organizations, agencies, parent groups, school organizations, events and contacts. Some service opportunities include working for Habitat for Humanity, Cradles to Crayons, D.A.R.E., Future Chefs, Quincy Animal Shelter, and Impact Quincy, as well as volunteering at a number of middle and elementary school programs among many other opportunities.

"With the help of technology, emails, social media, morning announcements, robo calls, and visual advertisements, our students have been provided a wealth of resources and information on the various community service opportunities available within and outside the school," said McMillen. "The high school students of both Quincy High, and North Quincy High rose to the challenge and did a fantastic job with this new initiative."

School committee members last year voted unanimously to launch the pilot community service program, which requires students in grades 10 and 11 to perform 10 hours of community service throughout the year. Those students who do not comply with the requirements of the program will not be able to walk at graduation ceremonies.

"Collectively at Quincy High and North Quincy High the sophomores and juniors, totaling 1,343 students, have a 70 percent compliance rate. We've got 70 percent of all sophomores and juniors to comply with this new initiative, and complete the 10 hours of service," said Ginty.

"We have 944 students with 10 hours of community service, another six percent of those students have started, didn't get to 10, but they started, that's over 1,023 students obtaining hours of community service, which is a great feat. These students reported over 14,835 hours of community service. We are extremely proud of our students for this.

"They worked at over 85 different organizations. We found that over 20 to 30 percent of the students who completed their requirement went over the requirement, and some actually obtained hundreds of hours. Overall we are extremely proud of the students that did comply with the requirements. We received a number of emails from different parent organizations thanking us for getting volunteers for them."

The program will be revisited again sometime at the beginning of the school year during a policy sub-committee meeting.

"I think we've learned a lot this year. This is an incredibly daunting task so we want to be able to support you in any way we can," School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said to Ginty and McMillen. "I appreciate your work and we will continue to work really hard at this and monitor it."

Quincy Fire Department Hot Topics

Backyard Safety

By ROGER KINEAVY
Quincy Fire Captain

There are not many things in life more relaxing and enjoyable than sitting around a campfire on a warm summer night. We find ourselves staring at the fire and are transfixed by the flames. Unable to look away, our thoughts are taken a million miles away.

While we all enjoy sitting around an outdoor fire, there are dangers involved. Fire is inherently dangerous. Many people are unaware of the safeguards that their communities have in place to limit this danger. Quincy is no exception in this area.

We, at the Quincy Fire Department, receive many inquiries, this time of year, requesting information regarding our City's policy on the use of backyard campfires, chimineas, and other assorted outdoor fire pit devices. People are often dismayed when they find out that Quincy has a very strict policy regarding the use of these items within City limits.

Quincy long ago adopted the Massachusetts Board of Fire Prevention Regulations which prohibits open air fires without written permission from the Fire Department (see 527 CMR 10.22). Seldom is this permission granted. In instances where it has been granted, we have insisted, as a prerequisite, that a permit be obtained and a fire watch detail be present. A fire watch detail would consist of fire department personnel whose time would be paid for by the individual homeowner. This cost, itself, prevents most people from seeking such a permit.

At this point, you might be wondering why people are allowed to have barbecue grills, and other cooking devices outdoors. This is because there is an exception within this rule which allows for cooking. 527CMR 10.22, section 3, states that "persons 18 years of age or older may, without permit, set, maintain or increase a reasonable enclosed fire for the purpose of cooking".

While outdoor fireplaces and grills may be allowed for outdoor cooking purposes, there are limitations and restrictions on their use. For example, cooking devices must not be placed within 10 feet of any structure. Also, propane or charcoal grills are not allowed on balconies. Unfortunately, these rules were put in place as a result of lessons learned in past, tragic incidents. A grill on a balcony at a multi story apartment complex in Quincy two years ago caused a fire that caused several million dollars in damage and threatened the lives of residents and first responders. The lesson that we all should take from that fire is that these things just don't happen in other far off places, but can also take place in our own back yards.

Quincy Woman Found Not Guilty By Reason Of Insanity In Murder Of Her Son

Li Rong Zhang, 42, was found not guilty by reason of insanity (lack of criminal responsibility) Tuesday in the Jan. 13, 2011 killing of her 8-year-old son.

Zhang was found unresponsive and locked and barricaded in the master bedroom of her home at 19 Yardarm Lane in Quincy with her son, Brandon Yang after another family member came home that day and alerted authorities to the smell of smoke. In the room was a wok filled with charcoal briquettes burning and emitting poisonous carbon monoxide.

It was a jury-waived trial. Norfolk Superior Court Judge Robert C. Cosgrove heard multiple medical opinions that uniformly found that Zhang lacked criminal responsibility at the time of the incident, exhibiting psychotic depression with para-noid delusions and acute suicidality. Judge Cosgrove also heard testimony that Zhang had been diagnosed with paranoid schizophrenia in 2010.

Zhang was transported to Worcester State Hospital for evaluation and future treatment following the verdict. She has been in various hospitals and state institutions since the date of the homicide and attempted suicide.

Zip Trip To Quincy A 'Homecoming' For FOX 25's Sorboni Banerjee

By SCOTT JACKSON

Each Friday during the summer the FOX 25 Morning News team packs their bags and takes their studio show on the road on 'Zip Trips' to communities throughout Greater Boston.

The morning show broadcasts live from the community those days, combining their regular news segments with special guests and features from the city or town they're in.

For one of the show's anchors, this week's broadcast from Merrymount Park will be a trip to her own backyard.

Sorboni Banerjee, a

Rhode Island native, has lived in Quincy for the past several years. The Boston University alum began working at FOX 25 in June 2012 after working as a reporter and anchor in Maryland and Providence.

Banerjee began working on the show's pre-taped segments in the weeks leading up to the broadcast. For the 'Town Tour' segment – a recurring feature on Zip Trips – she and Mayor Thomas Koch drove around Quincy visiting different landmarks and attractions.

"We hit some of the tourist attractions. The mayor took us down into the crypt under the Church of the Presidents. We went everywhere from the USS Salem to rock climbing in the quarries," Banerjee said.

"He's such a patient man for putting up with me," she added.

Developer Beal/Street-Works' $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center will also be highlighted on the Zip Trip. Banerjee and a camera crew visited the Merchants Row site, and they took pictures of the ongoing construction from atop the Granite Trust Building.

"We do a segment called 'Talk of the Town,'" Baner-

Ask the GEMOLOGIST

GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S GREEN

It is hardly an accident that the gem-quality variety of the mineral olivine, known as "peridot," is the birthstone for August. While this gemstone comes in colors ranging from yellowish-green to brown, it is the lime and olive greens that peridot lovers find so appealing. Take a summer walk along a verdant path in the woods by a stream, and you are likely to encounter many similar colors among the leaves and ferns. Peridot in these colors, which are equal mixes of sunshine and chlorophyll, seem almost capable of giving off the scent of a freshly cut lawn. As such, peridot proves to be a favorite among fashion jewelry designers, who love the gemstone's ability to "pop" and elicit attention.

Peridot's unique vivid green adds a lively sparkle to any piece of jewelry. Come into our store located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center where our peridot birthstone jewelry is available in beautiful rings, earrings, necklaces and bracelets. You'll also find vibrant August birthstone jewelry that includes colorful gemstones to add extra sparkle. Flavin & Flavin Honors Realtors Don McHugh, Bill Geller

For 25 Years Of Service

Flavin & Flavin Realtors in Quincy recently honored two longtime employees for their 25 years of service with a thank you breakfast at their office on Hancock Street.

The office now has five employees that have worked for the company for 25 plus years, including realtors Don McHugh and Bill Geller who celebrated their 25 years with the company on June 19th.

"These two men are excellent associates that do what needs to be done," said owner Ed Flavin. "We have many more employees approaching the 25 year mark and five realtors who are already in the 25 year club."

Flavin presented both McHugh and Geller with a card and spoke highly of them both.

the Hancock Bank as an appraiser and I recognized the right qualities in him and chased him for three or four years to come work with us," said Flavin.

"Don worked for The Boston Globe and had a terrific people ability. He loves everybody and everybody loves him. A year or two after he retired from the Globe he came in and said that he wanted to try real estate. Customers have become very fond of him and say that it's like buying a house from Santa Claus. It has been 25 years of fun with both of them."

The two men started their tenure at Flavin & Flavin in their early 60's after retiring from their careers of over 30 years. McHugh is a Quincy resident who lives in Presidents Hill and Geller is a resident of Braintree.

SUMMER SWIMMING ADVICE

If you're going to regularly swim in a swimming pool with chlorinated water this summer, you should know that the water has the potential of damaging tooth enamel. This problem is particularly common in poorly maintained pools. Damage to tooth enamel occurs when the pH of the pool water becomes too low (acidic), causing the water to have a corrosive effect on teeth (and possibly irritate skin). With this in mind, it is a good idea to use swimming pools that are properly maintained by lifeguards and other personnel who regularly keep check on the chlorine and pH levels. If you are concerned about potential problems, carry inexpensive pool pH test strips with you to the pool.

This summer season, tens of thousands of folks will be enjoying a respite in their backyard pools. These pools could be putting their family's dental health at risk for permanent damage to their teeth. Proper pool chlorine and pH levels should be monitored and maintained on a weekly basis. If you would like further information, or to schedule an appointment, please call us at 617-479-6220. We desire to provide you with excellent dental care through outstanding patient service while being treated with respect and dignity. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where comfort, care, and convenience make the difference. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Acid from carbonated drinks and fruit juices has the potential to erode tooth enamel.

AMONG THE FIRST 30 inductees in the newly established North Quincy High School Baseball Hall of Fame were Charlie Bunker (left), a coach for the Red Raiders from 1969 to 1984, and his son, Chris Bunker, an outfielder and 1984 graduate of NQHS.

North Quincy Baseball Hall Of Fame Induction

Class Of 2013 Includes 30 Former Red Raider Standouts And Special Inductees

The newly established North Quincy High School Baseball Hall of Fame recently held its first induction ceremony at the Tirrell Room, Quincy Lodge of Elks.

The following individuals were inducted as the Class of 2013.

Biographies of the inductees were compiled by the Hall of Fame Committee. Members are Paul Bregoli, Mike Cahill, Ryan Herlihy, Kenny McPhee, Jack Outterbridge and Sandy Verhault.

The inductees are:

The second longest tenured baseball coach in North Quincy at 16 years, Charlie Bunker brought a baseball pedigree second to none amongst Red Raider coaches.

As a high school player at Dorchester High School, Charlie put up staggering statistical numbers while pitching, playing first base and roaming the outfield. This lefty had a career record of 31-2 and with an ERA which hovered around the 1.00 mark while averaging 12 strikeouts a game. A two time All-Scholastic in both the Boston Globe and Boston Herald, Charlie had 12 of the 16 major league baseball teams wanting his signature on a pro contract. He also had offers from an abundance of big time Division I schools like South California, Duke, and U. Miami to name a few. Charlie decided to pursue his education locally and received a full baseball scholarship at Boston College.

During Charlie's years at BC, the Eagles went to the College World Series in Omaha, Nebraska three times. Charlie was selected a Greater Boston College All-Star twice and was inducted in the Boston College Baseball Hall of Fame in 1994.

HALL OF FAME inductees, outfielder Joe Crowley (1954) and pitcher/right fielder Ron "Swisher" Frongello (1952).

BC with the Red Sox signing Coach Bunker to a bonus and then assigning him to the Pioneer League in Pocatello, Idaho. In his second year, pitching for Winston-Salem in the Carolina League, Charlie matched up against Luis Tiant, pitching for the Indians farm team Burlington. After nine innings, Bunker and Tiant had both put up zeroes on the scoreboard. In the tenth, Charlie gave up a run and lost to Tiant 1-0. Luis had thrown a no-hitter to beat Charlie, the only no hitter Tiant threw in his professional career. Many years later, Tiant was playing a round of golf at President's when Charlie's son Chip spotted him and shouted that his dad was beaten by him in that no-hit game. Tiant drove to Charlie's house on Hilma St. and the two reminisced in Charlie's living room. On that Winston-Salem team with Charlie were Rico Petrocelli, Joe Foy, George Scott and Mike Andrews. They moved together to Seattle (AAA) where Charlie injured his arm. Unfortunately, Charlie's dream ended while the Impossible Dream of 1967 is history. One wonders what could have been.

Charlie arrived at North Quincy in 1965 as a teacher in the Business Education Department becoming the JV baseball coach. Charlie became Head Coach in 1969. He remained at North Quincy until retirement. Charlie's NQ teams qualified for tournament play several times (when the criteria was 75 percent) and in 1979 brought NQ their first ever league baseball championship.

Ray Cattaneo Special Award

When anyone hears a reference to baseball in the City of Quincy, a name that immediately comes to mind is Ray Cattaneo.

Ever since he began playing the game in the ball fields of West Quincy, Ray has had a love affair with baseball. As a youngster, Ray would play morning, noon, and night with a boyhood dream of someday playing in the big leagues.

In high school, Ray took his skills to BC High where he played shortstop. He tried out for Morrisette Legion at the age of 14 and played in Morrisette's first game on June 17, 1945, 6-1 win over Milton. His name could be seen in the box scores in the Quincy Patriot Ledger playing for both Morrisette and St. Mary's a member of the Quincy Park League.

In 1949, Ray signed a professional baseball contract with the Boston Braves. He was assigned to Owensboro, KY where he hit .383. Originally signed as a shortstop, Ray was moved to 3rd base. He was described as "stock and well-built, which contributes to his hitting the long ball." While at Owensboro, his hitting and fielding were described as "major contributors to the team's 14 game winning streak." Jeff Heath, hitting instructor for the Braves' farm clubs said of Ray, "he has the makings of a fine hitter with real power for a youngster. He also has an excellent arm."

In 1950, "The Cat" as he was called by his teammates was moved to Class B Evansville, where he was chosen the League All-Star. That season, Ray hit .309 with 102 RBI, 24 doubles, 8 triples, and 15 homeruns. Unfortunately, a serious hand injury ended Ray's dream of playing in the big leagues. However, his love of baseball continued.

On June 14, 1970, Ray won his first game as coach/manager of the Morrisette Legion. During his years of coaching Morrisette, Ray's teams won 609 games! This included two State Championships, one in 1975 and the other in 1992. His 1975 team won the Northeast Regionals (Region 1) beating an Old Towns, Maine team that had Brian Butterfield, currently the Red Sox third base coach, playing second base. Ray then took Morrisette to the American Legion World Series in Rapid City, SD. The 1992 team lost in the Northeast regional finals. His 1998 team also made it to the Northeast Regional finals, losing to State College, PA.

Ray touched many young men's lives and still holds a place in the hearts of those 100s of young men he coached.

James "Sonny" Fay, 1935, Catcher

Sonny put on the catcher's gear as a sophomore and started every game behind the plate at North during his three-year varsity career.

Batting in the three-hole as a sophomore, Sonny led the team in hitting with a lofty .409 average. Sonny was a tough out all throughout his career. As a sophomore Sonny had four multiple hit games. As a senior, Sonny hit safely in all but three games for the Scarlett and Black. His three-hit game in a win against Brain-tree was one of the many highlights for the 1935 season.

Sonny was a gifted athlete blessed with great hands and speed. Sonny attributed this to his father, who was also a gifted athlete and played baseball professionally in the U.S. and Canada. Sonny was a three-sport athlete at North Quincy, playing football, basketball and baseball. He is a member of the North Quincy Football Hall of Fame and was a Captain in 1934. He played football at Boston College as a scholarship player.

Although he was a letter winner in three sports at North, Sonny always said his first love was baseball. He grew up in the Atlantic section of North Quincy and often played catch with Mary Pratt who later was a pitcher in the All American Professional Baseball League (A League of Their Own). Sonny said of Mary that she threw harder than the boys!

Enlisting in the Army for World War II, Sonny was in the U.S. Army Air Corp. He married the former Eugenia Kingston and had six children. Sonny became a Quincy Police Officer and then a detective, retiring as a Lieutenant in 1981.

Ralph Alton McLeod

1935, Outfield

Ralph McLeod has the distinction of being the first major league baseball player to come out of North Quincy High School.

The starting outfielder on North's first varsity baseball team in 1933, Ralph played every game in center for Leroy "Curly" Rogers from 33-35. As a sophomore, Ralph batted .333. The leading hitter for the Scarlet and Black his junior and senior years, Ralph had several standout performances at the plate. In a 4-1 victory over Waltham, Ralph went 3 for 4 with his three-run homerun providing the margin of victory. Ralph also collected three hits in a win over Milton. McLeod, hitting third his senior year, also had a big day in a win over Braintree, collecting four hits including a triple. Ralph closed out his high school career with two hits against Dedham, one being a triple. He finished his senior year hitting .370. Ralph was honored for his hard hitting feats with his selection to Paul V. Craigie's first All-Scholastic Baseball Team of the Boston Globe. Craigie described Ralph as "as fine of a prospect in the school ranks. Left handed, both at bat and afield, the tall slim Granite City Boy hammered the ball to exactly the same tune as Munichiello."

Ralph signed a contract with the Boston Braves (known as the Bees) and was assigned to McKeesport where he hit .326. In '37 he moved to Columbia of the South Atlantic League and hit .312. In 1938, Ralph was on to Hartford (AAA) where he hit .331 which earned him a call-up to the Braves who were managed by Casey Stengel.

Ralph's first big league hit, a single, came off of Paul Dean of the St. Louis Cardinals at Braves Field. That day Ralph did not play centerfield. A player by the name of Dom DiMaggio did. He played six games for the Braves that year, his only one in the majors, finishing 2 for 7 (.286).

Joe Welsh, 1937, Pitcher

Possessing what the Quincy Patriot Ledger described as a "sizzling fastball," Joe Welsh established himself a top of the rotation pitcher during his career at North Quincy. As a junior, Joe notched two wins on a team that won only three games. As one of only two seniors on the 1937 club, Joe was a tough luck loser in several games, losing a one run game to Milton and a tough 10 inning loss to Quincy despite mowing down 17 Blue and White hitters via the K. In his senior season, Joe had 54 strikeouts using his fastball, sharp curve and a low drop curve to keep batters off balance. But the highlight of his career came on an historic day in May of 1937 when Joe became the first pitcher in NQ history to toss a no-hitter. That day Joe struck out 14 Hingham hitters in a 2-0 North Quincy win without walking anyone. Joe missed a perfect game when an error in the seventh inning allowed the only Hingham base runner in the nine-inning contest. Joe also drove in the winning run with a single. Joe was named a Quincy Patriot Ledger Honorable Mention All Star for his efforts in his senior year. Joe also played in the City League for the Squantum Rackateers. He also pitched semi-pro ball in the Boston Two-Light league. Joe spent four years in the service during World War II, 1.5 years in Europe. Joe worked for the federal government in the CIA. He is 93 years of age, lives in Fairfax, VA, and still has the ball from his historic no-hitter!

1943, Pitcher/Outfield

Saying Bob Driscoll carried the North Quincy High baseball team on his back his senior year would be an understatement of significant magnitude. The Red Raiders posted six wins in the 1943 season with Bob the winning pitcher in all six games! The Quincy Patriot Ledger lauded Bob as "one of the top flight schoolboy diamond players this year (1943)." As a hurler Bob allowed only six runs in 55 innings of work while striking out 69. His undefeated season on the mound included a 9-0 one-hitter against Weymouth with 15 strikeouts. He also tossed a three hitter versus Thayer Academy, an 11-inning eight-strikeout gem against Quincy and back-to-back wins against Braintree. In the first win over the Wamps, Driscoll threw a five-hitter and struck out 17 and came back with a with a four-hit, nine-strikeout performance in a 3-2 NQ victory, his last game as a Raider. Bob also produced at the plate, hitting .500 his senior year with 11 RBI. He had a four multiple hit games in 1943 including a homerun against Hingham and a triple against Milton. His junior year was highlighted by a relief win against Quincy with his triple driving in the winning run. He also had three great catches in the outfield against the Presidents.

Ken Coleman, Red Sox broadcaster, called Bob "one of the best pitchers he had ever seen." Bob also played in the Cincinnati Reds' farm system.

1944, First Base

Tom goes down in North Quincy baseball as one of the top hitters of all time. As a junior leftfielder for the Scarlett and Black, Tom led the team in doubles while hitting a lofty .441. Highlights of his junior year included a three for three day against Braintree with a triple. This Montclair Masher finished the year hitting an incredible .614, the highest average ever in North Quincy history while playing at the first sack. Tom had multiple hit games an amazing nine times in 1944. He also had four hits in a game three times, twice against Hingham and once against Quincy. He also homered against Hingham and drove in three runs versus Quincy. Tom collected 27 hits his senior season and finished with a career batting average of .538, the highest in North Quincy baseball history!

Tom continued to pound the ball for Wollaston Legion, leading them to the South Shore Junior Legion Crown hitting .556.

Following that summer, Tom enlisted in the Navy and served in the Philippines. While still serving his country, the Brooklyn Dodgers offered Tom a contract to sign with their farm team in Nashua, NH. Upon his discharge from the service, Tom enrolled at Boston College. Tom is also a member of the NQ Football Hall of Fame for his stellar career as a running back.

Dick Donovan, 1945, Pitcher/Shortstop

Dick was the second graduate of North Quincy High School to play major league baseball, pitching for four different teams during his 15-year career in the big leagues.

Ironically, Dick did not toe the rubber for the Raiders until his senior year. His junior saw Dick playing shortstop and hitting a respectable .289. Dick a five-hit, one homerun game against Hingham and also blasted a round tripper against Thayer. His junior year finally saw Dick get a chance on the hill. His first outing saw Dick battle a heavily favored Quincy High nine, beating the Blue and White in 12 innings, throwing a two-hitter and fanning 16 in a 2-0 when. Dick won three more games that season while also playing in the outfield when not pitching.

Dick was signed by the Milwaukee organization in 1949 and was with the hometown Boston Braves from 1950-53. His major league debut for the Braves saw him hook up against Brooklyn Dodger great Don Newcombe on April 24, 1950. After the game an impressed Jackie Robinson said of Dick, "he looks like Vern Bickford and throws like Johnny Sain." In his American League debut for the Chicago White Sox Dick beat the Red Sox throwing a four-hitter with Ted Williams going 0-4 against Donovan. He won 15 games in 1955 with five straight wins, three via a shutout. Dick had 14 complete games in 1956 and had 16 wins in 1957. In 1959, Dick helped the White Sox win the American League pennant and pitched in the 1959 World Series. Dick started game three against the Dodgers and Don Drysdale before 92,000 fans at Dodger Stadium. Dick went 6 2/3 innings giving up two hits and two runs while the White Sox left 11 men on base. He came back two days later and picked up the save with 1 2/3 of hitless relief for starter Bob Shaw.

At 33, Dick was 10-10 with the Washington Senators. Traded to Cleveland in 1962, Dick was the Tribe's #1 pitcher finishing the year with a 20-10 mark including eight straight wins.

Dick was released by the Indians on June 17, 1965 at the age of 37 after 15 seasons in the majors, with 122 wins.

Paul McGuiggan 1949, Catcher

Before his senior year, Paul McGuiggan was described by the Quincy Patriot Ledger as "one of the best catchers on the South Shore." He was also praised by baseball coach Hal Forest as a complete player, one who could hit, run and throw. McGuiggan, as a three-year starter at North Quincy started every game for the Raiders. As a sophomore, he played right field and hit cleanup. He led the team in hitting with a .375 average. For his junior and senior year seasons, Paul backstopped North. He again led the team in hitting .324 while throwing out three runners. As a senior McGuigan hit .310 and threw out nine would be base stealers. Paul was a fierce competitor on the diamond. As a senior his toughness was evident by a game at Randolph when a batter's backswing hit Paul in the head, knocking him out of the game and sending him to Quincy City for stitches. However, McGuigan returned several days later going two for five with a triple and leading North Quincy to a 7-3 win over Quincy. After Paul graduated from North Quincy, Coach Forest continued to praise McGuigan telling the Ledger that "Paul McGuigan had a world of natural ability, equally at bat as he was behind the plate." He finished with a career average of .333. Paul is also in the North Quincy Football Hall of Fame.

Ron "Swisher" Frongello, 1952, Pitcher/Right Field

A two-year varsity pitcher, Ron saw his first action as a junior in a relief role against Brockton fanning seven of the 10 hitters he faced. He came up with his first win, a three-hit shutout over Cathedral. In his senior year, this "bespectacled fireballer" as the Ledger called him, registered four wins, two by shutout. In an opening day win against Braintree, Ron handcuffed the Wamps on three hits while striking out 14. During one stretch of games during his senior year, Ron threw 21 straight innings of shutout ball. Of the three games Rob last that season, North was no-hit in one game and one-hit in the other. Amongst his victories in 1952 was another shutout over Cathedral and a 3-2 decision over unbeaten Weymouth, a game in which he was described as "toying with the Weymouth hitters." His senior year saw Ron have strikeout totals of 11, 12, 13 (twice) and 16 in games he pitched. He also hit .333 his senior year playing right field when not pitching. His outstanding success at North Quincy prompted the Cleveland Indians to sign him to a minor league contract and he was assigned to Fon du Lac, WI. While with the Indians, he was in camp with future Indian greats Rocky Colavito and Herb Score. His roommate was Roger Maris.

At age 18, he was drafted into the U.S. Army and sent to Korea. While there, he did pitch in military baseball tournaments where his team won the Korean Peninsula Championship and the Far East Tournament. Following Korea, Ron remained in baseball serving as a major league scout for 23 years with the Red Sox, five with the Oakland A's, and two with the Orioles.

Joe Crowley 1954, Outfield

An outstanding all-around athlete, Joe was one of the key players who helped lead North Quincy to its first tournament appearance against Somerville.

A "fleet-footed ball hawk," as described by the Ledger, Joe was an outstanding defensive outfielder in his two years as a starter. Also known for his ability to hit the long ball, Joe batted .423 his junior year. In his only mound appearance that year, Joe was the winning pitcher in a victory over Thayer Academy. His senior year saw Joe continue his excellent play. He hit .367 while clouting two homeruns. His four for four performance against Braintree included a double and a homerun. He had four multiple hit games as a senior.

Upon graduation, Joe tried out for and made the Hearst All-Star team as a centerfielder. He then prepped a year at Thayer before entering Tufts University where he starred in both football and baseball and was elected Captain his senior year for both teams.

An outstanding summer of Legion Baseball for Wollaston had the Baltimore Orioles pursuing Joe. He also had verbal offers from the Giants and Pirates.

Following his senior season at Tufts, the Indians were ready to sign and assigned Joe to Reading of the Eastern League. However, a play at second base resulting in a leg injury ended Joe's baseball career.

George Denneen 1954, Pitcher

Described by the Quincy Patriot Ledger as "the most dominant pitcher on the South Shore," George led the Red Raiders to their first ever E-Mass Tournament appearance in 1954.

As a junior, George helped lead North Quincy to a 9-4 record. His first varsity win came in a 2-1 win over Weymouth where George mowed down 16 hitters via the K. He followed that up with a 4-1 victory over previously unbeaten Malden Catholic, throwing a four-hitter. George was even better his senior season finishing with a 5-2 regular season mark. Possessing an assortment of breaking balls and a plus fastball, this hard throwing southpaw whiffed 17 Braintree batters in a win. He was also the tough luck loser 1-0 against Quincy, despite throwing a nine-inning no-hitter and striking out 13. Starting the first ever postseason appearance in North Quincy history, George lost a 4-2 decision to perennial powerhouse Somerville after which the Highland coach admitted they were lucky to survive.

In addition to his accomplishments on the mound, George was also a fine hitter. He batted .326 as a junior. George had a tryout with the New York Yankees with pitching great Lefty Gomez overseeing his workout. With options to attend Colby College, George furthered his education there. A highlight of George's college career was going four for four against Mo Drabowsky, the Trinity pitcher who went on to pitch 17 years in the major leagues.

Eddie Densmore 1954, Shortstop

Hal Forest, legendary baseball coach at North Quincy, described the 5'8" Densmore as his "spark-plug." Forest marveled at the way Ed "always came up with clutch plays." Forest also sensed Ed was "always thinking two plays ahead."

As a leadoff hitter, his coach could count on Ed to almost always get on base. On base percentage was not charted then, but if it were Ed's would have been high. As a junior, Ed hit .261 while playing a flawless shortstop. Always a threat to run, Ed stole home in a game against Malden Catholic his junior year. As a senior, Ed was another of the key players who led North Quincy to its first tournament appearance. He led the team in hitting that year batting .375. During his career Ed had six multiple hit games.

Following his career at North Quincy, Ed went to play baseball at Boston College playing shortstop there as well. He was captain of BC's baseball team as a senior.

In his later years, softball became Ed's passion. At age 59 he was selected to the 1995 Chevrolet All World team. In 2000, he played for the ASA National Champions and in 2006 at the age of 70, Ed was selected to the ISBA All World Team. He is currently under consideration for the National Senior Hall of Fame. Ed passed away in 2011 at the age of 75.

Phil Crowley, 1963, Pitcher/Outfield

The first time Phil Crowley was handed the ball as a sophomore, he displayed the poise and talent that established him as the ace of the Red Raider pitching staff for the next three years. In his initial appearance, Phil hurled a one-hitter beating

Don Bosco 4-1. His next outing was more impressive! He tossed a no-hitter against Christopher Columbus striking out seven in a 4-0 win. Of the seven games North Quincy won in 1961, Phil won six. He also hit for a .300 average.

Phil was equally impressive his junior year. He finished the season with a 5-2 record with one of his losses a 1-0 decision to BC High where he allowed two hits while striking out 10. Notable wins included a 2-0 victory over an undefeated Thayer team and a 5-0 shutout over Quincy where he allowed only three hits while striking out 21 Prexies in a nine-inning game. Phil finished his junior year with 87 strikeouts for the season.

Leading his team as a senior, Phil notched five more wins including two shutouts over Hingham. In his career, Phil accumulated 16 wins while striking out 10 or more batters in a game eight times. Phil finished his career with 217 strikeouts, the second most by a pitcher in North Quincy history.

Charlie MacDonald, 1964, Pitcher/Outfield

This tall, lanky right-hander played for the Red Raiders during Edgar Philip's tenure at North Quincy. Known for his explosive fastball thrown with the seams, Charlie blossomed his senior year, culminating with a 2-1, 13-strikeout performance against New Bedford in his final high school game. When not on the hill, Charlie manned the outfield and had four multiple hit games in 1964.

Charlie played Legion

baseball for Quincy Post 95 and led them to the Zone 6 Championship in 1964. During the summer, Charlie posted seven wins, allowed only 10 hits in a stretch of six games, had 54 strikeouts in 33 innings and threw a 1-0, 14 strikeout no-hitter against Weymouth. Charlie was selected to the Greater Boston Hearst All-Star team that played several tournament games at Fenway Park. The Record American described Charlie as "the best pitcher in the tournament." Charlie traveled to Shea Stadium in New York and played with Bill Conigliaro. In his two innings of work there, Charlie allowed one hit and struck out two. Kansas City A's (now Oakland) scout Billy Enos came knocking and signed Charlie on Sept. 2, 1964. Assigned to Burlington of the Midwest League, Charlie's first roommate was Rollie Fingers.

Charlie spent a total of four years in the A's organization. He played in the minors with Skip Lockwood of Norwood. While in spring training with the AA and AAA players in 1966, Charlie faced Reggie Jackson in an intra-squad game. Jackson, commenting on of Charlie's fastballs, said that "it sounded like a strike." Unfortunately Charlie's career was cut short by shoulder problems. He did pitch in 1969 in the Canadian Provincial League for Trois Riviers. He now resides in Riviera Beach, FL.

Pete Varney 1966, Catcher

A three-sport star athlete

at North Quincy, Pete is only the third player in Red Raider history to play baseball at the major league level. One of the best athletes to ever come out of NQ, Pete is also a Hall of Fame member in both football and basketball.

Pete had just turned 15 at the beginning of the baseball season his junior. Starting behind the plate for Whitey Lewis, Pete went two for five with three RBI in his first varsity game against Thayer. Pete continued his lusty hitting through the season garnering four hits in a win over New Bedford followed by a three RBI effort in a second game against the Whalers. Pete had five multi-hit games in 1965 and finished with a .327 average. During that summer Pete attended a NY Yankees tryout camp and according to the Quincy Patriot Ledger, "put on a power display that had the scouts thinking in terms of Joe DiMaggio."

Standing at 6'3" and weighing 210 pounds as a senior, major league scouts were in abundance at Adams Field when NQ played. Pete continued to crush the ball at a .480 clip with three round trippers in '66. Eligible for the Junior Legion Draft in 1966, the Kansas City Athletics made Varney their top pick, as well as the top pick in the country.

Pete played in the Boston Park League as a 17-year-old and hit .325 with three homeruns. He decided to go to Deerfield Academy and from there was accepted to Harvard where he played both football and baseball. Before choosing Harvard, Pete had 48 football offers as well as three in baseball and two in basketball.

While at Deerfield and Harvard, Pete entered the special phase of the baseball draft and was chosen #1 overall two more times.

At Harvard, Pete was immortalized in that school's football history when in 1968, Pete caught the tying two-point conversion pass from Frank Chiampa with no time left giving the Crimson a 29-29 tie with Yale. Incredibly, Ken Coleman, NQ 1945, called that game on the radio. Pete is a member of Harvard's Football and Baseball Halls of Fame. Pete was also an All-American in baseball twice and lead his team to the College World Series his senior year. He was a career .378 hitter while at Harvard.

Pete finally signed with the Chicago White Sox in 1971 and played AA and AAA minor league ball before being called up in September 1973. During his time with Chicago, Pete homered against the Yankees twice, once off Larry Gura at Shea Stadium and once off of Rudy May in Yankee Stadium. In 1976 he was traded to the Atlanta Braves for Blue Moon Odum and remained with Atlanta through 1977.

He continued to play in the Park League, owning a career .400 average and is a member of their Hall of Fame. Pete is currently the head baseball coach at Brandeis University.

Rich Wanless

1966, Pitcher/Outfield

A hard throwing right-hander with a curveball and screwball, Rich met success as a junior for North Quincy. In his first varsity start, Rich struck out 10 in a 5-4 win over Quincy. As a senior Rich finished with a 5-2 record. Rich threw two one-hitters his senior year. His first was against New Bedford in a 3-0 loss. He fared better against Somerville, EMass runners up in 1966. He beat the Highlanders 3-1 striking out nine. Richard had 15 strikeouts in a win over Quincy, 16 strikeouts in a win over Malden, and 12 strikeouts in a 5-0 victory over Revere. As his senior year progressed, scouts were calling the athletic office to see when Rich was pitching. In late June of 1966, the San Francisco Giants approached Rich offering him a bonus to sign with them. He did not sign and played Legion Baseball that summer. Lefty O'Connell, the Braintree Legion and later coach at Brandeis and Princeton, tabbed Rich as "one of the best I've seen around here." This was after striking out 14 Braintree batters in a seven-inning Legion game.

Besides his two one-hit shutouts at North Quincy High, Rich gave up only 15 hits in 43 innings with 68 strikeouts and a 1.16 ERA.

Accepting a football scholarship to the University of Maryland, Rich finally signed a pro contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1970. He was invited to major league camp and spent three years in Single A with the pirates. Rich continued pitching in the Boston Park League for the Bob Wolfe Club.

Tom Burke, 1972, Outfield

Tom went on to play at Northeastern University. At Northeastern, he was a four-time Greater Boston League All-Star in baseball. His junior year Tom was 24 for 24 in stolen base attempts. His senior season Tom batted .344 with five homeruns and 28 RBI. Tom set five baseball records (career) including runs scored, RBI, hits and steals. Tom is also in the Northeastern University Hall of Fame for both baseball and football. Tom was the MVP of both sports in his junior and senior years.

Tom was drafted by the Pittsburgh Pirates upon graduation from Northeastern University.

Tim Clifford 1975, Pitcher

This 6'3" hard throwing right-hander was the workhorse for the North Quincy pitching staff in 1974 and 1975. During Tim's junior and senior years, Tim's North Quincy team won 26 games for head coach Charlie Bunker. During his three-year varsity career, Tim put up huge numbers. He won a total of 18 games and in his junior year posted a diminutive 0.50 ERA. Of the 40 games the Red Raiders played in his junior and senior years, Tim figured in 23 of those decisions winning 15. As a sophomore, Tim's first start was a win over Chelsea in which he struck out 15 batters. His strike out numbers over his career ranks him number one with 227 strikeouts. He reached double-digit strikeout totals 10 times during his career. Tim's high in strikeouts was 16 in a 3-2 win over Haverhill his junior year. Tim was selected to the Suburban League All Star Team as a senior.

During Morrisette Legion's magical ride to the World Series in 1975, it was Tim who led them to a 33-6 record and a Region I Championship. Tim was 15-1 during the regular season and then posted another three wins in playoffs including a three-hit, 13 K win over Depew, NY and win in relief over Old Town, ME in the Region I finals. Tim led Morrisette to another Zone 6 Crown in 1976 recording another eight wins that summer.

Tim attended Harvard University from 1976-79 compiling a 20-8 career mark in his four-year varsity career. Tim led the Ivy League in wins in 1979, earning him All Ivy Second Team. Tim also pitched for the Chatham Athletics in 1977 and '78 in the Cape Cod League. Both summers Tim finished in the top 10 in ERA for the league. Tim is also in the North Quincy Basketball Hall of Fame.

Steve McKinnon 1975, Catcher

North's starting catcher his junior and senior years, Steve was rock solid behind the plate both defensively and with his handling of the pitching staff.

As a junior, Steve had four multi-hit games including a four for five, two RBI games against Medford. He batted a solid .354 in 1974.

His numbers senior year were even more impressive. Steve had an astonishing 10 multiple hit games his final year. His .510 batting average is third all-time for a single season. In '75 Steve had 25 RBI including a three for four, three RBI against Brockton and a four RBI afternoon versus Weymouth. Blessed with above average speed, Steve swiped eight bases in nine attempts and threw out 80 percent of all runners attempting to steal. A line drive hitter, Steve batted third in the Raider line up his senior year. A Suburban League All-Star, Steve was also chosen a Boston Globe All-Scholastic in 1975.

Steve was also a member of the Morrisette Legion team that went to the World Series in Rapid City, SD. He also caught and led Morrisette to a second Zone 6 Championship in 1976. He attended Northeastern on a baseball scholarship upon graduation from North.

Gary Earle, 1979, Pitcher

This crafty southpaw was a three-year varsity player for Coach Bunker. Coach Bunker described Gary's abilities as "watching a man play with boys." So dominating was Gary when he took the ball that Bunker said, "I just sat back and watched a master." Gary was indeed a master on the mound. Following two wins in his only two starts his junior year, one a two-hit shutout over Milton and the other a 10 K win over Cambridge Rindge & Latin, Gary dazzled Suburban League hitters on his way to a 9-0 regular season record. His 0.31 ERA over the regular season remains among the lowest in Red Raider history. On North's run to the Suburban League crown in 1979, it was Gary's three-run homerun which gave North Quincy its first league baseball championship in a 7-6 win over Brockton.

The opening day starter in '79, Gary gutted out a 13-inning, 17-strikeout 4-3 win versus Newton North. Commented Bunker, "Gary was throwing as hard in the 13th as he was in the first!"

Gary, who had four career shutouts, had two his senior year, the first a two-hitter against Newton North in a rematch and the other a one-hitter against Waltham.

Gary was so dominating he put together 12 straight wins over a two-year span. His outstanding senior season earned Gary Suburban League MVP honors as well as a spot on the Patriot Ledger All Scholastic Team. Gary also hit .315 with 11 stolen bases that year. Following NQ, Gary continued his stellar pitching career

His Morrisette highlights included three-hit games in wins over Hingham and Randolph, a two for three, RBI game against Randolph and in a 2-1 win over Milton, Jack had a two-run homer.

Following his outstanding career at North, Jack was awarded a baseball scholarship to Eckerd in Florida. As a senior, Jack captained Eckerd while batting cleanup. That year, Jack led the team in homeruns and RBI and was named All-South as an outfielder.

While at Eckerd, Jack roomed with Mickey Pina and played with Jim Mecir, a 10-year major leaguer. He continued to play baseball for eight years in the Park League with the Milton Towne team.

Chris was also chosen for the Boston Globe All-Scholastic along with future Atlanta Braves' pitcher Tom Glavine.

The top recruit at Brown, Harvard and Dartmouth, Chris, who was rated as one of the top high school prospects in the country, chose Dartmouth. Success followed him to college where until recently he held the record for games played in. Playing centerfield for the Big Green as he did at North, Chris' Dartmouth squad won the Ivy League title his junior year, finishing undefeated. Chris finished second in the Ivy League in batting and was chosen All-Ivy Second Team. His team went on to the Regionals in Atlanta that year.

Chris, who finished with a .470 career average at NQ, continued playing baseball after college playing in the Boston Park League for the Milton Town team. Chris is also a member of the North Quincy Basketball Hall of Fame.

Bill MacDougall 1989, Outfield

Few centerfielders in the history of North Quincy baseball have covered ground in the outfield of Adams Field like Bill MacDougall. Billy had a knack for reading the ball off the bat and then using his blazing speed to track down many a ball hit into the gaps, making up for mistakes thrown by Raider hurlers.

Billy was a four-year starter in centerfield, one of the most critical positions defensively on the diamond. Possessing a swing like "The Natural," Billy was an excellent hitter as well. Bill had pop in his swing and was able to drive the ball into the gaps, or, using his excellent speed, could beat out a slow roller for a hit. Billy was always a threat to run, often ending up on second base after drawing a walk or hitting a single.

As a senior, he had multiple hit games against Natick, Brookline, Waltham and Quincy. A captain his junior and senior years, Bill helped North to its second Suburban League title in 1989 while hitting .318. Bill also pitched a bit and was credited with a complete game 4-2 win with 9 Ks over Weymouth North.

Bill played American Legion baseball for Morrisette. In 1989 Bill batted .395 in leading the team into the playoffs. Against Braintree Legion, Bill was four for six with two doubles and a home run.

This Hall of Fame football player at North Quincy then went on to Central Connecticut State where he played football and baseball. Billy continued to play baseball in the Boston Park League for 16 years. In 2007 Billy was inducted into the Park League Hall of Fame.

Tony Anderlionis 1990, Shortstop

This two-time Suburban League All-Star was the starting varsity shortstop for North Quincy his sophomore, junior and senior years. Tony's excellent range which allowed him to make plays in the hole was praised by his Morrisette Legion coach, Dave Perdios.

Tony fit right in the Red Raider lineup as a sophomore. Highlights included a two for four game against Malden, a three for four and four RBI effort versus Brockton and a two RBI game against Quincy. Tony continued to produce his junior season with multiple RBI efforts against Somerville, where he hit a homerun, Everett and Quincy. His senior year saw Tony take the mound once resulting in a complete game win over Newton North. He continued to shine at the plate with a two-hit, four runs scored outing against Arlington and another multi-hit, two RBI game against Quincy.

In the summer of 1990, Tony helped Morrisette Legion to a 23-6 record and a Zone 6 Championship. Perdios marveled at Tony's strong arm and range. Evidence of his defensive abilities came in a playoff game against Brockton Legion when he handled eight defensive chances flawlessly and turned two double plays. He finished as a two-year starter for Morrisette hitting .330 and leading the team in runs scored. He also had five multi-hit games for Morrisette and again earned the praise of Perdios for "a knack of coming up with the big hits." Tony graduated from Brandeis where he pitched for Peter Varney.

Erik DeBoer 1990, Pitcher

The ultimate power pitcher, Erik left Suburban League batters shaking their heads on the way back to the dugout during his three-year varsity career. During his junior and senior years, Erik blew hitters away with an explosive fastball amassing 158 strikeouts. In his junior year, Erik fanned 14 hitters against Everett while striking out 10 Quincy batters. He also threw a two-hitter vs. Quincy while racking up six wins and compiling a 1.15 ERA. Those numbers earned Erik League All-Star and Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic honors. His senior year saw Erik set a school record for strikeouts in a game with an unbelievable 23 K performance against Somerville in a 10-inning, 4-3 North Quincy win. Erik helped pitch North to two straight tourney berths with a 1989 Suburban League Championship as well. Of NQ's 25 wins in '89 and '90, Erik won 11 and saved another. His dominating senior year was recognized by Suburban League coaches who voted him Co-MVP of the league.

Erik also was named a Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic for the second time with a one-hitter against CR&L and a two hitter vs. Newton North highlights of the year. Erik earned a Div. I baseball scholarship at UConn for his stellar high school career. Erik is also a North Quincy Basketball Hall of Famer!

Dave Reinhart 1993, Centerfield

This three-year varsity starter in centerfield was one of the leading hitters for Coach Leo Donovan's Red Raider clubs. Blessed with a combination of power and speed, Dave was a mainstay on NQ teams which struggled offensively. Dave's high school highlights at North Quincy include multiple hit games against Plymouth, South Boston, Falmouth and Weymouth. Also solid in the field, Dave patrolled the field for three seasons with few if any base runners willing to test his strong arm. His senior season, Dave also captained the Super Bowl championship Red Raider football team and was named to the Boston Globe All-Scholastic football team.

Also a three-year starter for the Morrisette Legion, Dave played for Dave Perdios in the State Championship Legion team in 1992. During the next summer Dave hit .413 with 27 RBI and 13 extra base hits for Morrisette. In 1994, his last year with Morrisette, Dave accomplished a feat for Morrisette which has never been duplicated. Following a walk-off homerun against Braintree at Adams Field, Dave then hit homeruns in his next two at bats in a game at Adams versus Canton Legion. Three homeruns in consecutive at bats!

He accepted a full scholarship for baseball to UMass Amherst in 1993. His freshman year saw UMass win the A-10 Championship. The following year, Dave transferred to Massasoit where he batted .396 for the #1 ranked team in the country. He was named an All New England Regional All-Star. Massasoit went to the Jr. College World Series in Millington, TN at USA Stadium. He was named First Team All-American at Massasoit.

He completed his college career at Suffolk where he was named Captain his senior year.

Dave continued playing baseball in the summers from 1995-2003. He played for the Hyannis Mets in the Cape Cod League as well in the Park League for ADSL. He also played in the Steve Buckley Old Time Baseball Game with ex-major leaguers and college all-stars.

John Sullivan 1998, Pitcher

A two-year varsity starter at North, John helped lead the Raiders to consecutive tournament appearances during his junior and senior years. A hard throwing left-hander, John was invaluable on the mound in his two varsity seasons. During his senior year, John led a parade of three left-handed starters who dominated in the Old Colony League and who paved the way for North's appearance in the Division I South Sectional Finals. John had two fine seasons with the bat with a two-hit, four RBI game against Plymouth South as a junior. However, John developed into one of the most feared hitters in the Old Colony League his senior year hitting a team leading .464 batting average as well as a team leading 24 RBI. His monster performance as a senior captain earned John Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic honors as well as OCL All Star recognition. Following his career at North Quincy, John began coaching Morrisette Legion where he is currently in his sixth season. John has also coached JV basketball at Quincy High School under head coach Pat Bryan.

Keith Doherty, 2001, Pitcher/Centerfield

Even as a player in the Quincy Youth Baseball leagues, people who knew the game could see Keith Doherty would be a special player. Honing his skills in the youth leagues and with AAU South Shore Seadogs, Keith arrived at North ready to step in and play a prominent role on the diamond.

As a freshman, Keith compiled a 4-1 record on the mound helping lead to Dave Perdios' club to a spot in the Division I South Sectional Finals. As a sophomore and junior, Keith continued to shine on the hill notching another seven wins while also contributing at the plate. As a junior Keith hit .274 from the left side with 11 RBI and seven stolen bases. His senior season saw Keith record seven wins, second only behind Gary Earle's nine wins in a season. Keith also had a fine year from the left side batting .283 with 17 RBI while leading North Quincy to another tournament berth.

Following his career at North Quincy, Keith accepted a baseball scholarship to Division I UMass-Amherst. In 2002, he was selected as an A-10 Rookie of the Week. In 2003, he helped lead the Minutemen to the A-10 Championship losing to Richmond in the finals. As a final honor, Keith was elected team captain his senior year at UMass.

Garland Records 4th Win, Morrisette Downs Milton

By BILL GRIFFIN

Morrisette's senior legion team had lost two straight and was facing Milton who was tied with Post 294 in the Zone 6 East standings.

Morrisette needed a stopper, a pitcher who would end the losing streak and send his team in the right direction.

Tom Garland did just that. The hard-throwing righty recorded his fourth victory without a defeat by throwing five strong innings to lead Morrisette to a 10-2 victory last week over Milton in an important meeting of two of the top contenders for the five playoffs spots in the zone.

In other action last week, Morrisette dropped Holbrook, 6-2. Monday, Canton scored two unearned runs in the fifth inning and edged Morrisette, 3-2.

"Milton was a big game for us," said coach Steve Maze. "We shook up the lineup a little and played better defense than we had been, but the big thing was Garland. He pitched great again."

Once again Garland relied on his fastball which he moved around and spotted well. He mixed in breaking stuff, but the important part of his success was command of the fastball.

"He knows where to put it," said Maze. "If it needs to be outside, it's on the corner. If it needs to be inside, it's inside on the hands. The other thing is that he wants the ball. We had lost two straight and he wanted the ball to stop the slide."

Ken Sorenson pitched the final two innings against Milton in another strong relief performance. He used a good assortment of stuff which he threw and controlled from different arm angles.

Third baseman Jason Pekkinen had a pair of hits while Josh Hayward belted an important extra base hit as Morrisette grabbed a quick 5-0 lead and never was seriously threatened.

Greg Paulo threw a one-hitter through five innings in the win over Holbrook. Maze used the game to rest some of his starters who had been nicked up playing Morrisette's busy schedule which has been made more busy by makeups from the rain-outs from the last two weeks in June.

"We played a lot of games in a short stretch of time, and some of the players had been playing through small injuries. It was a good chance to rest them," said

Maze.

Aaron Clancy and Brian Turner finished up on the mound in the Holbrook game by throwing a strong inning of relief apiece.

In his revamped lineup, Maze had Eddie Riley at second and Tommy McDonald at first.

"We talked as coaches and decided we were giving up too many runs. We thought this lineup might work better at cutting down on the mistakes," said Maze.

T.J. Hobin was the hard-luck loser in the Canton game. He only gave two hits and one earned run. His fastball and his control were both excellent.

"He was great," said Maze. "It might have been the best game he's pitched in two years. He had a good fastball and he spotted it well."

Morrisette went up 2-0 in the third. Hayward singled and Pat Verhault walked. Hayward stole third on a fake-bunt play. Verhault and Hayward worked the double steal for one run. Verhault moved to third and scored on a groundball by Riley for a 2-0 lead.

It stayed that way until the fifth when Canton used a hit, a walk and two errors for two unearned runs to tie the game. Canton added one in the sixth to win it. The two errors hurt Post 294 badly just as errors hurt Morrisette in previous games with Hyde Park and Braintree.

"One inning, two plays. That's what it came down to," said Maze. "If we don't make the errors, we win the game."

After Monday's loss,

Morrisette was 8-6, tied for third with Canton and Milton behind Hyde Park and Braintree in the Zone 6 East race. Stoughton was a game out of third. The top five in the zone make the playoffs. Morrisette needs a strong closing finish.

"The playoff push has started. If we improve our defense, I like our chances," said Maze.

The last day a game can be played in the regular season is July 20. Due to the earlier rainouts, Morrisette must play 10 games in the final two weeks.

"We should be all right," said Maze. "We have a lot of games, but we have days off in between. The schedule isn't too crammed."

Morrisette is at Braintree Thursday at 8:00 and hosts Holbrook Friday.

Morrisette Junior Legion Team Remains Undefeated

By BILL GRIFFIN

When a team is on a run during a great season, it has a certain look.

The team with the look plays with confidence. The offense hits for contact and power, puts down a bunt runs the bases, and produces the clutch two-out RBI hits. The pitching is solid and deep. The defense makes all the plays that are routine and few that are not.

Morrisette's undefeated junior legion team has that look. Josh Helfrich supplied the quality starting pitching, Bobby Salvucci rapped out three hits and four RBI, and Morrisette executed two fundamental plays of baseball which made a coach proud en route to a 10-5 win over Canton in a Zone 5-6 contest Sunday night.

It was the third victory for Morrisette over Canton in a week. Earlier last week, Post 294 earned a 7-5, 9-4 sweep of Canton. Morrisette had a 5-3 win and a 6-6 tie against Cohasset in another doubleheader.

Post 294 finished the week at 11-0-2 and tied for first place with Norwood. Life is good.

"We're playing great," said coach Rick Beach. "We're making all the plays. We're hitting the ball with power and we're getting the bunts down. Our pitching has been good because we've throwing strikes. We're on a good roll."

Helfrich featured a sharp-breaking curve which he controlled for low strikes. He blended in a sneaky fastball and had a two-hit shutout and an 8-0 lead after five. When Canton touched him for two in the sixth, ace Dave Suslowicz entered in relief and escaped a bases-loaded threat with a groundball out.

"Helfrich was excellent," said Beach. "He has a great curve and he used it to keep them off balance. His fastball seem to come in at an even speed, but he throws it by hitters."

Salvucci and Brendan McDonald supplied the juice. Salvucci drilled a booming double to left with the bases loaded in the second for three RBI and later scored on a stolen base and an error for a 5-0 lead. McDonald had a triple, single, an RBI and three runs scored. The triple into the left-center gap in the fourth would have been a nice partner for Salvucci's shot in a long-ball contest.

"All year, Salvucci and McDonald have been doing this all year for us. When we need power and a clutch hit, they give it to us," said Beach.

There was more than power. There was small-ball, hitting throughout the lineup and excellent baserunning. After McDonald tripled, Troy Shepherd (a single, walk, sacrifice, two runs scored and an RBI) worked the suicide squeeze perfectly to send him home. Seven players hit safely. Five different players scored and five players had RBI. Pat Keohane and Chris Wallace had a single and an RBI. Helfrich had a single and a run scored, Brendan Collins added a hit and Pat O'Connor walked twice and scored twice.

"We hit every day in practice and I think it shows in the game. The whole lineup is strong," said Beach.

Canton threw out three Morrisette runners on the bases in the first two innings. Running has been the hallmark of Post 294's season. What was the reaction? They kept on running. They stole six bases, worked a suicide squeeze and consistently took the extra base on hits to the outfield. They are playing with confidence. They have the look.

"We kept going. Everybody on the team knew we would keep going. Getting thrown out is not going to stop us from running," said beach.

The defense made just one error in the seventh long after the game was decided, and Beach will remember well two plays. In the Canton third, Helfrich picked a runner off a first. In the ensuing rundown, everyone became involved. Nobody stood around and watched. The outfielders raced in to back up the play and take part in the rundown line at both ends. Collins, the right fielder, made the final tag. The right fielder. This team has the look.

"I wish there was a camera here, so that they could film it. That's a textbook example of how to handle a rundown. They all got involved in the play," said Beach.

The second memorable play came in the sixth. Canton's Mike Timperio reached on an infield hit and tried for second on the overthrow to first. Wallace raced out from behind the plate to back up the play. He was set, ready and in position. He picked up the errant throw and gunned a strike to second for the out. On one play, he showcased speed, hustle and his arm.

"Unbelievable play," said Beach. "That's great hustle and he has a gun for an arm. He's a good player."

Morrisette built an 8-0 lead before Canton scored twice in the sixth and three in the seventh. Post 294 added two in the home sixth in a rally featured by Salvucci finishing his night by slip-sliding around a tag at first for an infield single.

Earlier in the week against Canton, Morrisette scored three with two out in the seventh to tie in the opener and won it in the tenth, 7-5. Keohane had clutch hits in both rallies and Ethan Yau earned the win in relief.

In the second game, Suslowicz fired a five-hitter and fanned 11 in a 9-4 win. He didn't allow a hit after the

SPORTS ADVICE

Anyone who plays sports places a good deal of strain on his or her body. As a result, not only can spinal nerves become pinched due to sprains and other trauma to the neck and back, but improper biomechanics and muscular imbalances can also lead to injury. Those who engage in sports that emphasize the use of one side of the body invite structural imbalances that can result in pain and muscle deficiency. Tennis players, golfers, and softball/baseball players need not be sidelined by injuries inflicted by the physical demand of their chosen sport. Chiropractors look at the entire body in an effort to restore balance and harmony to help avert injury or restore health after injury has occurred.

Ashley Brooke Totten Winner In Statewide Writing Contest

Ashley Brooke Totten, a seventh grader at the Atlantic Middle School, recently won second place statewide in the 2013 Will McDonough writing contest, sponsored by the New England Sports Museum located in Boston.

Ashley is an honor roll student who enjoys playing a wide variety of sports.

The contest was named in honor of the late, long-time, award-winning Boston Globe sportswriter and CBS sportscaster, Will McDonough, who passed away in 2003 at the age of 67. McDonough was respected industry-wide for his writing and reporting and was widely noted for his multitude of sources and integrity of his material. McDonough's Sunday NFL column in The Globe was legendary.

The Will McDonough writing contest was based on students having read a recent sports related book and explaining what the book and the person it was written about meant to the student and how the story impacted the student's life. Ashley chose women's sports/basketball pioneer Ann Meyers as her inspirational choice.

Students at the Atlantic Middle School were strongly encouraged to participate in the contest by ELA-English Language Arts teacher, Holly Rendle.

Ann Meyers—All Star On and Off the Court

By ASHLEY TOTTEN

The other day while returning from basketball practice after some of my teammate's brothers practiced with us, it made me think about what it would be like to be in the NBA. Since I'm a girl and none have ever played in the NBA, this reminded me of Ann Meyers. She was an American sports pioneer in basketball and also in life.

Growing up, Ann Meyers was well rounded in all sports. However, she is mostly known for her superior basketball ability. Meyers also accomplished a lot academically and later had success in broadcasting and business. Meyers excelled on the U.S. Women's team for the 1976 Olympics. In high school she was the first woman to sign a four-year athletic scholarship for UCLA, which if you ask me, is pretty impressive. Those amazing accomplishments are not how she gained her most notoriety. Meyers gained international attention as the very first woman to sign an NBA contract. She signed with the Indiana Pacers. A woman trying out for a men's professional basketball league wasn't what most of society believed proper, so it caused major controversy.

Moreover, while some in society despised Meyers for trying out for a men's team, she second guessed herself and was unsure it was meant to be. However, she persevered and tried out anyway. Unfortunately for Meyers, a man named Bob "Slick" Leonard was coach. He was a male chauvinist and adamantly believed Meyers not worthy of playing in the NBA. Leonard believed Meyers would not be strong enough, tall enough or tough enough to handle the NBA. Unknown was that she had already played against professional players such as Julius Erving and Wilt Chamberlain in summer leagues and scrimmages. Against them she played as strongly and skillfully as they did. During the Pacer tryouts, Meyers was as colorful as the teams' vibrant uniforms.

Although she did not make the team she became a sportscaster for the Indiana Pacers. After becoming a pioneer in woman's sports broadcasting, Meyers competed in the "Superstars" on television as the only woman competing against all men. Later she played for the Phoenix Mercury in the WNBA.

Furthermore, as you can see Ann Meyers set and met some very high goals, but what makes her so unique is that her goals did not stop with her competing against women. She successfully competed against men at all levels.

Meyers is a role model who taught me that hard work combined with determination and intelligence will pay off. Even if you don't make it the first time, you must continue believing in yourself to be successful. Now when I think about what it would be like to be in the NBA, I know a good mindset is most important. Ann Meyers almost made the NBA and maybe that will happen in the future for another woman. She is an amazing American athlete and my inspiration.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your zeal for challenges usually works well for you. But this week it's best to avoid jumping into new situations without more information. Vital news emerges by the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Once again, the Bovine's patience pays off as that pesky problem works itself out without taking too much of your valuable time. A new task opens interesting possibilities.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Those suggestions you want to share need to be set aside for a while so you can focus on the job at hand. There'll be time later to put your ideas into a workable format.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Be sure about your sources before you use the information in any decision you reach about your new project. Some of the data might be out of date or misinterpreted.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A sudden challenge might rattle you at first. But pump up that strong Lion's heart with a full measure of courage, and face it with the continuing support of family and friends.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Watch your expenses this week so you can have a financial cushion to fall back on should things tighten up later this month. Money matters ease by the 31st.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Uncertainty over workplace policy creates anxiety and confusion among your colleagues. Don't be surprised if you're asked, once again, to help work things out.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The workweek keeps you busy tying up loose ends and checking data that needs to be verified. The weekend offers a chance to relax and restore your spent energies.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is not the best time to go to extremes to prove a point. Better to set a sensible goal now and move forward. There'll be time later to take the bolder course.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A step-by-step progression is the better way to move ahead. Taking shortcuts could be risky at this time. Important news arrives on the 31st.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Avoid getting drawn into workplace disputes that should be handled by those directly involved. Instead, spend your energy developing those new ideas.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You still need to be prudent about money matters. But things start to ease by the end of the week. A weekend encounter with an old friend brings welcome news.

BORN THIS WEEK: You handle challenging situations with boldness when necessary and caution when called for.

A funeral service for Henry J. Bertolon, 87, of Quincy and Hingham, was held Wednesday at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

Mr. Bertolon died July 6 after a struggle with prostate cancer.

He was born in Dorchester, the son of Henry E. Bertolon and Mary Verrinoldi. As a youth he attended schools in Dorchester and graduated from Dorchester High School.

Enlisting at the age of 17 during World War II, he served in the Navy where he was stationed in Pearl Harbor, and later Oahu, Hawaii under the leadership of Admiral Nimitz.

Upon leaving the military with the rank of Radio Man 2nd Class, he returned to Dorchester to marry his sweetheart, Loretta J. Gillis, with whom he had faithfully exchanged letters from 1943-1946. He attended Massachusetts School of Barbering and worked at his father's barbershop in Codman Square, Dorchester, eventually owning it. The couple chose to raise their five children, Carol, Nancy, Henry John Jr., Tom and Laura in Quincy and remained in the same house for 45 years.

Throughout his days as a barber, Henry ('Brud', 'Brother', 'Hank') was always eager to supplement his income working at several jobs to pay the bills. He eventually sold the barbershop and began his career in municipal service work. Initially as a Code Inspector for the City of Quincy he was eventually tapped to work for Sen. James R. McIntyre as his Senate Aid at the State House in Boston. He soon set his sights on a career as an assessor earning both his MMA and RMA accreditations. While working as an assessor he continued his studies becoming a CMA (Certified Massachusetts Assessor); at the time, only one of ten in a state with over 1,800 assessors. This exclusive qualification provided him with an accomplished career spanning several municipalities: Quincy, Newton, Milton and Needham.

Through continuing education he became a Certified Teacher of Assessing and Appraising—ultimately achieving in his final goal: to be elected as President of the Massachusetts Assessors Association. He retired from his last assessor post (Quincy) in 1995.

In 2012, Mr. Bertolon was recognized for 60 years of active membership in The American Legion. He was one of the founding members of the Originally From Dorchester (OFD) Society—faithfully meeting one Tuesday every month for over 40 years. After moving to Hingham, he enjoyed many years of retirement. Yearly trips to Florida in the winter were complete with active walks and robust biking trips. He also explored many parts of Europe touring the Rhine River on several occasions, sightseeing in Russia and several cruise ship excursions. He remained very active up until April of this year.

Husband of the late Loretta J. (Gillis) Bertolon, he is survived by his daughter, Carol A. Dorn and her husband Michael P. Dorn of Braintree, his son Henry J. Bertolon Jr. and his wife Donna Bertolon of Beverly, his son Thomas H. Father Bill's Receives $300,973 To Combat Homelessness

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Father Bill's & MainSpring was recently awarded over $300,000 in federal Emergency Solutions Grants to help combat homelessness.

The shelter received a total of $300,973 in which $135,178 will be put towards shelter support and the remaining $165,795 will be put towards rapid re-housing efforts.

"Father Bill's & MainSpring sees about 230 people on an average night, and 125 at the Quincy location. We are funded for 126 people a night at both locations, 75 at the Quincy location," said John Yazwinski, president and CEO of Father Bill's & MainSpring.

"We are really thankful for the federal money and have confidence that this will help us try to end homelessness. The $135,000 will help us with that gap," Yazwinski said. "The $165,000 will be put towards our rapid re-housing program. There are so many who come into our shelters who only need a little bit of help such as paying first and last months rent or moving costs so they can have a place of their own, and that is what that money will go towards. We are very excited about this."

The Patrick Administration's Department of Housing and Community Development granted $4 million in ESG funds, which is estimated to assist 618 extremely low-income families, and individuals who are at risk of homelessness to achieve housing stability and avoid shelters.

ESG is an annual federal grant awarded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development that was increased under the Homeless Emergency Assistance and Rapid Transition to Housing Act of 2009. The HEARTH Act represents a national shift in focus away from emergency shelters and toward stable, permanent housing that mirrors the Commonwealth's ongoing housing first effort.

In an effort to move towards a housing strategy and away from a shelter response, $1.4 million of the ESG funds will support rapid re-housing for homeless individuals. The program will move an estimated 612 homeless individuals from emergency shelters to permanent housing this fiscal year.

"Rapid re-housing strategies are transforming the way we respond to homelessness in Massachusetts," said Joe Finn, president and executive director of the Massachusetts Housing and Shelter Alliance. "In fiscal year 2013, ESG-Rapid Re-housing resources in the City of Boston provided permanent housing for nearly 350 people who were living in shelters or on the streets. On average, this intervention cost less than $3,000 per person. Investing in rapid re-housing reduces the Commonwealth's reliance on costly emergency resources and brings us closer to ending homelessness in Massachusetts."

Thirteen different agencies across the Commonwealth will receive more than $1.3 million in shelter support funds to help support 268 unfunded shelter beds for individuals and 37 unfunded shelter beds for Non-EA eligible families.

"I think there will always be a need," said Yazwinski. "These funds will allow us to move towards a direction of not having large emergency shelters but smaller emergency shelters and shelter response programs."

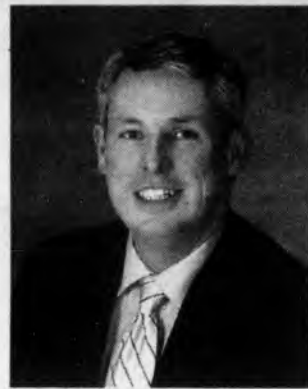

Compounding Pharmacies

By Sen. JOHN KEENAN

The New England Compounding Center in Framingham was a business that operated out of the limelight, quietly mixing drug compounds that were shipped all over the country. One of its compounds is tied to the deaths of 61 people from fungal meningitis, while making hundreds of others seriously ill.

Until the public became aware of the NECC case, the pharmacy compounding business here in Massachusetts and across the country was a relatively unknown but burgeoning sector of the health care economy. Physicians and hospitals could order specially mixed/compounded drugs for patients. If an FDA approved drug was no longer being manufactured, it could be ordered in mass from one of the compounding facilities. These compounding pharmacies prepared drugs that, while made up of FDA approved substances, were not subjected to FDA approvals or processes, and were not regulated here in Massachusetts.

The NECC case highlights the need for regulation of compounding facilities, especially those involved in sterile compounding, which involves mixing drugs and substances that are administered by injection, intravenously, or through the eye.

The legislature's Joint Committee on Public Health, on which I serve as Senate Chair, this week introduced legislation that aims to take an industry that has operated in the shadows of legitimacy, shine light on them, and hold them accountable.

The comprehensive legislation, among other things:

- Changes the makeup of the Board of Registration in Pharmacy so that it includes individuals with backgrounds that will allow for better oversight of all pharmacies, including compounding pharmacies;

- Beefs up inspections, and requires inspectors to have specific training in the field of compounding;

- Sets forth labeling standards;
- Requires the reporting of adverse events resulting from the use of any drug or drug preparation;
- Establishes a marketing code of conduct for compounded drugs;
- Increases the number of continuing education hours for pharmacists, requiring that some of them be focused on compounding;
- Creates specialty licenses for those who compound; and
- Mandates compliance with national compounding industry standards.

The legislation reflects months of work by members of the Committee and its staff. State Representative Jeffrey Sanchez of Boston, who serves as co-Chairman of the Joint Committee on Public Health, was a driving force behind the legislation.

The legislation, now that it has been released by the Committee, will work its way through the rest of the legislative process, first through the House of Representatives and then through the Senate. Like all legislation, I expect that it will prompt further discussion, and be subject to revisions.

It is my goal, as well as that of co-Chairman Sanchez, to move the bill expeditiously through the legislature, and to get it to the Governor for his signature as soon as possible.

While the legislation cannot undo the damage done by reckless compounders, hopefully it can prevent such a tragedy from occurring again.

For more information on the compounding legislation, or any other matter, contact Sen. John Keenan's office at 617-722-1494 or by email at John.Keenan@masenate.gov.

Would Increase Funding Army Engineers, Coastal Communities Including Quincy House Approves Lynch 'Seawall' Amendment

The House of Representatives, in a bipartisan vote, approved an amendment sponsored by Cong. Stephen F. Lynch (MA-08) that would increase funding for the Army Corps of Engineers Civil Construction account by $20 million.

The increased funding would assist the Army Corps of Engineers with the construction and maintenance of storm reduction infrastructure, commonly known as sea walls, in order to protect coastal communities from severe storms.

Lynch's amendment, which passed by a vote of 217-206, was included in H.R. 2609, the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act, which will fund Department of Energy programs, the Army Corps of Engineers and other related agencies for Fiscal Year 2014.

"One hundred-year storms seem to be happening every few years now. I have seen firsthand the damage caused in the coastal areas I represent: Boston, Quincy, Weymouth, Hull, Hingham Cohasset and Scituate," said Lynch. "As the severity and frequency of these storms increase, it is time to enable the Army Corps of Engineers to respond. We must ensure adequate funding so the Corps can help protect coastal communities from future devastation."

The Army Corps of Engineers Civil Construction account funds construction of storm reduction infrastructure, which includes sea walls. Since 2010, this account has been reduced by $688 million, with $331 million cut last year alone. Lynch's amendment's $20 million increase would be offset by a decrease in the Fossil Energy Research and Development account.

"The use of fossil fuels is at the very least partly responsible for the number and intensity of these massive storms, such as Hurricane Sandy. Yet, funding to protect our shoreline and our ports has been consistently cut. As long as we continue to rely on fossil fuels we need also to address the consequences of our energy policies. We have a responsibility to the Army Corps of Engineers and our coastal communities to provide the resources necessary to protect against these severe storms," Lynch added.

Precautions Advised To Avoid Heat-Related Illnesses

By SCOTT JACKSON

With temperatures soaring this summer, officials are advising residents to take precautions to avoid heat-related illnesses.

So far this July temperatures have exceeded the 90-degree mark seven times, including Tuesday. The 90-degree weather, with heat indexes nearing the century mark, is forecast to continue through Saturday before cooling off slightly early next week. Tom Clasby, Quincy's director of elder services, said residents should make sure they drink enough water to beat the heat.

"The key thing is to stay hydrated," Clasby said. "The best thing you should do is drink plenty of water. We also encourage them to take a cold bath."

The city's Kennedy Center — located at 440 East Squantum Street — is also open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Clasby said that some senior citizens have stopped during the day to cool off and encouraged others to stop by. The center hasn't been open as a cooling center on weeknights or weekends, but Clasby said it could be opened as a cooling center during those times if there was enough demand within the community.

There's never been a better time to buy a first home

Three reasons why:

- 1) Rates are at all-time lows — a huge advantage for first-time homebuyers. Your money goes further. And you get to lock in historically-low monthly mortgage payments.
- 2) The eastern Massachusetts real estate market tends to be resilient. Prices here have stabilized...or are starting to move up. Waiting now could cost you later.
- 3) With Colonial Federal's First-Time Homebuyer Program, you get: > A reduced downpayment with no PMI required > A mortgage with a competitive rate > You work one-to-one with our responsive lenders, professionals who want to help you get into your first home > All from a local neighborhood bank specializing in helping people buy homes since 1889.

This is an outstanding opportunity — most likely once-in-a-lifetime — for first-time homebuyers. Is that you...or someone you know? Come see us. Or call VP/Retail Lending Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750.

Quincy firefighter John T. Austin was laid to rest Saturday with full military honors at Pine Hill Cemetery after a 90-minute funeral Mass at Most Blessed Sacrament Church that celebrated the 37-year-old's life and service to his city and country.

The solemn tribute to Firefighter Austin, a Houghs Neck resident and 11-year veteran of the Quincy Fire Department, was attended by more than 500 firefighters from Quincy as well as surrounding communities and as far away as New York City. Also among the mourners were fellow Marine Corps veterans and scores of grieving family and friends who came together to remember this dedicated public servant.

To his Department peers, John was a "firefighter's firefighter" who has his fellow firefighters' backs at fires and other emergency scenes. A 1993 graduate of Quincy High School who played on the Presidents football team, John was a smiling face who made friends wherever he went.

John died July 8 while on duty. The exact cause of death had not been determined as of this writing.

John's unexpected passing is a tragedy for his family, his department and this city. Throughout his 37 years here, John left an indelible impression that those who knew him well will hold near and dear forever.

His adult life was spent serving his country first as a U.S. Marine and the last 11 years as a Quincy firefighter in the city he loved.

"John loved going to work, he loved being a firefighter," Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson said. "He was one of the guys you'd see at the scene of a fire and you'd be glad that he was there because you knew you had a worker with you. I had a lot of discussions with John over the years. He was just a good guy to converse with."

"You'd see him out of the corner of your eye and you'd always make an effort to go over and have a discussion with you."

"He was a firefighter's firefighter. He was a Marine, a firefighter, he was here to do a job and he got the job done. He was a good guy backing you up."

Deputy Jackson noted when John became a Quincy firefighter, he bid to be assigned on Engine 5 at the West Quincy station – one of if not the busiest in the city.

"He bid there because he liked to work and do his job. You don't bid a busy station if you don't absolutely love your job," Jackson said. "He'd drive, he'd back up the officer depending on what the day was."

Jackson and others also remembered John's great sense of humor.

"A lot of ribbing went on between John and I and John and the rest of the department. He was a guy you could kid around with."

But when that alarm sounded, John focused on one thing: being a firefighter.

"Absolutely. He got right down to it. He was proud to be a firefighter but even prouder to be one in Quincy. He talked about it all the time. He loved the job so much."

"John was well loved and we're going to miss him. His death is terribly unfortunate," Deputy Jackson added.

Paul Moody, who recently became the head of the Quincy Firefighters Union, echoed Jackson's remarks.

"John was a good guy. A dedicated family man, loved his (18-month-old son) John-John, loved his fiancée, his mother and father and his sister. He was a proud Marine. He lived and breathed the Marine Corps."

"He was a proud firefighter, a well-respected firefighter and a dedicated firefighter who lived the brotherhood," Moody said, noting John was a third generation firefighter. His grandfather was a Boston firefighter and his uncle Willie is a current Boston firefighter.

"His pride and joy was his son John-John. He's going to be sorely missed by this department."

John and Paul each ran for president of the Quincy Firefighters Union in their recent election. Paul prevailed. John pledged his full support to the union and to Paul.

"John was very gracious after the election," Paul said. "We talked and John was dedicated to the union and dedicated to the cause and was willing to do anything after the election results came out."

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

John Austin: A Firefighter's Firefighter

QUINCY FIREFIGHTER JOHN T. AUSTIN

John also enjoyed a good discussion, especially politics.

"Sometimes he had an opinion that would make you want to run out of the room. He was a very fun guy to be around. If you were a Democrat, he was a Republican that day. If you were a Republican, he was a Democrat that day. He loved politics and loved to talk about it."

Moody says he'll remember John's smile that could light up a room and his love for family and the department.

"His love for his son was more than anyone could know. He loved this department and was dedicated to the department and his brothers. He was a hardworking, well-respected firefighter that you wanted with you when you went into a fire. You knew he had your back."

"You knew when you had John with you, you didn't have anything to worry about. He was going to take care of you. He was always there to help. He wasn't going to shy away from any kind of incident we had. We'll remember him from the hard work he put in and always having our back."

"It's going to take some time for this department to heal," Moody said.

"We loved him and we're going to miss him," Jackson added.

John's passing also saddened one of his high school buddies, Noel DiBona. They played football for the Presidents before graduating from Quincy High School in 1993.

Noel said John was an outgoing kid who enjoyed a good laugh. They first met at freshman football camp in the summer of 1989. They attended different middle schools – John at Broad Meadows and Noel at Point Webster and Sterling.

But the weeks leading up to freshman year formed a friendship that grew stronger with every passing year.

"There were a lot of us attending freshman football camp and John had about nine or 10 of his friends from Houghs Neck with him. There were a few of us from Merrymount and the Point and John and his friends welcomed us into their group."

"We became good friends and we were still good friends. John was always joking and happy. He never complained about anything," Noel said.

"John was very outgoing and social. He was the type of guy who took the time to listen and be a real good friend. He would just smile. And then he'd make you smile."

They last touched based a few weeks ago when John texted Noel that he couldn't attend a fundraiser Noel was having as part of his school committee campaign.

"I hadn't seen him in a while but he sent me a text telling me he was sorry for not being able to go to my fundraiser. He told me he admired me for what I was doing (running for office) because he knew from his own campaign (for president of the firefighters' union) that it's a lot of hard work."

The funeral procession from Most Blessed Sacrament Church to Pine Hill Cemetery was somber and dignified.

More than 500 firefighters lined up along Sea Street outside the church and offered final salutes. Color guards and motor cycles joined the procession as did a large contingent of bagpipers and the Boston Drum and Pipe Corps that pierced the late morning hush with the Marines Hymn. On lookers of all ages – including one young boy holding a small American flag – watched with visible sadness as the procession vanished from view.

The procession stopped briefly at Central Fire Headquarters on Quincy Avenue and then again at the West Quincy station where Firefighter Austin was assigned to Engine 5. A bell tolled five times in memory of the fallen firefighter as onlookers stopped and paid their respects before the procession pulled away for its final destination – Pine Hill Cemetery.

Firefighter John Austin – thank you for your service.

For those he touched, he will not be forgotten.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1929 postcard showing Wollaston Center looking west from the intersection of Beach and Beale with Hancock Street. On the right the Beale Street Pharmacy is now the site of Papa Gino's. Farther up on the right was Woolworth's 5 & 10 that wrapped around the corner to Hancock Street. Next was Hattie Sanborn's gift shop, then Greenleaf Hardware now the Great Chow restaurant and across Cushing Street was Hilliard's Glass House candy shop that became home to Barry's Deli for 52 years and will now be a Japanese sushi restaurant. On the left Klein's Drug store, most recently occupied by Grandasia Bridal & Fashion Shop (now located at 1545 Hancock Street in Quincy Center.)

Farther down the left was the New Wollaston Theater built in 1926 and now awaiting its future use. Beyond the theater was the Masonic Temple, a large building pretty much out of sight in this view that was the home of the Wollaston Lodge AF & AM and the original Wollaston Theater. It later became home to the Wollaston American Legion Post 295 and has now been replaced by a branch of Sovereign Bank. The first commercial buildings were built here 100 years ago, but this business district continues to be a vibrant yet ever changing and important part of Quincy. Celtics Hire Killilea

By SCOTT JACKSON

Former Quincy High center John Killilea was named assistant coach of the Boston Celtics, joining a staff led by head coach Tom Heinsohn.

Killilea played for the Presidents in the mid-1940s under coach Munroe MacLean, attended Boston University after graduation, and then joined the high school coaching ranks. He retired as a high school coach in 1970 and was hired by the Milwaukee Bucks, where he served one season before joining the Celtics as head scout.

In his one year as Boston's head scout, Killilea was credited with helping the team compile a book with scouting on each of its players - the first in the organization's history. He expected to continue scouting in his new role as assistant coach.

"My big responsibility will be scouting the other NBA teams and the colleges, but now it will be a full-time job," Killilea said.

Red Auerbach, Boston's general manager and former coach, had been a backer of MacLean and kept tabs on many of his QHS players. Killilea was excited to work in an organization led by Auerbach, already a member of the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield.

"They'll tell you Red is the number one man in basketball and it is unbelievable the awe these people have for the man," Killilea said. "He's almost like a god."

Killilea also had much praise for his former Quincy High coach.

"Munroe MacLean was the most influential man in my life and I've tried to emulate him," he said.

McPHEE JOINS NORTH FOOTBALL STAFF

North Quincy High continued to fill its football coaching staff with former Red Raiders, naming Ken McPhee an assistant to head coach Ralph Frazier.

McPhee, a physical education teacher in the Quincy elementary school system, was an outstanding offensive guard and defensive cornerback on North's undefeated 1966 squad that captured the Greater Boston League championship. He played collegiately at Southern Connecticut.

McPhee replaced Jack Bowes, who was named Milton's head coach.

"Ken was an outstanding high school and college player and I am delighted to have him on the staff," Frazier said. "I hated to lose Jack Bowes but feel that McPhee will prove a fine successor."

Frazier, like McPhee, was a former Raider player. Assistants Tom Fitzgerald and Dick Meyer also played at the school, leaving fellow assistant Ted Sadowski - a Boston English alum - as the only "foreigner" on the staff.

Independent Commission Needed To Study Wind Turbines

On Tuesday, July 9, we attended a public hearing of the "Joint Committee On Public Health" in support of Bill H.2048, a bill introduced this week calling for the establishment of a commission to study the health impacts from industrial wind turbines to better protect the health of the citizens of the Commonwealth.

We have remained involved in the industrial wind turbine issue since Mayor Koch made the decision in February 2012 to not go forward with the City of Boston on the proposed Moon Island industrial wind turbine project. Having seen the results of the negative impact of the industrial wind turbine in residential settings whether urban residential or rural residential, we have come to fully appreciate Mayor Koch's decision many times over.

Much has been learned since July 2008 when Governor Patrick signed the Green Communities Act. Based on documented complaints from hundreds of residents living near the wind turbines in Falmouth, Fairhaven, Kingston, Scituate and many other communities throughout the Commonwealth and peer reviewed studies, there is little doubt that the industrial wind turbine(s) have negatively affected the health of many families.

Only through an independent commission which includes public health officials and scientists qualified to review medical studies relating to wind turbines near residential areas, as well as the ability to do their own investigations, will elected officials be empowered to make appropriate decisions regarding the siting of industrial wind turbines.

House Bill H.2048 was sponsored by Senator Sarah K. Peake and is co-sponsored by Representative Bruce Ayers. Too often, our elected officials are criticized for not adequately responding to the needs of their constituents, so, we thank Representative Ayers for co-sponsoring this Bill and acknowledging the need for the establishment of an independent commission. Senator John Keenan is the Senate Chair of the Joint Committee On Public Health where the Bill sits pending passage.

Although there was no opposition expressed to H.2048 at the hearing, we do not expect this to be passed with no resistance. The industrial wind turbine industry, of course, is not supportive or interested in studies that could negatively impact their business so, we do expect them to fight this bill.

We hope that citizens will contact Representative Ayers, Senator Keenan and other legislators to push hard for the early passage of the Bill because the health and well-being of the Commonwealth's communities are at stake.

We feel strongly that since the health consequences are serious, as was well documented by so many testifying at the Joint Committee On Public Health hearing, communities considering or involved in industrial wind turbine projects should put their decisions on hold until the commission's report is completed.

SOUTH SHORE rock quartet Didn't Planet - shown here performing recently at the Hatch Shell in Boston - is holding an online contest for Red Sox/Yankees tickets to promote its new single and raise funds for muscular dystrophy research.

Local Band Supports Muscular Dystrophy With Song Sales

South Shore rock quartet Didn't Planet is holding an online contest for Red Sox/Yankees tickets to promote its new single and raise funds for muscular dystrophy research.

The band is offering two tickets to the Aug. 17th Red Sox game at Fenway Park vs. the New York Yankees to promote their original song "Boston Girl." Details on entering the contest are posted on the band's Facebook page.

Net proceeds from digital sales of "Boston Girl" will support the Parent Project Muscular Dystrophy fund in honor of a close friend of the band.

Didn't Planet is a four-piece rock/power pop band who has been performing in the Boston area for over 10 years. After many years as a cover band, Didn't Planet released its first all-original LP, We're Goin' Nowhere, in 2012.

Band members include drummer and Quincy native Jason Bouffard, currently of Hanson, lead singer/rhythm guitarist Rob Allen of Kingston, lead guitarist John "Chris" Loring of Norwell and bassist Pat Loring of Weymouth.

"If you have been to a Didn't Planet show in the last 15 years, you have most likely met our friend Dave Generous and his family," the band said through its Facebook page. Generous was born with muscular dystrophy. "He and his family have been huge supporters from the very beginning, and this is one small way of saying thank you."

"Boston Girl", released in June, tells the story of a local girl who falls in love with a stranger at Fenway, only to discover that he's a Yankees fan. The song is available for digital download on Apple iTunes.

'Half An Hour A Day Across Massachusetts' Free Slide Presentation July 22 At Library

In 2009, South Shore historian and naturalist John Galluzzo took on a personal challenge. He would walk for a half an hour, no matter what the weather, no matter the condition of his health, on a different trail every day for a year.

In 2011, he took that notion 351 steps further. In that year he took at least a half an hour nature walk in every community in the Bay State, from the sands of Cape Cod's beaches to the crests of the Taconic Mountains.

Galluzzo will recount his adventures in a free illustrated presentation Monday, July 22 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy. He will also briefly discuss his new project, "Half an Hour a Day with the Dead."

The presentation is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Paddle Boards At Sailing Facility

The Quincy Recreation Department has added stand up paddle boards to the fleet of boats at the William F. Ryan Boating and Sailing facility at Blacks Creek.

Paddle boarding involves a person standing on top of a surfboard and using a paddle to move the board through the water. It provides a full-body workout for adults and children.

The natural lagoon at the Blacks Creek facility provides the shelter and calm water that makes the location perfect for newcomers to master the techniques in a very short time, Recreation Director Barry Welch said. Boards can be used for one-time fee or a season membership allows participants unlimited use during the summer boating season at the facility located in Merymount Park.

Registration and use of the paddle board may be done at the facility open 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. weekdays and noon to 6 p.m. weekends. Recreation staff supervise and instruct in the use of the boards.

For more information call 617-592-5992.

Ellie's Oreo Truffle

Today's recipe is a no bake cookie so easy and especially through the hot weather, and one that the kids can make so easy. And it just takes just two ingredients to make the cookie itself, plus any topping.

Last week while I was about to go shopping with my daughter Nancy, her daughter (my granddaughter) Ellie, who is 12 years old said she had made an Oreo truffle, and wanted me to try one. She and her sisters watch the Food Network quite a bit and just love to bake.

It was the best little round ball of smooth chocolate ever, and takes just a few minutes to whip up.

OREO TRUFFLE

36 Oreo cookies

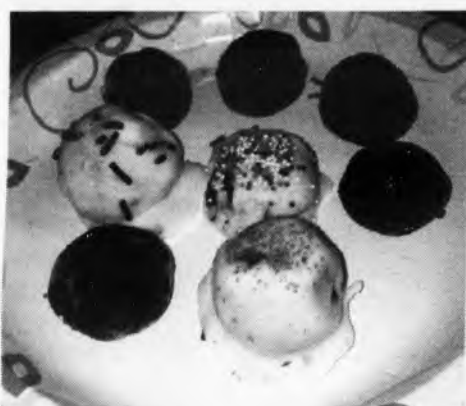

1- 8-ounce package cream cheese (softened)

Topping if used

Chocolate chips (melted) (enough for dipping)

White chocolate chips (melted)

First either in a food chopper or with a rolling pin, crush the cookies until they are like powder. Add the cream cheese and mix until it resembles a dough. Roll into one inch balls, and place on a cookie sheet. Refrigerate until firm.

If you want to dip them in chocolate, just melt enough to coat each one. Ellie made some with the chocolate chips and some with white chocolate. She put sprinkles on the white ones and they looked to pretty. I ate a plain one and it was delicious!

Joe's Turkey Burgers & Then Some

I was talking on the phone with my niece Ann and she told me that her husband Joe grilled the most delicious turkey burgers. Sometimes turkey can bland and needs some help with seasoning.

This recipe has a few different ingredients that make it the tastiest ever. He made them for a few people, but the recipe can be cut down also.

TURKEY BURGERS & THEN SOME

3 pounds ground turkey

Salt, pepper and herbs such as fresh parsley

can be added

3 eggs (beaten)

1 cup breadcrumbs

1 medium bag spinach (cut in pieces)

Slices of favorite cheese if preferred

Mix the egg, breadcrumbs, herbs together, add the raw spinach and the turkey and mix thoroughly. Shape them into patties the size preferred and grill until done.

This recipe makes 10-12 patties.

Other kinds of ground meat can be used.

John Quincy Adams' Life, Sacrifices Remembered

Sixth President Honored At Wreath Laying Ceremony On 246th Birthday Anniversary

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, was honored on the 246th anniversary of his birthday July 11th at a ceremony held in United First Parish Church where speakers honored the man he was and the personal sacrifices he made throughout his political career.

"I want to spend a few minutes telling you a little bit about the kind of man John Quincy Adams was, but also the price he paid for being that kind of man. John Quincy Adams was born this day, 246 years ago, and he led an active and by many measures a successful life. But it was not a life that came without struggle, without cost, or without sacrifice," said Amanda Mathews, a Research Associate for Adams Papers Massachusetts Historical Society. "Throughout his public life he would accept any call to represent his country no matter the difficulty to himself or to his family."

Adams served as president from 1825 to 1829 and before becoming president he served as an American diplomat, senator, and a congressman, along with helping negotiate the Treaty of Ghent, which ended the War of 1812.

"He finished Harvard at the age of 26. At age 27 he became the minister to the Netherlands. At the age of 30 he became the minister for Prussia. At the age of 36 he was elected to be a U.S. Senator and at the age of 47 he negotiated the end of the War of 1812 in the Treaty of Ghent," said seventh generation descendent of President John Quincy Adams Peter Boylston Adams. "He was probably one of our greatest diplomats."

Mathews said that because of his dedication to his country his family life suffered.

"As minister to St. Petersburg, for example, John Quincy, wanting his sons to get an American education, chose to leave his two elder boys, George Washington Adams who was eight at the time, and John Adams II who was six, in the care of a rotating group of family members in Massachusetts. He and his wife Louisa went nearly six whole years without seeing them," said Mathews.

"Even before that time as a Senator, and certainly after the family returned, as John Quincy Adams became Secretary of State and then President, dual residences in Washington and Boston, with growing boys in need of stability and educational opportunities, meant that it was rare for all of the Adams' children to be together with their parents. The reality of this type of life, devoted to duty over personal considerations, certainly took a toll on Louisa Catherine as well."

After his defeat for reelection Mathews said Louisa had hoped for a quiet retirement devoted to family and writing, but Adams was once again called back into politics this time in the House of Representatives.

"Louisa had unsurprisingly expected a quiet retirement, one devoted to family and writing, rather than politics, but her husband took a toll on Louisa Catherine as well."

Paddle Boards At Sailing Facility

The Quincy Recreation Department has added stand up paddle boards to the fleet of boats at the William F. Ryan Boating and Sailing facility at Blacks Creek.

Paddle boarding involves a person standing on top of a surfboard and using a paddle to move the board through the water. It provides a full-body workout for adults and children.

The natural lagoon at the Blacks Creek facility provides the shelter and calm water that makes the location perfect for newcomers to master the techniques in a very short time, Recreation Director Barry Welch said. Boards can be used for one-time fee or a season membership allows participants unlimited use during the summer boating season at the facility located in Merrymount Park.

Registration and use of the paddle board may be done at the facility open 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. weekdays and noon to 6 p.m. weekends. Recreation staff supervise and instruct in the use of the boards.

For more information call 617-592-5992.

Ellie's Oreo Truffle

Today's recipe is a no bake cookie so easy and especially through the hot weather, and one that the kids can make so easy. And it just takes just two ingredients to make the cookie itself, plus any topping.

Last week while I was about to go shopping with my daughter Nancy, her daughter (my granddaughter) Ellie, who is 12 years old said she had made an Oreo truffle, and wanted me to try one. She and her sisters watch the Food Network quite a bit and just love to bake.

It was the best little round ball of smooth chocolate ever, and takes just a few minutes to whip up.

OREO TRUFFLE

36 Oreo cookies

1- 8-ounce package cream cheese (softened)

Topping if used

Chocolate chips (melted) (enough for dipping)

White chocolate chips (melted)

First either in a food chopper or with a rolling pin, crush the cookies until they are like powder. Add the cream cheese and mix until it resembles a dough. Roll into one inch balls, and place on a cookie sheet. Refrigerate until firm.

If you want to dip them in chocolate, just melt enough to coat each one. Ellie made some with the chocolate chips and some with white chocolate. She put sprinkles on the white ones and they looked to pretty. I ate a plain one and it was delicious!

Joe's Turkey Burgers & Then Some

I was talking on the phone with my niece Ann and she told me that her husband Joe grilled the most delicious turkey burgers. Sometimes turkey can bland and needs some help with seasoning.

This recipe has a few different ingredients that make it the tastiest ever. He made them for a few people, but the recipe can be cut down also.

TURKEY BURGERS & THEN SOME

3 pounds ground turkey

Salt, pepper and herbs such as fresh parsley

can be added

3 eggs (beaten)

1 cup breadcrumbs

1 medium bag spinach (cut in pieces)

Slices of favorite cheese if preferred

Mix the egg, breadcrumbs, herbs together, add the raw spinach and the turkey and mix thoroughly. Shape them into patties the size preferred and grill until done.

This recipe makes 10-12 patties.

Other kinds of ground meat can be used.

In Sync Center Of Arts Holds 18th Annual Recital Weekend

In Sync Center of the Arts based in Quincy recently held its 18th annual recital weekend at Milton High School featuring seven recitals, five "mini" recitals and two "full" recitals.

The "mini" shows featured dancers in preschool through second grade. The "full" recitals showcased dancers in grades 3-12. This year's theme was "Step Right Up!" and dancers represented all things circus including fire eaters, clowns, tightrope walkers, circus ballerinas, tumbling dancers, and more.

During the "mini" recitals, all dancers were brought on stage prior to performing and received a pep talk from the owner, Teri Mangiaratti, to calm their nerves before their final performance of the year. Of course, all nerves were calmed as soon as the children saw their parents waving and cheering them on from the audience.

One of the "mini" recitals featured the annual father-daughter routine. This year, the dancers and their fathers danced to "Macho Man" while the stage of dads brought circus strong men to life.

"The father-daughter routine is always a big hit," Mangiaratti said. "They are always so proud to take the stage with their daughters, and we're so happy to give them that memory."

The "full" recitals featured dancers grade 3 and older in styles including ballet, tap, jazz, hip hop and contemporary. The In Sync Dance Staff kicked off the annual finale routine complete with tumbling, plate spinning, feather balancing, ribbon dancing, hoop tricks and more! The crowd roared and the show was a complete success.

Closing the show, awards were given to dancers who have been with In Sync for 5, 10 and even 15 years. "Young people who commit themselves to something year after year deserve some recognition and a special shout out during this exciting time of year. Being a part of a child's life for 15 consecutive years is truly a special honor and we are so happy to have 6 fifteen year recipients this year," Mangiaratti said.

Fifteen year awards were presented to Marissa Delconte, Dawn Barrett, Grace Kernohan, Devan Callahan, Acadia Ryder and Nicole Dee-Collins, all from Milton.

In Sync is offering week-long summer programs or drop in evening classes. In Sync Center of the Arts is kicking off a new Musical Theater program this fall and continuing to offer programs in dance, music and art.

Two Longtime Staff Members At Wollaston Child Care Center

Marcia Bailey, Wayne Morse Honored At Retirement Celebration

The Wollaston Lutheran Church recently hosted a retirement celebration in honor of two wonderful staff members of the Wollaston Child Care Center.

Founding director Marcia Bailey and longtime facilities manager Wayne Morse were honored for their many years of dedicated service to WCCC.

City Councillor Doug Gutro was in attendance and presented Marcia and Wayne with citations from the City Council thanking them for their years of service on behalf of young children in Quincy.

Marcia Bailey began working in early childhood education in 1973 at the Wollaston Lutheran Church Nursery School which was located upstairs in the church building at 550 Hancock St. She was first hired by Pastor Frank Bauer as a substitute teacher. During the years she taught at the Wollaston Lutheran Nursery School, the church funded Marcia's professional course work in early childhood education. The Wollaston Lutheran Nursery School closed in 1978.

A short while later Marcia moved on to co-found the daycare program at the South Shore YMCA - a program still in operation. After 14 years with the South Shore YMCA daycare program, Marcia left in July, 1999 to join the newly formed steering committee at Wollaston Lutheran Church which was preparing to build and operate a state-of-the-art Child Care Center near the church.

Funding which totaled some $2 million was borrowed from the Lutheran Church Extension Fund to construct the Center and begin operation. Marcia was put in charge of designing the new Center's program, hiring the initial staff, obtaining all necessary certifications, and enrolling the first students. She was ably assisted by Dr. Carol Darcy and Debbie McDonald. The doors of the Wollaston Child Care Center were opened to students in December, 1999.

For more than 13 years Marcia continued to work tirelessly to insure that the Wollaston Child Care Center is among the finest Child Care programs in the entire Commonwealth. Marcia's exemplary leadership in the field of early childhood education and her tireless devotion to serving the young children of Quincy and their families have made her a legend in her own time. Although her retirement is certainly well deserved, she will be sorely missed.

Manager at the Wollaston Child Care Center since its opening in 1999 was also being honored upon his retirement. Wayne had formerly worked at the New Christian Concepts nursery program of the Bethel Church of the Nazarene in Hough's Neck. When that program closed, Wayne began full-time work at WCCC.

Wayne's work has always elicited comments such as: "This place is spotless," and "You could eat off the floor." Not only did he do excellent work, but he did it with a smile. He was warm and open to all he met, and he showed great love and concern for the Center's staff and children. With everyone at the Center "Mr. Wayne" enjoyed the status of a good friend and helper. A surrogate grandpa to many children over the years, Mr. Wayne will be greatly missed.

bands conscious and a call to duty required further sacrifice from her. In late 1830, John Quincy Adams was called to be a representative for his district in the House of Representatives, and step back into the political fray," said Mathews. "He would not give up the work he so loved and he recognized that a quiet retirement was not something he could embrace."

Adams National Historical Park Ranger Robert Shimp spoke to the crowd that gathered in The Church of the Presidents about John Quincy Adams' presidency and the goals he had during that time.

"Over the course of his life John Quincy Adams produced one of the most longest and most consequential careers in American history. His presidency typifies his career in a few specific ways. He maintained a forward-looking vision for the nation. Adams realized he was fighting a losing battle on these forward looking measures but he knew of the importance of moving the bar forward for what the nation could possibly achieve in the future and where debates would even start," said Shimp. "As the nation's sixth commander-in-chief John Quincy Adams desired nothing as much as to transcend party divisions. For John Quincy Adams improvement of the nation rested on the improvement on the common citizen."

Brock A. Miller, Commanding Officer of the Navy Operational Support Center in Quincy, called Adams a visionary that left behind a legacy of duty, honor and country.

"As President of the United States he was a visionary he had lofty goals and ideas to improve the nation through infrastructure, develop roads, canals, bridges, and promotions of the National Science University, and also restoring the United States Naval Academy," said Miller. "There is so much about the legacy of President Adams, his sense of duty, honor and country is one that we all strive to duplicate."

During the ceremony Quincy personnel from the Navy Operational Support Center laid the Presidential Wreath from President Barack Obama on the tomb of John Quincy Adams and Reverend David Johnson, Minister of United First Parish Church, delivered the benediction.

DA Renews Request For Public's Help

Evelin Valibayova Disappeared Two Years Ago

Evelin Valibayova was 23 when she disappeared from her North Quincy apartment at some point on July 17, 2011 and has not been seen or heard from since.

On the second anniversary of her disappearance, District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey, Massachusetts State Police and Quincy Police are renewing their call for the public's help in solving what authorities believe is a homicide.

"There was substantial blood evidence found in her apartment when State Police Crime Scene Services processed that scene," District Attorney Morrissey said, releasing details not previously made public. "By working with friends, we recovered a personal item of Evelin's and were able to find and test a sample of DNA on one item. That DNA profile matched the blood found in the apartment."

Morrissey said the volume of blood found indicated a level of injury that would have required medical attention. "We believe very strongly that there is foul play involved, and that she may in fact have been murdered."

Police need the public's help to answer two questions. First, police want to talk to the male in a MBTA surveillance photo (posted on The Quincy Sun website: www.thequincysun.com). Although authorities do not have grounds to believe that he was involved in the disappearance, he used Valibayova's "Charlie Card" to access MBTA services. Some of Valibayova's personal effects were found dumped in the Dorchester/Mattapan area of Boston after her disappearance. The surveillance photo was taken at the Ashmont station.

"Although this person is likely not involved, we would like more information on how they came into possession of the card," Morrissey said.

The second question is the exact location of where Valibayova was planning to move, likely as a short sublet, in the Allston/Brighton area when she disappeared.

"We know she was vacating the Quincy apartment and that she had signed a lease on a new place for Sept. 1, but had indicated that she had arranged a place to stay in August. Someone knows where that is, because they arranged the sublet or had planned to room with her. They may not believe that what they know of her is important, but we need to talk to them," Morrissey said.

Last summer DA Morrissey arranged for several billboards with Valibayova's asking for the public's help around the Boston area and utilized the press to spread that message. That push resulted in zero calls to police.

"If someone reading this has information on where she was going to sublet the apartment in the Allston-Brighton area, or knows the identity of the man in the MBTA photo if you thought someone else will step up and contact us, they haven't," Morrissey said. "And we need you." The anonymous tip line is 617-593-8840.

Precautions To Avoid Heat-Related Illnesses

"If the demand is there we'd be willing to keep it open," he said.

In his monthly newsletter Clasby included information on keeping safe in high temperatures. He said residents should be make sure they know the signs of heat-related illnesses such as heat stroke and heat exhaustion. The symptoms of heat stroke - which occurs when the body temperature reaches 105 degrees or higher - include dizziness, headache, nausea, and dry skin from a lack of sweat caused by dehydration. Symptoms of heat exhaustion can be similar to those of heat stroke, except heat exhaustion causes profuse sweating. Both heat stroke and heat exhaustion are medical emergencies.

Clasby also advised that residents should check in on their elderly neighbors and relatives to make sure they're okay on hot days.

"That can be absolutely vital," he said.

29 World War II Nurse Cadets Honored

At Atria Marina Place Luncheon

Twenty-nine U.S. Cadet Nurses of World War II from Massachusetts were recently honored at a luncheon marking the 70th anniversary of the Nurse Corps at Atria Marina Place in Squantum.

The cadet nurses are surviving members of the largest, youngest group of uniformed women to serve our country during WWII. Five of the Cadet Nurses trained at Quincy Hospital. The Atria Marina Place, Hope Health, and MGH sponsored the event.

In 1943, the 78th Congress passed Public Law 74 that established The United States Cadet Nurse Corps (USCNC) to address the critical nursing shortage in our nation's hospitals and military services during WWII. It read: "An act to provide for the training of nurses for the armed forces, governmental and civilian hospitals, health agencies, and war industries, through grants to institutions providing such training, and for other purposes...Provided that there shall be no discrimination in the administration of this act...on account of race, creed, or color."

Nearly 180,000 young women joined the Corps and pledged that they would be available for military, governmental, or essential civilian services for the duration of the war. The United States Public Health Service administered the program in over 1200 hospitals nationwide including 57 Massachusetts hospitals with 9000 recruits. The USCNC has been credited with saving America's health care system during WWII.

In his tribute to the USCNC on its 50th anniversary, Army Surgeon General Norman T. Kirk said: "We should take time out to pay tribute to the dedicated group of women who promised to stay in nursing in service of their country for as long as it was necessary to win the war that raged when they entered service... By stepping into uniform for their country, the U.S. Cadet Nurse Corps played an essential role in ending the war. They should be honored for their efforts."

Gov. Deval Patrick proclaimed July 1, 2013 United States Cadet Nurse Corps Day in Massachusetts in recognition of the Corps' 70th anniversary.

The luncheon featured remarks from state Rep. Bruce Ayers, Quincy Council on Aging Director Thomas Clasby; Norman Birenbaum, Greater Boston regional director for U.S. Sen. Elizabeth Warren; Dr. Brenda Birmann, Harvard Nurses' Health Study, Jennifer Quin of Atria Marina Place, Lisa Barriere of Hope Health; and Shirley Harrow, a registered nurse.

Quincy's Effort To Combat Substance Abuse Praised As 'Leading The Nation'

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy's efforts to combat substance abuse won the praises of a top White House aide who told officials from across Eastern Massachusetts that the city's work is 'leading the nation.'

Michael Botticelli, the deputy director of national drug control policy, was the keynote speaker at an Impact Quincy conference held recently in Crown Colony that was attended by elected and public health officials from as far away as Worcester. Botticelli served as director of the Bureau of Substance Abuse Services at the Massachusetts Department of Public Health prior to being appointed to his post in Washington.

During the conference Botticelli, himself a recovering addict who has been sober for 25 years, outlined the Obama administration's newly minted drug control strategy. He prefaced his remarks by telling the conference's 200 attendees that much of what the administration was doing was based on Quincy's substance abuse programs.

"We talk about this nationally and quite honestly it's the work that's happening in Quincy that's really leading in the nation. My job here today is to tell you everything you already know and everything you're already doing," Botticelli said. "One of the reasons why I wanted to come here today is to say thank you, because the work that Quincy is doing and the work that Massachusetts is doing continues to guide our national strategy. The work here in Quincy has been guiding our effort."

Botticelli pointed out four areas the White House is targeting to help stop the nationwide increase in the abuse of opioids, which includes painkillers such as oxycodone and hydro-

DEPUTY DIRECTOR of the Office of National Drug Control Policy Michael Botticelli commended Quincy's efforts to prevent substance abuse at the recent Impact Quincy conference held at the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel. "One of the reasons why I wanted to come here today is to say thank you," he said, "because the work that Quincy is doing and the work that Massachusetts is doing continues to guide our national strategy."

codone. Those areas are education, including for prescribers of opioid drugs, prescription monitoring programs, proper disposal of opioids, and the involvement of law enforcement as partners in public health.

Botticelli highlighted two of those areas where Quincy was helping lead the way — the kiosks installed in the city's police station and other ones throughout Norfolk County that allow residents to dispose of drugs properly, and the Police Department's efforts to assist those struggling with substance abuse.

"I was very interested to look at your kiosks here," Botticelli said. "The other thing I think that's really interesting about Quincy, and that we often talk about, is really looking at law enforcement as part of the solution to the problem and not part of the problem. I think many of us with addictive disorders have always been so much afraid of the police."

"Twenty-five years in, the sirens go off and I still think they're after me. It's really important to focus on how law enforcement are partners in public health."

As one example, Botticelli pointed to the Police Department's Narcan program. Officers in the department carry Narcan, a trade name for the drug naloxone, and use it to reverse the effects of opioid overdoses. Since Quincy Police began using Narcan in 2010, officers have used Narcan successfully more than 160 times. A recent study published in the "British Medical Journal," Botticelli said, proved naloxone distribution programs like Quincy's are efficient in reducing fatal overdoses.

"The is the first time we were able to prove that naloxone reduces mortalities and the more you introduce it in communities and the more you introduce it in communities with high prevalence, the more significant reduction you have in fatalities," Botticelli said. "The work you're doing here has led the nation. The Quincy Police Department's work has been outstanding."

Botticelli highlighted the White House's revised drug control policy. Tips For Parents

By ARLENE GOODSTEIN Impact Quincy

Ah, summer. Schools are closed, kids are home, and life is easy, right?

But parents should be aware that without the structure of school, children and teens are at increased risk for experimenting with alcohol, tobacco and other drugs. If there's ever a time to keep closer tabs on what your kids are doing while they're at home and you're at work, July and August would be it. There are more opportunities, such as at the public swimming pool, the beach, amusement parks or community festivals, to socialize with older kids who may drink alcohol, smoke cigarettes or use marijuana. From 2002 to 2010, The National Survey on Drug Use and Health (NSDUH) asked 231,500 teens age 12 to 17 questions about first use. The survey reported:

- First-time use of most substances peaks during the summer months.
- On an average summer day more than 11,000 youths used alcohol for the first time; in other months, the daily average ranged from about 5,000 to 8,000 new users per day
- On an average summer day more than 5,000 youths smoked cigarettes for the first time; in other months, the daily average ranged from about 3,000 to 4,000 new users per day
- On an average summer day more than 4,800 youths used marijuana for the first time; in other months, the daily average ranged from about 3,000 to 4,000 new users per day

Even though summer is underway, it's never too late to talk with your kids about the subject of drug and alcohol use. Research shows that to reduce drug or alcohol abuse, parents must make it crystal clear that you expect your children not to use drugs or alcohol.

No matter how many times your teen rolls his (or her) eyes as you cover this point; fewer teens use these drugs after parents make their drug-free expectations clear. It also helps when both parents present a united front on these points, whether they live in the same household or not.

"More free time and less adult supervision can make the summertime an exciting time for many young people, but it can also increase the likelihood of exposure to the dangers of substance abuse," said Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) Administrator Pamela S. Hyde. "That is why it is critically important to take every opportunity we can throughout the year to talk to our young people about the real risks of substance abuse and effective measures for avoiding it, so they will be informed and capable of making the right decisions on their own."

City To Clean Abandoned Industrial Site At 175-189 Intervale St.

The City of Quincy has been awarded a grant of $358,500 for an environmental cleanup project at an abandoned industrial site in West Quincy.

The Brownfields Assessment Grant from the Massachusetts Development Finance Agency will be used to conduct a complete environmental assessment and building demolition at 175/189 Intervale St. in West Quincy.

"The Brownfields Redevelopment Fund's pad-ready program helps communities remove derelict buildings and quickly bring properties back into productive use," said Marty Jones, President and CEO of MassDevelopment, the Commonwealth's real estate and development finance agency. "The Fund has been a proven economic development tool, transforming these challenging sites. Unfortunately, the Brownfields Redevelopment Fund is fully committed and not able to fund new requests, a situation that we hope will be rectified soon."

"We are grateful to receive assistance from the MassDevelopment to help us get this site back to active use," said Mayor Thomas Koch.

The Intervale property was used as a metal scrap-ping yard starting in the 1940s. More recently, it had been the site of metal scrap-ping, tire removal/recycling, and manhole cover recoating under the direction of Henry P. Gregoire. The site has been inactive since 1986, when a fire involving a 55-gallon drum containing unspecified materials whose contents were released and dispersed during the initial attempt to control the fire.

In the years since the fire closed operations at the site, owner, Henry P. Gregoire, failed to undertake any environmental clean-up or pay real estate taxes, which climbed to $680,780.73. The neglect of the site and failure to pay property taxes prompted the City to classify the property as abandoned then acquire it through the Tax Title process in 2009.

The condition of 175/189 Intervale St. is currently uninhabitable and will require extensive work to remove hazardous materials left behind by the previous owner.

To tackle the environmental concerns at the property before it can return back to the tax rolls, the City enlisted the help of environmental engineering firm, Woodard & Curran.

Working with the Planning & Community Development Department, Woodard & Curran helped prepare the Brownfields grant application and will manage the contamination in accordance with the Massachusetts Contingency Plan and the "White Knight" provisions enacted in December 2007 by MassDEP.

"When the site was left abandoned, the City inherited a derelict, partially burned building and unusable land that accompanied a potentially significant environmental liability" said Licensed Site Professional Jarrod Yoder of Woodard & Curran.

The City will start the environmental site assessment program this month. Demolition of the derelict building and assessment activities are expected to be completed by the end of the summer, with supplemental assessment activities completed by spring of 2014.

"After more than ten years, it was clear that hazardous material concerns at the site were keeping potential buyers away," said Robert Stevens, the city's Urban Renewal Planner. "The Brownfield grant program is the best way a municipality can address derelict industrial sites it acquires through the tax title process and return them to active use."

Once assessment activities are complete, the City will be in position to pursue State and Federal Brownfield-Cleanup funding for remedial actions identified during the assessment phase. The City plans to auction the property off once the process is complete.

Quincy Hosts Eastern Mass. Babe Ruth Softball Tourney

Quincy Plays Hard But Bows To Lynn In Softball Tourney

By BILL GRIFFIN

The combination of excellent starting pitching and timely hitting is a tough one to survive for any team.

Ally Dunnigan hurled a four-hitter and Lynn took control of the game with an eight-run third inning to defeat Quincy, 12-2 in the first round of the recent Eastern Massachusetts Babe Ruth Softball 14-and-under Softball Tournament at Mitchell-McCoy Stadium.

The tournament was a double-elimination event. It is believed to be the first Babe Ruth State Softball Tourney hosted by Quincy.

"Lynn is a strong, well-rounded team," said Quincy coach Robert Buttomer. "They hit the ball well. I also thought we hit some shots that went right at people. We could have made a few more plays in the field, but the girls played hard."

Dunnigan was the largest factor in the win. She had an good low fastball which she mixed in well with an effective changeup. She struck out five, and rang up three straight shutout innings in the second, third, and fourth while her offense found its rhythm.

"She was very good. Her changeup was excellent, and she kept us off balance," said Buttomer.

Quincy had a fast start and led 1-0 after one. In the Lynn first, Quincy center-fielder Clare Doherty threw a beautiful, in-the-air strike to home and Madison Synan blocked the plate perfectly to nail a runner at the plate.

"That was quite a throw. It was a good way to start the game," said Buttomer.

Quincy had other fine defensive moments. In the fourth, pitcher Nicole DeGrenier made a nice grab of a shallow popup and flipped to third baseman Kaylen Kozlowski for a double play. Katy Meehan handled a pair of difficult chances in left field cleanly.

"Nicole did a good job of grabbing the popup and getting it to third quickly," said Buttomer.

Quincy went up, 1-0 in the first. Alexandra McPherson walked, moved along on a steal and a wild pitch, and scored on a ground ball by Meehan.

McPherson had a good night at the plate with a walk, single, an RBI and a run scored. Kozlowski had a single and a run scored. Meehan added an RBI. Synan and Elizabeth Bell each had a single. Synan was named the Outstanding Player of the game for Quincy.

Lynn had one in the second, eight in the third and one in the fourth for a 10-1 lead. Quincy seemed to solve Dunnigan a bit as the game progressed. In the fourth, Synan and Bell singled with two out. Doherty walked to load the bases, but Dunnigan escaped on a fly ball center.

"They kept battling and I thought we hit better as the game went on. It was hot and maybe the Lynn pitcher got a little tired," said Buttomer.

After Lynn made it 12-1 in the top of the fifth, Quincy scored in the bottom of the inning. Kozlowski singled and Shauna McColgan was safe on a fielders choice.

Kate McGahey's ground ball moved them to second and third, and Kozlowski scored on a grounder by McPherson. DeGrenier made the final out with a hard line drive to right.

The game was called after five innings.

"I feel good about my team," said Buttomer. "I liked the way we kept working at the plate after we fell behind. If we made a couple of more plays in the field, we would have been right there with them. Hats off to Lynn. They played a solid, all-around game."

Hosting Softball Tournament Gives Quincy A Big Boost

By BILL GRIFFIN

It began with indoor workouts at the Lincoln-Hancock School in January and it grew to the honor of hosting the first round of the Eastern Massachusetts Babe Ruth Softball Tournament for players 14 and under on a hot recent July weekend.

Kingston took advantage of 15 walks and eliminated Quincy, 14-3 Saturday afternoon at Mitchell-McCoy Field, but the hosts displayed the results of their hard work with encouraging play which gave sound hopes for the future of softball in the city.

"A lot of these girls have been working at it for six months," said coach Robert Buttomer. "The goals were to build enthusiasm for softball in the city and to get more young people involved. These girls improved a great deal and hosting the tournament gives us a big boost."

Quincy received a terrific two-way game from shortstop Alexandra McPherson and made solid contact at the plate throughout the game, but the walks against a strong team like Kingston were difficult to overcome. Kingston scored its first ten runs on only two hits. Operating with a small a strike zone made matters more difficult for pitchers on both sides.

"You can't have that many walks against a good team like Kingston. They are too good," said Buttomer. "Pitching is one of the things we want to develop on the younger levels. A lot of towns have a special program for pitchers. We'd like to have one in Quincy."

McPherson was outstanding. In the field, she handled five chances cleanly. Her best was in the first with runners at second and third and one out. She moved to her left to grab a hard grounder. She held the runner at third and fired a strike to first for the out.

"She's a strong, alert player. She's obviously a team leader and she moved to the ball well," said Kingston coach David O'Leary.

"She's been solid in the field all year for us," added Buttomer.

At the plate, she had two hits in three trips and scored a run. For the two tournament games, she had three hits, a walk, two runs scored and an RBI. She hit the ball hard and showed good speed on the bases.

"She's aggressive at the plate and has a good swing. She's also very quick when she gets on," said O'Leary.

Quincy hit the ball well throughout the lineup. Nicole DeGrenier had a single and an RBI while Katy Meehan had a sacrifice fly to drive in a run. Kate McGahey and Jordan Currie each had a single and a run scored while Kaylen Kozlowski and Kelsie Dwyer chipped in with singles.

"I liked the way we swung the bats and I liked the way we kept battling after we fell behind," said Buttomer.

Shannon Foley pitched the last three innings of relief for Quincy and threw strikes. Catcher Madison Synan caught seven solid innings despite working with the heavy gear in the stifling heat. Catherine Buttomer, who walked and played first base, centerfield and third base in the contest, was named the Outstanding Player of the game for Quincy.

"I thought the players who came off the bench like Foley and Currie played well for us," said Buttomer. "Foley got the ball over which is what we asked of her. She's only a sixth-grader and she threw well."

Kingston jumped to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first and Quincy answered with one in the bottom half. McPherson singled, moved along on an error, stole third and scored on a passed ball.

Kingston upped it to 9-1 before Quincy scored a singleton in the third. McGahey and McPherson singled. DeGrenier was hit by a pitch to load the bases with none out. Meehan drove a shot into the right-center gap which Kingston's Danielle Levin ran down with a fine, running catch. It was a sacrifice fly for a run, but if it's a couple of feet to the left, it's a bases-clearing double.

Synan lined out to first and Clare Doherty made the final out after hitting a pair of line drives which went just foul down the left-field line.

Dwyer, Currie, and DeGrenier singled for a run in the Quincy sixth. Kingston finished with one in the fourth, two in the fifth and two in the seventh for the 14-3 final.

Buttomer was happy with his team's progress. The players worked hard. They practiced and scrimmaged weekly indoors during the winter. They played between 20-25 games in tournaments. The goal is to build a program like Kingston or Lynn which has a feeder system of players and can succeed on the state tournament level.

"We only lose three players from this team, and we were missing our ace pitcher in the tourney," said Buttomer. "You'll see a lot of these players on Quincy High's freshman team and I think there's some good talent heading to the high school."

CATHERINE BUTTOMER makes good contact as she drives a fly ball deep to center field in the fourth inning.

12-Year-Old Cal Ripken Team State Champs Again

Quincy Defeats Raynham For Second Straight Title

By BILL GRIFFIN

Another year, another championship.

Quincy's 12-year old Cal Ripken Team claimed its second straight state title with a 3-0 win over Raynham Sunday behind pitcher Connor McDonald who fired a two-hitter, struck out two and did not walk a batter in the clinching game.

J.P. Kelley drove home Curtis Frazier, who had singled, for Quincy's first run in the first inning. In the second, Anthony Rizzitano walked and scored on a double by Aidan O'Sullivan. Quincy made it, 3-0 in third when Mark McCormack doubled and scored on Colin McGrath's single.

Quincy had eight hits, two walks and played excellent defense behind McDonald in protecting the 3-0 lead.

Last year, the same group won the state championship in the 11-year old competion. This summer, they were dominant with a 7-0 run in the districts and states and will play in the New England Regionals in Marlboro Saturday against North Conway, N.H. at 9:30 a.m.

"It's great to be back," smiled manager Mark Free. "I think there might have a little pressure on us because of last year, but the kids responded and played beautiful baseball. I think we've raised the bar a little and we're looking forward to the regionals."

This success didn't happen instantly. When they were age nine, they made the districts. When they were ten, they won the districts, but lost in the states. The past two years, they have won the states. Each year they have taken a large step forward. The next stop is the regionals.

"We won two games in the regionals last year," said Free. "We're hoping to improve on that this year."

The keys to the team have been pitching and defense, and they have carried Quincy on an impressive run. In the states, Quincy beat Chelmsford, 4-0; Halifax, 11-2; Methuen National, 5-2; Raynham, 5-1; and Raynham, 3-0. They gave up five runs in five games in the state. The run differential in the states was 37-5. Toss in the districts and it is a remarkable 52-8. They are averaging better than seven runs a game and have given up a total of eight runs in seven games. They are an excellent team.

"We are built on pitching and defense, but the beauty of it is that everyone has a part," said Free. "When we talk about defense, it's team defense. There's no one standout. Everyone can make the plays."

Frazier is the catcher for Quincy. Jack Free and Rizzitano see action at first. McCormack is at second and Thomas Kelley plays shortstop. McGrath and Pat Nazzaro split the duties at third base.

McDonald, McGrath, Free, McCormack and Thomas Kelley handle the pitching chores.

"We started them together when they were nine and they are a close team," said Free. "There have been a lot of swim parties and sleepovers. It's not just the players, it's the parents as well. The parents get along great and that helps."

Free praised his coaching staff of Gerry Frazier, Tim Kelley, and Tom Nazzaro.

"This started in January with indoor workouts. Our success is due to the coaches and the time they put in working with the kids," said Free.

Quincy celebrated well after its win Sunday, but there was a bit of restraint in it, almost like they had another step to take this year.

"It was interesting," said Free. "They were happy, but there was nothing wild or over-the-top. I don't know if they're getting used to it, or they are looking to the regionals. We've had some success last year in the regionals and if we win them, we go to the world series."

Quincy 9-Year-Olds Rally, Edged Burlington In State Tourney

By BILL GRIFFIN

Kevin Salmanowich pitched 3 2/3 innings of shutout relief and Quincy rallied from a two run deficit to edge Burlington, 7-5 in the first round of the Cal Ripken State Tourney for players age 9 at the Quarry Hills Field Saturday.

Quincy, who won the District 3 Championship with three straight wins, fell to Raynham, 8-2 in its second game Sunday. Quincy will face Plymouth Friday night at 5:30.

Salmanowich entered the game with runners on first and second, one out and Quincy trailing, 5-3 in the bottom of the third. He escaped the jam, gave one hit and struck out three the rest of the way. He retired 10 of the 12 batters he faced, including the last seven in a row.

"He's been a very strong pitcher for us all year," said Quincy coach Jim Ross.

Quincy drew within, 5-4 in the fifth on a walk to Gavin Toland and singles by Ben Wines and Zach Galligan. In the fifth, Coleman and Owen Coppola singled and Jackson Murphy walked to load the bases. Colm O'Malley delivered a clutch two-out hit to tie the score at 5-5.

Quincy won the game with two in the sixth. Toland walked and raced around to score on an infield hit by Quinn Murphy and a throwing error. Salmanowich helped his own cause with a ground ball which produced an insurance run for the 7-5 final. Quincy ran the bases aggressively in scoring in each of the final three innings.

"We were down, but the kids fought back just like they have all year," said Ross.

Quincy's excellent defense was an important part of the win. Jack Nelson handled two hard-hit ground balls and turned them into outs at short. Drew Peterson caught two difficult line drives in left field. Murphy charged an apparent single to center and got the runner at second on a forceout with a quick, accurate throw. Catcher Ben Wines caught a runner stealing at third with two on to end a threat in the third.

O'Malley ended the game with a tumbling catch of a shallow popup at third. The best play came from Galligan in right. With two on and two out in the fourth, he raced into the right-center gap and made a catch at full speed which probably saved two runs.

"Our defense has been winning games for us all year and it came through again today," said Ross.

Quincy had seven hits. Ross had two hits and two runs scored. O'Malley, and Galligan had a single and an RBI. Ben Wines and Murphy each had a single and a run scored. Toland walked three times and scored a run. Salmanowich and Nelson each had a walk and a run scored. Coppola added a single.

"Our bats had been a little quiet, but they came alive today when we needed them to come from behind," said Ross.

Quincy started quickly with three in the first. Ross had a single, Salmanowich and Nelson walked and Asher Wines drove in a run with a sacrifice fly to lead the rally.

Burlington responded with two in the first and three in the second for a 5-3 lead, which held up until Quincy rallied in the final three innings for the win.

"I want to thank Quincy Youth Baseball President Mike Lynch and all the volunteers for making the event possible for us," said Ross.

Double Plays Foil Morrisette Legion

By BILL GRIFFIN

The double play is the pitcher's best friend and the offense's worst enemy. It draws the life out of a rally the way a thunderstorm draws the fun out of a day at the beach.

Milton turned two double plays with the bases loaded and rode a complete-game seven-hitter from right-hander Duncan Finnigan for a 5-0 win over Morrisette in a Zone 6 East American Legion game at Milton High Sunday evening.

"They were the two single most important plays of the game," said Morrisette coach Steve Maze.

The loss was a disappointing close on what was a successful week for Post 294. Morrisette split a doubleheader with Stoughton, defeated Holbrook and Cohasset, and had a 2-0 lead on powerful Braintree when rain wiped out the game in the fourth inning.

Morrisette was 11-8 after the loss to Milton and in possession of third place behind Braintree and Hyde Park in the Zone 6 East chase. The top five teams make the playoffs, and Post 294 is in good shape for a post-season berth entering the final week of the regular season which will see Morrisette play five games in six days. The district playoffs begin July 23.

"It was certainly a game we wanted to win and we played hard to win it, but it doesn't kill us. We're still in good shape for a playoff push," said Maze.

Morrisette worked three walks to go with seven hits and drilled the ball hard for much of the game, but the double plays wiped out its momentum. The first DP came in the top of the first after Andrew Currie roped a single. Jason Pekkinen and Andrew Jaehnig drew walks to load the bases with one out.

Josh Hayward drove a liner up the middle which Milton shortstop Matt Levasseur grabbed in perfect stride, moving towards second to tag the bag for the double play which ended the inning.

"If we get up 2-0 or 3-0 early, then I think it's a different game," said Maze. "Take nothing away from Milton. They played well. Their pitcher threw strikes and they made all the plays."

After Milton went up, 2-0 with singletons in the first and third, Morrisette loaded the bases with none out in the fifth on consecutive singles by Matt Davis, Brian Turner, and Currie. All three hits were drilled. Pat Verhault sent a hard smash to the right side which Milton first baseman Jason Turner grabbed and tuned into a 3-2-3 DP. Verhault was out at first on a close play.

Move Verhault's or Hayward's hard-hit ball a foot either way and it's probably four runs.

"We had the hitters up that we wanted up and we hit the ball hard. It just didn't work out," said Maze.

Milton finished the scoring with three in the sixth.

Morrisette played errorless ball. Turner made a fine catch in right, racing towards the line to run down a deep fly in the second. Tommy McDonald had a pair of excellent scoops at first to save low throws.

T.J. Hobbin started and threw hard for 4 2/3 innings, giving two runs, just three hits and striking out one.

Currie and Turner led the offense with a pair of hits apiece while Jaehnig, Davis and Aaron Clancy each had single hits.

In the opener of the doubleheader against Stoughton, Tom Garland struck out eight and did not walk a batter to lead Morrisette to a 7-3 victory. Garland earned his fifth victory of the season without a defeat.

Pekkinen led the offense with three hits. Hayward had two hits and an RBI while Jaehnig added two hits and scored once. Tyler Beach was on base four times and scored twice.

Greg Paulo pitched a terrific game in a 2-1 loss in the nightcap. The first two batters in the first inning scored and after that, Paulo threw seven innings of one-hit, shutout baseball. He struck four and had no walks. Morrisette did not walk a batter in the doubleheader.

Morrisette had its chances, stranding 10 runners. Twice Post 294 left the bases loaded. McDonald had a hit and drove in Morrisette's run. Pekkinen had a hit and a run scored. Jaehnig added a double.

Everything was in place for a big win over second-place Braintree. Pekkinen had a double for an RBI and Robbie Munroe belted a home run for a 2-0 lead. Ace Tommy McDonald was in a groove, retiring 10 of the first 11 batters. However, the rains came in the fourth and postponed the game.

Verhault went 3-4, scored three runs and stole a base in an 8-4 win over Holbrook. Hayward had two hits and two RBI while Jaehnig went 2-2 and scored two runs.

Turner pitched the first six innings to earn the win while Hayward finished up with a strong seventh on the mound.

Dan Cobban hurled the first five innings and Kenny Sorenson pitched two innings of shutout relief in a 3-1 win over Cohasset.

Pekkinen had a triple and scored a run. Verhault had a double and a run scored while Hayward singled and scored a run.

Eddie Riley singled, stole second, and played a fine defensive game at shortstop.

Morrisette is at Cohasset Thursday and at Braintree Friday. Post 294 will finish the regular season Saturday against Hyde Park at a site and time yet to be determined.

Morrisette Jr. Team Wins Four

By BILL GRIFFIN

They have dominated Zone 5-6 American Junior Legion baseball from the first pitch of the season, and Morrisette cemented its hold on first place with four straight wins last week.

Post 294 slammed Westwood, 10-2 behind a two-way effort from Bobby Salvucci, and edged Needham, 2-0 with a combined pitching effort from Richie Ryan and Dave Suslowicz.

Josh Helfrich took care of the pitching and Pat Keohane drove in the winning run in a 3-2 decision over Foxboro. Ryan pitched six strong innings, giving just one hit and added two doubles at the plate in a 10-0 win over Holbrook.

Morrisette finished the week at 15-0-2, two games up on Franklin and Norwood. If Morrisette wins one of its last two games, it clinches the regular-season title.

"We're just playing excellent baseball," said coach Rick Beach. "The pitching is strong. Ryan threw back-to-back one hitters. We've had timely hitting and we've run the bases aggressively all year."

Salvucci, who hadn't pitched in two years, went the first five against Westwood and earned the victory with a seven-hitter. He struck out two. Ethan Yau and Suslowicz each pitched an inning of scoreless relief.

Salvucci also did his part at the plate, going 2-2 with three steals and two runs scored. Shortstop Troy Shepherd had two hits, two stolen bases and two runs scored while Brendan McDonald added a single, two runs scored and two stolen bases. Helfrich walked three times and scored a run.

Morrisette used terrific pitching and a good dose of smart smallball in its shutout win over Needham. Ryan threw a one-hitter over the first 5 2/3 and Suslowicz finished by getting the final four outs and striking out the side in the seventh.

The last out of the sixth was the key play of the game. Morrisette was up, 2-0, and Needham had the bases loaded with two out. After Suslowicz entered the game, Shepherd flashed the pickoff sign from shortstop. Suslowicz turned and caught the runner with too large a lead and the inning was over.

"It was heads-up baseball and it ended a big threat," said Beach.

Morrisette went up 1-0 in the fourth on a two-out RBI single by Liam Fitzmaurice which scored Brendan Collins.

Post 294 upped it to 2-0 in the fifth. McDonald was hit by a pitch, stole second and moved to third on a fly ball to the outfield. Shepherd got down a safety squeeze to score McDonald with an insurance run.

"Needham played well against us," said Beach. "They picked us off a couple of times, but it didn't stop us. We kept running. That's our game."

Keohane stole three bases while Helfrich and Suslowicz each had a base hit.

In the Foxboro game, Helfrich was outstanding after the first inning. He retired 13 straight batters, pitched a five-hitter and struck out four. Suslowicz entered with one on and one out in the seventh. He protected the one-run lead by striking out two.

After Foxboro went up 2-0, Morrisette tied it with a two-run rally. McDonald singled, stole second and third and scored on a single by Shepherd. Shepherd stole second and third, and scored on a Keohane sacrifice fly.

Morrisette won it in the sixth with a two-out rally. Shepherd walked, stole second and scored on singles by Salvucci and Keohane.

Against Holbrook, Ryan threw his second straight one-hitter and struck out three.

Salvucci had two hits, two stolen bases and an RBI. Keohane went 2-3 with two steals and a run scored. Shepherd had a hit, two stolen bases and scored twice. Yau added an RBI double and McDonald walked twice and stole three bases.

Morrisette hosts Holbrook Thursday and Medfield Saturday to finish the regular season.

Quincy Wins Three Games In Senior League Sectionals

By BILL GRIFFIN

They have played together since they were nine years old and they stepped to the threshold of playing for a state championship by taking command of the Senior League sectionals with three straight wins last week.

The Senior League is for players ages 15-16.

Ethan Yau pitched a two hitter and struck out three to lead Quincy past Seekonk, 11-1. Aaron Clancy fanned eight while Sean Holleran and Brendan McDonald added clutch hits for RBI in a 2-0 win over Oxford.

Yau was the winning pitcher again with four-hitter and Quincy exploded for six runs in the third en route to an 11-1 over Brookfield, a team from Brockton.

Quincy is undefeated in the double-elimination sectionals and will play its next game Wednesday at 4:00.

"They've played together for so long and they know each other well," said coach Rick Beach. "They're friends, pals and it's good to see them playing excellent baseball like this. Against Brookfield, everyone got in the game and that's important."

In the victory over

Seekonk, Yau went the distance, allowing just two hits and fanning three. Quincy took control with six in the first keyed by a three-run double from Holleran and Seekonk never seriously threatened.

Tyler Beach went 2-2 with two runs scored and two stolen bases. Pat Keohane and Bobby Salvucci had a pair of hits while Brian Turner went 1-3. Brendan McDonald was on base three times with a two walks and a hit-by-pitch.

Pitching and defense were the keys to the tight win over Oxford. Keohane made the play of the game in center field. With the score tied 0-0, the bases loaded and one out, Keohane raced into the right-center gap to run down a long fly ball.

He was running with his back facing away from the plate. He stopped, turned and fired a strike to home to nail the runner and end the inning on an 8-2 double play.

"It was a great play. What made it special is Pat was running away from the plate when he made the catch. He was going in the opposite direction from where he had to throw," said Beach.

Clancy allowed just three hits in the first 5 1/3 innings for Quincy against Oxford. Dave Suslowicz entered in relief to get the final five outs. He struck out two and retired five straight batters.

Quincy scored singletons in the second and third. In the second Josh Helfrich walked and moved along on a single by Troy Shepherd. Holleran delivered an RBI single for a 1-0 lead.

In the third, Keohane walked and stole second. He took third on a single by Suslowicz and scored on a hit by McDonald. McDonald had two hits in the game.

Yau used a good fastball to strike out three and earn the win against Brookfield. After Brookfield went up 1-0 on an unearned run. Salvucci, McDonald and Turner each drove in two runs in Quincy's third-inning rally.

Beach went 2-2 with two walks, two stolen bases and two runs scored. Salvucci had two hits and scored two runs while McDonald went 2-3 with two RBI. Clancy had a hit and an RBI.

"We played excellent defense. We made just one error and we made all the plays behind Ethan," said Beach.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor

GIVE YOURSELF A HEALTHY CHANCE

Two primary goals of chiropractic treatment are to unleash the body's natural healing powers and maintain good health. The chiropractor accomplishes these goals by correcting misalignments in the spine that may be restricting nerves and interfering with nerve energy. Once this energy is allowed to flow unimpeded, it is free to exert its considerable influence on the many organs and tissues that rely on it to function properly. Among these organs are the components of the immune system, including the thymus gland, which is essential to immunity. With the brain, nervous system, immune system, and endocrine system working in concert and at top efficiency, germs and viruses face an uphill battle in wresting control of health away from the body.

The conditions which doctors of chiropractic address are as varied and as vast as the nervous system itself. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, our goal is not merely to bring relief to your pain, but to identify and correct the source of it as well. A continuing schedule of regular chiropractic checkups can help detect, correct, and maintain optimum spinal and nervous system function. We welcome you to call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we are ready to work with you to alleviate your discomfort and restore you to better health as quickly as possible. We offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Inappropriate use of antibiotics has led to the development of resistant strains of bacteria that are increasingly difficult to kill. Chiropractic takes a drugless approach toward promoting health.

New Look, New Attitude For Houghs Neck Manets

By SEAN HALPIN

The Houghs Neck Manets have a long and storied tradition on Quincy's southern peninsula. The Manets began this tradition in 1951, as a founding member of the Quincy Youth Football League. Since then, the Manets have been the football & cheerleading outlet for children of seaside communities of Houghs Neck, Germantown, Adams Shore and Merrymount for over 62 years.

This past winter, the Manets went under new management. Local businessman and Houghs Neck native, Bill Luggelle was selected by the QYFL Board to be the new Franchise Holder of the Manets. Luggelle inherited a team that was plagued by low numbers in past two seasons. Immediately, he set his sites on rebuilding the Hough Neck Franchise.

His first move: a new logo. The Manets originally took its name from the Quincy Manets, a minor-league football team of the 1950's. The term "Manet" appears on The City of Quincy's Seal, it is defined as: "a small, seaside, inlet community." With the Manets roots to the sea, it was suggested that the Franchise adopt a Pirate/Raider type of theme.

Luggelle contacted local graphic designer and former Manet player, Thomas Fratolillo and charged him with the task. He retained the Manets traditional black and gold colors and came up with the new "Jolly Roger" flag logo with a skull and two anchors crossed behind it. Fratolillo also created the Quincy Youth Football League crest back in 2011.

Luggelle's next move: hire a new head coach. He found what he was looking for in former Manet, Mark Giordani. Giordani, a 1978 graduate of Quincy High School, is regarded as one on the best athletes to come out of Quincy. After a storied career at QHS, Giordani went on to star at the University of New Haven, which landed him a try-out with Bill Parcells' New York Giants in 1983. Giordani went on to coach at his alma mater QHS and even had a previous stint as coach of the Manets during the 1990's. Rounding off Giordani's coaching staff will be Mike Flavin, Greg Santoro, Mike Cugini, Kevin Gomez, Jose Diaz and Roger Palermo.

The Manets most recent move: new Equipment. After receiving some generous donations from three local foundations held in memory of former Manets, Dan Morrill, Bill Dunn and Justin Dilks, the Manets were able to make some huge infrastructure improvements. Luggelle ordered 60 new "top of the line" helmets by Schutt DNA. These helmets feature a metallic black paint scheme that showcases the new Manets logo. The Manets franchise also made a purchase of 80 new sets of custom football jerseys with tackle twill numbers and new cheerleading uniforms.

The Manets kick off the new era on Aug. 1st with preseason practice at LaBrecque Field in Houghs Neck and the first game will be QYFL Jamboree on Aug. 29th at Veterans Stadium. The Manet have had a great turnout of players and cheerleaders at recent sign-ups but, are still looking for children age 6-14 entering grades 1st-8th for all levels of play.

The HN Manets feature three levels of tackle football, three levels of cheerleading and two levels of flag football (grades 1st-4th).

To join the Manets, contact Bill Luggelle at (617) 835-1681 or email at beantownbizz@yahoo.com.

For more information on the Manets or other QYFL teams check their websites: www.manetsfootball.com or www.quincyouthfootball.com.

Wollaston Battles In Sr. Babe Ruth Sectionals

By BILL GRIFFIN

If a pitcher ever deserved to win a baseball game, it was Dillon Darcy in the first round of the State Senior Babe Ruth Sectionals.

Darcy thought and battled his way through a 137-pitch marathon and Mike Pugsley rewarded him with a victory by drilling a single to drive home the winning run and give Wollaston an 8-3 win over Merrimack Valley in nine innings at Boston College High Saturday.

The drama continued in Saturday's second game. Tyler Braun had a game players dream about, firing a complete-game four hitter and driving in the winning run with two out in the seventh inning for a 2-1 decision over Cape Cod and a berth in the championship game.

With the score tied 1-1 against Cape Cod, Ben Martin singled, and Kevin Mullin reached on a fielders choice which erased Martin. Mullin advanced on a swinging bunt by Bobby Freeman and scored when Braun lined a two-out shot to right to win the game.

Cape Cod came back with a 7-2 win over Wollaston Sunday in the double-elimination sectionals. The third and deciding game between Wollaston (12-4) and Cape Cod will be played Wednesday at 5:30 at South Boston. The winner of that game will advance to the regionals the week of July 27.

"Dillon pitched great, as gutsy a game as I've seen," said coach Steve Reardon of the sectional opener. "We put him in a lot of tough spots, but he gave us the clutch pitch when we needed it."

Darcy gave seven hits, struck out 13 and walked just one. All three runs were unearned. It was no accident. He had a plan. He lived on the outside corner with an assortment of breaking balls thrown from a mixture of angles which bewildered Merrimack Valley all day. Just when they leaned over to get at the off-speed stuff, Darcy straightened them up and kept them honest with a good fastball.

"We started with the curve in the first two innings and just stayed with it because it worked," said Darcy.

"He had them off balance, and his fastball was good as well," added Reardon.

He was at his best with men on base. He stranded 10 and when there was a big pitch to be made, he made it. His best was in the fifth when Merrimack loaded the bases with one out. Darcy threw quality strikes and escaped on a popup and a ground ball. His control of his curveball, especially with men on base, was exceptional.

"I'm tired. I couldn't have pitched another inning," he said. "I just tried not to stress out with men on and worked on making each pitch a good one."

Wollaston was two outs away from a 3-2 win in regulation when Merrimack pushed across an unearned run in the seventh to tie it at 3-3 and force extra innings.

"We won our first nine straight this year and I think we forgot how to come back. We remembered today," said Reardon.

Darcy started the ninth with a single and walks to Tyler Braun and Padraig Geaney loaded the bases. Enter Mr. Pugsley. He ripped a shot past third for his third hit of the game and a 4-3 lead. Johnny Marsinelli and Chris Kerin walked to force in runs. Matt Kerin roped a single for two more to make the final 8-3.

"We needed Pugsley's bat, so we moved him up to the second spot, and today, he hit the ball well," said Reardon.

Pugsley had a run scored and an RBI to go with three hits. Bill Campbell had two hits, an RBI and and three saving scoops defensively at first base. Marsinelli and Matt Kerin each had a hit and two RBI. Chris Kerin had a single and RBI while Kevin Mullin and Evan Feinberg (a key pinch hit) each had a single and a run scored.

Geaney scored twice and made a terrific throw from left field to nail a runner at third and halt a rally in the eighth. Darcy and Braun each scored runs.

"What I liked best was our resilience and patience," said Reardon. "We came back after they tied it in the seventh. The key was we laid off the high fastball in the ninth. We had been swing-

On Monday, July 8, at approximately 5:05 p.m., Officer Dave Cooper was dispatched to Mt. Vernon Street for a motor vehicle hit and run accident that just occurred.

Upon arrival, the Officer interviewed the victim, who stated that she heard a collision, ran outside and saw a white Ford Focus station wagon drive away after striking her parked vehicle. She said that she yelled at the male driver to stop, which he did briefly, then fled. The victim tried to get in her vehicle and go after the vehicle in question but was unable to locate him. At the accident scene, Officer Cooper located a side mirror from the suspect's vehicle. The information of the suspect vehicle was given out to all units. Approximately 15 minutes later, Officer Mark Smith was dispatched to the area of Brooks Street for a disorder. While en route, the Officer learned from the Dispatcher that a male suspect exited a vehicle and threw a flashlight at the caller/victim. Upon arrival, the Officer observed a white Ford Focus station wagon with a flat tire (passenger side) and damage along the passenger side of the vehicle – including a missing side mirror. Officer Smith notified Officer Cooper of his findings. Officer Smith then interviewed the victim, who said that he observed the aforementioned vehicle with a flat tire on Brooks Street so he went up to the driver and told him. The suspect/driver angrily replied, "F@#$ you – were you born in Quincy?" The victim said that he was just trying to help out the driver and was not looking for any trouble. The driver then moved the vehicle to Safford Street and stopped as the victim walked away.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

At this time, the victim stated that the driver/suspect exited his vehicle and started walking towards him. The victim saw that the suspect/driver had something behind his back. The suspect/driver followed him onto Farrington Street and then into the victim's driveway, where he confronted the victim and removed a black flashlight from behind his back and threw it at the victim. The victim was able to block the flashlight with his left hand. The suspect then yelled out, "You're going to burn n@##$%", which was odd since the victim was not black! Officer Smith recovered the flashlight as evidence and then patrolled the area in search of the suspect, believing that the vehicle could not get very far with a flat tire. Within the half hour, Officer Smith was able to locate the suspect vehicle at the corner of Brooks Street and Safford Street. The Officer saw a male sitting in the driver's seat. As the Officer reached the driver side window, the driver turned and looked at him. Officer Smith immediately observed a fillet knife on the driver's lap, so he ordered the suspect out of the car and then handcuffed him for Officer safety.

The suspect reeked of alcoholic beverage, was unsteady on his feet, had bloodshot eyes and appeared to be extremely intoxicated. When asked his name, the suspect said,

"I plead the fifth." The victim, who was nearby, approached and confirmed the identity of the suspect, strongly stating, "That is him, that's definitely him." At this time, Officer Smith placed the suspect under arrest. A search of the vehicle uncovered a pill bottle with marijuana, 8 Clonazepam and 1 Vicodin pill inside. The suspect, a 44 year old Marshfield resident, was charged with, "Assault and Battery with a Dangerous Weapon (flashlight), two counts of Possession Class C Drug and Leaving the Scene of an Accident with Property Damage."

Nice Work!

New Workers Welcome To Social Security

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Welcome to the workforce, new workers! Whether you're beginning the career of a lifetime or just earning some extra money for the school year to come, there is one question that is likely to hit you when you see your first pay stub: "What is the FICA, and why is my paycheck less because of it?"

Generally, employers are required to withhold Social Security and Medicare tax from a worker's paycheck. Your employer matches the amounts you pay in Social Security and Medicare taxes. Usually the money we withhold is referred to as "Social Security taxes" on the employee's payroll statement. Sometimes the deduction is labeled as "FICA taxes," which stands for Federal Insurance Contributions Act, and sometimes OASDI, or Old Age Survivor and Disability Insurance. Name aside, what's important is how that money is being used, and what's in it for you down the road.

The taxes you pay now translate to a lifetime of protection, when you eventually retire or if you become disabled. If you die, your dependent children and spouse may be able to receive survivors benefits based on your work. Today you probably have family members — grandparents, for example — who already enjoy Social Security benefits that your Social Security taxes help provide.

You may be a long way from retirement now, so you may find it hard to appreciate the value of benefits that could be 40 or 50 years away. But consider that your Social Security taxes could pay off sooner than you think. Social Security provides valuable disability benefits — and studies show that a 20-year-old has about a three in 10 chance of becoming disabled sometime before reaching retirement age.

Don't be tempted if you're offered a job "under the table" or "off the books." If you work for any employer who pays you cash, you're likely not getting Social Security credit for the work you're doing and potentially missing out on future benefits.

Want to learn more about Social Security and what it means to young workers? If so, we invite you to enjoy an online video: Social Security 101: What's In It For Me? The webcast will fill you in on the details you should know to get the most out of Social Security. Check it out at www.socialsecurity.gov/webinars/social_security_101.html.

Here's another tip: open a my Social Security account so that you can access your Social Security Statement. That will allow you to make sure your earnings are recorded properly each year — and you can get estimates of what your future benefits may be. You can easily open a my Social Security account at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Nine-year-old Shane McLaughlin became firefighter for a day at the Wollaston Fire Station last Friday, July 19th, after he generously, and kind-heartedly used his allowance money to buy two roses, one for fallen firefighter John Austin and one for his son John William Austin, placing them in memory of Austin at the corner of Piermont St. and Elmwood Ave. in front of the sign that says the island is maintained by the Quincy Fire Fighters Local 792.

"I started doing acts of random kindness at the beginning of the year because I wanted to start doing good things for people," said McLaughlin. "I want to be a firefighter

Number Of Visitors Up Over Last Year

Another Strong Tourism Season

By SCOTT JACKSON

Tourism remains strong in the city, driven by an interest in all things Adams.

The Adams National Historical Park - which includes both the Old House at Peace field, also known as the Adams Mansion, and the birthplaces of John and John Quincy Adams - has seen more visitors this year compared to last year. The park, which opened for the season on April 19, had 148,788 visitors through June of this year, compared to 147,567 visitors over the same time frame in June 2012, according to Caroline Keinath, the park's deputy superintendent.

Marianne Peak, the park's superintendent, was upbeat of the increase in visitation.

"I think it's the busiest year ever. It just seems constant and dynamic. People are enjoying the 'Enduring Legacy' film," Peak said, referring to the 27-minute welcome video, which features the voices of Hollywood stars including Laura Linney, Tom Hanks, and Paul Giamatti. "People are spending more time here. We've been doubling up our tours."

Keinath said the park continues to receive visitors because of the publicity the Adams family has received about ways to promote and sustain new growth in our city," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "The Chamber of Commerce and ENC deserve great credit for this exciting initiative, and I am thrilled that the City of Quincy will be a partner."

The 12,500 square-foot facility will become home to the Quincy Center for Innovation (QCI). The QCI will provide an inexpensive and flexible office environment with a variety of support services to assist start-up companies and aspiring entrepreneurs. The innovative space will be the ideal environment for co-working and collaboration, supporting start-ups and early phase companies.

A variety of events, education, programs and one-on-one mentoring will be made available, as well as access to an extensive network of industry experts providing assistance as these companies grow and expand.

"As we became immersed in our efforts to attract bio-tech and life science companies to Quincy, we learned that an innovation center is often the breeding ground for young entrepreneurs in many of the emerging industries thriving throughout the state whom we hope to attract," said

24-Hour Operation Through End Of September 3rd Shift Starts Monday For FR Bridge Project

Beginning the week of July 29, a third shift will be added to the Fore River Bridge replacement project.

The third shift will run from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. putting the project into 24-hour operation. A third shift is being introduced as a result of slower-than expected drilled shaft production at the Weymouth tower location combined with engineering requirements regarding how long each drilled shaft can be left unfinished, that is completely excavated, but without concrete.

To maintain shaft integrity and safely complete this important phase of construction, the best course of action is to introduce a third shift to allow work to continue uninterrupted, according to the state Department of Transportation.

It is anticipated that the current third shift will last until approximately the end of September.

Work during the third shift will consist of operating the recirculating drill in the drilled shafts set in the bed of the Fore River. The drill will be situated on the temporary work trestle extending from the Weymouth bank of the river. No other work is scheduled for the third shift and as such, noise levels will be below what abutters experience during

Mariano Visits QCAP's Head Start Early Learning Center

House Majority Leader Ronald Mariano recently visited Quincy Community Action Programs' (QCAP) Head Start Early Learning Center. Leader Mariano toured the newly renovated school, which serves low-income children ages birth to five and their families.

"Leader Mariano has been a longtime champion of Head Start and the value of early education and care to children and families," said Beth Ann Stollo, QCAP's Executive Director. "We are honored that Leader Mariano joined us to take part in some of the positive initiatives that we are doing at Head Start."

A former educator and Quincy School Committee member, Leader Mariano engaged with Head Start parents and Policy Council members, speaking about the importance of parent involvement throughout their children's school years. He then led a preschool classroom in a learning activity, reading the classic "Brown Bear, Brown Bear, What Do You See?" by Eric Carle and Bill Martin, Jr.

Leader Mariano was joined by Rosemary & Archie Wahlberg, Barbara Morris, a QCAP Board Member who represents Quincy Point where the school is located, Head Start Policy Council parents Taina Acevedo and Denise Graziano, and Head Start administrators, teachers, and students.

QCAP's Head Start and Early Head Start is a comprehensive early childhood education and care program. Dedicated to Rosemary & Archie Wahlberg, the state-of-the-art school offers 32,000 square feet of space with the capacity to serve 240 toddlers and preschoolers in part-day and full-day programs. It has 16 classrooms, parent and community meeting rooms, a commercial kitchen, space for physical, occupational, and mental health therapy, an outdoor playground, and a health examination room in which a dentist provides on-site services, such as cleanings and fillings.

Burke Recalls DeSalvo's Promise

It took nearly 50 years to conclusively determine that Albert DeSalvo killed the final victim of the so-called Boston Strangler after DNA tests results last week conclusively matched DeSalvo with the murder of a 19-year-old Boston woman in January, 1964.

However, there is still some debate whether DeSalvo was the man responsible for murdering 10 other women during a two-year killing spree in the Boston area from January 1962 to January 1964. The criminal had confessed to being the Boston Strangler but later recanted.

But after DNA matched DeSalvo to the last victim, Mary Sullivan, some law enforcement officials including state Attorney General Martha Coakley believe DeSalvo "was most likely" the Boston Strangler.

One local attorney who is confident DeSalvo was indeed the Boston Strangler is former Norfolk County Dist. Atty. George Burke. News of DeSalvo and the DNA match last week rekindled a moment in Burke's life that he will never forget.

The year was 1970 and DeSalvo was in the third year of a life sentence in Walpole State Prison for committing a series of rapes unrelated to the Boston Strangler killings.

One day 43 years ago, Burke was heading to Walpole State Prison on another matter but notified prison officials that he wanted to meet with DeSalvo. He was accompanied by John Regan, head of the State Police Unit assigned to the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office.

Burke said his office had information that DeSalvo was trying to deal drugs inside the maximum security prison. He and Regan told prison officials that they wanted to sit down with DeSalvo in a private room.

"It was just the three of us: Albert DeSalvo, John Regan and myself. We told DeSalvo that we had information that he was dealing drugs in prison," Burke recalled.

"I told Albert that if he didn't stop dealing drugs, we would transfer him out of Walpole to Bridgewater State Hospital for the criminally insane."

Burke says DeSalvo essentially admitted that he was trying to enter the prison's drug trade but he promised the district attorney that he would stop if they kept him at Walpole State Prison.

"Do we have a deal?" DeSalvo asked Burke, extending his arm to shake hands with the district attorney.

And Burke replied, "Yes, we have a deal."

They shook hands and DeSalvo then got up from the table. Before leaving the room, Burke asked him why he didn't want to be transferred to Bridgewater.

DeSalvo replied, "Oh, Mr. D.A., I have a reputation to uphold. If you transfer me to Bridgewater, they'll think I'm crazy."

Before the meeting was over, Burke also told DeSalvo that if got involved in the prison drug trade, he would be transferred from Walpole.

And for about three years, it appeared DeSalvo had made good on that promise.

Then, on the early morning of Nov. 25, 1973, Burke was awakened by a phone call around 3 or 4 a.m. It was Walpole prison officials informing him that the 42-year-old DeSalvo was found dead in his cell. He had been stabbed to death.

Burke says DeSalvo was killed because he went back on his word and decided to cut himself back into prison drug-trade.

"My first reaction to the news of DeSalvo's death was 'Oh my God. If he had kept his promise to me, he would still be alive,' Burke said. "They told me he was cutting himself back into the prison drug trade and that's why he was stabbed to death."

Burke indicted three inmates in the stabbing death of Albert DeSalvo but none were convicted. "Like most prison murders, no one will help you and no want wants to testify," Burke said.

Back then, there was some doubt that DeSalvo was the Boston Strangler. But the recent DNA development proves DeSalvo killed the final victim of the Boston Strangler and strongly suggests he was one of the state's most notorious serial killers.

There's no doubt in Burke's mind that DeSalvo was indeed the Boston Strangler.

"I always thought he was the Boston Strangler," Burke says. "I know F. Lee Bailey — DeSalvo's attorney — and I think F. Lee was convinced, too."

Burke says he has no regrets about not transferring DeSalvo from Walpole to Bridgewater State Hospital.

"I think Walpole was a better place for DeSalvo. If he had kept his promise to me, he'd probably still be alive today."

THE CITY'S ELECTION clock is ticking. Next Tuesday — July 30 — is the deadline for candidates to submit nomination papers for this fall's city election.

Here are the candidates who had filed as of press time Tuesday:

• Incumbent Mayor Thomas Koch, 249 Newbury Ave.

• Councillor at-Large: incumbents Michael McFarland, 140 Summit Ave., Douglas Gutro, 230 Marlboro St. and Joe Finn, 15 Williams St.

• Ward 2 Councillor: incumbent Brad Croall, 53 Summer St.

• Ward 3 Councillor: incumbent Kevin Coughlin, 19 Small St.

• Ward 4 Councillor: incumbent Brian Palmucci, 138 Willard S. and challenger Michael Healy, 44 Stedman St.

• Ward 5 Councillor: incumbent Kirsten Hughes, 116 Willow Ave.

• Ward 6 Councillor: incumbent Brian McNamee, 133 Commander Shea Blvd.

• School Committee: incumbent Emily Lebo, 324 Highland Ave., incumbent Barbara Isola, 34 Randlett St. and challenger Noel DiBona, 19 Winthrop Park.

Those who have taken out nomination papers but had not returned them as of press time Tuesday:

• Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, 236 Rock Island Rd.

• School Committeewoman Anne Mahoney, 12 Ferriter St.

• Jimmy Liang, 89 Glover Ave. Liang did not declare what seat he was interested in running for when he took papers out.

Also appearing on this fall's ballot will be a binding referendum question that asks voters whether they support changing the term of mayor from 2 years to 4 years. Proponents of the citizens initiative petition — led by the Quincy Chamber of Commerce — have submitted the required signatures to appear on the Nov. 5 ballot.

According to the Quincy Election Department, 2,809 certified signatures were submitted — about 100 more than the 2,700 required to place the question on the ballot.

Another question — this one a non-binding "survey" — could also be on the ballot this fall.

This survey would ask voters whether they support consolidating Quincy and North Quincy High Schools to one high school with two campuses. Grades 9 and 10 would attend the North Quincy campus and Grades 11 and 12 would attend the Quincy campus.

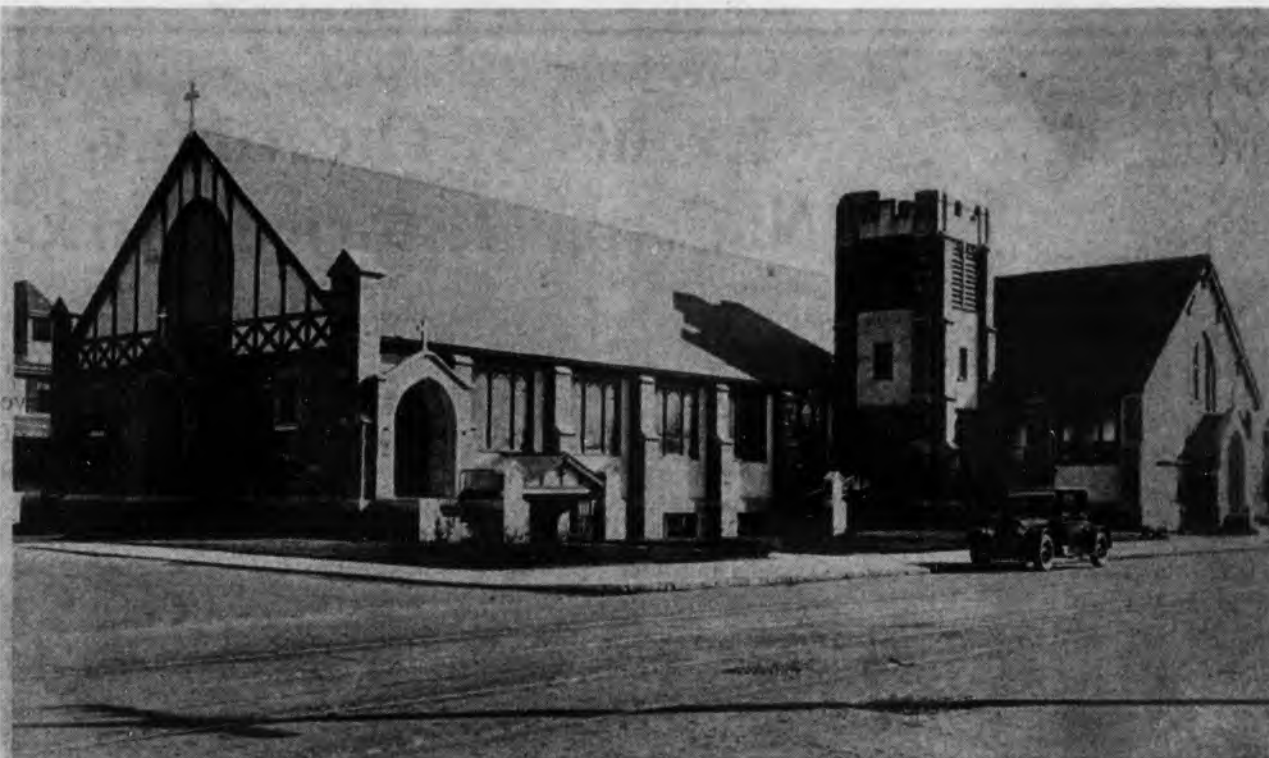

The non-binding ballot question is coordinated by School Committeeman Paul Bregoli.

As of Monday, some 1,512 signatures had been certified with others submitted and in the process of being certified. About 2,700 signatures are required to place the question on the ballot.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1924 postcard view of the old Sacred Heart Church just after it was built on the corner of Glover Avenue and Hancock Street in Norfolk Downs. In January 1948, just minutes after an arson fire began in the mostly wooden building, it was completely destroyed in an explosion caused by super heated air that formed inside of the church. Flames engulfed the entire building so rapidly that firefighters had no chance of saving it. In less than two years a new building was erected and in December 1949 the present church was dedicated. The new church resembles the old except it was made mostly of granite. The church began in 1878 as a mission church of Saint John's Parish in Quincy Center. They used a small wooden chapel on the site of today's Hess Gas station on Hancock Street. With the significant growth of the Catholic population in North Quincy, it became a separate parish 25 years later. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

City Wins First Round Against Massport

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy won the first round of a legal battle against Massport over jet noise after a Suffolk Superior Court judge ordered the agency to appear at a hearing to show cause why it should not be enjoined from recommending takeoffs from runway 22.

Aircraft taking off from that runway had previously flown over South Boston and Dorchester, but Massport altered the takeoff pattern after complaints from residents in those neighborhoods. The new patterns put the flights over Squantum and North Quincy, prompting residents to protest the noise.

Two weeks prior to the suit, Massport officials told Quincy legislators they would continue to recommend the flight pattern over the city for at least six months.

Mayor and Senator Arthur Tobin said the ruling by Superior Court Judge Joseph Ford, which gave Massport only two days to prepare for the hearing, was a victory for the city.

"The biggest thing is that we are getting Massport to appear before the bar," Tobin said. "It means that Judge Ford found that our complaints had a basis in fact."

In addition to the request for the injunction, Quincy also sought $10 million in compensation for loss in property values caused by the jet noise and the release of environmental impact reports for any recommended alteration flight patterns for runways 4 and 22, among other demands.

The suit was filed by Assistant City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington. He noted that Massport had once been sued before, by the City of Boston, after the agency failed to file an impact statement regarding construction of runway 22.

"Massport contended that it was not required to file an impact statement," Harrington said. "The Supreme Judicial Court said it was."

"It's the same thing here, only now Massport is giving another reason for not filing. We are confident the court will tell them the same thing again."

Relay For Life Committee Thanks Quincy Community

On behalf of the 2013 Relay For Life of Quincy planning committee, we want to thank the entire Quincy community for the incredible support we have received as a part of our second annual event at Pageant Field. By bringing together businesses, departments, students, and groups of friends, over 300 people on 30 teams raised over $107,000 for the American Cancer Society this year, far exceeding the goals of our event.

These funds will be used to provide education programs to those in the community, advocacy for cancer research, services to cancer patients within Quincy currently battling this disease, and allow researchers to progress towards the end of cancer as we know it.

We are beyond grateful for the many cancer survivors that allowed us to celebrate them by attending this year's Relay. You are the reason we continue to push to finish the fight and end the battle against cancer.

Thank you to the many Quincy departments for their continued support of our event. From Park's and Recreation for providing us with Pageant Field for our event to The City of Quincy. Thank you to the many businesses for providing food for our event's participants, we appreciate all that have assisted us in putting on a great event year after year.

A special thanks to Mayor Koch and Sandra McGunigle Director, Public Relations & Marketing, Quincy Medical Center for their attendance at our event and remarks during our opening ceremony. This was Quincy Medical Centers 2nd year coming in as a Gold Sponsor for the event.

We'd also like to thank this year's Relay planning committee- 13 dedicated community volunteers that donated their time to make Relay the fun all-night fundraising event that it is! Relay For Life is the largest nonprofit fundraiser in the world, we wouldn't be able to do it without each and every one of you.

Jean's Homemade Cracker Jacks

Who doesn't like Cracker Jacks- and the prizes in the box? I was visiting my brother Phil, and his daughter Jean had just made her own from scratch that tasted even better than the original.

The secret ingredient is they are made with molasses, which gives them such a tasty treat. The prize in this batch is the wonderful flavor.

HOMEMADE CRACKER JACKS

- 3 quarts of popped popcorn
- 1- cup molasses
- ½ cup firmly packed dark or light brown sugar
- 1 stick butter (she used 8 tablespoons Olivio)
- 1- teaspoon vanilla
- ¾ teaspoon baking soda

Finnish Buttermilk Cake

I used to have a neighbor who was Finnish, and who made the most delicious tasting pastries ever. And several years ago, one could find a Finnish bakery - but sadly at least around here, they have disappeared.

One day recently, I was flipping through a cookbook and found a recipe for Finnish buttermilk cake. It was a nice surprise to find it, and even nicer when I tried it.

FINNISH BUTTERMILK CAKE

- 2 ½ cups flour
- 1 ½ cups sugar

First, pop the popcorn. Preheat oven to 250 degrees. Use a large roasting pan to place the popped corn. Combine the molasses and sugar in a saucepan. Stir over medium-high heat until sugar is dissolved. Add the vanilla and butter, and boil at medium heat. Without stirring for five minutes, remove from heat and quickly stir in the baking soda, mix fast and well.

Immediately pour molasses mixture over the popcorn and stir to coat. When evenly coated bake in the oven and stir every 15 minutes for one hour.

When popcorn has cooked for the hour, place onto wax paper or aluminum foil, and let cool.

They store well in plastic food storage bags.

- 1 ½ teaspoons baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1- teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon cloves
- 1 ½ cups buttermilk
- ½ cup melted butter

Sift together flour, sugar, baking soda, baking powder, salt and spices into a mixing bowl. Stir in the buttermilk and mix well.

Stir in the melted butter and mix well again. Pour into a greased and sugared 9- inch tube pan. Bake in a 350- degree oven for one hour. (This cake has no eggs.)

Following Daniel Knell's Resignation

Donna Rubinate Named QMC Interim President

By SCOTT JACKSON

This week marked the first full week on the job for interim Quincy Medical Center President Donna Rubinate following the sudden resignation of Daniel Knell.

Knell, who was named head of the hospital in November 2011, announced his decision to step down in a memo to Quincy Medical Center employees last Thursday. His final three months at the hospital were tumultuous ones that saw the hospital's nurses go on strike and a temporary shut-down of a psychiatric unit. In the memo, Knell said he chose to resign following conversations with the chairman of Steward Health Care — QMC's owners — about recent incidents at the hospital.

"For almost two years I have been honored to serve as the president of our hospital. We have accomplished much during that time in re-establishing ourselves as a vital health care resource to the community of Quincy and I am confident our team will continue this momentum," Knell said in the memo.

"Over the last few months, however, several incidents have ignited public debate concerning the leadership of our hospital. After discussing these events with Steward's chairman and charting the most appropriate ate path for the future we decided that it would be in the best interest of Quincy Medical Center for me to step down as president."

Though Knell did not refer to any incident in particular, Quincy Medical Center's nurses went on strike over 24 hours between April 11 and 12 after contract talks between the two sides failed. The union and management signed a new contract last month.

Further controversy followed when the state Department of Mental Health ordered the hospital's Geriatric Psychiatric Unit to stop accepting new patients for a week following a surprise inspection on May 23.

Amanda Donohue On Dean's List At UVM

Amanda J. Donohue of Quincy has been named to the Dean's List for the spring semester at the University of Vermont in Burlington, VT.

During that inspection, state officials found squalid conditions and an inattentive staff.

Knell, a nurse who worked as the CEO of two Florida hospitals prior to his tenure at Quincy Medical Center, was replaced on an interim basis by Rubinate, the COO of Good Samaritan Medical Center in Brockton, a hospital also owned by Steward.

"On an interim basis, I will be replaced by Donna Rubinate, currently the chief operating officer of Good Samaritan Medical Center," Knell said. "Donna is a highly experienced and accomplished nurse executive. I am leaving you in very capable hands."

In his statement Knell also thanked Quincy Medical Center's employees.

"I have treasured serving as your President and have made many new friends here at the hospital and in the community," he said. "You have built a solid foundation from which Quincy Medical Center can fulfill its mission to bring world class health care to the citizens of Quincy."

Donohue is a senior Secondary Education Social Services major in the College of Education & Social Services.

Morrissey Eyes Return To Work Monday

D.A. Recuperating After Multi-Car Crash

By SCOTT JACKSON

Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey said Tuesday that he has received medical clearance to return to work and plans to do so next Monday after being hospitalized following a four-car crash in Milton.

"My doctor gave me the okay to return to the office with some restrictions and I intend to do so on Monday, July 29th," Morrissey, a former Quincy legislator and state senator, said in a statement.

The district attorney also faces a court magistrate hearing on Aug. 19 in Quincy District Court after being cited by Milton Police for causing the crash, which happened just before 6 p.m. on July 16 on Centre Street in Milton. At the hearing Morrissey will be represented by Tony Campo, his former law partner. He plans to hand over medical and other records at the hearing.

"Medical records and other pertinent documentation will be presented to the clerk magistrate at that time," Morrissey said.

In a previous statement, issued July 18, Morrissey said he began to sweat and felt lightheaded shortly before the collision after completing a series of phone calls on a hands free device while driving. He had no recollection of the accident itself.

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

"On Tuesday, July 16, 2013, I left my office in Canton and was traveling to my home in Quincy," Morrissey said. "While traveling on Centre Street in Milton, I was involved in a multi-car accident."

"Prior to the accident, I had made a series of phone calls on my hands free wireless telephone. The last call I made was to order a pizza. Shortly after that last telephone call, I was perspiring and felt lightheaded and the next thing I recall is being outside of my car, which was stopped across two lanes of traffic."

"At the time of the accident, I did not know what happened. Individuals at the scene told me my car crossed over the centerline causing the accident. I have no reason to dispute that."

The day after the crash Milton Police said Morrissey crossed the double-line, striking two cars; a fourth vehicle swerved off the road to avoid a collision.

"At approximately 5:50 pm, Milton Police officers responded to a multi-car accident on Centre Street in Milton," John King, the town's deputy police chief, said. "Upon arrival, officers observed three vehicles in the roadway with body damage, a fourth vehicle was off the roadway in the woods."

"The operator of vehicle # 1 was identified as Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey. He was travelling alone in his vehicle in the eastbound travel lane on Centre Street. He had just left his office in Canton and was traveling to his home in Quincy. For some unknown reason, he crossed the double yellow lines and collided with two other vehicles in the westbound lane. A fourth vehicle swerved to avoid the collision and went off the roadway."

Morrissey was transported to Milton Hospital after the accident and remained there for approximately 24 hours before being released July 17.

"I was transported to Milton Hospital and received treatment until yesterday at 5:30 p.m. when I was discharged," the district attorney said July 18. "My medical records reveal that there was no alcohol in my

Scott, Sean Galvin Receive Rotary Paul Harris Fellow Awards

The Rotary Club of Quincy Charitable Foundation, Inc. honored both Sean Galvin and Scott Galvin with Paul Harris Fellow Awards at their annual Kids Classic Auction 2013 held recently at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

The Paul Harris Fellow Award is the highest honor bestowed on individuals, in recognition of its founder Paul Harris and is The Rotary Foundation's way of expressing its appreciation for substantial contributions to its humanitarian and educational programs and efforts. Rotarians often designate a Paul Harris Fellow as a tribute to a person or persons whose life demonstrates a shared purpose with the objectives of the Rotary Foundation, "Service Above Self." Sean and Scott Galvin exemplify these criteria.

Sean and Scott Galvin of Quincy, joined by their families and parents Judy and Tom Galvin, received this honor in recognition of Quincy Rotary's appreciation for their support over the years of the Kids Classic Auction, attending, promoting and supporting not only through their financial contributions but also with their presence at local Rotary events. Their support throughout the years has enabled this organization to continue in its vast contributions to charities throughout the community and most especially through its scholarship program supporting Quincy high school students. Their community support is also an investment in the ideal of goodwill, peace and understanding.

Their father and Rotarian, City Historian Tom Galvin honored his sons by sharing the history of the importance of this award. Rotary Club of Quincy President Marianne Peak and Dolly Di Pesa, President Elect presented the three emblems of appreciation given to a Paul Harris Fellow — certificate, medallion and pin for their continued commitment to our common goals to support the community of Quincy, world understanding and peace through service.

Sean and Scott Galvin formed Galvin Construction, Inc. in West Quincy some 20 years ago, and are members of several business organizations.

The Rotary Club of Quincy had a very successful annual Kids Classic Auction. Over 200 attendees, including members of the Rotary Club of Quincy, their guests, and friends from the Quincy community were treated to an exciting evening involving a silent auction, dinner, and live auction.

Due to the success of the Kids Classic Auction, the Rotary Club of Quincy was able to raise more than $50,000 for the Rotary Club of Quincy Charitable Foundation. This was the most successful Kids Classic Auction to date. Donations will be used to provide college scholarships to Quincy residents, support local community charities, and contribute to the humanitarian efforts of Rotary International. Among the items that were auctioned off were a whale watch cruise, racing package at F-1 Boston, golf excursions, sports tickets and memorabilia, trips, diamond stud earrings, jewelry, & more.

Three Quincy Point Brothers Reunite, Reminisce

Rod, Ted And Dave Drummond Take A Trip Down Memory Lane

By SCOTT JACKSON

Three brothers who came of age growing up in Quincy Point were recently reunited and spent the day reminiscing about their old neighborhood.

Brothers Rod, Ted, and Dave Drummond – ages 79, 77, and 75, respectively – grew up on South Street near the Fore River Shipyard after moving from Wollaston. Like many other residents of the Point at the time, the shipyard played a central role in their lives. Their parents owned a small mom and pop grocery store – Drummonds – just outside the shipyard's main gate, and all three brothers began their careers working at the shipyard.

Dave began working at the shipyard when he was 12 years old. For a half hour every morning he'd place stickers on the cars of shipyard employees, earning $1 each day. The brothers all enrolled in the Bethlehem Steel Apprentice School when they were old enough. Dave was a carpentry apprentice, but never finished the four-year program. Rod and Ted did finish the program and went on to work as machinists. At the time the shipyard was building nuclear powered vessels, and the elder brothers' work on those ships helped propel them to lucrative careers.

"They were outside machinists and went on to become nuclear engineers building power plants," Dave explained. "In the 1950s Quincy was building nuclear powered subs and if you had nuclear experience you could go all over the world building nuclear power plants. One of my brothers used to lecture people with PhDs. He didn't have a degree but he had the experience."

Dave took a different career path. He was in and out of the shipyard before finally leaving in 1980. After leaving Fore River he authored "The Shipyard, Will It Float?" about life at the yard. Dave now travels the world on cruise ships, giving lectures on topics like the Titanic, Ernest Shackleton's Antarctic expedition, the history of naval aviation, and the history of submarines. He also works at the Naval Air Museum in Pensacola, Florida as a docent.

"As a result of this book I was invited to speak on cruise ships – I've been all over the world," Dave said. "I have 21 different nautical lectures and I've been a docent in the Naval Air Museum in Pensacola, Florida for 19 years. It's the second biggest air museum in the world."

Rod and Dave now live in Alabama on the Gulf of Mexico and Ted lives on Cape Cod in Wareham. Their recent reunion was the first time all three brothers had been in Quincy Point together in six years.

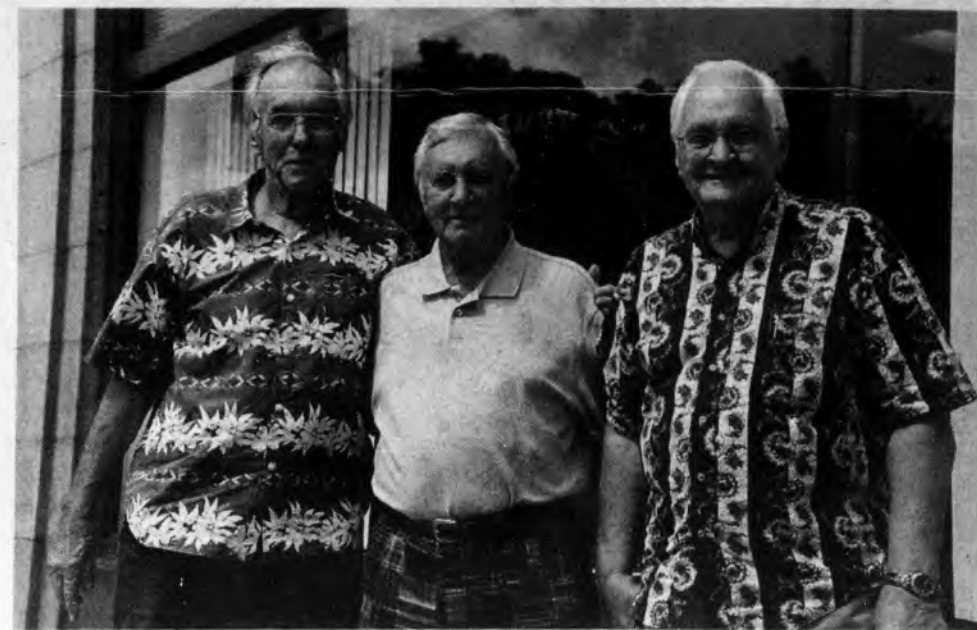

They spent much of the day driving around. The brothers visited their old schools – Quincy Point Junior High, now part of Point Webster Middle School, and the sites that were once the Pollard and Washington Schools.

They also spent about an hour at Avalon Beach, which Dave recalled had a 25-foot by 15-foot raft when they were growing up. He remembered one time when he tried to swim across Town River from the beach and was nearly run down by an oil tanker.

"I almost got run down by an oil tanker going down to the oil place on Southern Artery," Dave said. "We assumed it was going to stop at the oil farm at the bridge. I got out at the middle of the channel and it still kept it coming – I'm looking up at the bow."

Avalon Beach was the brothers' favorite stop on their recent reunion. They also liked driving around Quincy Center trying to recall the different stores that once dotted the square, such the first and second shifts in accordance with the project's noise control plan. The recirculating drill is a stationary piece of equipment and will be isolated to the temporary trestle; therefore motorists moving through the area will not experience traffic impacts. Further, no deliveries will be scheduled during the third shift and no additional trucks are required for the operation of the recirculating drill. Any movements of vehicles to service the recirculating drill will take place within the confines of the site.

For any immediate questions or concerns regarding third shift or any other construction activities at the Fore River Bridge site, call 617-504-2924. This telephone number is operated by a member of the White-Skanska design/build team and is live at all times when construction activities are underway. All comments and questions are logged and reviewed weekly by MassDOT.

Motorists are reminded that during this phase of construction, bridge openings associated with the passage of ships and maintenance of the temporary span will continue as normal.

Replacement of the Fore River Bridge is taking place under the Commonwealth's historic Accelerated Bridge Program, an eight-year, $3 billion effort to repair or replace structurally deficient bridges across Massachusetts.

For more information about this job, contact Donald Dailey, MassDOT Department of Governmental Affairs at donny.dailey@state.ma.us or 857-368-8902. More information about the Fore River Bridge Replacement Project can be found at www.mass.gov/massdot/forriverbridge.

system. Also, witnesses indicated that speed was not a factor.

"Instead, my medical records will show that I suffered a medical episode that caused me to lose consciousness and cross over the center line into the opposite lane of travel. The visible injuries I suffered were to my hand and torso. Fatigue, dehydration and extreme temperatures contributed to my loss of consciousness. On my doctor's advice, I plan to take some time off to recuperate."

Milton Police said two drivers were cited for the crash, though King declined to identify them. Morrissey, however, said that he was cited by the department.

"Immediately after the accident, the Milton Police Department issued me a citation," Morrissey said. "It is my hope that this is a speedy process and my intention is to make my medical records available at that time to appropriate personnel."

Four people, including the district attorney, were injured in the crash. The other three were treated and released at area hospitals that night, according to King. Morrissey wished them a quick recovery, and thanked the first responders on scene.

"I am grateful that the other parties involved in the accident appear to be okay as they were treated and released from the hospital. I wish them a speedy recovery. I am also grateful for the work of the Milton Police, emergency medical personnel and concerned citizens who assisted at the scene," Morrissey said.

"This is an unfortunate accident. I intend to be as transparent as possible in this process," he added.

HAVE SOME FUN!

When it comes to expressing your inner self in terms of jewelry, few pieces provide a better reflection of your personality than a cocktail ring with a gorgeous colored gemstone or two. In fact, the latest trend in cocktail-ring wear involves setting two gorgeous, large stones side by side. As if that were not eye-catching enough, mix two different types of gemstones with two different colors, cuts, and shapes. For instance, pair a prong-set, faceted, and elongated blue topaz next to a smaller amethyst also set in gold prongs. Or, mix a pear-shaped blue topaz with a cabochon peridot. The point of any cocktail ring is to go a bit overboard in terms of both size and style. What woman doesn't want a fabulous cocktail ring for that special occasion? The bold statements our cocktail rings make will leave a lasting impression. Former Union President Retires After 28 Years

Firefighter Ernie Arienti Honored For Dedication To City, Department

By SCOTT JACKSON

Firefighters union President Ernie Arienti, who recently retired after 28 years with the Fire Department, received three citations for his service at a recent City Council meeting.

More than three-dozen firefighters packed the council chamber to watch Arienti, president of the International Association of Firefighters Local 792, receive citations from the City Council, Quincy's State House delegation, and Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey.

The council was the first to honor Arienti. Council President Michael McFarland praised Arienti for being a family man and a mentor to his fellow firefighters.

"Ernie, as you know, has been a public safety official on the City of Quincy for over 28 years. He is a friend to all and a real gentleman. He's a good husband, father, and grandfather and as a firefighter he's been a mentor to all his brother firefighters," McFarland said.

"He's given very generously his own personal time as a union official with Local 792, as an active member of the mutual aid association, and also as a volunteer member of the Quincy Credit Union board, helping fellow firefighters get mortgages and car loans. Above all Ernie is just a good man."

Sen. John Keenan and Rep. Tackey Chan presented a citation to Arienti on behalf of the delegation. Keenan thanked Arienti for taking on the role of union president, on top of his regular duties as a firefighter, and Chan said Arienti was a great resource on pertinent issues in the city.

"A lot of people go to work everyday. They stay late - they may work overtime, they may do that a couple times a week, three times a week. As firefighter Ernie did all that. He went, covered his regular tour, he did overtime," Keenan said. "Beyond that he served as president of the local. As you all know he didn't do it for the money, because there is no money to be had there, and in some ways it is a thankless job. It is a very, very difficult task to represent a firefighter's union in all the ways it has to be represented."

"If I've got something I don't know - particularly about how firefighting works - I call Ernie and he's always very interested in taking my call no matter how odd or interesting the question may be," Chan added. "This is a very important feature. People forget that he's also a great resource on firefighter issues and city issues that we talk about."

Morrissey credited Arienti for mentoring the firefighters the district attorney's office relied upon to convict landlords for manslaughter after a fatal fire in an overcrowded building. Morrissey added that Arienti was one in a long line of Local 792 leaders who helped protect the public pension system.

"The firefighters have for many years carried an awful lot of water to protect the integrity of the public pension system and benefits in general," Morrissey said. "They've always been fair and reasonable in their approach. Having them as leaders served not only the firefighters union but all those people who may be in public service. That's something we owe a debt of gratitude to Ernie as well."

In addition to the citations, Fire Chief Joseph Barron lauded Arienti for being an advocate for Quincy's firefighters and residents alike.

"He is that iconic image of the true firefighter looking out for his brothers and that's really what it's all about," Barron said. "A true advocate for all the benefits firefighters receive today and really an advocate for the safety of the firefighters that are all gathered here today, and safety for the citizens of this city. He'll be sorely missed by me and I wish him all the best in his retirement."

Arienti spoke after the presentations, saying that the firefighters were the ones who truly deserved recognition.

"These are the guys, behind me, that deserve to be recognized. They're who I fight for and it's been an honor and a privilege to represent them over the years," Arienti said. "The City of Quincy is lucky to have the Quincy firefighters they have. These guys behind me give 110 percent 24/7/365. They're always there no matter what it is."

He also pointed out that the firefighters are involved in a number of charities, including raising money for muscular dystrophy and freshman sports at the high schools, assisting with Toys of Tots drive, ringing bells for the Salvation Army, and helping out at the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

"That's the hard work these guys do behind the scenes that's not recognized," Arienti said. "Like I said they're the ones who should be honored up here and it's been an honor and a privilege to represent them over the years."

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

COSMETIC TREATMENT

If you visit the dermatologist to clear up acne or would consider plastic surgery to fix a crooked nose, why not visit the dentist to address problems that prevent you from smiling? Dentists have many means at their disposal to correct chipped, crooked, or discolored teeth that make people so self-conscious that they are embarrassed to smile. Some of these cosmetic procedures are quite fast, simple, and relatively low-cost. For instance, in-office tooth whitening or using trays with professional strength gel at home can often whiten teeth several shades. One-visit tooth bonding involves application of a tooth-colored resin to fill in chips. These are but two of the cosmetic treatments that can bring a smile to your face.

The aesthetic of a bright white smile has entered societal consciousness with a vengeance — making teeth whitening one of the most requested cosmetic dentistry procedures. We want to provide you with the best dental care possible. We genuinely want to help you achieve dental greatness. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street where we use the most modern techniques and equipment. Real Estate Volume Up, Foreclosures Down In Norfolk County

Real estate activity during the first half of 2013 in Norfolk County showed increases in both total volume and average sale price with relative stability or growth across most statistical categories, according to a report released by Register of Deeds Bill O'Donnell.

As of June 30, there has been a two percent increase in the number of documents recorded at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds compared to last year at 96,363 which is 1,726 more documents than the 2012 mid-year total of 94,637.

"Overall real estate activity in Norfolk County during the first six months of 2013 has shown relative stability with some growth in key areas," said O'Donnell.

The total volume of real estate sales in Norfolk County during the first six months of 2013 was $2,688,450,248 which was an 11 percent increase over the 2012 mid-year total, while the average sale price of deeds over $1,000 (both residential and commercial properties) during the first six months of 2013 increased by two percent over last year at $591,258.03.

The number of mortgages recorded on Norfolk County properties at mid-year of 2013 was nearly even with the 2012 total at 21,122 while mortgage indebtedness increased by 12% to $10,028,405,332 from the mid-year 2012 total of $8,943,861,357.

Foreclosure deeds filed during the first half of 2013 decreased sharply by 70 percent from the 2012 mid-year total of 314 to 95 in 2013 while the number of notice to foreclose mortgage filings decreased by 36 percent to 377 filings at mid-year of 2013 compared to 596 filings in 2012.

"Foreclosure deed filings as well as notice to foreclose mortgage filings have been trending downward all year. These decreases could indicate a positive outlook for the state of the real estate market and the economy in here in Norfolk County" said O'Donnell.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

FIREFIGHTER MIKE FITZPATRICK helps Shane McLaughlin pull out the fire hose so he can learn how to use it during his day as an honorary firefighter July 19th.

FIREFIGHTER MARK WHOULEY shows nine-year-old Shane McLaughlin how to operate the ladder on Ladder Truck 2 during his visit to the station last Friday. Learning how to operate the Ladder Truck was just one of many things that McLaughlin did during the few hours he was an honorary firefighter for the day.

QUINCY RESIDENT Shane McLaughlin cleans Engine 4 at Wollaston Fire Station during his time as firefighter for a day last Friday. McLaughlin, who has tried to do one act of random kindness a day since the beginning of the year, placed two roses at the corner of Piermont St. and Elmwood Ave. in front of the sign that says the island is maintained by the Quincy Fire Fighters Local 792, for fallen firefighter John Austin.

and wanted to do something for the firefighter that died. I put two roses on the corner, one for him and one for his son."

McLaughlin started his day around 11 a.m. signing his name to the riding positions board as an honorary firefighter assigned to Engine 4. From there he washed the truck, checked inventory, and tested and learned how to use the hose. He then moved on to learn about Ladder 2, where he checked the inventory, learned to set the jacks and raise the ladder. He also sat inside the truck where he learned how to use the thermal imager which allows firefighters to see fires inside the walls of homes.

After performing the different tasks McLaughlin headed upstairs where he learned about the history of the firehouse and took a tour where he saw where firefighters sleep, eat, and train. He also was shown a wall with pictures of fallen firefighters, one of which was Firefighter John Austin. Lt. Michael Palaza told McLaughlin that not all of the firefighters on the wall were from Quincy and that it doesn't matter where they served.

"This wall shows that it doesn't matter if you're from Quincy — we're all brothers," Palaza explained as he showed McLaughlin the picture of the fallen Worcester firefighters.

For McLaughlin every part of the day was exciting as he learned new things about each truck and asked question after question about each task and tool that was shown to him. His answer on what job he would rather perform when he became a firefighter changed throughout the two hours he was there. He said he loved learning and working the parts of the ladder truck but in the same breath said he also wanted to work on the engine truck.

"My favorite part was learning how to use the ladder. I think that's where I want to work," said McLaughlin. By the end of the day he stated, "I think now I want to work on the Engine truck."

According to Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson they heard about McLaughlin and decided to have him come to the firehouse because he honored Firefighter Austin but there are a number of things he has done that make him worthy of the visit.

"Inviting him here started off because of the flowers and what he did," said Jackson. "Learning more about him and what he has done has just added to why we had him here. He is an unbelievable kid."

Palaza said placing the roses on the island isn't the first time McLaughlin has done something for Quincy firefighters.

"We first experienced the kindness of Shane when he helped us with the CarePacks drive we did for troops overseas and he also played a strong part in the Relay for Life when he made luminary bags for the event," said Lt. Palaza. "Before he came here today we saw on Facebook that he has been doing random acts of kindness all year as his New Year's resolution. He's an inspiration to everyone. He acts the way we all want to act and it was a nice thing he did for our brother."

Throughout the day McLaughlin couldn't wipe the smile off his face and seemed to be enjoying every second as one of the guys. He worked hard in every task handed to him, smile still on his face, and at the end of the day he sat down to lunch and joked around with each firefighter as if he had been there for years. McLaughlin seemed inspired by the men of the Wollaston Firehouse and the heroes that they truly are but it was his actions that had inspired many of the firefighters of Wollaston Fire Station and Quincy.

"What he is doing, and what he did is really inspirational. I have three girls and when I go home tonight I am going to tell them about him and his story and hopefully they will follow in his foot steps," said Firefighter Mike Fitzpatrick. "It is very inspiring and it's the gift of the job to have days like today."

Quincy All Stars All Heart In Cal Ripken Tournament

9-Year-Olds Win Two Games But Bow To Powerful Plymouth

By BILL GRIFFIN

There are teams all over the state which would trade places with Quincy's nine-year old Cal Ripken All Star Team.

Quincy swept to three victories and won the District 3 title. They advanced as one of the best eight clubs and hosted the state tournament. They won two games in the tourney. They played good baseball.

However, powerful Plymouth ended Quincy's ride with a 16-3 victory in the final game of pool play in the state tourney Friday night at Quarry Hills Park.

"There are about 50 Cal Ripken teams who would love to be in our spot," said coach Jim Ross. "I'm proud of the kids. They played with heart just as they did all year."

Quincy and Plymouth were both in the National side of the draw. Two teams from the draw advanced to the semifinals. Plymouth moved on with a 4-0 record. Quincy, Kingston, and Raynham all finished 2-2. In head-to-head games against each other, the three teams were tied at 1-1. Kingston advanced by virtue of the second tie-breaker, fewest runs allowed by the three teams in four games.

"Plymouth is very strong. I think they've lost one game in two years," said Ross whose team defeated Burlington in the tournament opener and also dropped Kingston last week.

Kevin Salmanowich, Coleman Ross, and Jack Nelson had hits for Quincy. Salmanowich, Ross, and Asher Wines scored runs while Nelson had a pair of RBI and Jackson Murphy also added an RBI.

Quincy scored one in the top of the second. Asher Wines and Colm O'Malley walked. The two advanced on a groundball by Ben Wines and scored on a fielders choice by Murphy to cut Plymouth's lead to 7-1.

Quincy added a pair in the third. Salmanowich lined a one-out single to right. Ross followed with a hit and both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Nelson then delivered a single for two runs.

Quincy hit the ball hard on several occasions, but Plymouth played excellent defense. Megan Banci made a diving grab in right off a sinking line drive by Nelson in the first. Center-fielder Matt Murphy hauled in deep fly balls by Zach Galligan in the second and Asher Wines in the third. Plymouth shortstop Alec Peruzzi made a diving catch of a hard-hit ball by Murphy in the fourth.

Quincy also played good defense. Second baseman Gavin Toland dove to his left to grab a grounder for an out in the second. In the third with Niko Brini and Peruzzi on second and third, Murphy fielded a ball cleanly at short and threw the runner out at the plate. Ross, who was catching, alertly caught Peruzzi rounding third, ran him back to the base and flipped to Owen Coppola for the out.

Murphy won the Player of the Game Award for Quincy.

"The kids accomplished something this year, and I think we can build for the future by the experience of hosting the tournament," said Ross.

Salmanowich pitched six strong innings in the 5-3 win over Kingston. Nelson and Murphy delivered RBI hits late in the game to provide the margin of victory.

Salmanowich added three hits and earned the Player of the Game Award for Quincy.

"It was a good game, the kind of game we're capable of playing. Our pitching and defense were excellent," said Ross. "We still have baseball to play. We're involved in the Suburban League, and we hope to go a long way."

Quincy 14-Year-Olds Bow In Babe Ruth State Tourney

Fall To Strong Norwood Team After Defeating Taunton, 8-1

By BILL GRIFFIN

It was a great deal of baseball in 24 hours.

Saturday night, Quincy was at Adams Field defeating Taunton, 8-1 in the State Babe Ruth tournament. At 10:30 a.m. Sunday, the same team was taking batting practice. Sunday afternoon, they defeated Canton in Rockland in the first game of the state Junior League playoffs. Sunday night, they were back at Adams playing an elimination game against a strong Norwood team in the Babe Ruth Tourney.

The Boston Red Sox would have been exhausted.

Paul Galvin and Ricky Meehan combined on a three-hit shutout to carry Norwood to a 6-0 win which eliminated Quincy from the State 14-year-old Babe Ruth Tourney.

Quincy fell to Plymouth, 5-1 in the opener, rallied to beat Taunton and then lost to Norwood. This dropped Quincy to 1-2 in pool play and eliminated them from the tourney. Norwood advanced to the semifinals.

"It was a lot of baseball, but no excuses. Hat's off to Norwood. Their pitcher was excellent and they played a sound overall game, just like they always do," said Quincy coach Mark Jaehnig.

Owen Lynch, who doubled and played a good game at third base, was named Player of the Game for Quincy. Tim Keohane and Mark Monahan had singles in the contest for Quincy.

Catcher Chris Wallace, Tom Jaehnig and Lynch made fine defensive plays.

QUINCY'S 14-YEAR-OLD team defeated Taunton but were eliminated by Norwood in the state Babe Ruth Tournament held at Adams Field. Wallace threw out two runners who were trying to steal. Jaehnig made a terrific, back-to-the plate catch in right off a long drive by Owen Kelly in the second. Lynch made a backhand grab off a low liner at third to save a run in the first.

Will Phelan pitched 1 and 2/3 innings of shutout, hitless relief to finish the game. He struck out three batters.

Norwood scored two in the second, two in the third and two in the fifth to earn the win.

Quincy's best chance came in the first. Chris Mann, Cody Desmond, and Keohane walked. One runner was picked off and Galvin escaped on two ground balls back to the pitcher.

The theme of the win over Taunton was pitching. Cody Desmond, a left hander with an excellent fastball, fired four innings of one-hit, shutout, eight-strikeout

FROM HEEL TO TOE

"Plantar fasciitis," a common cause of heel pain, occurs as a result of inflammation of the plantar fascia, the ligament that connects the heel bone to the toes. When this nagging condition makes walking painful, most turn to medication and orthotics (shoe inserts) for relief. Chiropractors, on the other hand, may decide to examine the muscles in the low back, hips, and thighs, which can become tight and squeeze nerves that travel into the feet and cause pain. Chief among the muscles under scrutiny are the "piriformis," through which the sciatic nerve travels to the leg; the adductor muscle inside the thigh; and the calf muscles, which flex ankles and toes. This non-drug approach looks for causes, not just symptoms.

Chiropractic adjustments of your feet—and elsewhere in your body, as required—can restore function and relieve pain. As a baseball. Desmond threw hard and when he found his spots, he was pretty close to unhittable.

Kevin Fitzgerald followed with two innings of shutout, hitless relief. Phelan finished it up in the seventh for Quincy.

"Our pitching was very good," said Jaehnig. "I was particularly happy for Cody. He throws very hard. The ball just flies out of his hands. When he stays within himself and doesn't try to throw too hard, his control is good. Tonight, he came through in a tourney before a big crowd and I was happy for him."

Quincy had a balanced, aggressive attack. Desmond helped himself at the plate with two hits and two runs scored. Mann had two singles, a walk and scored a run. Fitzgerald had a double, an RBI, a sacrifice fly and two runs scored. Shawn Kelly had a single and an RBI while Lynch doubled and drove in a run. Keohane had an RBI while Phelan and Mark Munroe each scored.

Not only did Quincy hit, they ran the bases. They stole eight bases and forced numerous mistakes with their speed and alertness.

"We hit well through the lineup and we've run the bases all year," said Jaehnig. "Mann has had a great year on the bases. We've played about 50 games together and I bet he has a 100 steals."

Quincy also played solid defense led by Mann at short and Desmond in center.

"We hit them about a 1000 fly balls. If a pop goes up, we have a rule. If Mann or Desmond are close, they get it," said Jaehnig.

Quincy went up 1-0 in the first when Desmond walked, stole second and third, and scored on a grounder. Fitzgerald and Lynch had doubles in a two-run second to make it 3-0.

Kelly had an RBI single in the third, and Desmond had a key single in a four-run sixth which boosted the lead to 8-0 before Taunton scored once in the seventh.

Desmond won the Player of the Game Award for Quincy.

Quincy played well in the opening-game loss to perennial power Plymouth. Quincy carried a 1-0 lead into the fifth inning behind the strong pitching of Kelly and also knocked out eight hits in a balanced offense.

"I couldn't have been happier with the way my team played in the opener," said Jaehnig. "We had to get used to playing under the lights at Adams and prove we could compete with a top baseball team like Plymouth. I thought we did both."

Kelly, a righthander, used a good fastball, gave just three hits and struck out one over five innings of work.

"He had good stuff and pitched with poise," said Jaehnig.

Wallace, who won the Player of the Game Award for Quincy, and Max Storch had a pair of hits for Quincy. Mann had a hit and a run scored, Keohane, Fitzgerald, and Kelly also had hits.

Quincy scored in the third when Mann reached second on an error, and came around on a ground ball and a wild pitch.

The hosts had chances for more. Fitzgerald, Wallace, Kelly and Storch had singles in the second, but a pickoff prevented any runs from scoring.

"We had a chances. A hit here or there and it might have been different. Plymouth knew they were in a game tonight," said Jaehnig.

Quincy played solid defense. Mann, who was excellent at short, made a sliding stop-and-flip for a force play in the first. Wallace gunned down a base stealer in the second and picked a runner off first in the sixth. Fitzgerald made a fine running catch in left center in the third.

"I thought our outfield play was excellent as well," said Jaehnig.

Plymouth scored four in the fifth and one in the sixth for the margin of victory.

CODY DESMOND fanned eight and gave up just one hit in four innings of shut-out work in Quincy's 8-1 win over Taunton last Saturday night at Adams Field.

Morrisette Draws Franklin In Legion Playoffs

By BILL GRIFFIN

It was not a perfect week, but Morrisette's senior legion team accomplished its mission.

Morrisette earned a pair of one-run victories over Cohasset and Braintree to nail down the fifth and final spot in Zone 6 East playoff chase last week.

Morrisette finished in fifth place with a 13-11 record and began the playoffs Wednesday at Franklin, the top seed in Zone 6 West. Morrisette hosts Franklin tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at Adams Field in the second game of the best-of-three series. The third game, if necessary, will be played at Franklin Friday at 5 p.m. at Dean College.

Pat Verhault was the offensive star of the game and delivered the clutch hit in an 8-7 win over Cohasset which clinched the playoff berth.

In the Braintree win, Andrew Currie tripled and Aaron Clancy doubled in a two-run seventh as Morrisette rallied for an exciting 7-6 victory.

In other action last week, Morrisette fell to Weymouth (7-6), Canton (7-3) and Hyde Park (6-3).

Morrisette punched its playoff ticket with its win decision over Cohasset. Verhault, Aaron Clancy, Josh Hayward, and Jason Pekkinen led the offense which built an 8-3 lead entering the sixth inning.

Greg Paulo pitched five strong innings, and Dan Cobban came on to get the final five outs. He fanned the final two batters of the game.

Verhault was outstanding, going 2-3, scoring three runs and stealing four bases. He drilled a double which brought home two runs in the fourth and gave Morrisette a 4-3 lead it never relinquished.

Against Braintree, Morrisette trailed, 6-5 entering the top of the seventh when Clancy and Currie delivered big hits to put Post 294 ahead. Kenny Sorenson picked up the win in relief and Cobban earned the save.

Andrew Jaehnig and Matt Davis had two doubles and two RBI while Verhault also had a hit in the victory.

Eddie Riley made a terrific play at shortstop to save the game in the final inning. With the tying run on third, he ranged far to his left on a hard-hit ball up the middle and turned it into the final out to preserve the one-run lead.

In the Weymouth game, Tom Garland, who entered the contest with a 5-0 record, pitched six strong innings of four-hit baseball, and Morrisette took a 6-3 lead into the seventh. However, Weymouth rallied for four runs and handed Post 294 a tough 7-6 loss.

Tommy McDonald had two hits and two RBI for Morrisette while Clancy had a double, was on base three times and stole a base.

Verhault and Hayward each had a pair of hits.

In the Canton game, Jaehnig had two hits and an RBI. However, Canton took the lead for good with one in the first and two in the second and posted a 7-3 win. Canton added two-run rallies in the fifth and sixth innings for insurance runs.

Currie, Verhault, Davis, Hayward and Bryan Turner had hits for Morrisette.

Pekkinen and Davis each had a pair of hits against Hyde Park. Clancy had a double off the centerfield fence while, Riley added a double and Verhault chipped in with an RBI.

Militia Fall To Buccaneers, 12-9

The Bay State Buccaneers edged the Quincy Militia, 12-9 in the home opener for the Militia Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Field.

The Militia had a great chance to tie the game in the final minute, but Conor Flaherty's field goal attempt with 55 seconds left sailed wide to the left.

at the half. Dolan Reid had an excellent return to set up the Militia at the Bucs' 29 early in the third period, but a turnover killed the drive.

After the Bucs went up, 12-2, the Militia scored its only touchdown of the game on a two-yard run by Jordan Moore.

Flaherty then connected on a 38-yard field goal which would have tied the game, but it was wiped out by a penalty.

Kyle Walker led a late drive with a series of first downs in the final minutes to set up the final field-goal try. A pass in the end zone to the Militia's James Schuler just missed.

Flaherty's kick was wide, and the Bucs ran out the clock for the win.

The Militia will host the Twin City Lions Aug. 3.

Senior League All Stars Advance To Regionals

By BILL GRIFFIN

How good is Quincy's Senior All Star team? With half the team playing in another game in another city, Quincy was good enough to win the state championship.

Due to a scheduling conflict, coach Rick Beach had to send half his team to the Junior Legion playoffs against Hudson in Quincy and half his team to the second game of the State Senior League title series Monday.

Quincy erased a two-run deficit after four innings with a balanced attack which saw everyone in the lineup hit safely to drop Wakefield, 13-4 and earn a two-game sweep of their best-of-three State Senior League championship series at Rockland Monday night.

Quincy earlier moved into position to win the title behind a four-hitter from Ethan Yau to roll by Wakefield, 7-1 in the first game of the best-of three series Sunday.

"It's not something I want to do, but the same kids play on both teams. We had two playoff games which unfortunately fell on the same day," said Beach.

In the final game, Quincy was down 4-2 entering the fifth. Quincy pushed across three in the sixth, three in the sixth and five in the seventh to sweep to victory.

Quincy pounded out 17 hits led by Pat Keohane who went 3-3 with a sacrifice fly. Aaron Clancy was 2-5 with an RBI while Bobby Salvucci went 2-4. All three had important hits in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings when the game was decided.

Clancy grew stronger as the game progressed. He gave four in the second, but shut out Wakefield on two hits the rest of the way. He struck out three.

Quincy will play in the Northeast Regionals in Freehold, New Jersey on Aug. 3 against the Maine state champions.

Yau fanned five in the win over Wakefield which ran Quincy's streak in the Senior League playoffs to 7-0.

Sean Holleran led the offense with three hits and two stolen bases. Keohane went 3-4 with two stolen bases while Troy Shepherd and Greg Paulo each had a pair of hits.

Clancy had an RBI double which scored Keohane.

"The kids have played awesome," said Beach. "It's about pitching and defense. We've thrown the ball well and our defense has made the plays. They haven't given any bonus outs by making errors, and in the tourney, that is the key."

Quincy advanced to the finals with a three-game sweep in the sectionals, ousting Seekonk in the final game. Clancy pitched the series-clincher, hurling a two-hitter and fanning five in an 11-1 victory.

Shortstop Tyler Beach went 4-4 with four stolen bases. Keohane, Clancy and Bryan Turner each had a pair of hits. One of Turner's hits was a triple.

COLBY ST. MARIE of Quincy, age 11, came in third place in the home run derby for the Eastern State finals.

A Great Ride For Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Bows To Cape Cod In Sectional Showdown

By BILL GRIFFIN

It didn't finish with a sectional championship, but it was a great ride for Wollaston's Senior Babe Ruth team.

Cape Cod scored two runs in the sixth inning to survive a terrific rally and oust Wollaston, 6-4 in the deciding game of the State Senior Babe Ruth Sectionals in a contest played in South Boston last week.

Wollaston won the first two games of the double-elimination tournament in dramatic fashion, stopping Merrimack Valley, 8-3 in nine innings and posting a walk-off 2-1 win over Cape Cod on an RBI single by Tyler Braun.

Cape Cod then defeated Merrimack and stopped Wollaston, 7-2 to set up the championship showdown.

Cape Cod grabbed a 4-0 lead after two innings, but Wollaston fought back. In the third, Padraig Geaney singled for his second hit of the game. He moved along on a walk to Kevin Mullin and scored on a single by Mike Pugsley to cut the lead to 4-1.

Bill Campbell then singled home Mullin, but Pugsley was out on a close play at the plate.

Wollaston scored twice in the sixth to tie it. Chris Kerin reached on a fielder's choice and scored on a double by Evan Feinberg. Ben Martin then delivered a clutch single to score pinch runner Mike Saccoach to tie the game at 2-2.

Braun settled down after a tough start, and hurled 4 2/3 innings of shutout ball. However, Cape Cod scored twice in the sixth for a 6-4 lead. Dillon Darcy finished the sixth and retired the side 1-2-3 in the seventh.

Wollaston had a great chance in the sixth when Martin walked. Pugsely and Johnny Marsinelli singled to load the bases, but Wollaston could not score.

Pugsley, Chris Kerin, and Marsinelli each had two hits for Wollaston.

In league playoff action, Wollaston swept to a 10-1 win over Norwood in the first game of their best-of-three series. Nolan Flynn pitched the first five and earned the win, giving up just one run. Martin pitched two innings of scoreless relief.

Chris Kerin led a balanced attack with a three-run home run.

Junior League Team Also On Way To Regionals

By BILL GRIFFIN

There were no flaws.

Quincy posted nine straight playoff wins and clinched the Massachusetts State Junior League championship with an 18-8 win over Canton and a 2-0 sweep of their best-of-three title series at Rockland Stadium Monday night.

The Junior League is for players 13 years old.

In the first game of the best-of-three final series against Canton, Quincy sent 16 batters to the plate in the first inning, scored 11 times and rolled to a 17-0 win at Rockland Sunday.

Quincy advances to the Northeast Regionals in Freehold, New Jersey in the first week of August. Ten teams from Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, and New Jersey will take part in the competition. There will be two teams from New Jersey.

Quincy advanced to the regionals in 2009 and 2011.

Quincy will face the host Freehold, New Jersey team Aug. 3 at 1 p.m.

Tim Keohane, Max Storch, Cody Desmond, Chris Wallace, Kevin Fitzgerald and Matt Munroe had RBI in Quincy's big first inning in the opening game against Canton.

Desmond had a bases-loaded double to the left-center gap in the big rally. He also had three hits and made a terrific over-the-shoulder catch of a long drive to centerfield.

Owen Lynch made a fine diving catch of a popup. Mark Monahan, Matt Fox, Storch, and Will Phelan shared the pitching duties in the win.

In the sectional final, Quincy defeated defending state champ Oxford, 11-3. Lynch and Storch did the job on the mound while Desmond had three hits and was on base five times. Keohane had an RBI single while Lynch and Phelan delivered timely hits.

Quincy's toughest challenge came in a 3-1 decision over East Bridgewater. Due to rules which allow a player to leave and re-enter a game, Monahan earned both a win and a save in the game.

He gave three hits in 5 2/3 innings and retired the final two batters with runners on second and third.

Monahan also went 3-3 at the plate, including a line double deep into the outfield. Keohane put down a perfect squeeze bunt to score a run while Fitzgerald and Desmond had sacrifice flies for Quincy's three runs.

Mann and Desmond had two hits apiece and combined for three stolen bases and two runs scored.

Quincy rolled past Western Massachusetts champion Southhampton, 15-1. Lynch and Storch handled the pitching load while Wallace was 3-3 with two doubles. Dara Griffin had a bases-loaded double.

Quincy dropped Cohasset twice to gain a measure of revenge for last year's playoff loss. Munroe earned the win on the mound, and Fitzgerald and Phelan each had two RBI in a 10-0 win.

Monahan went the distance on the mound in 95-degree heat, and Wallace had a 4-4 game at the plate in an 11-5 victory over Cohasset. Mann added three hits, Desmond had a pair and Erik Barber had two stolen bases.

Monahan had a complete-game two-hitter in a well-played 4-0 win over Hanson. Fox did a fine job behind the plate and had an RBI along with Munroe and Kelly.

Mann had two hits and two stolen bases while Cody Desmond had three stolen bases.

Wallace went 4-4 and Fitzgerald was the winning pitcher in a 16-4 romp over Rockland. Munroe and Kelly each had two hits.

In the first game of the playoffs, Quincy rolled past Scituate, 15-0. Lynch was the winning pitcher. Kelly had two doubles. Wallace went 2-2 while Barber and Phelan had key hits.

an assortment of pitches and impressed his coach with his actions after the game.

"The best thing is he is so humble," said coach Mark Free. "Of course, we gave him the game ball. He gave it to a teammate, Patrick Nazzaro, who came off the bench with a big hit for us late in the game. It was a good thing to see."

McGrath fanned the side four times, including the first inning. It was clear to Free that McGrath had special stuff for the regional opener.

"It's the best I've seen him pitch," said Free. "He has three good pitches. He threw a good fastball and mixed in a changeup and a curveball."

The strikeouts accounted for 15 of the 18 outs. There were two grounders to second and a popup to the pitcher. There was nothing close to a hit. McGrath struck out the last 10 batters of the game.

Nazzaro had a single and two RBI in the win while James Robinson singled, scored and drove in a run.

In the Maine game, McCormack also had a double and scored twice. Kelley had two hits, and McDonald was on base with a walk, hit-by-pitch and scored twice.

McDonald pitched the first four to earn the win. Jack Free pitched the last two innings, retiring six straight batters and fanning three.

Pre-registration is required.

On Saturday, July 13, at approximately 10:05 p.m., Officer Bill Lanergan was dispatched to the police station lobby to speak to a victim of a larceny that had occurred at the Wollaston CVS.

Upon arrival, the Officer interviewed the victim, who said that she was at the self check out register in CVS at about 7:30 p.m. She stated that she placed her purse and iPhone 5 down on the side of the register as she bagged her items. When she finished, she went to pick up her purse and phone but they were gone.

The victim looked all around the register (under it, next to it etc.) but was unable to locate her phone. Sure that she placed her phone down next to the register, the victim then checked with the store management and asked if anyone had turned a phone in but no one had.

The victim then used another phone to call her phone but it went right to voice mail. She then called her phone carrier

LT. DAN MINTON

A Job Well Done

who advised her to call the police. The victim then used her mother's phone to use the "find my friends" application.

"Find my friends" is a GPS based application that allows you to see exactly where your friends are based on the location of their cell phones. The victim used the program to see that her phone was mobile and eventually stopped on a North Quincy street. This is when the victim reported the incident to the Police.

The victim said that she paid over $300 for the phone and that she purchased the case and protective cover, pushing the total value to over $400. After seeing that the phone was located, Officer Lanergan requested that an Officer be dispatched to the address to determine who had the phone. The victim described the phone with a pink case with white dots on it. Officer Parisi arrived on scene and as he pulled up to the home a female came walking out and before the Officer could say a word, the female asked Officer Parisi if he was there about the phone she "found at CVS."

The female suspect said that she found the phone at CVS and was trying to figure out how to return it to the property owner. She added that she spoke to the store staff about the phone and no one at the store knew anything about it. The female suspect showed the phone to Officer Parisi and he took note it was an iPhone 5 with a pink case with white dots. The female suspect was unable to explain why she simply did not turn the phone over to CVS staff or call the Police.

At this point, over two hours had elapsed since the time the phone was taken until it was located. There was no indication that the suspect made any attempt to return the phone to the proper owner and both Officers agreed that it was unlikely that the suspect had any intention of returning the phone to the rightful owner.

Officer Parisi placed the suspect, a 46 year-old Quincy resident, under arrest, for "Receiving stolen property over $250." After the suspect was transported to the station, Officer Lanergan accessed the Registry of Motor Vehicle database and brought up the license picture of the suspect and showed it to the victim, who confirmed seeing the suspect in CVS in the make-up section while she was there. The victim described the clothing that the suspect was wearing, which was the same as when she was placed under arrest. The phone was returned to the victim.

Nice Work!

RELIGION

Farewell Reception For Revs. Michael, Emmy Robertson At Squantum First Church

Sunday, July 28th will be the last worship service led by Reverends Michael and Emmy Robertson at the First Church in Squantum.

Revs. Mike and Emmy's retirement is bittersweet, as the Congregation expresses their gratitude for their years of service, friendship and guidance, it is a difficult goodbye. The Reverends were not only the pastors of the First Church for seven years, they were members of the community where it was their mission to not only effectively carry out the ministries and mission of the Church, but also to integrate the church to the community and make everyone feel welcome at the First Church. They did that and more.

Seven years ago, the future of the First Church was uncertain. Strong advocates of connecting the Church to the community, the Reverends knew the critical role the Church plays in strengthening communities and family values. They sent that message home to families in the community with the reminder that the church is there as a meetinghouse of love and kindness. The Reverends' efforts over seven years created a solid foundation on which First Church can continue to build and grow.

The Congregation will host a 'farewell' luncheon after 10 a.m. worship service on Sunday, July 28th, to honor Reverends Mike and Emmy's seven years of commitment and dedication to the Squantum Community and the First Church Congregation and wish them well as they embark on a new chapter in their lives. All are welcome.

Rev. Doug Gray will begin his ministry service as pastor of the First Church on Aug. 4th.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A longtime situation starts to move into a new phase. The question for the uncertain Lamb right now is whether to move with it. Facts emerge by midmonth to help you decide.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A talent for organizing your priorities allows the Divine Bovine to enjoy a busy social life and not miss a beat in meeting all workplace and/or family commitments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) What began as a dubious undertaking has now become one of your favorite projects. Your enthusiasm for it rallies support from other doubters-turned-believers.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Accept the help of friends to get you through an unexpectedly difficult situation. There'll be time enough later to investigate how all this could have happened so fast.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Change is a major factor for the Big Cat through mid-month. Be prepared to deal with it on a number of levels, including travel plans and workplace situations.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might not like all the changes that have begun to take place around you. But try to find something positive in at least some of them that you can put to good use.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family member's unsettling experience could create more problems if it's not handled with care and love. And who's the best one to offer all that? You, of course.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The sagacious Sagittarius should have no trouble deciding between those who can and those who cannot be trusted to carry out a workplace commitment.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Surprise, surprise. It looks as if that one person you once thought you could never hope to win over to your side suddenly just might choose to join you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might have to set aside your pride for now and accept a change that isn't to your advantage. Cheer up. There'll be time later to turn this around in your favor.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your creative self emerges as dominant through midmonth. This should help you restart that writing or arts project you've left on the shelf for far too long.

Julius E. Friedman, 34

Attorney, Assistant District Attorney

Julius E. Friedman, 34, of Quincy, who overcame childhood health problems to become a successful attorney with a deep commitment to justice, died unexpectedly at his home July 3.

Mr. Friedman was in private practice in Quincy and had also served as an Assistant District Attorney in Norfolk County. His friends describe him as a quiet and gentle person with a wry sense of humor.

He was dedicated to the legal profession.

"Julius believed strongly in justice for all," said Chandra Allard of Quincy, his long-time partner. "He fought for the rights of the most vulnerable and believed in fairness for everyone." He dealt with a wide range of legal matters in his practice, but was especially dedicated to the civil rights cases he handled.

In the DA's office, his commitment was reflected in his successful lobbying to be assigned to the Dedham Juvenile Court. "He had a passion to help children," Allard said.

Mr. Friedman grew up in Charleston, IL and attended the public schools there. He earned bachelors and masters degrees at the University of Central Missouri in Warrensburg, MO and his JD from the Thomas M. Cooley Law School in Lansing, MI. He was admitted to practice law in Massachusetts and before the state's US District Court.

At age 4, he was diagnosed with a severe form of epilepsy for which, at the time, there were no effective treatments. During his childhood he was often hospitalized for weeks at a time. It was not until he was an adult that the medications that controlled his condition were available.

He led a vigorous life playing pickup basketball games, practicing mixed martial arts, and working out in a Quincy gym.

He was also the cook at home, making meals with an assortment of woks, rice cookers, bamboo steamers, and crock pots. His love of cooking was matched by his love for animals. His was devoted to his dogs Dreyfus and Brady. Recently he volunteered at the Quincy Animal Shelter.

Mr. Friedman was involved in politics, working as a volunteer in many campaigns. He was counsel for Boston City Councilor Matt O'Malley during his successful 2010 special election race.

He first came to Quincy while in law school for an externship at David Spillane's law office. Spillane told him that there would be a job for him after graduation once he passed the bar, and Mr. Friedman began his legal career in 2009 as a clerk in the firm.

Mr. Friedman is also survived by his two children from a prior marriage, Monique and Kaitlyn Friedman of Charleston, IL; his mother, Peggy Eubank and her husband Mark, also of Charleston; his father Stanley and his wife Barbara Friedman, who now live in Daytona Beach, FL, a sister, Tina Kokkines of Plainfield, IL and many aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces and nephews.

A celebration of life ceremony for Julius will be held at the Church of the Presidents (1306 Hancock Street, Quincy) on Tuesday, July 30th at 4:30 p.m. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in his memory to the Epilepsy Foundation of New England by mail at 540 Gallivan Boulevard, Boston, MA 02124 or to the Innocence Project at www.innocenceproject.org or by mail at 40 Worth Street, New York, NY 10013.

Richard P. Mallett, 75

A memorial Mass for Richard P. Mallett, 75, of Bradenton, FL and Quincy, will be celebrated tomorrow (Friday) at 9 a.m. at St. Bernadette's Church, Randolph.

Mr. Mallett will be fondly remembered for his love and generosity to his family, and will be sorely missed.

A Job Well Done

APARTMENT HUNTING SCAM:

Apartment hunting often begins with the scanning of rental ads in newspapers, or on websites. There has been an increase in scammers offering to rent a unit that does not exist. The trick is to clone actual rental listings and then change the contact and email information, placing the altered ads in numerous newspapers or websites to trick as many people as they can out of money. Often, the scam comes to light too late.

You can avoid this scam by not sending money via wire transfer or check to someone you have not met. If you can't meet the landlord in person because she's living or traveling out of the country — and if you can't see the actual apartment before you pay application fees, a security deposit, or sign a lease — go elsewhere. Once you send the money, it will be gone!

Look out for high pressure tactics to rent the unit "now" because there are others looking at it too. If the unit is below market price and/or it is too good to be true, be wary.

Retirement Estimator Marks 5th Anniversary

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Hard to believe, but it's been five years since Social Security's Retirement Estimator debuted. Within months of first becoming available, the online Estimator was praised as one of the best services on the Internet, and it has consistently retained its excellent rating every year.

Results from the American Customer Satisfaction Index show Social Security's online Retirement Estimator is consistently one of the highest-rated services on the web — even higher than the websites of many other public or private sector agencies and companies, including Netflix and Amazon.

Every year millions of people use the Retirement Estimator. You can too at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator. Prefer to do your business in Spanish? You can find it at www.segurosocial.gov/calculador, too.

The Retirement Estimator is a convenient, secure, and quick financial planning tool that lets workers calculate how much they might expect to receive in Social Security benefits when they retire. The attractive feature of this calculator is that it uses your earnings information on file at Social Security without displaying your personal information. So you get an instant, personalized estimate of your future retirement benefits. And, it's so easy to use.

The Estimator even gives you the opportunity to run different scenarios and "what if" situations. For example, you can change the date you expect to retire or change expected future earnings to create and compare different retirement options. This can help you as you plan ahead.

To use the Retirement Estimator, you must have enough Social Security credits to qualify for benefits and you cannot currently be receiving benefits.

Join the celebration! Experience the popular online service now by visiting Social Security's Retirement Estimator at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator. Then, once you've sketched out your retirement plans, you'll know where to go when the time comes to apply for benefits: online at www.socialsecurity.gov.

Happy fifth anniversary, Retirement Estimator!

Undefeated Season For Morrisette Junior Legion Team

By BILL GRIFFIN

In most cases, when a team goes undefeated through a 19-game season, it is a big story.

That is exactly what Morrisette's Junior Legion team finished off last week with a 10-7 win over Holbrook. However, there is more to the story. A lot more.

The same players who play for Morrisette are also on the Quincy Senior League team that won the state title. On two teams in two leagues, these kids have not lost a game since April, compiling a remarkable 37-0-1 record entering Monday night's playoff game against Hudson.

Due to conflicting schedules, coach Rick Beach had to send half his team to play Hudson in the opening game of the Legion playoffs and half his team to the Senior League State championship where Quincy took the title with a 13-4 win over Wakefield.

"It's been unbelievable," said Beach. "We've run the bases and had good pitching and defense. But the big thing is these kids love baseball and they've worked hard in both leagues. We're on an amazing roll."

With the victory over Holbrook and a forfeit from Medfield, Morrisette finished with a 17-0-2 season and won the Zone 5-6 regular-season pennant chase easily by two games over Franklin and Norwood.

"Franklin and Norwood are quality teams with a lot of tradition and it was an accomplishment to finish ahead of them," said Beach.

After falling behind, 3-1 against Holbrook, Morrisette took the lead for good with four in the second keyed by two-out hits RBI hits from Pat O'Connor, Brendan McDonald, and Bobby Salvucci.

Morrisette put away the game with a six-run rally in the fifth keyed by a two-run double from Ethan Yau.

Salvucci went the distance and struck out three.

McDonald led the offense by going 2-4 with two runs scored and three stolen bases. Dave Suslowicz went 2-4 with two runs scored and two stolen bases while Josh Helfrich had a pair of hits. O'Connor went 1-2 in the win.

Strong Tourism Season

in recent years. That includes David McCullough's 2001 book on John Adams, which was adapted into an HBO miniseries, and a new biography of John Quincy Adams by Harlow Giles Unger published last fall.

"We're still riding that wave of publicity," Keinath said.

Services at the Adams National Historical Park have not been affected by cuts in the federal budget that came into effect earlier this year, according to Keinath. The park made cutbacks to the staff but no visitors have been turned away because of the budget reduction.

"We did cut a couple of positions but we haven't cut our services," Keinath said. "We haven't turned anyone away because of budget cuts."

Down the street from the Old House at Peace field at the United First Parish Church — also known as the Church of the Presidents, because John and John Quincy Adams and their wives are entombed in a crypt there — visitation has been about average, according to Gary Haynes, who oversees the church's visitors program. Between the start of their season on April 19 and July 14, the church had 4,143 visitors. There were 9,125 visitors for the entirety of the 2012 season, which began in April and ended in November.

The church had 955 visitors in April of this year and 1,152 in May. June saw 1,213 visitors tour the church, which Haynes said was lower than recent years. He attributed that decline to the month's wet weather — it rained on 16 different days in June. The winter's inclement weather hurt visitation too, as many school systems up and down the eastern seaboard had to keep classes in session much later than in typical years because of snow days.

"It has to do with the rain and schools were out late throughout the east coast," Haynes said. "I have relatives in Virginia who were still in school in late June."

Those numbers began to rebound strongly in July. In the first two weeks of the month the church had 823 visitors.

"We were down in June but we're making up for it in July," Haynes explained.

Once again this year the church has had visitors from all 50 states. They've also had tourists from the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico visit. In 2012 visitors from 38 foreign nations visited the church. Through July 14 visitors from 17 foreign countries had visited the church, including Canada, Mexico, most of western and northern Europe, China, India, Australia, Thailand, and Singapore.

Many of the visitors so far this month have been families, according to Haynes. That includes one family of five — Joseph Inman, his wife Colleen Blaydes and their children Shannon, Ciara, and Brandon, ages 5, 3, and 1, respectively — from Dallas, Texas who toured the church last Thursday. The family came to Quincy to see the sites associated with the Adams family after visiting other historic places in New England.

"We wanted to visit the resting place and the homes of the Adamses," Inman said. "It's always interesting to see how people lived at the founding of our country — the various houses they lived in, the differences in the houses they lived in. We came from Franklin Pierce's homestead in New Hampshire and before that we were in the Coolidge family estate in Vermont."

This was Inman's first trip to the city, but Blaydes had visited about 15 years ago with her family. Visiting historic sites was a tradition for them, one she hopes to pass it down to her children. "In my family growing up we would take vacations and we would stop at presidential burial places, childhood homes and adult homes," Blaydes said. "This is my second trip here and I remember really enjoying it when I came. It's a tradition I want to pass on to my children — going to different presidential sites."

The visitors program at the church is staffed by volunteers. Haynes said the church is looking for more volunteers; anyone in the community looking to help with the visitors program is welcome to contact him at 617-773-0062 or through email at visitorsprogram@ufpc.org.

The Church of the Presidents and the Adams National Historical Park were two of the historic sites that took part in Discover Quincy Day held July 13. The program, sponsored by the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, allows individuals to visit those sites, along with the Josiah Quincy House, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, and Adams Academy, for $5 by purchasing a wristband.

Donna Mavromates, the chamber's vice president, said about 50 wristbands were sold for the July 13 Discover Quincy Day. This is the second year the chamber has hosted the event, and Mavromates said many of the participants on July 13 were Quincy residents who read about last year's program.

"Many Quincy residents participated in the Discover Quincy Day," Mavromates said. "We had a good cross section last year. We saw more Quincy residents than last year."

In 2012 the chamber hosted four Discover Quincy Days, including one in June. The chamber decided against holding one this June because students were still in school and families from outside Quincy would be less likely to take day trips.

Two other Discover Quincy Days have been scheduled for this year — on Aug. 10 and Oct. 5. Last year the final, and busiest, Discover Quincy Day was in September but Mavromates said it was moved to October to allow families more time to deal with back to school tasks.

"It has to do with the rain and schools were out late throughout the east coast," Haynes said. "I have relatives in Virginia who were still in school in late June."

Those numbers began to rebound strongly in July. In the first two weeks of the month the church had 823 visitors.

"We were down in June but we're making up for it in July," Haynes explained.

Once again this year the church has had visitors from all 50 states. They've also had tourists from the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico visit. In 2012 visitors from 38 foreign nations visited the church. Through July 14 visitors from 17 foreign countries had visited the church, including Canada, Mexico, most of western and northern Europe, China, India, Australia, Thailand, and Singapore.

Many of the visitors so far this month have been families, according to Haynes. That includes one family of five – Joseph Inman, his wife Colleen Blaydes and their children Shannon, Ciara, and Brandon, ages 5, 3, and 1, respectively – from Dallas, Texas who toured the church last Thursday. The family came to Quincy to see the sites associated with the Adams family after visiting other historic places in New England.

"We wanted to visit the resting place and the homes of the Adamses," Inman said. "It's always interesting to see how people lived at the founding of our country – the various houses they lived in, the differences in the houses they lived in. We came from Franklin Pierce's homestead in New Hampshire and before that we were in the Coolidge family estate in Vermont."

This was Inman's first trip to the city, but Blaydes had visited about 15 years ago with her family. Visiting historic sites was a tradition for them, one she hopes to pass it down to her children. "In my family growing up we would take vacations and we would stop at presidential burial places, childhood homes and adult homes," Blaydes said. "This is my second trip here and I remember really enjoying it when I came. It's a tradition I want to pass on to my children – going to different presidential sites."

The visitors program at the church is staffed by volunteers. Haynes said the church is looking for more volunteers; anyone in the community looking to help with the visitors program is welcome to contact him at 617-773-0062 or through email at visitorsprogram@ufpc.org.

The Church of the Presidents and the Adams National Historical Park were two of the historic sites that took part in Discover Quincy Day held July 13. The program, sponsored by the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, allows individuals to visit those sites, along with the Josiah Quincy House, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, and Adams Academy, for $5 by purchasing a wristband.

Donna Mavromates, the chamber's vice president, said about 50 wristbands were sold for the July 13 Discover Quincy Day. This is the second year the chamber has hosted the event, and Mavromates said many of the participants on July 13 were Quincy residents who read about last year's program.

"Many Quincy residents participated in the Discover

Quincy Day," Mavromates said. "We had a good cross section last year. We saw more Quincy residents than last year."

In 2012 the chamber hosted four Discover Quincy Days, including one in June. The chamber decided against holding one this June because students were still in school and families from outside Quincy would be less likely to take day trips.

Two other Discover Quincy Days have been scheduled for this year – on Aug. 10 and Oct. 5. Last year the final, and busiest, Discover Quincy Day was in September but Mavromates said it was moved to October to allow families more time to deal with back to school tasks.

Green Space To Replace Former High School

Old QHS Down, New Central Open By Start Of School

By SCOTT JACKSON

By the time students return to school in September the old Quincy High School building will be razed and the new Central Middle School will be open.

Demolition crews began working on the old Quincy High building earlier this summer, removing the school's windows and gutting its interior, according to mayoral spokesman Chris Walker. The next step will be tearing down the exterior of the school, which Walker said should be done by the time classes start up in September.

"The heavy work is anticipated to be done before the school year," he said.

Following the demolition of the old Quincy High building, workers will need to cap a wall of the new high school building that abuts the old building. That will take place in September.

Once the building is torn down it will be replaced by a green space, which may also have some parking spaces. Walker said the park is still being designed, and the plans for the space will be presented to the City Council in the fall for approval.

The city has appropriated $1.6 million to pay for the demolition, capping the wall, and designing the new park. Razing the building will cost $687,000 and is being paid for by the bond used to finance construction of the new school. The council authorized a $1 million bond in June to pay the other expenses - including capping the wall and designing the park - but cut $1.5 million from the bond that would have gone towards landscaping the site after construction since no plans were submitted.

While crews continue to dismantle the old Quincy High building, construction of the new Central Middle School continues.

Walker said the new Central - which is being built on Hancock Street opposite Veterans' Memorial Stadium at a total cost of $50 million - will be ready in time for the new school year. It is possible, however, that the school's gym and auditorium won't be fully constructed when classes start, a situation that had been contemplated when the school project began.

Once the new Central building is complete the city will begin the process of the selling the old Central, located about a half mile down Hancock Street from the new school.

"It is the mayor's intention to put it on the market and sell it to the highest bidder," Walker said.

OLD QUINCY HIGH School building is expected to be demolished before the new school year begins in September. The site will be replaced with green space and some parking spaces.

Minivan Crash Causes Natural Gas Leak

A minivan slammed into a Miller Street home and caused a natural gas leak Sunday afternoon.

The minivan, driven by a woman with a learner's permit, was pulling out of the driveway across the street and hit the front of the house at 80 Miller Street, according to Deputy Fire Chief Joe Jackson. The collision was forceful enough to knock free a granite stone in the home's foundation; the stone fell and severed a natural gas line causing the leak.

Two people were inside the house at the time and the firefighters evacuated them. Firefighters then ventilated the house by breaking windows in the basement and first floor.

"We had to take out the windows in the basement and the first floor to vent the house and we had a big gas fan going," Jackson said.

National Grid was called to the scene to shut off the gas line going into the house. Jackson credited fire Lt. Mark Kennedy with helping quell the leak by jamming insulation into the pipe before the utility crew arrived.

"He turned a major leak into a minor leak," Jackson said. "That was quick thinking."

The two people inside the car - the driver and a passenger in the front seat - sustained minor injuries and were treated at the scene, Jackson said. Police Capt. John Dougan said the driver will not be cited for the crash and was driving with someone holding a valid license as required by state law.

Jackson said the damage to the foundation wasn't significant enough that it couldn't be repaired.

No City Preliminary Election - 3rd Time In 73 Years Koch Unopposed For Re-Election; Only Two Contested Races Nov. 5

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Just two challengers joined 13 incumbents in submitting nomination papers before Tuesday's filing deadline for the city's election this fall, meaning there will be no preliminary election in September and only two contested races on the Nov. 5 ballot.

Those two contests will be for Ward 4 councillor and school committee.

In Ward 4, incumbent councillor Brian Palmucci of 138 Willard St. is being challenged by first-time candidate Michael Healy of 44 Stedman St. Palmucci, who unseated incumbent Jay Davis in 2009, is vying for a third two-year term.

For school committee, three incumbents and one political newcomer are seeking the three seats up this fall.

Incumbent school committee members seeking re-election are:

Barbara Isola of 34 Randlett St.; Emily Lebo of 324 Highland Ave. and Anne Mahoney of 12 Ferriter St.

Political newcomer Noel

DiBona of 19 Winthrop Park, is also seeking a seat on the school committee. The top three finishers in this four-way race will win a four-year term on the school committee.

Isola and Lebo are seeking their second four-year terms on the school committee. Mahoney, who ran unsuccessfully for mayor two years ago, is running for a third four-year term on the school committee.

The city's other nine elected officials who are up for re-election are essentially guaranteed of winning another term since they will be unopposed on the ballot.

They are:

• Mayor Thomas P. Koch, 249 Newbury Ave.

• Councillors at-large Michael McFarland, 140 Summit Ave.; Douglas Gutro, 230 Marlboro St. and Joe Finn, 15 Williams St.

• Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, 236 Rock Island Rd.

• Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, 53 Summer St.

Female Bank Robbery Suspect Sought

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Quincy Police are still looking for a female suspect who robbed the Citizens Bank at 371 Hancock St. on Saturday, July 27th.

The suspect is described as a 25 to 30 years old 5-foot-6 to 5-foot-7 white female with dark brown or black hair in a ponytail. Quincy Police Captain John Dougan said the suspect entered the bank and passed a note to the teller demanding money around 11:10 a.m. Dougan said that no weapon was shown at the time of the robbery but the note alluded to there being one.

"It is mostly males that do this, it is not very often that we have a female suspect in bank robberies," said Dougan. "It is a rare thing but still not out of the ordinary."

Dougan said that the suspect walked out the side door of the bank in an unknown direction with an undetermined amount of cash.

Coaching's Been A Great Ride For Dave MacMillan

Dave MacMillan's half-century of coaching youth baseball in Quincy is underscored with some pretty lofty numbers.

While at the helm of the Houghs Neck Legion Post Babe Ruth team for 50 years, he's coached more than 1,500 games and coached more than 1,200 players. He's won more than 500 games, 25 divisional titles and participated in 10 city championships.

There are many other impressive stats but it may be more fitting to sum up MacMillan's coaching career with a few of his own words.

"I loved to teach the game."

And for that labor of love, you can add three more words:

"Dave MacMillan Dugout."

A wooden sign engraved with those three words was recently fastened to the top of the first base dugout at Adams Field during a dedication ceremony at the city's historic baseball diamond. MacMillan was honored for his many decades of coaching and contributions to youth baseball in Quincy. He was joined by family members, former players and coaches and city officials who looked on as the longtime baseball coach removed red-white-and-blue bunting revealing the sign.

MacMillan joins another local baseball legend to have a dugout named at Adams Field. The third base dugout is named for the late Ray Cattaneo – the beloved longtime leader of the Morrisette Legion baseball team and one-time professional baseball prospect back in the 1950s.

MacMillan and Cattaneo – who died in June – were longtime friends and coaching colleagues.

What does it mean to MacMillan to share the Adams Field dugout honors with Cattaneo?

"Ray and I went back a 1,000 years," MacMillan said in a recent interview. "It was the first thing I thought of (when informed of the dugout honor). 'I'm going to be with Ray.' He'd talk to me about the kids on my Babe Ruth team who would be trying out for Morrisette."

"I also coached against Ray. He was a class act."

MacMillan is among the many who think Ray would have played professionally had his prime playing years not been interrupted by the Korean War and if Hall of Fame third baseman Eddie Mathews had been on another team.

"Ray got drafted by my Boston Braves," says MacMillan who grew up a fan of the Braves and Warren

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Spahn. "It took me quite a few years to get over when the Braves moved to Milwaukee in 1952. If it wasn't for the war, Ray could have played for them."

The 75-year-old MacMillan – a lifelong Houghs Neck resident – is nothing less than a coaching marvel. He credits a close friend, Ed Kelly, with getting him started on a career that has spanned 50 years.

The year was 1962 and Dave and Ed were playing softball in local fast-and-slow pitch leagues. Ed approached Dave and said there was a baseball league for 13 to 15 year olds (Babe Ruth) but there were not any kids from Houghs Neck playing.

"Ed said, 'why don't we put a team together?'"

The two went to the Houghs Neck American Legion Post 380 and got them to sponsor a team. Ed and Dave raised the money to field the team – about $600 to cover uniforms, bats and balls.

"If it weren't for Ed, I would have never gotten into coaching baseball. I swear by him."

Mr. Kelly passed away a few years ago.

"Ed was a good man. A quality person – we were lifelong friends," MacMillan says.

Today, MacMillan has a coaching resume as deep as the power alleys at Adams Field.

He's been the coach of the Houghs Neck Legion Babe Ruth baseball team 50 years. That tenure is likely the longest number of years with the same team in Quincy, and possibly the longest in the National Babe Ruth program.

He's also been involved in various other coaching and baseball duties throughout the years.

He helped field a semi-pro team in Quincy years ago called the Quincy Bay Mariners.

He coached over 15 years at Quincy High School, two years at North Quincy High School, eight years at Quincy Legion and two years for Wollaston Legion.

He's coached 40 state champions including the very first Babe Ruth state crown for a Quincy club in 1969. In those days there were two Quincy All-Star teams because there were two six-team divisions. MacMillan's team defeated the other Quincy squad in a one-game playoff 3-2 at Adams Field to advance and ultimately win the state title.

The trophy was presented to MacMillan on the field at Fenway Park prior to a Red Sox game.

MacMillan also coached nine local players who went on to sign professional contracts. They are: Paul Grasso, Steve Tomasetti, Tom Burke, Bob Brill, Jerry Bugden, Bob Lane, Preston Carroll and John Folino.

His coaching philosophy is short and to the point:

"I made them a promise they'd be a better ball player when they left the team than when they joined," MacMillan says. "Teaching them the fundamentals and a very, very large percentage of the kids who played on those teams played at high school, Legion and college and some of them had pro contracts."

"The idea was to make them a better ball player so that they could advance to the next level."

"In the games, was I a sore loser on occasion? Yes, but my philosophy was play the game hard. I had to give the team a talking to more after some victories because of the way they played the game. They didn't hustle."

"My philosophy was play hard, play to win, don't play dirty and don't cheat, but play to win. And then the next practice we'd take care of whatever mistakes we made."

What kept him coming back to coaching year after year?

"I love teaching the game. I enjoyed the practices more than the games because I love to teach the game. I love the kids. You get to know their families, you get to know some situations with some kids outside of baseball that you try to help them with."

Some lessons he taught off the field.

He remembers one kid, age 13, who quit the team.

"I called the parents and asked if we could talk this out. I went to the house and we sat down at the kitchen table. For 13-year-olds Babe Ruth can be a big adjustment because it's their first time on a major league-size (baseball) diamond. And they're playing against kids who are 14 and 15."

"I explained that the first year I don't want to put you out there a lot until you're ready. I don't want you to get embarrassed or discouraged. So we talked it out and the kids came back."

"He played high school, played on the first Quincy Babe Ruth state tournament champion team. He went to college and played baseball."

"I kept him in the game. Now he's on with life and having a lot of success."

"It's all about the kids. I preach baseball first and ballplayers second. That's what I told them when they joined and that's how I coached."

MacMillan's received many prestigious honors over the years, including induction into the Eastern Massachusetts Babe Ruth Hall of Fame.

But the dugout dedication trumps them all.

"This is number one. There's no greater compliment for what you've done. My name is going to be there forever. Some people may not like that," he says with a hearty laugh. "I was outspoken. I have a reputation for speaking up when I think things are wrong."

"The dugout honor – you can't ask for anything better."

Besides coaching, MacMillan also considers himself to be a student of the game. "I still learn techniques. I learn something new every year and I mark it down. Baseball's been a labor of love."

He also conducts clinics for small groups of youngsters who want to improve their hardball skills and hopes to serve as a volunteer assistant coach for the QHS freshmen team next spring.

How does MacMillan sum up a coaching career that dates back to the days of JFK and Camelot?

"I wanted the kids to advance, to progress. Get to high school, play Legion ball and get to college if you can. That's your job. Teach the game. Wherever it goes, it goes."

"I've enjoyed every minute of coaching Babe Ruth baseball," MacMillan says.

It's been a great ride. □

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS REAL PHOTO postcard picture of Wollaston Beach was taken 80 years ago on July 31, 1933. On the other side of the Boulevard on the corner of Davis Street was Sam's Restaurant. Sam's served ice cream, salt water taffy, fried clams, cold drinks and other delights still favored by beach goers. You can see by the two signs that they also featured 3.2% "Real Beer" that was allowed to be sold just before Prohibition ended in December of that year. The old seawall shown here had just been built a few years earlier, but unlike today's wall it didn't have a walkway for strollers or joggers; car parked right up to it. But it was a great place to sit if you wanted some shade or didn't like the sand. The rowboat on the left was used by lifeguards who shared the Metropolitan Police Station across the way on the corner of Bromfield Street. Even though for many years the water in Quincy Bay was often seriously polluted with raw sewage, it didn't keep the crowds from coming to this popular and famous beach. Notice that like today all the cars parked along here seem to look alike, except for the two convertibles with white roofs. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

New Day Has Dawned In Quincy

This is the dawning of a new day for Quincy in the 21st century. I can remember back in the early 80s when I left Charlestown, MA to live in Quincy.

I laughed at that sign down by Coleman's Sporting Goods that welcomed folks to Shopperstown USA when Quincy Avenue in the downtown blocks looked like either a ghost-town or the nail cutting capital of the South Shore.

When the Quincy Concourse was first suggested, I thought that too was a joke because I saw it as a road to nowhere that couldn't help Quincy or Quincy's residents. It would be a fly-by-road for folks living further south of Boston.

Now, I see this roadway as a major road to success for the City of Quincy because soon if things go right, the downtown area will be a destination point. With new stores and downtown residential projects being planned, life will be restored to Quincy Center for the first time since the construction of the South Shore Plaza back over 50 years ago.

I give Mayor Thomas Koch credit for not just standing by wringing his hands.

He and his planners saw more for Quincy Center than hair salons and nail places. I like the concept of Smart Growth connecting new development in what had been seen as a tired area by tying it into public transportation and the Red Line.

Like Mayor James McIntyre back in the late 60s and early 70s, this mayor has his vision of the future and it is tied to public transportation and nearby highways like the Burgin Parkway linking Quincy north to Boston and south to communities that can once again have a reason for taking advantage of this new Quincy which once again will be the Hub of the South Shore.

Back nearly 45 years ago, Mayor McIntyre saw the future and found a way to make the city grow more prosperous. His vision began at State Street South and now Mayor Koch is tying it into Quincy Center.

Quincy now has a new high school, a new track and a soon-to-be new middle school.

It is a city that adds to the quality of life for its residents and more so for its children and the future within their hands.

People will now say, "Let's go to Quincy."

We don't need to be Shopperstown USA.

We need to be the City of Quincy with a vision for the future.

Public Favors Council's Right To Cut School Budgets

By SCOTT JACKSON

A public opinion poll by Mayor-Sen. James R. McIntyre showed an overwhelming majority of residents back giving city councils or town meetings the ability to cut school department budgets.

McIntyre's "What's Your Opinion?" poll was sent to residents across his Senate district in Quincy, Braintree, and Randolph. Nearly three-times as many respondents backed giving city councils or town meetings the ability to make reductions to school budgets - 587 respondents were in favor of it compared to 198 against.

In Quincy, 43 percent of a resident's property tax bill went to schools with the 57 percent funding other city expenses. Previous attempts by the City Council to reduce the budget approved by the School Committee usually met with failure, as state law gave school committees virtually autonomous rule over school budgets.

The school funding question was one of 19 questions asked by McIntyre in his poll.

Transportation was a major topic covered in the questionnaire. Respondents overwhelmingly said they did not take public transit - 962 said they did not compared to 251 who said they did. The most popular reason for not taking public transit was cost. Residents also favored creating a regional sales tax to fund the MBTA.

Respondents identified the environment as the biggest issue of the day, followed by inflation and taxes. They also felt that neither the Republican administration nor Democratic leadership was doing an effective.

By a slim margin - 595 to 547 - respondents backed lowering the voting age from 21 to 18.

MSGR. ALLSTON RETIRES FROM ST. JOE'S

Msgr. John J. Allston planned to retire from St. Joseph's Church after 23 years as the parish's pastor following Sunday's Mass.

Allston was ordained in 1920 and served at parishes in Newtown, Lowell, and Bedford before coming to St. Joseph's in 1947. He expected his last Mass to be the toughest because he would need to say farewell to the church's many parishioners.

"I love them very much and it will be very difficult, very difficult to say 'goodbye' to them Sunday," Allston said. "They have been a marvelous group of people and they have been very cooperative in every way."

Allston planned to live at St. Gregory's Parish in Dorchester with his sister. He had recently undergone surgery and wanted to rest a whole month before resuming limited duties. Allston expected to return to St. Joseph's as a pastor in the future.

"I hope to return here to celebrate Mass at the convent and at the church from time to time," he said.

Of all his accomplishments since taking over as pastor at St. Joseph's, Allston said he was most proud of renovations done to the church and its school and convent. Allston credited his parishioners for helping finance the improvements.

"They would give me anything and I couldn't have done all the work that was done here if it wasn't for them," he said.

Quincy Kids Take Part In Trip to Georges Island

Nearly 200 children from the Idill Learning Center, including kids from Quincy, recently spent a great summer day on Georges Island, in Boston Harbor, as part of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's free All Access Boston Harbor program.

This voyage was one of 21 scheduled free trips on Boston Harbor for area youth and teens. Last summer, Save the Harbor/Save the Bay brought over 6,000 youth and teens from area community organizations and youth groups on these free day trips to explore the Boston Harbor Islands.

Since 2002, the group has connected more than 75,000 youth and teens to Boston Harbor, the Boston Harbor Islands, our region's public beaches, and Boston's waterfront.

"We think it's important to share our great harbor with as many young people as possible," said Save the Harbor President Patricia Foley. "Thanks to the generosity of our donors, this year we will share the harbor with even more youth and teens."

The day starts at Boston's Bank of America Pavilion, where kids learn more about Boston Harbor, the islands and the marine environment before taking off on the Provincetown II for a day of recreation, education, and exploration in the Boston Harbor Islands.

The trip to Georges Island allows kids to not only enjoy the beautiful view of Boston Harbor, but also gives everyone there a chance to tour the historic Fort Warren and meet the infamous Lady in Black. They also can learn how to fish, catch crabs, explore, play sports with the youth staff, or just relax on the beach and beat the heat.

For many of the children on these All Access trips it is their first time on Boston Harbor and sometimes their first time on a boat. "These island adventures are a wonderful way for young people to learn about Boston Harbor's unique history and our marine environment," said Bruce Berman, Director of Strategy, Communications and Programs for Save the Harbor/Save the Bay. "They are also loads of fun."

No-Bake Chocolate Cookies

Just because it's finally summer, it doesn't mean we can't make dessert. So today's recipes are for two no-bake desserts.

One is a no-bake chocolate cookie, and the other is a no-bake bar. Both have peanut butter in them.

During the July 4th holiday, I brought the bars to the Cape as one of my contributions.

Both can be made ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator

NO-BAKE CHOCOLATE COOKIES

- 2 cups sugar
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup unsweetened cocoa
- ½ cup butter
- ½ cup crunchy peanut butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3 cups quick oatmeal
- ½ cup unsweetened coconut (optional)

Mix the sugar, milk, cocoa and butter together and boil for one minute. Remove from heat and add the peanut butter and the vanilla. After the peanut butter is melted, pour over the oatmeal and the coconut.

Stir well and drop by teaspoonfuls on a waxed-paper lined cookie sheet. Let stand for one hour. Store in the refrigerator in a tight container. Keeps well.

NO-BAKE BARS

- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup light corn syrup
- ¾ cup peanut butter
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 3 cups Special K cereal
- 12 ounces chocolate chips

Mix the sugar and corn syrup together and bring to a boil. Remove from the heat, and add the peanut butter, vanilla and cereal. Spread on a greased 15x10 inch pan and pat out evenly. Melt the chocolate and spread over the top. Refrigerator for one -hour or more. Cut into bite sized pieces.

Shelled Mussels With Linguine

When I think of making mussels, it's usually with the shells on. But recently at Whole Foods Market, I found mussels all cooked without the shells in the freezer section.

They were so easy to prepare, especially with no shells. All I had to do was to sauté them frozen in some hot oil and garlic.

MUSSELS WITH LINGUINE

- 1 pound shelled mussels
- 2 cups tomato sauce
- ½ pound linguine (or a favorite pasta)

- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 cloves garlic (chopped)
- 2 tablespoons fresh parsley or basil

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic and the mussels for a couple of minutes. The mussels didn't take long to cook even though they were frozen. Add the tomato sauce and cook until done. (About 10 minutes or so.)

Cook the pasta according to directions. Drain well and toss in the same pan, and mix until all the sauce is absorbed.

Serve with grated favorite cheese.

PURE PLATINUM

Platinum, the rarest and most valuable of precious metals, has a white luster that makes it a perfect match with the equally desirable diamond. Unlike silver, this chemically inert and corrosion-resistant metal does not tarnish when exposed to the atmosphere. Its color ranges from silvery gray and gray white to opaque white. Platinum is about 60 percent more dense than gold and about twice as dense as silver. Its history as a metal in jewelry making has been limited by early jewelers' inability to produce the temperature (3,223 degrees Fahrenheit) needed to melt the precious white metal. It was not until the heat-producing technology was sufficiently developed in the 1920s that platinum became a viable choice for the jewelry-buying public.

Because of its beauty and value, platinum jewelry has always been given as a distinctive expression of love for engagements, weddings, anniversaries, birthdays, and holidays. Our store is located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center where our mission is to educate customers, provide extraordinary personalized service and build lifelong relationships with our customers. Platinum is among the greatest, purest and rarest precious metals. It has a modest sophistication that appeals to both men and women. Call us at 617-773-3636, and allow us to assist you.

Sea Street Duplex, Bicycle Lanes Planning Board Topics

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The Quincy Planning Board met last Wednesday evening to discuss the application of John F. Chenette, Trustee of the Harvey Wharf Condominium Trust, for a site plan review of the construction of a multi-family structure in a Business B zoning district. Located at 1233 Sea St., the proposal calls for the construction of four, two bedroom duplex townhouse units to be added alongside three preexisting units.

"Given the limited scope of the project, the following Planning Board requirements were waived: wind and shadow studies, a traffic study...and outside peer review," said director of Transportation and Planning for the city of Quincy Kristina Johnson, who provided a technical review of the site plan.

"The Planning Department believes that any of the impacts related to this project will be minimal, therefore internal review by city of Quincy departments—health, DPW, planning, and engineering—will be sufficient," she said. "Generally, most of the issues raised by the interdepartmental review have been satisfactorily addressed by the applicant or are in the process of being addressed by the applicant."

Christopher Harrington, the attorney representing Chenette and the Harvey Wharf Condominium Trust, presented the board with a water drainage plan and revised site plan.

"When my client Jack Chenette purchased this property several years ago—approximately 10 years ago—this property was owned by an out-of-town real estate developer who was planning on building 10 or 11 townhouses on this project and that project did not go forward. The property wound up in foreclosure, bankruptcy, and Mr. Chenette came to acquire after that process," said Harrington.

"One of the reasons he bought this property was the he did not want to see the property developed in that way and he wanted to buy it to develop it himself in a way he thought was much more in keeping with his neighborhood—Houghs Neck—and what he saw for this property."

The size of the lot allows for the construction of an eleven unit project, however Chenette plans on only developing four additional units, which Harrington noted. "What we're proposing is something that's substantially smaller than the maximum size and height of what could be built using Resident C zoning," he said. "Resident C allows six stories...we have a project here that is substantially less than it could be under our rules. It has adequate off-street parking for all the people that live there as well as guest parking."

An existing driveway will cater to each individual townhouse. Each unit will be provided with a two car garage and two additional spaces will be added to be used as visitor parking. A preexisting drainage system will be sufficient in handling all rainwater runoff generated by the new units. Utilities such as water, sewer, and gas are already in place and require little alteration in preparation for the expected construction.

The consensus amongst the board and members of the public was overwhelmingly positive, although small concerns were raised regarding possible flooding onto abutting properties. Harrington agreed to look into the issue, even suggesting the placement of a retaining wall prior to the next meeting of the Zoning Board of Appeals which also has reviewed the case.

Joseph Hennebury of 20 Thomas St., whose property abuts the proposed work site, spoke favorably about the soon-to-be townhouses.

"In 2008, when Mr. Chenette came, he was up-front with the neighbors. He explained what the duplex was going to look like and that he was building for him and his son, but he also told us that he was building four additional units on the property at some point later on," he said. "It was like a godsend when he built on this property, got rid of the old house. Although historic [it] was in disrepair. Now the property is cleaned up and looks beautiful. I also look forward to new couples coming into the Houghs Neck area. We'd like to have some new blood, so I'm very much in favor of the project."

Ward 1 Councilor Margaret Laforest praised Chenette for his efforts in involving the surrounding community in the construction. "Jack came to me and wanted to make sure the neighbors had input on the project," she said. "What Jack has done with Harvey Wharf has substantially increased the value of the entire neighborhood...this is a project that I support."

Johnson, in addition to presenting her technical review of the Sea Street construction, also presented the board with updates regarding bicycle transportation and safety regulations for the city of Quincy.

"I'm always excited to talk about a great transportation planning and policy initiative," she said. "We don't see a lot of bicycle infrastructure in Quincy but it's certainly coming, and what we're asking the board to consider is endorsing a piece of legislation that has actually been sitting in a Senate subcommittee."

The act entitled An Act to Protect Bicyclists and Bicycle Lanes "would essentially amend...Mass general laws to prohibit and enforce no vehicles in bicycle lanes that are actually designated, painted, striped, and signed as bicycle lanes," according to Johnson.

She detailed several recent developments including Mass DOT's approval for the placement of bicycle lanes on Hancock Street which will be denoted by green striping, chevron markings, and signage, the approval of the Federal Highway Administration for the implementation of bike boxes, which allow cyclists to move safely ahead of vehicles for enhanced visibility at a stop light, and the recommendation of the Quincy Department of Public Works for bike lanes on Adams Street as part of an overall resurfacing of the area.

"The striping of bike lanes and the implementation of signage is very cost effective," said Johnson, who hopes the lanes will be in place in the fall. "It's not an expensive item and it's very easy to roll out as a standard specification as a standard resurfacing project...we don't have true bicycle lanes in Quincy yet, but it's coming."

The application of Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, Inc., was also briefly heard. The plan calls for the construction of 12, two-bedroom residential units in a three-story building with parking and additional site improvements at 178-186 East Howard St.

The case has already been before the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Proposals have been made to build on the lot in the past, however such an undertaking has been deemed difficult due to troubles placing utilities underground and the existence of privately owned billboards on the property according to an attorney representing the applicant.

The units will be used as affordable housing for veterans and their families.

The evening's meeting ended with Chairman Richard Geary bidding farewell to fellow board member William Adams who informed Mayor Thomas Koch that he will be stepping down from his position this month.

"I would like to convey my gratitude to Bill Adams for his nine years of service on the board," said Geary. "Certainly, in my formative years on the board, Bill was the chairman, and he was a great mentor to me and certainly was an insightful chairman and rendered great, valuable service to the city of Quincy on a volunteer basis, and I know he spent a great deal of his personal time beyond the realm of the monthly meeting working with the staff, participating whenever called upon."

Projects Includes Edgewater Drive, Shelton Road Seawalls Rehabilitation Work Underway

The largest-scale rehabilitation of seawalls along the city's storm-battered coast in many years is getting underway as part of Mayor Thomas Koch's Capital Improvement Plan targeting infrastructure needs citywide.

The heaviest work will be done on the long-deteriorating seawall on Edgewater Drive in Houghs Neck, which has been battered by years of high tides, storms and erosion. Engineers consider the Edgewater Drive seawall in the most serious state of decline, failing to provide adequate protection to nearby homes.

The work also includes emergency work to seawalls along Shelton Road on Adams Shore, where this year's winter storms wreaked havoc with portions of the protective seawall, and on Dorchester Street in Squantum. The Capital Improvement Plan sets aside $5 million for seawall work, the largest such investment by the city in recent history.

"Seawalls are a vital part of our coastal infrastructure, and this kind of necessary investment is a critical element to the future of our seaside neighborhoods," said Mayor Koch.

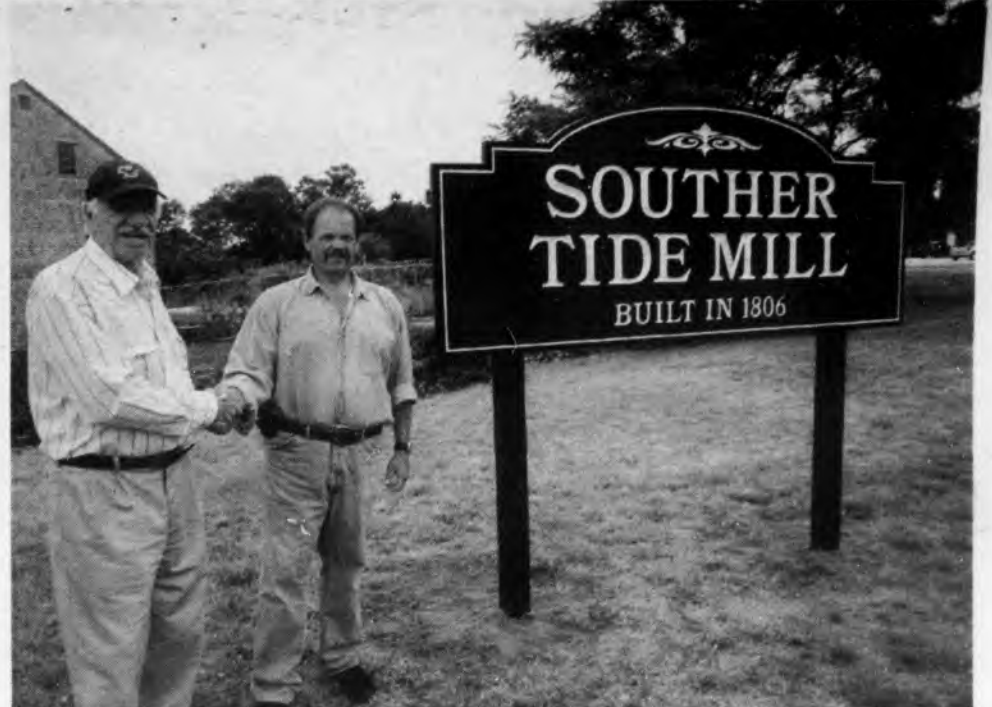

The program also entails the repair of staircases along seawalls, which will improve safe public access to Quincy's 27 miles of coastline.

The seawall program is part of Mayor Koch's $25 million Capital Improvement Plan of wide-ranging infrastructure improvements across the City, including flood control projects, new school roofs and road repairs.

The seawall portion, like many of the plan's components, is being financed partially by sources outside of the City's general fund via the hotel/motel room tax paid by visitors to the City.

Seawall repairs are subject to intense state and federal permitting, requiring nearly two years of engineering work.

Father Bill's, MainSpring Receives Community Spirit Grant

Father Bill's and MainSpring in Quincy was recently awarded $1,000 from the Harvard Pilgrim Foundation's Community Spirit 9/11 Mini-Grant program.

Two Harvard Pilgrim Health Care employees nominated the organization, which will use these funds to help provide clothing, food and shelter for those in need.

In 2012, more than 80 percent of Harvard Pilgrim employees directed a Mini-Grant to an organization they care about.

"We are so fortunate to have generous and dedicated employees who enrich our company and the communities in which we all live and work," said Karen Voci, Executive Director of the Harvard Pilgrim Foundation. "The Mini-Grant program is a wonderful way to support our employees as philanthropists and to help them make an impact in their own cities and towns."

To commemorate those Harvard Pilgrim members who lost their lives on September 11, 2001, Harvard Pilgrim and the Foundation created the Community Spirit 9/11 Mini-Grant program.

The program allows each Harvard Pilgrim employee to award a $500 grant, completely funded by the Foundation, to the local charity of his or her choice each calendar year.

Since the program began in 2002, Harvard Pilgrim employees have directed contributions to hundreds of organizations throughout Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine with grants totaling $2,942,150.

Quincy Woman Walks 16 Miles For Suicide Awareness

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

West Quincy resident Christina Duncan recently walked 16 miles from dusk until dawn in the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention 'Out Of The Darkness' overnight walk in Washington D.C. to help raise money and awareness for suicide prevention.

"I walk because of my own personal battle with depression and the stigma I have had to deal with during my life and I want to help bring the stigma that goes along with depression and suicide 'out of the darkness,'" said Duncan. "It's life changing, because you realize you're not alone. It's even more comforting to know that there are tons of others out there that feel the way you do. There are reasons that we are still here, to get others to talk about their stories, to get the help before it's too late."

Duncan has walked in the Boston community three-mile walk for the past three years and found the overnight walk when searching for suicide support groups and events.

"I heard about the community walk first through the Internet, just searching for suicide support groups and things like that," said Duncan. "Because of my own battle I wanted to see what else was out there and just searched for walks going on around the area and found the community walks, and from there I found the overnight walk."

Duncan had to raise $1,000 for the overnight walk, which she said was something she thought would be a challenge.

"I knew I could fund raise because I had done it for the community walks and in high school, but this was at a much larger scale. I was actually watching these donations coming in and thinking this might be possible. It was great that I had all these businesses giving me donations, it was very humbling," said Duncan. "I even started picking up coins while walking my dog to show that it doesn't matter what you give, as long as you're giving. I ended up raising a total of $2,025. I didn't expect that. I thought I was going to struggle to get $1,000."

Over 2,000 people joined Duncan in D.C. from 7 p.m. on June 1st to 5 a.m. on June 2nd sharing and supporting each other and seeing the sights along the route.

"It's not just about my own personal struggle, but also about the friends I've lost," said Duncan. "To me the 16 miles wasn't bad. The main challenge was the heat and being tired. Even though I took a nap, you still fight that notion that it's bed time now. Not only did we travel there, which made me tired, but people are telling you their stories and you're thinking about the people you're walking for, so it's emotionally draining as well."

Duncan said she hopes to participate in it again next year, but in the meantime

CHRISTINA DUNCAN of West Quincy walked 16 miles from dusk until dawn in Washington D.C. in the 'Out of the Darkness' overnight walk on June 1st. The walk took her past national monuments such as the Jefferson Memorial, the Lincoln Memorial and the White House.

she will continue to walk in the community walks along with be an advocate for the community chapter and possibly start a support group.

"It was a very powerful, healing walk and I hope to be able to participate in it again next year," said Duncan. "I would like to do other things to help the Boston community chapter. I signed up to be an advocate for the Boston chapter, and I also am thinking about starting a support group for suicide survivors. The whole journey was a sense of accomplishment, between the fundraising and doing the walk it was a life changing experience."

Gas Tax And Transportation

By State Sen.
JOHN F. KEENAN

A few weeks ago the State Senate and the House of Representatives passed a comprehensive transportation finance plan that allocates over $800-million to a transportation system long overdue for repair and investment. The plan includes a 3 cent increase in the gas tax. The Governor did not feel that this 3 cents increase, and other the new revenues within the plan, were sufficient to meet transportation needs, so he called for an additional 3 cents. Last week both the State Senate and the House of Representatives rejected this proposal and overrode his veto of the transportation finance plan.

Over the past couple of weeks, I received several emails and telephone calls from constituents urging me to oppose any increase of the gas tax, and several from people who were disappointed that the legislature did not raise even more money for transportation, and more money for education.

In government, as with most things in life, the challenge is finding the right balance. I believe the transportation finance bill passed by the legislature, while not perfect, does strikes a fair balance, particularly for my district, which includes Quincy, as well as the towns of Abington, Braintree, Holbrook and Rockland.

The MBTA's Red Line is used by thousands of passengers each day who live within my district, particularly in Quincy and Braintree; the plan will provide for new Red Line trains. My district has several commuter rail stations; the plan will provide for better maintenance of commuter rail cars and lines. MBTA buses travel throughout the district; the plan calls for newer buses, and keeps valuable routes in service. The MBTA garage in Quincy Center is crumbling and closed; additional revenues will give the MBTA the flexibility it needs to work with the City of Quincy and private developers to upgrade the entire Quincy Center station. With the Expressway, Route 3, Route 3A, Route 18, Route 37, Route 53, Route 228, and Route 128 all within my district, it is imperative that funds be available to keep these roads and bridges in good repair for those in the district driving to work each day.

Quite frankly, given the transportation infrastructure within my district, casting a vote for a transportation finance plan that addresses short and long term needs was an easy vote. As a fellow legislator said to me, "your district gets everything out of this plan."

By saying that it was an easy vote, however, I don't mean to minimize that the plan does call on people all across the state to pay more.

As I wrote a few weeks ago, one of my goals relative to the plan is to ensure that its funding does not unnecessarily burden any one particular group. In this context, it is important to note that the plan does not raise the income tax, and does not eliminate any of the tax exemptions that are critical to so many seniors and working class families. Admittedly, it does increase the tobacco tax, and it does change how business computer services and utility sales services are taxed. These revenues, in conjunction with the transportation plan, will help ensure adequate funding for local aid to cities and towns, for education and for basic human services.

It's also important to ensure that the new taxes within the transportation finance plan do not place Massachusetts taxpayers at a competitive disadvantage to other states. In this regard, the Massachusetts Budget and Policy Center just released a study that shows combined state and local taxes in Massachusetts in 2011, as a share of personal income, were lower than in twenty other states, and were below the national average. Even with the new revenues called for in the transportation finance plan, Massachusetts' state and local tax burden will likely stay below the national average.

As the transportation finance plan is implemented, it is vital that infrastructure improvements and services are delivered as efficiently as possible.

With this new funding, and strong oversight, Massachusetts takes an important step towards ensuring that vital transportation services and systems remain safe, reliable and equipped to meet the demands of our broad economy.

Interfaith Food Pantry Seeks Donations For School Backpack Drive

Interfaith Social Services' Food Pantry, serving the entire South Shore, is looking for donations from the community of backpacks and school supplies for distribution to local children in need.

The Food Pantry is organizing a backpacks for kids donation drive, so that they can distribute packs full of school supplies to the children of their food pantry clients. Interfaith is a multiservice center for South Shore families in need, they operate one of the largest food pantries in Greater Boston.

"Our goal is to collect 500 backpacks full of school supplies," said In-terfaith's executive director Rick Doane. "When a family is struggling to put food on their table school supplies can start to seem like a luxury. This initiative is a way that we can make sure that doesn't happen. We are about 200 backpacks short of our goal. We hope that the community will rally to help these local families in need of help."

Interfaith is asking for pre-packed backpacks to be dropped off at their office, rather than donations of individual supplies. Two types of backpacks are needed, one for grades K-5 and another for grades 6-12. All backpacks should include:

loose leaf paper, spiral notebooks, 2 pocket folders, #2 pencils and an eraser. For the K-5 backpacks they suggest including: washable markers and or crayons, glue sticks and safety scissors. For the grade 6-12 backpacks they recommend: a calculator, binder, index cards, pens, etc. Each bag should be labeled by grade level to expedite the distribution process.

Donations can be dropped off at Interfaith's office, 105 Adams St. in Quincy: Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and until 7 p.m. on Tuesdays. For more information go to www.InterfaithSocialServices.org.

No City Preliminary Election; Only Two Contested Races Nov. 5

in Coughlin, 19 Small St.

• Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes, 116 Willow Ave.

• Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee, 133 Commander Shea Blvd.

One other individual who had taken out papers— Jimmy Liang of 89 Glover Ave. — did not return them before the 5 p.m. filing deadline. Liang, who ran for councillor at-large in 2007, did not declare what office he had intended to seek when he took the papers out earlier this summer.

"It will be a quiet election year," City Clerk Joseph Shea said as the filing deadline passed at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

The past three city elections featured heavily contested races for mayor as well as contests for some council and school committee seats.

A few political footnotes based on Tuesday's filing deadline:

First, this will be third time in 73 years without a city preliminary election in Quincy. Besides 2013, preliminary elections were not needed in 1940 and 2007.

Also, Mayor Koch — who is seeking a fourth two-year term this fall — is the fifth Quincy mayor to run unopposed for re-election. The others: Tom Burgin (1940), Frank McCauley (1983), James Sheets (1991, 1993 and 1997) and William Phelan (2005).

There will be at least one question before voters on the Nov. 5 ballot. That's the binding citizens initiative petition that calls for extending the mayor's term of office from two to four years.

Signatures for another question — a non-binding survey about consolidating the city's two high schools into one high school with two campuses (one at NQHS for students in grades 9 and 10 and the other at QHS for grades 11 and 12) are still in the process of being certified.

Traveling Baby Animal Zoo Visits Hancock Park

Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center in Quincy recently hosted a visit from Linda Kauranen and her Barn Babies of Lakeville.

The residents of Hancock Park laughed and enjoyed themselves while interacting with a wide range of baby animals such as a piglet, a baby duck, a cockatoo and a host of kittens, puppies and bunnies.

"The positive affect a pet can have on the health and well-being of an older person is remarkable. The animals help lift a person's mood and give people something to focus on outside of themselves," says Laurie Brousseau, activities director at Hancock Park.

Long-term studies have proven that pet therapy and its interactive approach has significant emotional and physical benefit for seniors. Animals are effective in reducing loneliness, anxiety and depression. And the effortless act of touching and interacting with an animal can help lower a person's blood pressure and provide stress relief.

nursing center, which provides high-level rehabilitative, medical, and skilled nursing care on a short- or long-term basis.

CURTIS FRAZIER put Quincy on top for good with a lead-off homerun to right field against Ararat, ME in last Friday's 10-0 win to capture the 12-Year-Old Cal Ripken New England Regional Championship. Frazier added another solo shot to left-center field for Quincy and nearly had a third when another drive to right field was caught just inside the fence.

CONNOR McDONALD pitched a strong game for Quincy as the local team shut out Ararat, ME 10-0 last Friday in Marlborough to win the 12-Year-Old Cal Ripken New England Regional Championship. The left-hander allowed just four hits in five innings of work, with a walk and two strikeouts.

Quincy 12-Year-Olds Heading To World Series

Cal Ripken All-Stars New England Champs

By BILL GRIFFIN

There are two proud truths that have a fine ring to them when they are told.

Quincy has one of the 10 best 12-year-old Cal Ripken teams in the United States.

Quincy's 12-year old Cal Ripken team is going to the World Series in Hammond, Indiana beginning Aug. 7.

Connor McDonald pitched a four-hit shutout and Curtis Frazier slugged two home runs as Quincy completed its sweep through the New England Regionals with a 10-0 win over Maine Friday night in Marlboro which locked up a trip to the World Series.

"It was unbelievable, almost surreal," said coach Mark Free. "The kids had quite a victory pile when it was over."

Earlier in the week, Colin McGrath scattered seven hits and Anthony Rizzitano powered an eight-run fifth inning to lift Quincy to a 12-1 win over Vermont.

"You get so close to these kids, that sometimes you don't appreciate the caliber of club that they are. They played great baseball in the regionals," said Free.

They've played great baseball since the playoffs began. They were 4-0 in the regionals. They are undefeated, rolling on an 11-game playoff winning streak. The run differential in the regionals was 38-5, and the run differential for the districts, states and regionals combined is 90-13. That is special stuff.

"We stress playing fundamental baseball. Everything is built on pitching and defense. The offense can come and go, but the pitching and defense should always be there," said Free.

His team has listened well. They have given up 13 runs in 11 games since the playoffs began which is just over one run per game.

"We try to stay away from walks, make the routine plays and grind out at bats. That's good baseball on any level," said Free. "The beauty is the defense is a team thing. Everyone plays his position. I'd like to give special praise to Aidan O'Sullivan who we moved to centerfield this year and has really settled down our defense."

In the Maine game, Frazier hit the first pitch of the game for a home run and Quincy followed his lead with a six-run first.

and McDonald all had key contributions in the rally.

J.P. Kelley drilled a home run to make it 7-0 in the third. Quincy finished it in the fifth when McGrath singled, Kelley walked, Kelly doubled and Free delivered the walk-off single for the 10-0 victory.

In the Vermont contest, Kelley homered in the second. Frazier singled and scored in the fourth for a 2-0 lead, and Quincy ended it with an eight-run fifth. Rizzitano and Robinson each had a pair of hits in the inning. Rizzitano had five RBI in the frame as Quincy finished off the game in style.

Robinson and Rizzitano singled. Ben Gaudiano and O'Sullivan walked. Martin McCormack slammed a three-run home run for a 5-0 lead.

McGrath, Kelly, Free, and Robinson singled and Rizzitano then drove a grand slam home run to clear the bases and win the game for Quincy.

This team had been together since they were nine. They are a tight, but welcoming group. Robinson was a new player last year. Rizzitano came to the team this year, and in both cases, the new players were quick-

Send Off Thursday For Cal Ripken, Junior And Senior League Teams

Quincy Youth Baseball and Softball will sponsor a send-off ceremony for three tournament-bound Quincy teams at Adams Field today (Thursday.)

One of the teams is the 12-year-old Cal Ripken team which is headed for the World Series in Hammond, Indiana starting Aug. 7.

The Junior and Senior League All Stars will also be honored. Both the junior and senior teams will compete in the Northeast Regionals in Freehold, New Jersey beginning Aug. 3.

There will be a cookout for players and their families at 5:30 p.m. There will be a ceremony of appreciation at 7 p.m. The junior and senior teams will then scrimmage each other at 7:30 p.m.

ly welcomed and accepted.

"That made me ecstatic. The way the team reacted to the new players who joined us was satisfying," said Free.

In the World Series, there are two pools of five in the 10-team event. Quincy opens Aug. 9 against Ohio Valley. Quincy is guaranteed to play at least four games. Above all, Free wants his players and families to enjoy the experience.

"That's the most important thing. I want everyone, the kids and their families, to enjoy being part of all the activities and enjoy everything the World Series has to offer. That's what's important," he said.

This is a team that has built something new each year. When they were nine, they made the districts. When they were 10, they won the districts and made the states. When they were 11, they won the states and regionals, but there was no World Series for 11-year-olds. This year they have taken the next step. There is a World Series and they are in it. What's next? Who knows?

"We want to concentrate on winning one game and go from there," said Free.

After Losing First Game To Franklin Rain Postpones Two Double-Headers

Morrisette's Season Ends Before It Was Finished

By BILL GRIFFIN

It was like watching the first third of a great movie. Just as the story grows interesting, the screen goes dark with a large white message reading: The End.

Morrisette's baseball season ended before it was finished. Post 294's season did not end with a loss, but with a game or games Morrisette never had a chance to play. Even in the world of legion baseball, that is strange.

Morrisette dropped the first game of its best-of-three playoff series, 6-3 to Franklin Wednesday night. A doubleheader was rained out Thursday. Another doubleheader was rained out Friday. That's all, folks. Franklin wins. Morrisette loses. Series over. Season over.

But, coach, don't we get to play another game? Nope.

By legion rules, all first-round series had to be finished by Saturday. Those that were not finished, which meant all five Zone 6 playoff series, were won by the team that was leading the series. Franklin was leading, 1-0 in the series. Franklin wins. Were there any games played in Saturday's sunshine? No. You

"We knew the Saturday deadline was coming, but you still feel like something was taken away from you," said Morrisette coach Steve Maze. "I understand that Saturday is a day when teams need to make travel plans and if we had beaten Franklin in the first game, we would be having a different conversation."

Players want to play. If they play and lose, they are not thrilled, but they can understand it. However, to lose because games were not played is difficult, especially for those who were ending their legion careers.

"The reactions ranged from anger to frustration," said Maze. "They play for the same thing, the playoffs, and they feel it was taken away from them. They had no control over it and that's a tough way to end a season or a career."

It was especially difficult because Morrisette played well in the 6-3 loss at Franklin. Post 294 and Tom Garland carried a 3-0 lead into the fifth before Franklin rallied for the win.

Morrisette loaded the bases in the first and third. Tommy McDonald and Josh Hayward hit foul home runs which would have broken open the game. Jason Pekkinen hit a shot with the bases loaded which snagged under the fence for a ground-rule double which scored two, but cost Morrisette a run. Post 294 was a No. 5 seed against a No. 1 seed, but Morrisette learned one thing from the game. They could play with Franklin.

"I felt more confident after the first game than I did before it," said Maze.

Morrisette finished the season at 13-11. It was a season, in many ways, that was played in the shadows of Ray Cattaneo's illness and death. The captains, McDonald and Pekkinen met with the beloved Mr. Cattaneo before the season began. The team found out about his passing after a difficult doubleheader against Hyde Park which had a one-run loss and a two-run loss.

"We had six games the week Mr. C. died," said Maze. "His burial was right in the middle of it. It was a mentally bruising week for us."

Morrisette started quickly, but early losses to Zone powers Braintree and Hyde Park, games in which Post 294 held late leads, slowed down Morrisette. Post 294 rallied with quality wins over Stoughton, Cohasset and Braintree to clinch a playoff berth against Franklin.

"Anytime you beat Braintree it's big because they are so well-coached," said Maze.

Several players had an excellent year. Garland, a tough righthander, went 6-0 in the regular season and had an undefeated two-year legion career before losing to Franklin in the playoffs. Pekkinen was brilliant at third, and Eddie Riley not only played good defense at short, but delivered timely hits as well.

"Garland really developed," said Maze. "I pitched him against all the better teams and he loved it. He wanted the ball. Jason's leadership was tremendous and Riley played excellent defense which we expected, but he hit as well. Andrew Jaehnig hit the ball hard and was great behind the plate. Andrew Currie, Pat Verhault and Tyler Beach all had fine years for us. Aaron Clancy hit well when we needed him at the end of the year."

Injuries did not help. McDonald, the ace, battled shoulder problems and Grep Paulo developed a sore arm. Robbie Munroe, the best all-around hitter on the team, broke his hand and missed the final stretch of the regular season and the playoff game.

"I would have loved to have him up against Franklin with the bases loaded," said Maze.

Maze praised the character as well as the ability of his team.

"I had great kids," he said. "There were no issues, no problems. They came to practice and worked hard. They're good kids who are good students and they come from good families. They were a pleasure to coach."

Morrisette only loses Verhault, Garland, and closer Dan Cobban from this year's squad.

"If everybody comes back, and that is a big if, we should have something to roll with," said Maze. "Things change. Kids have to work, they can move to different leagues, get involved in different things, but we should have good players back."

And there is motivation from this summer and the two games Morrisette never had the chance to play.

"Unfinished business," said Maze. "Four years ago we lost on a technicality, and the next year we made the final eight in the state. I'm not saying that will happen again, but we do have motivation."

A TEAM OF 15 and 16 year olds from Quincy Youth Baseball has captured the 2013 Senior League Mass State Championship and will travel to New Jersey to compete in the 2013 Senior League Northeast Regional Tournament. Quincy will face other state champions from Maine, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Delaware with the winner earning a birth in the Senior League World Series in Bangor, Maine on Aug 11. The Rick Beach managed team won eight straight tournament games to become champions and is mostly comprised of players from the Junior League State Champions of 2011 who finished in fourth in the Northeast Regional championship. Wollaston Babe Ruth Defeats Braintree Righthander Dillon Darcy pitched a one-hitter and struck out eight to lead Wollaston a 2-0 victory over Braintree which clinched its semifinal South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League playoff series Sunday.

Wollaston won the best-of-three series, 2-1 and will face the winner of the Milton vs. Hingham series in the finals.

Chris Kerin had two hits to lead the offense for Wollaston while Darcy, Mike Pugsley and Kevin Mullin also chipped in with hits.

Wollaston scored both its runs in the sixth inning. Mullin and Kerin singled to start the rally. Padraig Geaney walked to load the bases.

Pugsley bounced a ground ball to short. Braintree went for the forceout at second, but the speedy Gainey beat the throw, and a run scored. The second run scored on the overthrow to first and Wollaston had its berth in the finals.

Final Jamie Cochrane 10K Road Race Sept. 8

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Sunday, Sept. 8th will mark the sixth and final year for the 10K Jamie Cochrane Road Race held in memory of the late Quincy police officer.

Cochrane, an eight-year veteran of the Quincy Police Department who spent most of his career in the Special Operations Unit, was killed while riding his motorcycle.

"Jamie was a wonderful friend of mine and the race was a good way to honor him," said Quincy Police Sgt. Detective Jennifer Tapper. "The family and committee felt that six years was an appropriate amount of time to honor him. The purpose of the run was initially to develop a scholarship program which we will be able to do going forward for many years to come."

The race, with all proceeds going towards scholarships to both Quincy and North Quincy High School students along with providing financial help to local charitable organizations such as QCAP, The Salvation Army, and D.O.V.E., will be held Sunday, Sept. 8 at 10 a.m., beginning and ending outside Adams Field on Merrymount Parkway.

Tapper said that because this is the last year for the race, they hope to surpass their numbers from last year.

"We usually have 1,000 runners participate, and raise around $52,000 before expenses, around $30,000 after expenses, and around $150,000 is our six-year total," said Tapper. "We would love to surpass those numbers - this being the last year."

The entry fee is $25, pre-registration on Sept. 7 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at Adams Field, and registration on the day of the race, Sept. 8, will be from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. at Adams Field.

Prizes are given out to all first, second, and third place finishers in all divisions. The kids fun run starts at 9 a.m. and is free for kids ages 2-10 and the 10k race begins at 10 a.m. Those looking to participate can register online or pick up an application in the lobby of the Quincy Police Station.

Tapper said that moving forward they might continue to do something on a smaller scale to raise funds for the scholarship program. There is also discussion of the road race changing hands but not being held for the same cause.

For more information visit their website at <http://www.cochraneroadrace.com/> or call (617) 576-9860.

Kayla Mathieu Of Milton Also Headed To PA Quincy's Nnene Ugah Competing At National Hershey Track & Field Games

Two youngsters who participated in the Quincy Recreation qualifying meet in June at the Faxon Field Track have advanced to the National Championship of the Hershey's Track and Field Games.

Nnene Ugah of Quincy will compete in the 9/10 girls 100 meter dash and Kayla Mathieu of Milton will compete in the 400 meter run. Both girls will be the guest of the Hershey Chocolate Company for an all-expenses paid trip to Hershey Park PA beginning today (Thursday) through Aug. 4.

The girls advanced to the National Championship by first winning the Quincy qualifier, which was an open meet conducted free by the recreation department. Recreation Director Barry Welch said the Quincy winners had their time and distance of each event sent to the state organizers of the games. The top eight times and distance winners from all over the state were invited to the State Championship in July at Hudson High School Track.

The girls were crowned State Champions and became eligible to vie for one of the spots on the Region six team which is all New England States and several provinces of Canada.

While the two girls were selected to attend the nationals they are not the only State Champions from the Quincy qualifier.

Thirteen other participants also earned the title state champion after the Hudson event. Devon Marshall, 9 years old, won the boy's 100 meter dash. Bryan Hanly, 13, won the boy's softball throw. Devin Hiltunen, 13, won the girls 200 meter dash. Charlotte Shapiro, 11, won the girls 800 meter run. Colette O'Leary won the girls 1600 meter run. Rosheline Molina, 13, won the girls softball throw. Mia Healy, Devin Hiltunen, Julia Kincewicz, and Alison Radzik were the champions in the girl's 13/14 relay race.

Hershey track and field games is a unique event that has gone on for more than 25 years and according to Welch is the premier youth program in America. Conducted in cooperation with the Massachusetts Recreation and Park Association and the National Recreation and Park Association all events are free for boys and girls in three age groups, 9/10, 11/12 and 13/14. With seven events in each age group the participant need only show up to the meet in sneakers to compete. The mission of the program is to provide a quality recreation program where children have fun and are introduced to physical fitness through basic track and field events such as running, jumping and throwing.

Other Quincy Champions who were selected for the state championship meet were: Tyrese Marshall in the boy's 11/12, 100 meter run and the 200 meter run. Aidan Golden in the boys 13/14, 1600 meter run. Jackson Elfer in the boys 9/10, 200 meter run. Bryan Ryder in the boys 13/14, 800 meter run. Dylan Sullivan in the boys 11/12, standing long jump. Bobby Jaehnig in the boys 9/10, softball throw. Tyrese Marshall, Timothy O'Brien, Kevin Gallagher, and Dylan Sullivan in the boys 11/12, relay. John Kennedy, Devon Marshall, Nicholas Enbar-Salo, and Kamryn Kerr in the boys 9/10, relay.

Jaleigha Williams in the girls 11/12, 100 meter run. Emma Carney in the girls 13/14, 1600 meter run. Giavana Calabro in the 11/12, 200 meter run. Elise O'Leary in the girls 11/12, 400 meter run. Alivia Healy in the girls 9/10, 50 meter run. Liana Cunningham in the girls 13/14, 800 meter run. Rosheline Molina in the girls 13/14, softball toss. Emilia Henry in the girls 9/10, softball toss. Sarah Gabriel, Giavana Calabro, Kenzie Matulonis, and Alexa Radzik in the girls 11/12, relay. Kayla Mathieu, Emilia Henry, Kiera Wilkinson, and Kylie Wright in the girls 9/10, relay.

In addition to the recreation leaders who officiated the local meets, Welch also thanked Geoff Hennessey, director of the Quincy Track Club for serving as the meet director at the Quincy meet, and relay judge at the state meet. Hennessey, through the Quincy Track Club, provides many youngsters with the same opportunity at a local level that is the same mission of the Hershey Games.

O'Connell - Thomson Basketball Tournament Aug. 24-25

The eighth annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament will be held on Aug. 24-25 at the Fenno Street courts.

The event is held in memory of John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, two standout athletes who graduated from North Quincy High in 2002 and tragically had their lives cut short in the past nine years.

Their families have set up memorial scholarships in their names to benefit North Quincy graduates and the tournament serves to raise funds for these scholarships.

The weekend will feature a 16-team men's tournament and a four-team women's tournament, featuring a number of local college basketball players, as well as many former and current high school players from Quincy. Games begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday and will run throughout both days.

The event has been a great success in the past thanks to the generous donations of local businesses and Quincy residents. Anyone interested in making a donation can write a check to the John "Okie" O'Connell Fund and send it to Dan Duggan, 61 Bedford St., Quincy 02169. (The donations will be split between the two funds).

Dave MacMillan 1st Base Dugout Dedicated At Adams Field

McDonough, Pete McDonough, Joe Brill, Jerry Bugden, Mike Sampson, Bob Lane, Dave Sullivan, Stevie Stone and Dan Dunn. The dedication took place during the recent 14-Year-Old Babe Ruth State Tournament at Adams Field.

'I AM THE happiest man in the world,' Dave MacMillan said as the first base dugout was dedicated in his honor at Adams Field during a recent ceremony. MacMillan has served as the coach of the Houghs Neck Legion Babe Ruth baseball team for 50 years.

Morrisette Junior Team Eliminated By Hudson

By BILL GRIFFIN

Life is not fair.

This is a hard truth that is too often experienced, and Morrisette's Junior Legion team learned it well in its first playoff game last week after putting up a sparkling 17-0-2 record in the regular season.

Most of the players on the junior legion also play for the Senior League All Stars. Last Monday, the Junior Legion squad opened its playoffs against Hudson at Coletta Field in Quincy. The Senior League All Stars played for the state title against Wakefield in Rockland. The games started at the same time.

Rick Beach coaches both teams. It would be wonderful, but somewhat unlikely, to be at both places at the same time. Dates and times could not be changed. He had a decision to make. He split up his team. He sent half to play Wakefield and took the other half to play Hudson. He began the legion playoffs with half a team.

"It was difficult, but it was the only decision," said Beach. "We couldn't work with the Legion to change dates and if we had forfeited, we would have been kicked out the league for next year. It was the only thing we could do."

Hudson eliminated Morrisette, 4-2. Troy Shepherd had a pair of hits. Richie Ryan was excellent in a complete-game pitching effort. All four runs were unearned. Morrisette had its chances with men on base. Post 294 played without three of the top four hitters in its lineup. They played without five starters and several players had to play out of their usual positions. No ending is fun, but this one had an especially hollow feel to it.

"It was hard on the kids," said Beach. "We had our chances, but couldn't get a timely hit. The kids had played so well together as a team all year that it was a tough loss to take."

The hardest part of it all was if the game had been played a day later, Beach would have had a full squad. The half-team from Quincy that went to Rockland defeated Wakefield and won the state title. The Senior All Stars don't play again until Aug. 3 in New Jersey. If the

Quincy Catholic Academy Thanks Norfolk County Sheriff's Office

The faculty and students of Quincy Catholic Academy wish to extend their gratitude to Sheriff Mike Bellotti and members of the Norfolk Sheriff's department for their help and participation in the school's field day held recently at Pagent Field.

Younger students enjoyed learning about the Incident Command Center and the entire school attended an interactive presentation from the K-9 unit (photo at right.)

The department also provided lunch to the students. We are grateful for the Sheriff's continued commitment to the youth of this community.

Michael Coffey, Alex Loughnane Volunteer On Service Trip To The Dominican Republic

Michael Coffey and Alex Loughnane of Quincy, seniors at Boston College High School, accompanied by three BC High teachers and nine fellow students, volunteered during the April vacation to go on a service immersion trip to the Dominican Republic. The group was based at the Spanish mission-styled ILAC Center in Santiago (Institute for Latin American Concern) affiliated with Creighton University.

Coffey and Loughnane took part in a number of activities including visits to an orphanage for mentally handicapped children, a home for the elderly, and an elementary school. The group also traveled to the small city of Dajabon, a city on the Haitian border, where they learned about some of the difficulties faced by the people of that region and where they witnessed the weekly market delivering of goods and food to and from Haiti.

They learned the history of the region through a visit to Solidaridad Fronteriza, a group that works closely with the Jesuit Refugee Service. Lastly, they traveled to a village in the countryside where they assisted in a large project whose goal is to bring clean water to sixteen rural communities.

While the immersion experience lasted only a week, all involved remarked that what they took from the Dominican Republic was a life-altering experience that will last a lifetime.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman

Chiropractor

IS A LUMBAR SPINE MRI REALLY NECESSARY?

Indiscriminate use of magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) for low back pain has become problematic in the eyes of both the American Academy of Family Physicians and American College of Physicians, who count MRI for low back pain among the top five overused tests and treatments. Recently, a panel of experts seemed to agree. When they analyzed MRI referrals at two large teaching hospitals, they found that 29% of them were not appropriate and another 27% were of "uncertain value." Family physicians had a particularly poor record of ordering MRIs that were deemed to be appropriate (34%) compared with physicians in other specialties (58%). It seems that these matters are best left in the hands of back specialists, like chiropractors.

The main difference between wellness care and standard medical care is that wellness care seeks to turn on the natural healing ability. Millions of people lead healthier and happier lives, free from chronic pain, simply because they have discovered chiropractic care. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we believe a proper chiropractic spinal analysis and spinal adjustment are essential to your good health. For gentle and safe, drug-free chiropractic care, we invite you to call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Despite the poor correlation between findings of MRIs of the lumbar spine and clinical signs and symptoms, lumbar spine scans account for about one-third of all MRIs in many regions.

Patching Damaged Hardwood Floor

Q: You recently published instructions on lifting out small dents from hardwood floors and furniture. My question is, how do you deal with larger damage, like gouges and small holes? -- Chet in NYC

A: As long as the wood isn't severely damaged, such as a cracked or broken board, and just has a few gouges, small holes or large dents that won't steam out, you can patch and smooth the damaged areas.

For this job you'll need fine-grit sandpaper, wood putty or wood patching compound, a putty knife and wood restorer. You also might need a hammer and a nail set (a large nail-like tool, not a bunch of nails) to tap loose nails down below the wood surface, should they need it.

Clear debris and dirt away from the areas to be repaired. Check the wood for splinters or other damage, and look for nail or screw heads poking up. Use a nail set and hammer to tap the nails down below the surface. If a nail won't go or stay down, or if it sits loosely, remove it and hammer a fresh nail into the wood about a half-inch down the board edge from the old nail hole. Add that nail hole to your patch list.

Using a putty knife, fill the gouged areas, small holes and the newly created holes where you tapped down errant nails with patching compound or wood putty. Work on one spot at a time, using the putty knife to force the compound into the spot and pressing the blade down until it lies flat on the floorboard. Scrape away excess compound from the edges, feathering outward.

Let the patched areas dry completely, usually at least a day. Once dry, sand each patch with fine-grit sandpaper until the compound is flush with the board surface. Sweep away the sanding debris and wipe the area with a damp, not wet, cloth.

Finally, apply wood restorer to each patched area, working one at a time, until the patch blends in with the rest of the floor.

HOME TIP: Hardwood floors need only sweeping, vacuuming and an occasional damp mop to clean them. For more thorough cleaning and conditioning, look for a hardwood floor cleaning solution.

On Friday, July 12, at approximately 6:30 p.m., Officer Matt Tobin was dispatched to Tedeschi's Food Shop at 650 Adams St. on a report of a female who just abandoned a dog by leaving it tied up outside the store. The caller described the female, adding that she was walking with a stroller and a toddler towards Quarry and Robertson Streets.

Upon arrival, the Officer spotted the female suspect with the stroller and the toddler on Quarry Street just south of Robertson Street. The suspect, upon seeing the Officer, picked up her pace and hurried the young child around the corner onto County Road. Officer Tobin approached her and explained why he was there and inquired where she was coming from. She responded, "Burger King", which is across the street from Tedeschi's.

The Officer told her that she fit the description of someone who left a dog tied up there, but the suspect adamantly denied doing this. She then admitted that she was at Tedeschi's and "took some pictures of my son with the dog because he loves dogs." She then went off on a tangent about how her building manager will not allow dogs so typically her dog stays in North Quincy with her "baby's daddy." She repeated this multiple times as if to direct the Officer's attention away from the dog left at Tedeschi's - and this conversation was not prompted by the Officer. She also said, "A woman at Tedeschi's asked me if it was my dog and I said nope - not my dog."

The suspect provided identification and identified her children as being a 9 year-old son and 5 month-old daughter. Officer Tobin, confident that the woman was the owner of the dog, told her that he did not believe what she was saying, then advised her of the severity of abandoning an animal.

Officer Parisi arrived on scene to stay with the suspect while Officer Tobin went to Tedeschi's to seek out witnesses. Officer Paul Jackson took the docile dog to the Quincy Animal Shelter staff. There were many people still standing around and one person approached Officer Tobin to say that he was the caller. He said that he worked in the area and knew that the suspect owned the dog because he had seen them together on many occasions and this was confirmed by a store employee who had seen her in the store with the dog in the past.

Another witness said that he observed the female with the stroller and her son standing with the dog tied up at Tedeschi's just after she had been in his store. Another witness stated that he observed the female suspect take photos of the dog with her children just outside the store and then walk away with her children. The store employee added that he observed the female in the store and that "her son was crying" so he asked if he was ok. The little boy responded, "No, mommy is making me get rid of my dog."

The employee then spoke with the suspect about the dog and she said, "I can't be making vet payments anymore and I need to get rid of the dog." He said he offered to help financially with the dog's needs but she refused. He said he later observed her leave the dog tied up outside Tedeschi's and leave with her two children. Now knowing that the suspect had in fact willfully abandoned her dog, Officer Tobin returned to the suspect's location and advised her of the conversations she had with witnesses. She replied, "I know I was wrong to do that." She then said, "My mother is coming to pick up my kids - I know I'm getting arrested."

She confessed to owning the dog for four years but could no longer afford the dog. Her mother arrived on scene and said that she did have concerns about her daughter's ability to properly care for her children and asked if DCF would contact her. Officer Tobin advised her he would pass along her request. The mother said that she is supportive, wants to help, was concerned for the children and would bail her if needed. She was thanked and went on her way.

Officer Tobin noted that the children appeared well cared for at this time despite their mother's poor decision making.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) There might still be some uncertainty about the decision you made. But a quick check of the facts should reassure you that you're doing the right thing.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The tidy Taurean needs to be a little more flexible about accepting some changes to those carefully made plans. You might be pleasantly surprised by what follows.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Consider stepping away from your concentrated focus on your new project for a bit so you can get some perspective on what you've done and where you plan to take it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The understandably angry Crab might not want to accept the reason why someone might have tried to hurt you. But at least you'll have an insight into why it happened.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) There might be some facts you still need to know before leaping onto center stage. Best to move carefully at this time so that you can observe what's happening around you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good time to expand your outlook by getting out and around, whether you do some long-range traveling or just explore the great things to see closer to home.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your wise counsel continues to be needed as that family situation works itself out. Meanwhile, the decisions you made on your job begin to pay off quite nicely.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your job situation brightens thanks to all your hard work. Now, spend some time repairing a personal relationship you might have neglected for too long.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Aspects favor action in the workplace. Line up your facts and show your superiors why you're the one they're looking for.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your hard work pays off on the job. Personal relationships also can benefit from more of your time and attention. Spend the weekend with loved ones.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Early feedback on your project might be disappointing. But don't be discouraged. Use it to make needed adjustments, then submit it to your superiors again.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Flattery could lure the otherwise sensible Fish into making an unwise decision. Be careful. All that praise might be an attempt to reel you in before you can learn the facts.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a wonderful sense of who you are. You are a shining example to others, helping them believe in themselves and what they can do.

Josephine Linscott, 91 Caregiver, Housekeeper

Funeral services for Josephine (Firlott) (Stevens) Linscott, 91, of Quincy, were held Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Mrs. Linscott died July 26 at the John Scott House in Braintree, where she had recently moved.

Born Aug. 7, 1921 in Northumberland, NH, she was raised in NH and was a daughter of the late Joseph & Margaret (Miller) Firlott.

Her first husband, Daniel Stevens, died in Anzio, Italy during WWII. She later remarried Daniel A. Linscott and eventually moved to Quincy in 1983. Mr. Linscott subsequently passed away as well.

Mrs. Linscott worked as a self-employed caregiver and housekeeper in Quincy for many years. In retirement, she enjoyed socializing and participating in many daily activities including bingo, singing and playing various games. She never missed an activity. Whenever it was available, she attended church and recited the Rosary.

She was thankful for all of the assistance she received in her later years, especially the help in preparing meals for her friends in the senior housing development where she lived.

She was the mother of the late Peggy Chadborne and David Stevens. Sister of Vonnie Astle of Michigan, and the late Marie, Eunice and David Firlott. Also survived by 2 granddaughters and their families, nieces, nephews and many dear friends including the staff of the John Scott House and her hospice caregivers.

She will be missed by her "friendly visitors" of many years, Sally and Bob, and by her "extended/adopted" family who have helped and guided her over the past 30 years, the Butman and Partridge families.

A private burial will take place at the family plot in St. Francis Xavier Cemetery, Groveton, NH.

Hudson game is Tuesday instead of Monday, Morrisette shows up with a full squad that had not lost a game since April.

"I honestly think we would have been playing for the state title if we had our full team from the start," said Beach.

Even in defeat, the closeness of the team made a hard day a bit easier.

"After the Senior All Stars won, they drove straight to Quincy," said Beach. "They showed up in time for the seventh inning and rooted us on. I think that meant a lot to the kids. Afterwards, we all went out for a team dinner to Grumpy White's and that made it much better for the kids."

An undefeated season is always an accomplishment. It is especially true with baseball in the summer. There are family vacations, the distractions of the season, hot days of games and practices when friends go to the beach or the mall. It takes ability and a love of the game to win them all in a legion season.

"It was an awesome season," said Beach. "These kids have been playing together since they were nine years old. They love to play the game. We played good defense and we got timely hitting. It seemed whenever we needed a big hit, we got it."

And they ran. Speed and daring on the bases were the trademarks of this team. They stole bases, they forced mistakes and they never stopped running. Throw them out once. They kept running. Throw them out twice. They ran so more.

"I think we averaged over five steals a game," said Beach. "The kids love to play that style. They knew if we got to first, we were going for second right away. It keeps them in the game. Even if we were thrown out, no matter what happened, we were going to keep running."

Ryan and Ethan Yau pitched well. Ryan has an excellent curveball which he mixes with a good fastball. Yau has a solid fastball and excellent control. Dave Suslowicz was rock-solid in relief all season.

"Richie pitched well all year, and Ethan is a bulldog. He doesn't think anybody should ever get a hit," said Beach. "Dave might have actually suffered because he was so good in relief. He's an ace, good enough to start, but I can trust him in any situation, so I used him a lot in relief."

Brendan McDonald had a terrific season in the lead-off spot.

"He was the biggest surprise of the season," said Beach. "He was fantastic. He hit the ball hard, walked and got on base all season."

The sting of the Hudson loss is still there, but has started to fade. After all, there is still baseball to be played.

"I think that helps. We still have games to play. There's the Senior League Regionals in New Jersey and there's still baseball to look forward to," said Beach.

Social Security Goes Mobile

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Now, in the heart of summertime, is time to think about spending some fun time with family and friends.

Going on vacation — whether to visit some of the nation's great national and state parks or traveling to other fun destinations — doesn't mean you need to disconnect completely. In fact, our new mobile website makes it easy for you to get the Social Security information you need when you're on the go. As long as you have an Internet connection, you're connected to Social Security.

You might not take your laptop with you to a national park, but you'll probably have your phone. You may be wondering: just how much Social Security business can I do on a smartphone? You may be surprised.

We recently released Social Security Mobile to allow for a smoother and more enjoyable online experience for people who want to access www.socialsecurity.gov using a smartphone. Most people who want to access Social Security by smartphone are interested in getting the information they need quickly and efficiently. To accommodate this "grab it on the go" frame of mind, we've designed a mobile site that is as easy on the eye as it is to navigate.

Social Security Mobile features 10 items of interest, easily accessible by touching the tiles on your smartphone's screen. These items include popular topics from our standard website, such as frequently asked questions, Social Security card and number, and publications. For example, you can either read or listen to our entire library of publications on your smartphone. The quick summaries will make it easy to make sure you access the publication you want. As you relax beneath a tree, you may want to use the mobile site's "decision tree" to help identify documents you need for a new or replacement Social Security card.

Will everything on our website be included in the mobile website? No. Instead, our mobile site is designed to bring you the content you're most likely to want on the go. Keep in mind that this is not an app you have to download. The website is conveniently designed to run on your smartphone's browser. You don't have to download anything from an app store; just visit www.socialsecurity.gov on your smartphone and you will automatically visit the mobile website. And if you decide you need to browse the full website, you can do that easily.

Remember, Social Security is happy to help you even when you're enjoying a day at the park. We are always working for you, even when you are relaxing. Visit our mobile website at www.socialsecurity.gov from your smartphone today.

The Officers waited for the children to be driven off before handcuffing the mother. The suspect, a 25 year-old Quincy resident, was charged with, "Animal Cruelty - the willful abandonment of her dog." At the request of the suspect's mother, Officer Tobin filed a report with DCF too.

Nice Work!

NICE WORK also goes out to Officer Mark Smith, who was working a detail in Quincy Square when he observed a male that met the description of a suspect involved in the theft of numerous pieces of jewelry from a local merchant. He was able to direct Officers to the suspect's location and once detained, many jewelry items were found on him, which subsequently led to the arrest of this career criminal residing in Quincy.

INTERNATIONAL SCAM: the victim, in the U.S. on a student visa received a telephone call from a person claiming to be with Immigrations. The caller told the victim that she failed to fill in line #20 on her I-94 form and was subject to arrest and deportation unless she paid the fine by following directions given to her. The victim was instructed to go to the nearest Rite-Aid and purchase $2,203 in greenmoney.com cards and have the money transferred electronically to numbers provided. In closing, she was advised that she had only three hours to comply.

The victim went to Rite-Aid, but before she went through with the transaction, she called her bank for advice and they told her to contact the Police. In this case, the caller knew enough information about the victim and was convincing enough to get her to act.

Immigrations and any other agency involved in legal proceedings rarely collect fines directly or contact the person via telephone without initial mailing of information.

FOUR SQUANTUM girls recently held a lemonade stand and bake sale raising more than $13,000 for the family of Martin and Jane Richard. Martin, age 8, was killed and his younger sister Jane was seriously wounded in the Boston Marathon bombing tragedy in April. Their parents were also injured. From left are: Lauren Manning, 10, Brigid Norris, 10, Ciara O'Connor, 9, and Mary Loney, 10. With them is Quincy resident Mark Cronin (center), who lost his leg in an accident a few years ago. Cronin heard about what the girls were doing and made it a point to stop by and donate. Cronin made a very generous contribution to the fund and explained to the girls how wonderful it was what they were doing. He also gave the girls money to have a pizza party for themselves. New Middle School May Not Be Ready For Staff, Students By First Day Of Classes

Decision Friday On New Central Opening

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

School and City officials plan to make an announcement no later than tomorrow (Friday) on whether or not the New Central Middle School will be ready for students to move in by Sept. 4th.

"What we have to look at, as construction winds down, is there enough time for the staff to receive the proper training they need and the time they need to be familiar with the school and be truly prepared for the students to arrive," School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said Tuesday. "What we do know is the auditorium and the gym may not be complete but the classroom areas and student dining area will be complete, according to the contractor.

Adams Statues To Be Part Of Park Plan

Existing statues of John and Abigail Adams will be incorporated into designs for the Adams Green public space in Quincy Center, Mayor Thomas Koch said this week.

The life-size statues, donated to the City by the Quincy Partnership more than a decade ago, are expected to complement plans for the public park that will also include new sculptures.

The new sculptures will take their place in the promenade now under design between the First Parish Church and City Hall that will transform what is now an unwelcoming traffic cluster into a world-class public space that proclaims the City's vital place in American history, according

Matthew Roach Restores Sundial At Quincy Homestead

Boy Scout Awarded Rank Of Eagle Scout

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Boy Scout from Quincy Point was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout recently for restoring a century-old sundial at one of the city's historic landmarks.

Matthew Roach worked from September to April to restore the 100-year-old sundial at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead. The eighteen-year-old recent Quincy High graduate was assisted by other members of his troop, Troop 20 out of St. Ann's Church. The troop was taking part in Cleaner, Greener day at the homestead when Roach decided he would restore the sundial as his Eagle Scout project.

"We were doing Cleaner, Greener. My troop was at the Dorothy Quincy house and I asked the caretaker if there was anything that needed to be done," Roach said. "One of the things she showed me was the sundial. They didn't have it sitting out, they had it taken out of the base because the fin was gone and it was sitting inside the house and it was just the cement base there."

The first task Roach undertook was cleaning the sundial's copper surface to remove its patina and reveal detailing on its face. To do so, and to protect the integrity of the copper, Roach used two common household items – lemon juice and salt – instead of a harsh cleaner.

"First I cleaned it with lemon juice and salt – the lemon juice is a weak acid and the salt is a light abrasive, it would scratch it just barely but not leave any marks so I was able to work the lemon juice better," Roach said. "That got a lot of the patina off and when it did that it brought out a lot of the little engravings, all the little details you couldn't see with the patina. I did that all with the other Scouts then had them polish it – we got some polish from the hardware store and a buffer wheel and polished that up."

THE SUNDIAL'S old fin, which casts the shadow used to tell time, had gone missing so Roach needed to make and install new one. "We checked it out and it was able to get the time roughly within a couple minutes," Roach said of the sundial's accuracy.

The next step was attaching a new fin – the piece of metal that juts up from the sundial's face, casting the shadow that tells time. Originally Roach thought the sundial was solid copper and would have just welded a new copper fin on. But the sundial was copper plated brass, so he had to take extra care when attaching the fin, which he cut by hand based on another sundial near the school.

"We couldn't actually weld the solid copper that we got for it to the base because it's an alloy and it wouldn't weld right and end up destroying the whole face – that would be bad,"

One Bank Robbery Suspect Arrested, Another Sought

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Quincy Police have arrested the July 27th female Citizens Bank robber and are now looking for the suspect in the Monday robbery of Eastern Bank on Franklin St.

According to police, at around 12:43 p.m. on Monday, a 5-foot-6 white male, approximately 180 pounds, wearing a white tee shirt and black hat, entered the Eastern Bank at 63 Franklin St. and passed a note to the teller.

"The suspect showed the note which said, '20's, 50's and 100's no dye packs'," said Quincy Police Captain John Dougan. "No weapon was alluded to, and he fled on Water Street towards West Quincy in a tan or brown Mercedes with an undetermined amount of cash."

Dougan said this is the 19th time the bank has been robbed since 2002, and the third time this year.

While police are still searching for the male suspect in Monday afternoon's robbery, they were able to arrest and charge 35-year-old Rebecca Neal of 511 Hancock St. on Aug. 2 with armed robbery and larceny over $250, after receiving multiple tips that she was the suspect they were looking for in the July 27th robbery of Citizens Bank at 371 Hancock St.

"We put out her picture and information and received multiple tips and calls," said Dougan. "We received a call on Aug. 2 saying she might be down at the Marshall's on Newport Ave. and sure enough she was there."

When police responded,

Dougan said they observed that Neal fit the description in the bank pictures and video and approached her as she exited the store.

"When she came out of the store officers asked her, 'Do you have anything to tell us,'" said Dougan. "At which point she broke down crying and said, 'I robbed a bank.'"

Neal was due to be arraigned at Quincy District Court on Monday.

Anyone with any information about the suspect in the Eastern Bank robbery is asked to call the Quincy police at (617) 479-1212.

Quincy Man, Shot In 2010, Found Guilty In 2012 Shooting

A 20-year-old Quincy man has been sentenced to three to five years in state prison after being found guilty Monday of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon in a June 2012 shooting.

Johnell Monteiro was sentenced by Judge Robert C. Cosgrove after a Norfolk County Superior Court jury found him guilty.

"He was immediately led away to begin serving his sentence," said Norfolk County Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey.

The Quincy Police Department was called to the apartment building at 127 Federal Ave. on three separate occasions on June 17, 2012 because of an ongoing feud between the residents of two apartments there before the call for the shooting. At some point, the feuding parties agreed to settle the matter by way of a fist-fight in the back yard. When that fight did not progress as Johnell Monteiro, a friend of one of the warring parties, wanted it to, he produced a gun and shot the victim, prosecutors said.

"The Quincy Police Department's investigation into the shooting was swift and successful in establishing probable cause for these charges," Morrissey said. "I extend my thanks to the QPD, Assistant District Attorney Jason Mohan and Victim Advocate Lynne Cipullo for the professional prosecution of this case."

Mohan had requested an 8 to 10 year sentence after the verdict.

Monteiro, of Copeland Street, was also convicted of carrying a firearm without an FID card and discharging a firearm within 500 feet of a dwelling. He was acquitted of attempted murder — possibly based on the level of injury to the victim, who was treated and released from a local hospital the same day.

Prosecutors found no evidence that the June 17, 2012 shooting had any link to the February 2010 incident in which Monteiro was shot during an altercation at North Quincy High School.

At Colonial Federal Savings Bank, free checking is free (Direct Deposit not required!)

The new free checking account customers we're seeing lately have something in common. They're aggravated beyond belief with their old bank. They've had it with not being able to call their branch directly. They're sick of the constant staff turnover. When their old bank dropped overdraft protection and started charging monthly fees, these folks got fed up and decided to make a change too. They came to Colonial Federal, where free checking is convenient, easy and still free. You get everything you're accustomed to, without the aggravation. You can come see us or call any time. We answer our own phones, no call center. We'll even help you move your Direct Deposit, if you want. THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Aug. 22, 1776, the British arrive at Long Island -- between Gravesend and New Utrecht -- with 24,000 men, and on Sept. 15 captured New York City. It would remain in British hands until the end of the war.

- On Aug. 20, 1862, New York Tribune editor Horace Greeley publishes a blistering editorial, "The Prayer of Twenty Millions," calling on President Abraham Lincoln to declare emancipation for all slaves. Unbeknownst to Greeley, Lincoln was already moving in the direction of emancipation.

- On Aug. 24, 1873, William Henry Jackson becomes the first person to photograph Colorado's elusive Mount of the Holy Cross, providing reliable proof of its existence. Two deep snow-filled ravines at 90-angles form a large cross on the steep northeast face of a 14,000-foot mountain peak.

- On Aug. 19, 1909, the first race is held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in Indiana, now the home of the Indianapolis 500. The track's surface of crushed rock and tar proved a disaster, breaking up and causing the deaths of two drivers, two mechanics and two spectators.

- On Aug. 21, 1935, the Swing Era begins with Benny Goodman's triumphant Palomar Ballroom performance in Los Angeles. When his relatively staid arrangements began to lose the young crowd, Goodman pulled out upbeat, syncopated rhythm arrangements -- to the crowd's immense delight -- and swing was born.

- On Aug. 25, 1950, in anticipation of a crippling strike by railroad workers, President Harry Truman issues an executive order putting America's railroads under the control of the U.S. Army. The railroad strike lasted for 21 months. He used the same justification for seizing control of steel plants when the United Steel Workers union struck later in the year.

- On Aug. 23, 1989, as punishment for betting on baseball, Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose accepts a settlement that includes a lifetime ban from the game. Rose continued to proclaim his innocence, but in 2004, Rose published "My Prison Without Bars," in which he finally confessed to gambling on the Reds.

The Father Of Sunday Baseball

Drive by Adams Field on a Sunday during the spring and summer and you're bound to see baseball players on the field enjoying America's pastime.

But did you know that playing baseball on Sunday -- both professional and amateur -- was once banned?

And, it was a Quincy resident who led the effort to change the law to allow games on the "Lord's Day?"

It's an interesting story and we first would like to thank one of our readers, Richard Scanlon of Cranch Street in Quincy, to bring this important piece of local history to our attention.

Scanlon, who is 44 and works as a video editor in Boston, emailed us earlier this summer about Fred Doe, a Quincy man who was known as the "father of Sunday baseball." Doe played mainly minor league baseball in New England during the late 1880s and later became a manager and owner in the early 1900s.

FRED DOE

During this era, baseball was not permitted on Sundays in the Bay State. Baseball team owners lobbied the state legislature to change the law. They had seen how baseball was flourishing on Sundays in other states.

So, in 1920, the state legislature finally passed a provision allowing amateur baseball on Sunday. Doe and other supporters focused their attention on expanding the law for professional players. Despite collecting 26,000 signatures from supporters, the House and Senate eventually voted down legislation in 1925 that would have allowed Sunday baseball.

But Doe and others continued their efforts and the initiative was approved by voters as a state ballot question in 1928. The following spring -- May 5, 1929, the first Sunday game in the New England League was played in New Bedford. Some 3,500 fans were reported in attendance.

This episode in sports history is highlighted in the book "Sunday Baseball: The Major Leagues' Struggle to Play Baseball on the Lord's Day 1876-1934" written by Charlie Bevis. There's a chapter in the book that highlights Doe and the tribute he received in Quincy for his contributions to baseball following his death 75 years ago this fall.

Fred Doe lived in Quincy for about 30 years from 1908 until his death at the age of 75 on Oct. 4, 1938. He had lived on Billings Street. (You won't find his name listed in the city directory. That's because he maintained his official residence in New Bedford for voting purposes.)

When he died, Fred Doe was known as one of the most influential and colorful figures in athletics.

And the baseball community remembered his life dedicated to baseball at a tribute the following July at Adams Field -- one of the finest amateur ballparks in New England.

The story unfolds on July 6, 1939 when the National League's Boston Bees (later known as the Boston Braves) headed by future Hall of Fame manager Casey Stengel played an exhibition game against the South Shore All-Stars at Adams Field. The game was played to honor the passing of Fred Doe. According to news accounts, the team was escorted by "motorcycled police" over the Neponset Bridge and arrived at the municipal stadium (Veterans' Memorial Stadium) where they were met by many fans and greeters.

Among those at the stadium were Jeppie Saunders, coach of the South Shore team; Mayor Thomas S. Burgin, Burgin's secretary and former prominent local newspaperman John E. Thomas; and Irving Badger, a former member of the Quincy Hospital Board. The group adjourned to Adams Field where ceremony was held honoring Doe's memory.

One news story reported that Park Department Foreman Harry Boyd had done everything humanly possible to get the grounds in perfect shape for the exhibition game. A new pitcher's mound and batters' boxes were built with a special clay that was donated by the management of the Boston Bees. A new comfort station was completed opposite Adams Field for the convenience of the fans.

Tributes were telegraphed from Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball; President William Harridge, American League president; Ford Frick, National League president and Thomas Yawkey, president of the Boston Red Sox.

News stories also reported that before the game, a drinking fountain behind the backstop was dedicated in memory of Doe. The memorial fountain was constructed by former Ward 6 City Councillor Roy A. Means and designed by Channing W. Porter of 31 Appleton St., North Quincy.

Miss Josephine L. Kelley, a North Quincy school teacher, unveiled the fountain behind the backstop.

William M. Trusselle, chairman of the Quincy Parks Commission, stood behind a microphone in front of the backstop and explained the purpose of "Fred Doe Day" was to honor the "father" of Sunday baseball in Massachusetts.

Rev. John H. Quinland of St. Ann's Church then blessed the new fountain.

The Bees defeated the All-Stars 11-2 that afternoon as a crowd of 3,500 spectators looked on.

After the game, a reception for the Bees was held at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. Mayor Burgin served as master of ceremonies. Among those seated with Mayor Burgin at the head table were Boston Mayor Maurice Tobin, Brockton Mayor Fred Rowe, New Bedford Mayor Leo Carney, and the Bees President Robert Quinn and Secretary John Quinn.

President Quinn, in his keynote remarks, spoke about Fred Doe's leading role to pass legislation allowing Sunday baseball in Massachusetts. Quinn was given a standing ovation by about 100 males. They then bowed their heads in silent prayer to show their respect in memory of Fred Doe.

Scanlon has visited Adams Field on numerous occasions and tells us he has not seen any marker or any reference to this important day in Quincy's history. He's also curious to find out what happened to the memorial fountain that was supposed to be a permanent memorial.

We are too.

And we also think it would be a good idea for a plaque or some other permanent marker honoring Fred Doe be placed somewhere at Adams Field.

July 6, 2014 -- the 75th anniversary of Fred Doe Day at Adams Field -- would be an appropriate day.

It is -- after all -- a Sunday.

Scenes From Yesterday

Quincy, Mass. The Dorothy Quincy House. (Better known as "The Dorothy Q. House")

THIS IS A 1913 postcard view of the Quincy Homestead on Hancock Street at the corner of Butler Road. The house was home to five generations of Quincy families but has been long known as the Dorothy Q. or Dorothy Quincy House. Dorothy Quincy was to marry John Hancock here in 1776, but the start of the Revolutionary War disrupted their plans. He was being sought after as a traitor by the British as a signer of the Declaration of Independence and the Redcoats were hot on his trail. So they hurriedly escaped to Connecticut and were married in Fairfield. The room in this house that was prepared for their wedding still has the old wallpaper on the walls. To the left of the house just out of view in this picture was a dam that caused the Furnace Brook to create the large pond in the foreground. During the Great Depression, WPA workers took out the dam and narrowed the brook with granite embankments. This house is now registered as a National Historic Landmark and is open occasionally to visitors. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Compassion - Not Handcuffs - For Pet Owner

I wish to make a comment regarding the "A Job Well Done" section written by Lt. Dan Minton.

The article refers to a young woman with two children who is no longer able to care for the family pet and left it tied to a post in front of Tedeschi's store.

It seems quite clear that the family is under financial strain and it becomes a question of caring for her family or bringing additional hardship caring for the pet.

She appears not to be able to take the pet to the Quincy Animal Shelter with the hope that it will be put up for adoption. So, instead of the mother being treated with compassion, she was placed in handcuffs and charged with Animal Cruelty.

"Well Done," I don't think so!!

Well done would have been if she and her children were taken to the Quincy Animal Center and explained that their pet was going to be well taken care of and put up for adoption by a "nice" family.

Well Done would have been to show some understanding with this young family instead of placing them into more hardship by putting their mother through the court system and forcing them into more financial difficulties.

Just think of the cost to the Quincy tax payer to have "three" Police Officers involved in handling this incident.

How much more compassionate it would have been to have taken the dog and family and resolved the problem in an amiable fashion.

Facelift For Dorothy Quincy Homestead

By SCOTT JACKSON

MDC Commissioner John W. Sears announced that the Dorothy Quincy Homestead was due to receive $20,000 worth of renovations, including an external facelift, structural uplift, and landscaping.

Sears the exterior of the homestead - built in 1636 by William Coddington, the treasurer of Massachusetts Bay Colony at the time, and added to in 1706 by Edmund Quincy - would be repainted. A serious structural failure in the building's southeast corner would also be fixed during the renovation, and extensive landscaping was planned.

Abbott Cummings, director of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, took a piece of clapboard from an original section of the house to determine the correct Colonial-era color of the house - widely believed to be a shade of yellow seen elsewhere in New England. The paint would then be mixed to match that shade as closely as possible, along with contrasting black shutters and white trim.

The Massachusetts Chapter of Colonial Dames, who managed the property, planned to work with the MDC to design a historically sensitive landscaping plan, including new pathways, trees, and herb and flower gardens.

The work was being paid for by a $10,000 grant from the U.S. Department of the Interior and $10,000 from the MDC, the owners of the property.

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead, located at 34 Butler Rd., was the birthplace of Dorothy Quincy - John Hancock's wife. "Dear Cutie, I love you and you alone," a love note etched into one of the window that Hancock is said to have written while courting her, was to be preserved during the renovations.

SHERRY'S UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Sherry's Restaurant, 579 Southern Artery, was purchased by Sea Street resident Robert E. Galligan.

Galligan, 29, purchased the restaurant and its function hall from Denis Donoghue and Edward Baldovin. He planned to renovate the building's interior in preparation for a grand opening in September.

"We're going with an early American theme and nautical atmosphere because the dining area is called the Quincy Room and the function hall is the Presidential Room," Galligan said.

"A newspaper article about 17 years ago said 'Sherry's is as much a part of Quincy as its historical landmarks,' and I intend to maintain that feeling."

The building was a dancehall known as Diana's in the 1920s, before it was subsequently expanded into a restaurant and lounge.

Quincy Author To Discuss 'Journey From San Rocco' Aug. 20

Quincy author Rosalind Cuschera will discuss her book "Journey from San Rocco" Tuesday, Aug. 20 at 7 p.m. in the Community Room of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The story follows her family's history from 1918 to 2006. A widow alone with four children in war-torn Italy after World War I, is given the opportunity to travel to America and marry a wealthy widower. This may be her only chance for prosperity and happiness, but is she willing to accept his terms that she is to bring only one child for now to America?

The three children left behind are put in orphanages or with relatives. Did the woman find a better life and at what cost? What happens to these children during the years of separation, and what are the family dynamics of separated and then joined families as they struggle to achieve the American dream?

Cuschera will do a reading and talk about writing memoirs and stories based on her experiences with the UMASS Osher Lifelong Institute (OLLI) writing program, and offer a brief overview of self-publishing. Signed copies of "Journey from San Rocco" will be available for purchase.

Cuschera was born and educated in Massachusetts and is a lifelong Quincy resident. She retired from Hewlett-Packard's Medical Products Group and is currently involved in various volunteer activities, lifelong learning pursuits, and travel.

Cuschera is a member of the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library Board and is active in their bookstore. She recently retired as Vice-Chairperson and Day Trips Coordinator for UMASS Boston's OLLI Board of Directors. She is a volunteer at Quincy Medical Center and on the Board of Holy Trinity Parish in Quincy. She is the mother of two children and has five grandsons - all living in Quincy.

Squantum Girls Raise Over $13,000 For Richard Family

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

This past April four Squantum Elementary School fourth graders rallied together to raise over $13,000 for the youngest victim of the Boston Marathon tragedy Martin Richard and his family.

The four girls, Ciara O'Connor, Lauren Manning, Brigid Norris and Mary Loney, started their fundraising efforts by opening a lemonade stand and raising nearly $500 within the few hours it was open before rain forced them to close it. After seeing the success of their initial lemonade stand the girls decided to hold something bigger so they opened a lemonade stand and bake sale on April 18th raising over $4,000 in the matter of a few hours.

In honor of Martin Richard, whose picture with the sign 'No more hurting people, Peace' spread all over the world, the girls decided to sell peace cookies throughout 10 elementary schools in the city.

"We met with Superintendent (Dr. Richard) DeCristofaro and told him what we wanted to do and he was wonderful about it, and very supportive," said Diane O'Connor, the mother of nine-year-old Ciara. "He came up with the idea that since Martin was a third grader that we give every third grader a peace cookie, which we were able to do by selling them for $1 to the rest of the grades. In many cases, because some students bought multiple cookies, we were able to make more than the cost of the cookies along with providing a cookie for each third grader. It was a great success."

Now, after the cookie sale, with the help of Ginger Betty's, the girls were able to donate $13,311 to the Richard's family fund.

"People just wanted to help. The girls were just in shock at how much they were able to raise," said O'Connor. "They ended up selling 2,037 cookies. We also received many donations from people who just heard about what they were trying to do so they just dropped off donations or mailed them in. I even had people who saw me in the grocery store and knew what the girls were doing so they donated. It just worked out really well."

SOUTH SHORE YMCA and the Prime Motor Group recently teamed up to raise $10,000 to benefit the Send a Kid to Camp Program. With every new or used vehicle sold, the Prime Motor Group made a donation to the YMCA Send a Kid to Camp Program. On a recent sunny day at Camp Gordon Clark, David Hazletts, General Manager of Prime Infiniti of Hanover, presented a check for $10,875.00 to Cheryl Botieri, Vice Presi-

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Crab, Lobster Fettucine

At our usual July 4th gathering at the Cape at my daughter Nancy and Jed's place, we found two large crabs and one lobster left over from the day before.

We appointed my daughter Rita (the patient one) to gently pick the meats from both. It took her awhile, but well worth it in the end.

Because we had already earlier in the day enjoyed the usual hot dogs, burgers, and all the other foods, we decided not to make the crabs and lobster into rolls.

I was elected to make something out of them, so I opted to fix them with pasta. So easy as you will see,

CRABS, LOBSTER FETTUCCINE

- 2 large crabs
- 1 lobster
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 3 tablespoons butter
- ½ pound fettuccine
- Grated Parmesan cheese (optional)
- 2 cloves garlic
- Salt and pepper to taste

In hot oil and butter, sauté the garlic. Cook the fettuccine according to directions. Drain and toss in the pan with the oil and butter. Add the crab and lobster meat and mix well until well absorbed. It got raves.

Eggplant, Turkey Casserole

Many people enjoy eggplant, but often just don't have the time to prepare it. Today's recipe is a lot easier to make, and just as delicious.

I used ground turkey when I made it, but any ground meat will do.

EGGPLANT CASSEROLE

- 1 medium sized eggplant (diced) I left the skin on)
- ½ pound ground turkey
- ¼ cup white wine (optional)
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 small onion (chopped)
- ¼ cup grated Romano cheese
- 2 cups tomato sauce

- 1- tablespoon basil or oregano
- 1-8 ounce package of mozzarella cheese
- Seasoned breadcrumbs for topping

In a skillet, heat up the oil, and sauté the onion, eggplant, ground turkey until meat is lightly browned. Add the basil, the wine, the tomato sauce, and the grated cheese. Mix until well blended.

In a slightly greased casserole dish, layer the eggplant mixture, then the shredded cheese. Top it with the breadcrumbs and more shredded cheese, and bake in a 350-degree oven until done. (About 25 minutes.)

Serve with rice, noodles or baked potatoes.

Domestic Workers Photo Exhibit At Library

A public reception will be held with photographer Mario Quiroz-Servellón Saturday, Aug. 10 from 2:30 to 4 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

His photo essay about the struggle of domestic workers and their effort to achieve a Domestic Workers' Bill of Rights is on exhibit through Aug. 30 in the Coletti Reading Room of the library.

Explore the invisible faces of the people who help the Massachusetts economy move forward. No scientist or teacher could go to work if they didn't count on somebody taking care of their loved ones back home.

These workers are often exploited and their rights ignored.

Quiroz-Servellón is a freelance documentary photographer specializing on immigration issues in the U.S. and Central America. He was born in San Salvador, El Salvador and now lives in Cambridge.

'I Want Us To Be A Warmer, Kinder, More Wonderful Place To Be'

Jim Lydon Accenting Public Service As New QHA Executive Director

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Jim Lydon has only been the Executive Director of the Quincy Housing Authority for eight weeks, but he's already started to make an impact with residents.

"I was here for just a couple of days and I had a very frail, elderly woman, probably in her late 70s, come down to me and she asked me if she could talk to me and I immediately invited her [to my office] and...she said you know we have some terrible, terrible potholes in our parking lot."

The two went out to investigate. Lydon acted immediately to have three large potholes filled. To show her gratitude she sent him a card thanking him for his prompt action, writing inside that he was a "gentleman and a scholar."

"That word kind of travels around the authority so that I have residents that are calling directly to me when they feel as though they have a need that needs to be addressed."

Since he began his career, he's worked in one way or another to service the public.

"I've always felt that public service and helping people has been an important part of my life," says Lydon, who worked with the Quincy Planning Department, eventually becoming Director of Planning and Community Development from 1979 to 1985.

He then left for a position with the Ricciardi Company; a real estate development firm located in Quincy which constructed the Captain's Cove condominiums and was also at the time, according to Lydon, "the single largest owner of undeveloped land in the city of Quincy."

His need for new and challenging experiences eventually lead him to create his own company, Urban Counsel Inc., which specialized in neighborhood and government relation services with financial firms. Two years passed, leaving him with a need to move in another direction.

"I was presented with the opportunity to become the executive director of an operation called The Boston-Fenway Program," says Lydon. "It represented, then, 14 institutions over in the Fenway area including the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Northeastern University, and we did all the government relations work for any of the institutions other than Northeastern which had its own government relations department. But what I think the biggest thing we did was we did all the joint planning work amongst the institutions that resulted in all those improvements we see up and down Huntington Avenue."

Impressed with his work on the Boston-Fenway Program, Boston Mayor Tom Menino appointed Lydon as Director of Economic Development for the Boston Redevelopment Authority, which transformed Boston's "Combat Zone" to an area attractive to lucrative tenants such as State Street Bank, The Ritz Carlton Hotel and Residential Towers, AMC Lowes Cineplex, LA Sports and Fitness Center, and the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

"We convinced the Registry of Motor vehicles to open in the old Liberty Tree building."

He proceeded on to work for the Daylor Consulting Group of Braintree for six years as the Director of Urban Studios. There, he was involved in the $54 million renovation of the Boston Opera House and the development of the Cathartes Residences which provide 720 units of housing in South Boston.

A sketch of the Boston Opera House currently hangs in Lydon's office to commemorate his efforts.

Between 2004 and 2007, he held the position of Marketing Officer for Mass Housing. A not-for-profit specializing in providing financing for homebuyers, homeowners, and developers of affordable housing. He then served as Senior Vice President for Economic Development at MassDevelopment which finances real estate projects throughout Massachusetts. After working with the company for roughly six years, Lydon happened upon a listing for the position of Executive Director of the Quincy Housing Authority and, feeling a need to return to where he began his career, applied without hesitation.

He's wasted no time in implementing improvements to the authority since his appointment.

"I used to be on the board of directors of the South Shore YMCA and I'm very friendly with the past president and the immediate president and the four of us all had a meeting over at the Germantown Neighborhood Center two weeks ago, and we talked about programmatic ways we could link the two organizations to benefit the residents."

"We've been doing outreach to Manet; we're doing outreach to UMass Boston next week; we've all had good, productive conversations with the YMCA. The YMCA is mandated on

Roach explained. "We cut the fin to the proper height that it needed to be - I got the height by looking at another sundial that was right outside the school, it had the same size base so I was able to justify the height."

"We had to use an epoxy to put it in because we couldn't put any heat to it. We checked it out and it was able to get the time roughly within a couple minutes."

After finishing up the copper sundial, Roach turned his attention to its concrete base. The base was covered in moss, so Roach and some of the older Scouts used a power washer to clean it before reassembling the whole thing.

"The concrete base was covered in moss. We borrowed a pressure washer from a neighbor and blasted that clean," Roach said. "It was able to get it almost perfect except for a little bit of blue that was in it from the sundial was in there - the patina washed off in the water and stained the concrete blue and there wasn't anything that we could do about that."

Being an Eagle Scout will help Roach in his future. He is in the process of enlisting in the Marine Corps - he aspired to be a Marine throughout high school because of the challenge it would present - and hopes to be sworn in this summer. As an Eagle Scout, Roach will be entitled to a bump in pay grade upon his enlistment with the corps.

WRAPPED AROUND HER WRIST

If a man wants to surprise the woman in his life with a piece of jewelry, bracelets are the perfect gift. Purchasing earrings requires a selection that complements earlobe shape and size, rings must be properly sized, and necklaces must be selected with a woman's preference in clothes and collar lines in mind. By comparison, choosing a bracelet is a relatively easy decision. A bracelet should fit the wrist neither too tightly nor so loosely that it slips down over the hand. To address women's concern that it will catch on their clothing, prong-set bracelets should be selected with an eye toward quality and finish. The best of these are beaded over so that they do not hook sleeve fabric.

Delight and dazzle someone special with a gorgeous gift of jewelry. Sure to transform any ordinary outfit into an outstanding sensation, the gift of a bracelet is the perfect way to let her know you care. Come into 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center where you will find an amazing selection of unique bracelet gift ideas for your daughter, mother, wife or girlfriend. Quincy Man Admits To Crash That Killed Wife

A Quincy man with a history of driving problems has pled guilty to fatally running over his wife outside their Hough's Neck home in November of 2012.

"Michael Rivard was sentenced to 20 months incarceration in the House of Corrections for the crash that killed Beatrice Rivard," Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey said after the plea. "Following his release, he will have supervised probation with conditions including that he not drive — or his probation could be revoked and he could be sent back to jail."

Rivard, 49, of Sea Street, pled guilty in Quincy District Court to the three charges against him: Motor Vehicle Homicide due to Negligent Operation; Operating a Motor Vehicle after License Suspension; and Unsafe Operation of a Motor Vehicle.

Assistant Norfolk District Attorney James McLaughlin asked for the maximum allowable sentence of 2.5 years in the House of Correction on the Negligent Motor Vehicle Homicide charge and 10 days in the House of Correction on the Operating After License Suspension. Defense attorney Raffi Yesayan asked for Guilty 2 years in the House of Correction, 1 year to serve and the balance suspended for 1 year on the Negligent Motor Vehicle Homicide and Guilty 10 days committed on the Operating After License Suspension.

Judge Robert Ziemian ordered 2.5 years in the House of Correction with 20 months to serve and the balance suspended for three years with no driving as a condition of the defendant's supervised probation and 10 days in the House of Correction on the OAS charge to be served concurrently.

"We thank the Quincy Police Department and the Massachusetts State Police for their work in the investigation and accident reconstruction work that supported these charges," Dist. Atty. Morrissey said. "We extend our sympathies to Beatrice's surviving family and friends."

Metropolitan Beaches Commission Wollaston Beach Hearing Aug. 14

The Metropolitan Beaches Commission (MBC) will hold a hearing Wednesday, Aug. 14 to solicit public feedback on Wollaston Beach in Quincy.

The hearing will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Kennedy Senior Center, 440 Squantum St., Quincy.

Commission co-chairs Senator Tom McGee and Representative Kathi-Anne Reinstein will be joined by local commissioners Senator John Keenan and City Councillor Douglas Gutro.

The Commission, originally established in 2006 by the Massachusetts Legislature, has reconvened to assess the state of the Boston Harbor area beaches and will continue to examine the impacts of the reforms and recommendations made in its first report and make recommendations for further improvement.

"I'm looking forward to hearing from the community to find out what they see as gains from the MBC's work in 2007 and what we can do to help move our beaches from good to great," Keenan said. "The community insight into the needs of our residents in Quincy is instrumental in moving this process forward."

The public hearing will include statements from local elected officials, business, and community leaders, followed by small group sessions for sharing and brainstorming among the attendees and Commissioners. There will be a facilitated review of the group sessions and identification of next steps as the Commission looks for ways to improve Wollaston Beach and strengthen the City of Quincy.

"The community process is significant and will have a direct effect on the commission's recommendations for Wollaston Beach and other metropolitan area beaches," said Commissioner City Councillor Gutro. "I know Quincy residents will come out to share their views on capital improvements, maintenance issues and public safety concerns. They're input will shape the future of Wollaston Beach."

The Commission will hold public hearings in Nahant and Lynn, Revere, Winthrop, East Boston, South Boston, Dorchester, Quincy, and Hull to further identify and showcase economic development opportunities for local communities made possible by public investment in clean water, better beaches and our waterfront neighborhoods and beachfront communities.

Those interested in being informed of the hearing date in their community are instructed to send an email to info@savetheharbor.org.

partnership was known, broke ground on $120 million Merchants Row component of downtown development earlier this summer; Merchants Row is also backed by LaSalle Investment, who invested $56 million in the project.

Earlier this year Beal and the Related Company, a development firm based in New York City, entered into their own partnership known as Related Beal. Stephen Faber, executive vice president for Related Beal, said the company had a re-focused strategy and added the Merchants Row groundbreaking presented an opportunity time for them to transition away from the partnership.

"The commencement of construction of Merchants Row is a logical transition point, and with the addition of Twining Properties and LaSalle Investment, Street-Works will continue to execute their great vision for the redevelopment of Quincy," Faber said.

Mayor Thomas Koch welcomed Twining Properties to the development team.

"We are thrilled that Twining Properties is joining the private side of the development team. They have a tremendous reputation in both New York City and Boston, and it's another great sign of the national interest that Quincy Center is attracting," Koch said in a statement released to The Sun Tuesday.

"The master development agreement always envisioned that Street-Works would have multiple private partners throughout the course of the development, and for that reason, the agreement is very clear that Street-Works will always remain the master developer and managing partner.

"From a practical standpoint, changes on the private side of the partnership have zero impact," Koch added.

Councillor Doug Gutro, chairman of the council's Downtown and Economic Growth Committee, said the council would continue its oversight of the Quincy Center project to protect the city's residents, regardless of who partners with Street-Works.

"Beal Companies is a well respected New England firm. And while we took comfort in their involvement in Quincy Center, we must recognize and adapt changing business conditions," Gutro told The Sun.

"Our responsibilities remain the same regardless of which private investors or partners join this project. We must protect our taxpayers and create a world-class downtown that is the envy of every other community in the state."

Replacing Beal as a partner in the Quincy Center project will be Twining Properties. Twining Properties real estate development firm headquartered in New York City with an office in Boston.

According to the company's website, Twining focuses on mixed-use development near mass transit. They previously developed Watermark Cambridge, a 465-unit apartment complex near Cambridge's Kendall Square. The firm is also a partner in the Seaport Square development in the waterfront of South Boston. Alex Twining, president and CEO of the company, said he welcomed the opportunity to be part of the Quincy Center project.

"We are extremely excited to be a part of this visionary transformation for downtown Quincy," Twining said. "This project represents the perfect opportunity for Twining Properties to add another transit-oriented development to our network of cutting edge residential and retail projects along the MBTA Red Line."

Street-Works Co-founder Ken Narva said the project's fundamentals would not change before the change in partners. Twining Properties, he added, has served as an advisor on the project throughout the planning stages.

"Twining Properties shares our belief that the future of development lies at the easy intersection of living, working and recreation, anchored by quick access to public transport," Narva said. "They have been advising us on the 1,500 residential unit component of the project for several years, and their decision to join our development team signals just how closely our vision for New Quincy Center aligns with the exciting development now taking place in downtown Boston and Cambridge."

Aundrea Kelly Appointed VP Academic Affairs At Quincy College

Aundrea Kelley has been appointed Vice President of Academic Affairs at Quincy College.

She will begin her new position Aug. 26.

Kelley has over 20 years of work experience in the field of higher education.

Previously she served as Deputy Commissioner for P-16 Policy and Collaborative Initiatives for the state Department of Higher Education. The Department serves as staff to the Board of Higher Education, which is the primary coordinating and policy-setting board for the Commonwealth's public colleges and universities and the licensure agency for independent and out-of-state institutions seeking degree authority in Massachusetts.

As Deputy Commissioner, Kelley advanced strategic Board initiatives through collaborations among public and private higher education, early education and care, elementary and secondary education, government, business, and the non-profit sector. She is regarded as a leader in developing and implementing collaborative approaches to achieving the college and career readiness agenda at the state, regional and national levels.

In addition to Kelley's leadership on policy initiatives to increase student readiness and success, including admissions standards, school-to-college alignment, dual enrollment and other college-connected activities, she has also overseen collaborative work with senior staff to develop and implement board policies and initiatives across a range of the Department's functional areas.

Kelley is well-known within the Massachusetts higher education community, having worked at the Department for more than 17 years, including as acting Commissioner for Higher Education.

While serving as Associate Vice Chancellor for Academic Policy, she and her staff reviewed and brought to the Board several new institutions and many new academic programs in both public and private higher education that would ultimately help educate more students and provide them with the 21st century skills and competencies required to work in our knowledge economy.

Kelley earned an A.B. in Sociology and Anthropology from Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania and the M.B.A. from the University of Massachusetts Boston. She earned the M.S. in Public Policy and completed doctoral work in the Ph.D. program in Public Policy, also at the University of Massachusetts Boston.

Drs. Michelle Villarta, Elizabeth Tsai Manet Community Health Center Adds Two Primary Care Providers

Manet Community Health Center has added two new primary care providers to its Quincy-area medical staff.

Pediatrician Michelle C. Villarta, MD, is seeing patients at Manet's North Quincy and Quincy Medical Center practice sites. Family Medicine Physician Elizabeth H. Tsai, DO, is stationed at both the North Quincy and Houghs Neck practice sites.

"We are thrilled to welcome two such dedicated professionals, who will strengthen our ability to offer our patients the best possible care," said Jennifer Sabir, MD, Interim Chief Medical Officer for Manet Community Health.

Manet Community Health is stepping up its recruitment efforts in response to federal health care reform, which is placing added pressure on Community Health Centers to play a major role in increasing access to care.

"We take our mandate to provide a Medical Home very seriously," said Henry N. Tuttle, Manet Community Health CEO. "We are determined to attract more providers to our brand of dedicated, evidence-based community medicine."

With the introduction of a pediatrician to its medical team, Manet will be able to expand services to South Shore families and provide the perspective of a board-certified specialist. The last time Manet had a pediatrician on staff was approximately 1983.

Prior to joining Manet in spring 2013, Dr. Villarta was a staff pediatrician at Roxbury Comprehensive Community Health Center. She was previously in private practice in Monroe, Mich., her home state, and worked as primary pediatrician at East Ann Arbor Health Center.

Dr. Villarta received her Bachelor's in the Biological Basis of Behavior from the University of Pennsylvania and her Master's in Medical Sciences from Boston University before graduating from the Michigan State University College of Human Medicine in East Lansing, Mich. She completed her postdoctoral training at the University of Michigan's Department of Pediatrics and Communicable Diseases.

Her path to becoming a pediatrician wasn't obvious, even though Dr. Villarta comes from a medical family—her father was an ENT (ear, nose and throat) specialist and her mother an RN. While earning her Master's, Dr. Villarta participated in research into chronic illness and health care access.

That research—and the chance to have a long-term impact on wellness—sparked her career choice. "I realized I wanted a career in the clinical side of medicine, and I wanted it to be in pediatrics," said Dr. Villarta, a member of the adjunct medical staff at Boston Children's Hospital and a Fellow in the American Academy of Pediatrics. A Community Health Center like Manet "makes my work more meaningful," she added. "I can do a lot more for my patients, with a more comprehensive list of services under one roof, and the center's mission supports that." Dr. Villarta, who has a particular interest in adolescent care, is collaborating with Manet leadership to increase family planning and adolescent services.

As a family physician, Dr. Tsai enjoys working with Manet's culturally diverse patient population "with many different backgrounds and medical conditions," she said. "It's wonderful to have the opportunity to partner with my patients on preventive medicine to keep them healthier."

Dr. Tsai earned her medical degree from the University of Medicine & Dentistry of New Jersey School of Osteopathic Medicine. She completed a Family Medicine Residency at Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital in New Jersey. As a board-certified osteopathic physician, Dr. Tsai has had additional training in the study of hands-on manual medicine and the body's musculoskeletal system.

Dr. Tsai earned a Bachelor's in Biology at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and a Master's of Science in Epidemiology at the Harvard School of Public Health. "That preparation gave me added analytical skills to bring to my role as a physician," said Dr. Tsai, a member of the American Academy of Family Physicians and the American Osteopathic Association.

"The question of whether it is the right timing. Do we wait till it is totally complete to move them in? I don't now yet. We will have to take the advice of the contractors. We will be working with the mayor's office and the school committee and plan to have those questions answered no later than Friday."

DeCristofaro expressed his concerns about the $50 million project during a tour of the new school last Wednesday.

"We all have our reservations," DeCristofaro said last Wednesday. "There is school ready and then there is construction ready and we will have to look at what is school ready as we get closer. If we have to wait and bring them (the students and teachers) in halfway through the school year we will, but we won't wait another full school year."

"If we do not begin the new school year at the new Central, the old building is fully prepared to have school begin there."

When finished, the new school, which will be home to over 600 students in grades six, seven, and eight, will feature a number of 21st century learning tools for students and teachers. Nine 54-inch flat screen televisions monitors will be displayed throughout the building sharing school information and events with students and faculty.

Interactive white boards are being installed in every classroom allowing teachers, who will all be equipped with their own iPads, to easily transfer lessons and material onto the board for the entire class to see. The library will not only have a large study/reading area with three large glass windows overlooking Veterans Memorial Stadium and Hancock St., but will also allow students to have access to 90 iPads and 120 laptops.

As one enters the new middle school from the main entrance wing, located on St. Ann's Rd., the administrative offices are to the right, which includes the principal and assistant principal offices and a principal's conference room. The nurse's office, located in the same section as the administrative offices, has two rooms for sick students to be seen and have a private space while they wait to be picked up, along with a large open waiting area.

Leaving the front of the building and entering into the hallways of the school the first thing many will notice is the main stairway which will be surrounded by all glass allowing natural light to brighten the area.

The school's new music room has enough space to hold chorus and band practices along with three separate rooms inside the main room; one will be used as a practice room, the other as an office, and the third will be storage for both the band and chorus.

Each floor of the new building will be home to a different grade level, and will house two science labs for each grade along with a common area with a 54-inch flat screen television monitors that will display school announcements and events throughout the school day. Students will also enjoy their new lockers, which are bigger than the lockers in the old Central Middle School and are already equipped with combination locks.

The first floor is also home to the auditorium, which can seat over 450 people, and the gymnasium, which can seat over 200 people and has a regulation sized basketball court, allowing for tournaments to be held and played there.

A separate entrance for the gym and auditorium is located on the Hancock St. side of the building, which will be framed by the granite portico from the old Central building.

"Above and beyond what the classroom and academic areas have to offer the auditorium is state-of-the-art and is an excellent addition to all the arts activities at Central," said DeCristofaro. "It is not only a great addition for the students at Central but for public events as well."

a national sense to get more involved in public housing which is great."

Lydon is hoping that by reaching out, he can garner much needed support from outside organizations.

"I would really like to begin to buttress the social service programs and educational programs that we sponsor. The housing authority doesn't have the ability to run the programs ourselves because we don't have staff to do that but what we're doing is we're reaching out to other organizations—like the YMCA, like the University of UMass Boston, and like Quincy College—that have in place the people and the framework with which to bring educational and social services programs to the residents."

He also plans on conducting a technical assistance panel with the Urban Land Institute (ULI) for the benefit of the authority.

"[Technical assistance panels] are panels of anywhere from eight to twelve real estate experts sponsored by the Urban Land Institute," says Lydon. "We're going to have them look at landscape and streetscape. We're going to have them look at it as a seaside community and how better to take advantage of the location, and we're also going to have them look at parking and circulation."

'I WANT US to be a warmer, kinder, more wonderful place to be,' says new Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director Jim Lydon.

The panel will take into consideration the aesthetics and functionality of an area and brainstorm ways to improve housing authority properties.

"We're going to do one of those technical advisory panels in Germantown."

Lydon is settling nicely into his role as executive director.

"It's been a real learning experience for me and I think it's been a learning experience as well for residents as well as employees," he says. "I've come to find that I've got a group of really, really dedicated, capable people that work here in the Housing Authority. They're kind of a lean and mean operation and they get all the stuff done that needs to get done which gives me a sense of comfort because now I can begin to take the Housing Authority in directions that they haven't been before."

"I want us to be a warmer, kinder, more wonderful place to be. I want people that are working here that are happy, I want people that are residents here to be happy, and I think there's a lot we can do to bring it further in that direction and I think we've started."

to Mayor Thomas Koch.

The new sculptures will be paid for by state and federal grants as part of the overall Adams Green park project, the full design of which is now taking shape.

More than 50 sculptors, some among the best known in the world, are vying for the project. An artists selection committee appointed by Mayor Koch is now poring over the resumes of sculptors who responded to a request for qualifications issued by the City.

Sculptors determined qualified by the committee will move to a second phase of the selection process that includes a more detailed vision of proposed sculptures. The Committee will then make a final recommendation to Mayor Koch.

Members of the selection committee are:

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

TEETH BEFORE DENTISTS

Have you ever wondered how our distant ancestors managed to maintain healthy teeth and gums before toothbrushes and dental floss were invented? According to recent research involving analysis of plaque (the sticky film that develops naturally on teeth) taken from 34 ancient skeletons, our ancestors' teeth had more good bacteria than our own teeth have. As a result, the ancient's teeth were better able to fend off bad bacteria that cause tooth decay and gum disease. One reason for the healthier bacteria is that our ancestors didn't eat processed foods. As time progressed and hunters and gatherers turned to farming, teeth took a turn for a worse. The advent of processed sugar and corn syrup has led to further decline.

Always feel free to discuss any dental concerns with us.

We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we practice modern dentistry. We provide the best care possible by evaluating your needs individually. We'll explain our findings and recommendations, and together we'll choose the best treatment plan. Our concern is your comfort and confidence — our goal is to help you preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. Rest assured that you can trust the health of your teeth to our extensive experience and training. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. If you want to eat a diet that promotes healthy teeth and gums, stick with nuts, fresh fruit and vegetables, whole grains, and quality protein.

Quincy Militia Dismantle Twin City Lions, 50-0

By JOE REARDON

Two years ago, the Quincy Militia struggled through a rough and tumble 1-9 season and finished out the Eastern Football League campaign with a skeleton crew of just 13 players.

Jump ahead two seasons and the Militia felt what it was like to be on the other side of the ball Saturday night with a 50-0 rout of the struggling Twin City Lions of Leominster at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Vaughn Driscoll's 2-1 club dominated every aspect of the game following a bye week and has a boatload of momentum heading into this Saturday's showdown against the undefeated Worcester Mass Fury.

It was painfully apparent early that the Lions were in for a long night. Quincy ran out to a 22-0 lead in the first quarter and took a whopping 37-0 bulge into the locker room at halftime.

Regardless, there was plenty of respect for the Lions' club up and down the Militia roster.

"They may have only had twenty two or twenty five guys but you can't underestimate anybody who comes out here," said Militia receiver Kyle Walker, who got the scoring underway by pulling in a 9-yard touchdown pass from quarterback James Yaitanes 4:16 into the first quarter for the 8-0 lead. "You've got to take the game and do your thing. Once the game is done we go out there and celebrate."

"We had an early bye week and right now we're just trying to get back on track and stay focused on what's ahead. We have to keep our composure and make sure we're playing offense, defense and special teams. Nobody can slack off. As long as we're working hard in practice it's going to come together on Saturday night."

Driscoll was impressed by the Lions' tenacity despite its small numbers. "We were them a couple of years ago," he said. "We were 1-9 and finished the season playing thirteen guys. I know what they're going through. They're down and short of numbers. I've got nothing but respect for their players and staff."

Yaitanes picked the Twin City secondary apart, completing 11-of-12 passes for 181 yards and two touchdowns. The Militia racked up 434 yards of offense as Jordan Moore ran for a pair of scores and Tyrone Holley and Chelston Mitchell had rushes for touchdowns.

Reed had a 46-yard score nullified on the Militia's first possession, but Yaitanes proceeded to hook up with Chris Joyce for a 32-yard pass play and hit Walker from the 9. Yaitanes added the conversion on a quarterback sneak to make it 8-0.

The Militia got the ball right back on an interception by George Gonzalez and Yaitanes hit Joyce with a 14-yard strike cutting across the middle of the end zone for the second touchdown. Conor Flaherty drilled the point-after kick and it was 15-0 with 4:11 left in the opening quarter.

Quincy continued to get the job done on defense as cornerback Yosief Walday returned an interception 32 yards to the Lions' 2-yard line and Moore punched his way in on the next play for the 22-0 lead with 3:37 left in the quarter and the rout was on. Moore found the end zone for the second time, capping off an eight-play, 83-yard drive, cutting back inside for a 5-yard scoring run. Yaitanes hit a wide open Blake Simpson on the conversion play for the 30-0 lead. Quincy went up 37-0 on its next possession on a Tyrone Holley 3-yard run and Flaherty point-after kick with 30 seconds left in the half.

The Militia continued their scoring barrage in the third when Mitchell sprinted in untouched from a yard out for the 44-0 advantage. Hermes Lima alertly picked up a fumble on a Lions' fumble on a botched lateral and raced in from 30 yards out on the next play for the 50-0 lead.

The victory gave the Militia a huge lift after falling to the Bay State Buccaneers 12-9 in a heated July 20 game. Driscoll is looking for the same composure against the Fury.

"We were frustrated because we didn't play our best game against the Bucks and we knew the mistakes we made and had to fix them," said Driscoll. "We worked really hard to prepare, not just for this team, but any team we step on the field with. They can enjoy this until Monday morning. When Monday morning comes they have to focus straight on the Fury."

"That's a huge game. They've put a beating on every team that they've played against but they're not going to do that to us. We're going to lean on our defense this week to keep us in the game so the offense can put the final score up."

Avoiding costly penalties is an absolute must if the Militia wants to deal the Fury their first loss of the season.

"They kept their composure and that was huge. We lost our cool a couple of times in the last game and it cost us. You can't have that. We showed a lot of control tonight. The defense stepped up but the offense also kept the defense off the field. It was a real team effort."

Driscoll was able to work the entire roster into the game against the Lions and that gave several players a jolt of confidence.

"I don't look at the score," said Driscoll. "I look at individuals' play, that in the past, needed to get some self confidence. Even though we played a team that was short of numbers and not as big as us, for the guys who were doubting themselves, they realize that they can still play. Everybody got to play and get a taste."

Recreation Department 6 On 6 Soccer Tournament

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its annual 6 on 6 Soccer Tournament at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The 6 on 6 Tournament is a very popular event and was well attended, with approximately 120 youngsters from the city's 14 playgrounds participating.

The tournament is a co-ed competition, with teams separated into three age groups: Midgets (8-10); Juniors (11-12); and Seniors (13-16).

The event was run by sports specialists Eddie Grennon, Colin Ryan and Paul Carson.

In the Midget division, teams from Faxon Park and Beechwood Playground overcame stiff competition to meet in the championship. Both teams played hard in a game that came down to the final minutes, but it was Faxon Park that would come away the victors.

Arnav Kumar and Laila Mullgrave both played especially well for Faxon, while Scott Gutro and Matt Kelly got a chance to showcase their skills for the Beechwood team.

The Junior division featured a deep and competitive field, with Squantum and a combined Fore River and O'Rourke team rising above to meet in the title game. Aidan Ring and the Squantum team played great and kept things close the entire game, but the fancy footwork of triplets Aaron, Jillian and Sean O'Toole would prove to be too much, as Fore River/O'Rourke would claim the championship.

Mike Adamson and Luca Smith also played well for Squantum. Taryn Healy and Franco Calabro both contributed greatly to a win for their team.

In the Senior division, the championship featured a matchup between Forbes Hill and Labreque playgrounds. Mike Munroe and Frank Wahlberg led the charge for a bid, strong Labreque squad who was hoping to win after finishing second in last year's tournament, while Forbes Hill looked to spoil those championship hopes with a balanced and highly skilled attack.

Connor and Chris Don-aghey both played great and Owen Smyth shined as Forbes Hill would eventually win a close game. Others who stood out were Labreque's Sean Curran-Cross and Forbes' Johnny Norton.

"The 6 on 6 Soccer Tournament was a huge success," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "All teams showed great sportsmanship and enthusiasm. Congratulations to all who participated."

60 Youngsters Compete In Knockout Tournament

The Quincy Recreation Department recently hosted its annual city-wide Knockout Tournament at the Fenno Street Playground.

More than 60 youngsters from 14 parks throughout the city attended the event, displaying their shooting, speed, and basketball skills. Competitors were divided into three separate age groups, with the girls competing with all age groups combined.

In the girls division, the champion was Fallon Hobin from Perkins Playground. In second place was Kaleigh Manton from Heron Road Playground. Both competitors put on a great shooting display and showed great sportsmanship.

The midget division

(ages 8 to 10) the final two contestants were Campbell Tierney of Labreque playground and Ryan Jaehnig of Fenno Street playground. After a tightly contested battle Tierney was able to pick up the win.

In the junior division (ages 11 and 12) the final two competitors were Nick Cedrone and Ryan Jaehnig and they came down to the wire with Cedrone edging out Jaehnig in the end. The competitors showed great stamina and basketball skills during the competition.

In the Senior Division (ages 13-16) there was a boy's competition. Jules Wiggins of Fore River Park defeated Andrew Huang of Mass Fields Playgrounds. Wiggins and Jaehnig put on a fantastic display of shooting to end the event.

All participants played well and put in a great effort. Sports Specialists Colin Ryan, Eddie Grennon and Paul Carson ran the event.

O'Connell - Thomson Basketball Tournament Aug. 24-25

The eighth annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament will be held on Aug. 24-25 at the Fenno Street courts.

The event is held in memory of John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, two standout athletes who graduated from North Quincy High in 2002 and tragically had their lives cut short in the past nine years.

Their families have set up memorial scholarships in their names to benefit North Quincy graduates and the tournament serves to raise funds for these scholarships.

The weekend will feature a 16-team men's tournament and a four-team women's tournament, featuring a number of local college basketball players, as well as many former and current high school players from Quincy. Games begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday and will run throughout both days.

The event has been a great success in the past thanks to the generous donations of local businesses and Quincy residents. Anyone interested in making a donation can write a check to the John "Okie" O'Connell Fund and send it to Dan Duggan, 61 Bedford St., Quincy 02169. (The donations will be split between the two funds).

One Of Its Best Seasons With Final Record 20-8 Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Reaches District Finals

In back-to-back games decided in the last inning, Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth came up short on the best of three series against Milton in the South Shore District Senior Babe Ruth League championship finals.

Last Wednesday, down one game to none and losing 2-0 in the bottom of the seventh with one out, Wollaston staged a dramatic rally to win 3 to 2.

John Marsinelli started the rally with a single. Mike Pugsley followed with a hit to right field. With runners on second and third Tyler Braun drilled a line shot to right field plating both Marsinelli and Pugsley. Braun ended up on third due to a throwing error. Mike Carnavale hit a laser over the shortstop that landed between the centerfielder and leftfielder scoring Braun to cap off the three-run come from behind victory.

Wollaston kept the game close behind the superb pitching of John Laveillee and Nolan Flynn and a key defensive play by Chris Kerin and Marsinelli. Laveillee kept Milton off balance with an array of pitches as he held Milton hitless through 6 and one-third innings. Laveillee tired in the seventh as he had walked 6 batters during the game, including two in the seventh.

Flynn relieved Laveillee and retired Milton on three pitches, in large part due to a strike thrown by Kerin from right field and a sweeping tag by Marsinelli that prevented Milton from scoring what would have been its third run. Flynn earned the victory.

Wollaston lost the final game to Milton 3-2 in nine innings on Thursday. Wollaston started off the game with a flurry of hits. Lead-off batter Bill Campbell and third batter Kerin both had hits setting the table for one of the previous game's heroes, Braun, who once again delivered with a clutch hit.

Milton came back in the bottom half of the first to tie the game 1-1.

As has been the case all year, Wollaston pitcher Dillon Darcy was masterful. He held Milton in check over the next 5 innings. In the top of the seventh Wollaston manufactured a run. Kerin singled, stole second and third. Marsinelli plated Kerin on a fielder's choice ground ball to the shortstop to give Wollaston a 2 to 1 lead. In the bottom of the seventh with two outs and a runner on second, Milton got only its fourth hit of the game to knock in the tying run.

In the 8th and 9th innings Wollaston had singles by Matt Kerin and Padraig Geaney, respectively, but was unable to plate either one of them. Darcy, who had pitched a shutout against Braintree four days earlier, was relieved after 8 innings. Milton pushed across the winning run in the 9th without hitting the ball out of the infield.

The hard luck relief pitcher, Bobby Freeman, walked the first batter. The next batter reached base on a swinging bunt. The third batter of the inning sacrificed the runners to second and third. With the infield drawn in the next batter hit a soft ground ball that did not leave the infield between the first and second basemen that scored the winning run and ending Wollaston's season.

Wollaston had one of its best seasons with a record of 20-8. Wollaston was the finalist in both the Eastern MA Senior Babe Ruth State playoffs and the South Shore District Senior Babe Ruth League championship.

"I congratulate the players on a successful season and thank them for their commitment as they balanced their work schedules with an ambitious baseball schedule," said Manager Steve Reardon. "In addition I thank the many loyal fans who supported the team this year, and my coaches, Peter Delgado, Chris Mullin and Bob Griffin. Lastly, I thank the City of Quincy for preparing Adams and O'Rourke fields for games and the South Shore Umpires Association."

Reardon continued: "We are looking forward to next year as a solid nucleus will be returning. The goal will be win both the State and League Championships. The younger players and new players will have to step up and replace three veterans who will no longer be eligible to play."

"We will miss each of the three: (1) Kevin Mullin a former Quincy High varsity baseball player who displayed wide range at second base. He mastered going to his right, dropping to one knee and then bouncing up to throw the runner out at second base - Pedroia like. Kevin had key hits for us both this year and last; and was a leader in the infield. (2) Tyler Braun a former North Quincy High varsity player who developed into both a clutch pitcher and batter. He single-handedly won one of the biggest games in Wollaston history when he beat the Cape Cod All-Stars in the States as he pitched a complete 7 inning gem and had the walk off winning hit. Over the past two years Tyler was a stopper for us. In addition he was a versatile infielder who over his four year career played 2B, SS and 3B. (3) Chris Kerin another former North Quincy varsity player who was our team captain. A linebacker in football, Chris brought intensity to the ball field. A steady defender in the outfield, Chris excelled at the plate and on the bases. He was our offensive leader throughout the playoffs batting an astounding .575. Chris was fearless on the bases; he was not thrown out on an attempted steal this year. We will miss all three of our veterans and we wish them well in their future endeavors."

Quincy Senior League Team Bows In Championship Round elimination bracket final. Their opponent was either Johnston, RI, or Naaman's Little League of Wilmington, DE.

Quincy - the reigning Massachusetts state champions in the Senior League - had advanced to the winner's bracket Tuesday after a pair of weekend victories.

On Saturday, Quincy defeated Acadian Little League of Bar Harbor, ME, 11-2. Aaron Clancy and Robert Salvucci each had two hits and two runs for Quincy.

The local nine jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning sparked by a two-run double by Troy Shepherd. Acadian scored twice in the fourth to make things interesting but a base running blunder ended the threat.

Quincy tacked on three more runs in the fourth and fifth innings to blow the game wide open. David Suslowicz came on to pitch the final two innings for Quincy. He retired all six batters he faced including four strikeouts.

Quincy kept the momentum going on Sunday as the Massachusetts champs defeated Johnston, R.I., 6-1.

Clancy allowed three hits while walking four and striking out five in 6 1/3 innings of work. He threw 97 pitches - 58 for strikes - before hitting the pitch maximum.

Three walks, two hit batters and a pair of errors led to a five-run first inning for Quincy. Johnston plated its only run of the game in the bottom of the first on a RBI fielder's choice.

Quincy's other baseball team playing in regional action - the Junior League All-Stars - won their first two games at the Northeast Regionals tournament also held in New Jersey.

Results from the Junior League team's game on Tuesday were not available at press time.

A third-play-off team - Quincy's 12-Year-old Cal Ripken baseball team that captured the New England title last week - departed the city for Hammond, Indiana and the Cal Ripken World Series Wednesday morning.

After meeting at Adams Field at about 7:30 a.m., the team planned to travel to Logan Airport in a limousine van escorted by Quincy Police.

The 12-year-olds first game in the World Series is tomorrow (Friday) when it takes the field against the winner of the Ohio Valley.

Quincy is riding an 11-year-game winning streak that includes a four-game sweep in the New England regional tournament. The team is guaranteed to play at least four games in the World Series.

South West Quincy Neighborhood Association Summer Meeting Update

By ANNELI JOHNSON

The South West Quincy Neighborhood Association (SWQNA) at its summer meeting had an opportunity to hear Lieutenant Tim Sorgi and Office James Silcox of their Quincy Police Department their work in the neighborhood.

The officers emphasized the importance of reporting to the police department any neighborhood disturbance, including suspected drug activity. Lieutenant Sorgi went on to further to stress that neighbors should call the police and at any time, and no problem is too little for the police.

Lieutenant Sorgi also noted that if they receive multiple calls against the tenant or a landlord, the latter must employ police detail to the said premises." He went on to emphasize: "If folks are not reporting disturbances, then there is no record of incidents."

Members were also given the Drug Tip Line number 617-745-5730, and callers do not need to identify themselves - all the information received will remain confidential. The Mayor's Office provided "the Good Neighbor Handbook for the attendees, which addresses many code issues."

Quincy School Department's Traffic and Safety Director was on the agenda to brief the Association on the School Bus Stop issue on Granite Street. However, Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes spoke on behalf of the School Department, stating that moving the busses to Water Street is a safety issue for the School Department. The follow up meeting is slated for Aug. 22 at 8:30 a.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School with the representatives of SWQNA. Logistically, Granite Street is one way narrow street, an emergency artery to Quincy Medical and Quincy Center, and was never intended for school busses. The bus stop move to Granite Street from its safety zone on Water Street was done without the consent of the governed.

Furthermore, Water Street side of the School has designated bus lane away from street traffic. Live parking for parents to drop off students is also provided on the on Water Street.

Presently, the school busses creating traffic gridlock, preventing emergency vehicles to proceed. In addition, idling traffic adds to the CO2 load, particularly in a school zone. The Association thinks that common sense will eventually prevail and busses return to their intended safe main entrance.

On the neighborhood improvement issues, Councilor Hughes stated that she has procured Kidder Street Sidewalk repair. Garfield Street paving was brought to Councilors' attention. Councilor Hughes referred to Chapter 90, which is a state program for street. The latest pavement of Garfield Street, recalled by a member, was during Mayor Joe Larai's administration.

Officer Silcox asked the City Councilors Gutro and Hughes to look into updating the city ordinances on fines. Fines, such as j-walking is one dollar - low fines do not curb or discourage repeat offenders.

Residential parking stickers were explored and discussed, and samples of some neighborhoods already have a sticker program in place, particularly near the subway stations. Run-down property and dealing with the absentee landlords were brought to the Councilors' attention.

For more information on South West Quincy Neighborhood Association meetings refer to The Quincy Sun for further notices or meetings or call 617-479-1601n or 617-376-0746 to place items on future agendas.

An Exhausting Proposition

THIS IS A HAMMER
By Samantha Mazzotta

Q: When I get out of the shower, the bathroom is completely fogged up, even when the exhaust fan is running. What's the point of having a bathroom exhaust fan if it doesn't clear the air?
-- Kurt C., Huntsville, Ala.

A: Good question. If a bathroom exhaust fan doesn't do the job it's advertised to do, what's the point of having one?

The exhaust fan serves a good purpose. It draws moist air out of the bathroom, minimizing damage to wallpaper, baseboards, the ceiling and anything else that isn't sealed against water. However, if a "fog" lingers for more than five minutes after a shower, the fan isn't doing its job.

The problem could be a blocked exhaust duct, an ailing fan motor or a unit that's not large enough to clear the entire room. In every case, the unit is not pulling enough air out of the bathroom. An exhaust fan should remove as many cubic feet of air each minute as the number of square feet of the bathroom's floor space.

Clean dust and debris from the unit and air ducts. If cleaning the unit doesn't help, consider replacing it.

Switch off the unit at the circuit box, then remove the front grille. Use a circuit tester to make sure no power is coming through the wires attached to the fan motor. Do this by placing one probe of the tester against each connector, then placing the second probe against the grounding screw on the fan housing. Don't touch the bare wires with your fingers. If the tester glows at any point, go back to the circuit box and turn off the correct switch.

Remove the mounting screws and pull the fan out of the wall or ceiling cavity. Disconnect the vent hose and household wiring to free the unit, then set it aside.

Next, measure the fan's wall or ceiling cavity and record it. Measure the square footage of the bathroom, as well. Take those figures and the fan assembly to the home-improvement store and purchase a fan that works best for the room's square footage. Make sure the new fan's exhaust port matches the size of the old exhaust port.

Install the new fan in the old cavity, if possible (a larger unit may require you to increase the size of the cavity). Attach the fan housing to the stud or joist, avoiding the nail holes of the old unit.

Test the household wiring to make sure the power is off before attempting to connect them to the new unit. Then, follow the manufacturer's instructions to hook up the wires. Connect the vent hose to the new unit's exhaust port, replace the grille cover and switch on the power at the circuit box.

HOME TIP: Use caution when working with electrical products. Use a circuit tester to make sure the power is completely off, and don't touch bare wiring with your fingers!

On Tuesday, July 30, at approximately 1:40 a.m., Officer Thomas Gaeta, patrolling in West Quincy, was flagged down at Buckley and Copeland Streets by a female who asked him if he was looking for her because she just got into a fight with her (27 year old) son.

The officer said that he was familiar with her son from a prior incident that involved a forced entry into his Morton Street address, but that he was not looking for him at this time. The female said that she was just coming from his residence after dropping over there at 12:30 a.m. to give him some money and cook him dinner. She said that her son opened the door and she handed him the money, but then, "he shut the door in my face."

She knocked on the door several times until her son reopened the door. He then grabbed her by the neck and pushed her out of the doorway. She then ran from the residence and used a Copeland Street resident's telephone to call for a ride home because her son had stolen her phone. She further stated that she had lent her son her phone the other day because his was out of minutes and when she asks for it back her son always claims he doesn't know where it is.

The female said that her phone is the same kind as her son's and she wanted it back. She added that her son also has four warrants because he failed to appear in court, he may have a firearm and may be under the influence of narcotics. Officer Gaeta observed red marks on the female's neck so he advised her of her rights under domestic violence laws, but she declined any services. Once the warrants were confirmed, Sergeant Don Allison, K-9 Officer Chris McDermott and Officer Benny Chin arrived on scene to assist.

Officers McDermott and Chin went to cover the rear door while the other Officers went to the front door. The suspect (son) was located on the back porch and handcuffed without incident. The suspect was asked for identification and he motioned to his left pocket where he had a U.S. passport in the name of Andrew Bratta, but since Officer Gaeta knew the suspect, he told him that male pictured on the passport was not him.

The suspect adamantly proclaimed that he was Andrew Bratta. When reminded that Officer Gaeta knew the suspect from a past call, the suspect responded, "Oh I do remember that - that girl Jessica was here that time." Officer Gaeta told the suspect that he gave his real name that day, but the suspect insisted that his name was Andrew.

QPD communications was then contacted to see if the suspect was ever booked at the station and any tattoos were listed because the suspect had a unique tattoo of "Bella" on his neck. Communications relayed the booking information confirmed that the suspect had a neck tattoo of "Bella" on his neck. Once the suspect overheard this on the police radios, he stated, "I know another guy with the same tattoo." During this time, Officer Chin, who was searching the suspect for weapons, found a knife attached to the right side of the suspect's shorts. The knife blade was spring loaded, which falls under the dangerous weapon category. The knife has a lever that automatically releases the blade by the assistance of a spring and the blade is in excess of 1 1/2 inches long.

Longtime Teacher, Coach

A funeral Mass for Martin C. Finnegan, 85, retired retired Athletic Director of the Quincy Public Schools and a long-time teacher and coach, will be celebrated Wednesday, Aug. 14 at 10 a.m. at Saint John the Baptist Church, 44 School St., Quincy Center.

Mr. Finnegan died July 29 in California.

Friends are invited to visiting hours on Monday, Aug. 12 from 4 to 8 p.m., and Tuesday, Aug. 13 from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, 326 Granite Ave., Milton.

Burial will be at the Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Immediately following the services on Aug. 14, family and friends are invited to A Celebration of a Life: A Gathering of Family & Friends in Remembrance of Marty Finnegan, hosted by his former players and students, at 12:30 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St., Quincy.

The luncheon gathering will give community members an opportunity to renew friendships and share memories of their connections to Mr. Finnegan.

As an athlete, coach and athletic director, Mr. Finnegan had a life-long commitment to the value of participation in athletics for all students. In his memory, a fund has been established to assist students whose opportunities for participation in athletics in the Quincy Public Schools may be limited due to the family's inability to afford the participation fees.

Donations to the Martin C. Finnegan Fund to Support the Participation of Student-Athletes may be made at the gathering on Aug. 14, or may be sent to: The Martin C. Finnegan Fund, c/o Quincy Public Schools, 159 Bergin Parkway, Quincy, MA 02169.

"Red" Finnegan was a star athlete in the Boston Parks and New England CYO Leagues, and at Boston College High School. Immediately upon graduation, the Mattapan native joined the U.S. Navy at age 17, serving at Pearl Harbor in the last year of World War II. Continuing his academic and athletic career at Boston University after the war, he moved to Quincy in 1950 to begin work as a teacher and coach under the legendary Munroe MacLean. During his 42-year career in Quincy, Finnegan taught Health and Physical Education at every level from kindergarten through high school. In a 25-year coaching career, Finnegan coached football, basketball, baseball, tennis and golf at Quincy High, including 13 years as the varsity basketball coach. His career culminated with his service as Athletic Director for QPS until his retirement in 1992.

Known as a tough and demanding coach who also emphasized sportsmanship and citizenship, Mr. Finnegan is also fondly remembered by many former players and students for a very concerned and loving nature. During his years of teaching elementary school, his penchant for wearing green and his gentle nature led to many younger students referring to the 6'5 Finnegan as "The Jolly Green Giant."

In addition to teaching and coaching, Mr. Finnegan also helped to create the school department's first response to the burgeoning drug abuse crisis in the late 1960s and early 70's, becoming the first public school Drug Education Coordinator in Massachusetts. He would continue his efforts in later years, eventually serving as project coordinator for Project Impact, a school-based program that would become one of the precursors to IMPACT QUINCY, the community-based substance abuse prevention program that recently marked its 22nd anniversary. For these and other efforts, Mr. Finnegan was selected as the Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year in 1989.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Impatience with those who don't keep up with you can cause resistance, which, in turn, can lead to more delays. Best to be helpful and supportive if you want results.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A surprise announcement from a colleague could put you on the defensive. Gather your facts and respond. You'll soon find the situation shifting in your favor.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Time spent away from a project pays off with a new awareness of options you hadn't considered before. Weigh them carefully before deciding which to choose.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Consider confronting that personal conflict while there's still time to work things out. A delay can cause more problems. A longtime colleague might offer to mediate.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Some emerging matters could impede the Lion's progress in completing an important project. Best advice: Deal with them now, before they can create costly delays.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your aspect continues to favor an expanding vista. This could be a good time to make a career move, and taking an out-of-town job could be a good way to do it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Disruptive family disputes need to be settled so that everyone can move on. Avoid assuming this burden alone, though. Ask for -- no, demand -- help with this problem.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Patience is called for as you await word on an important workplace situation. A personal circumstance, however, could benefit by your taking immediate action.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Don't lose confidence in yourself. Those doubters are likely to back off if you demand they show solid proof why they think your ideas won't work.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A temporary setback might cause the usually sure-footed Goat some unsettling moments. But keep going. The path ahead gets easier as you move forward.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) There's welcome news from the workplace. There also could be good news involving a relationship that has long held a special meaning for you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might still need to cut some lingering ties to a situation that no longer has the appeal it once held. In the meantime, you can start to explore other opportunities.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your sense of what's right can inspire others if you remember not to push too hard to make your case. Moderation works best for you.

After explaining the criminal charges to the suspect, he denied stealing his mother's phone and that his "Obama phone" (referring to government subsidized free phone) was in his pocket. Officer Chin retrieved the phone from the suspect's pocket while the suspect claimed, "Yeah that's my Obama phone."

The suspect then requested footwear from his bedroom and gave Sergeant Allison permission to go into the room. In plain sight in the room were envelopes on the suspect's dresser that showed the suspect's actual name, not Andrew. The officers also located the second phone believed to belong to his mother.

As Officer Gaeta walked by the suspect with phone in hand, the suspect said, "Oh that's my other Obama phone, that one doesn't have any minutes though."

The suspect, a 27 year-old Quincy resident, was transported to the station where he was charged with, "Assault and Battery (Domestic), Larceny of $250 (phone), Carrying a Dangerous Weapon, False Info to Police Following Arrest and 4 default warrants."

A Job Well Done

Fingerprints confirmed the suspect's identity as that which Officer Gaeta believed him to be.

Nice Work!

BUYING TICKETS ONLINE: The Federal Trade Commission has received many complaints from people who unknowingly bought counterfeit tickets to concerts and other events. If you are planning on purchasing tickets to concerts and other events online, consider the following tips:

If you are buying from a reseller, find one associated with the original ticket seller, the venue, or the concert promoter. You may pay more for the tickets, but buying from a legitimate reseller minimizes the likelihood of buying counterfeit tickets.

If your only option seems to be buying from a random social media or classified ad website, taking these precautions may help you spot counterfeit tickets, avoid losing money, and be present at an event you're looking forward to:

- Never wire money to buy tickets. A stranger asking you to wire money for anything probably is trying to scam you. Wiring money is like sending cash: Once you send it, it's gone, and you can't trace who got it.

- Research the seller. Check out reviews from people who have bought from this seller. Search the seller's name and/or username with terms like "scam," "counterfeit tickets" or "complaint." Go deep into the results.

- Use payment methods that come with buyer protections. If possible, use credit cards or trusted e-commerce sites that provide accounts you can use to make purchases instead of using banking information.

- Examine your tickets. Many authentic tickets have a hologram or layer of colored paper between the front and back indicating its authenticity; hold the ticket to the light and check for these features. You also may want to contact the venue or event promoter directly for tips on spotting a phony ticket.

- Buying tickets person to person: although not recommended, if you are going to do this, meet in a very public place to avoid being robbed.

Massachusetts Historical Commission,
 Army Corps Of Engineers Sign Off On Project

City Receives OKs To Demolish Old QHS

By SCOTT JACKSON

The demolition of what remains of the old Quincy High School building will be completed before students return to school in September, City Solicitor Jim Timmins said, after the city received permission from the Army Corps of Engineers and the Massachusetts Historical Commission to tear down the building.

The city needed permission from the two groups because the old school, constructed between 1922 and 1924, was eligible for a listing on the National Register of Historic Places. A 2006 memorandum of agreement signed by the city, the Army Corps of Engineers and Mass. Historic allowed

Passing Of Quincy Human Resources Director, Former Councillor And City Solicitor 'A Huge Loss'

Stephen J. McGrath: Loyal, Dedicated Public Servant

By SCOTT JACKSON

Friends and colleagues in government fondly remembered Stephen J. McGrath, Quincy's director of human resources and a former city solicitor and city councillor, who died Aug. 9 at the age of 59 - days shorts of what would have been his 60th birthday on Monday.

Mr. McGrath was appointed as the city's human resources director after Mayor Thomas Koch was first elected in 2007. The mayor said he was heartbroken following the loss of his longtime friend.

"I am heartbroken - Steve McGrath was a remarkable public servant who dedicated his life's work to the city he loves as a city councillor, a city solicitor and most recently as our human resources director," Koch said.

"To those who knew him well,

New Central Opening Delayed

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro announced late Monday that the opening of the new Central Middle School will be postponed and students and staff will begin the new school year Sept.

4th at the existing Central Middle School building.

"As we enter the second week of August, I wanted to share an update with you regarding the new Central Middle School building. As of today, substantial completion of the Central Middle School building is on schedule for Thursday, Sept. 5," DeCristofaro wrote in a letter posted on the Quincy Public School Website. "After consultation with the contractors, architects, project manager and careful analysis of the work still to be completed, it is clear that the best choice for our staff and students is to begin the school year at the existing Central Middle School building. This plan will ensure that the school's administrative, teaching, student support, custodial, and food services staffs have training and preparation time in the new facility in order to confidently welcome the students to this wonderful new educational setting."

DeCristofaro said during a phone interview with The Sun on Tuesday that they hope to have a limited list of items that need to be completed once students and staff are able to move in.

"What we are looking at is to have ample time for the building to be student and staff ready," DeCristofaro said. "We are fortunate to have the existing building with everything we need for the school year and we will continue to work with the project team to determine when the new building will be ready for move in. We want to have a limited punch

One High School Question To Appear On November Ballot

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

School Committee member Paul Bregoli was able to collect over 2,700 signatures to place his question of consolidating the city's two high schools into one high school with two campuses on the upcoming Nov. 5 ballot.

"It was a lot of hard work and a lot of time standing outside of places collecting signatures but when I set my mind to do something I get it done," said Bregoli. "I don't want to lobby for it, and I'm not trying to convince people one way or another I am just trying to get the issue on the ballot to initiate some discussion."

The non-binding question reads: "Should the city of Quincy change its format for high school from the current approach of two high schools - North Quincy High School and Quincy High School - to one high school with two campuses approach: namely, one Quincy High School with students attending grades 9-10 at the North Quincy campus, and students attending grades 11-12 at the Quincy campus."

"This is just an opinion survey, if voters say yes then they are interested in furthering the discussion. If they vote no then they are indicating that they are content with the status quo," Bregoli said. "I don't want people to go into it with a negative opinion. It is a deep-rooted issue and people have strong opinions about it, but I don't want them to go in with a preconceived notion."

Bregoli collected 2,760 signatures and during that time he said he received a lot of support and a lot of people voicing their concerns about teachers losing their jobs and less athletic opportunities if the high schools are combined.

"There is always a way to provide for the kids and we will always make sure that we have those opportunities for them," said Bregoli. "We want to compete academically and that's something we need to look towards.

We want to try to improve academic standards in the high schools, and that's what people would really like to see.

"Change is hard and I understand that. This is something that has been on the minds of many and it hasn't been brought forward, and now people have a chance to voice their opinions."

Bregoli said that he understands there are negatives to combining the two high schools but says there will always be negatives, and that if the topic is discussed after Nov. 5 they might find that certain aspects of the question may not be viable.

A second question, which will be binding, will appear on the ballot in which voters will decide whether they want to extend the mayor's term of office from two to four years.

City To Demolish Old QHS

the city to tear down the old Vocational Technical building and the Business and English wing of the building - both were demolished during construction of the new QHS - but required the main building be mothballed and not torn down.

The city began gutting the interior of the school earlier this summer but still needed the approval of the Army Corps of Engineers and Mass. Historic before razing the exterior. Timmins said the memorandum was amended last week to allow the demolition to take place.

"We've reached an agreement on the amendment to that MOA," Timmins said.

Timmins said the demolition will be completed by the time classes begin Sept. 4. After that, a wall of the new school building that abuts the old building will be capped.

Once the building is torn down it will be replaced by a green space, which may also have some parking spaces. Mayoral Spokesman Chris Walker previously said the park is still being designed, and the plans for the space will be presented to the City Council in the fall for approval.

The demolition, capping the wall, and designing the new park will cost $1.6 million.

Razing the building will cost $687,000 and is being paid for by the bond used to finance construction of the new school. The council authorized a $1 million bond in June to pay the other expenses - including capping the wall and designing the park - but cut $1.5 million from the bond that would have gone towards landscaping the site after construction since no plans were submitted.

The city had studied the feasibility of renovating the building, but that could have cost upwards of $53 million.

A memorandum, prepared by Public Buildings Director Gary Cuniff, found numerous deficiencies in the old building that would need to be addressed, including inadequate HVAC, electrical, plumbing, fire protection, telephone and data infrastructure.

The building would also need to be brought up to current building code, as it isn't compliant with requirements found in the Americans with Disabilities Act. It also lacks necessary lateral stability and fails to meet the earthquake provisions of current code.

Four Months Seen For Cottage Ave. Utility Work

Water, Telephone, Electric Work On Chestnut Street During Next 3-4 Weeks

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Suffolk Construction will finish up the utility work on Chestnut Street and begin utility work on Cottage Street starting in early September as part of the revitalization of Quincy Center.

"We are doing the utilities on Chestnut, and we are finishing the sewer line today. We are going to start setting the electric and water next week on Chestnut," Ronald Thomas, Senior Superintendent for Suffolk Construction, said during an update meeting last Friday.

"For the next three or four weeks we'll be doing the water, telephone, and electric on Chestnut St. The gas company is going to come through that road before we open it back up and they're going to put a whole new line in and start bringing new service in. We're then going to go into Cottage St. and start the sewer line, that's the deepest part, it's almost 20 feet down, so it's going to be slow going. The lowest part of the sewer is right on Cottage St. that's where everything goes, Hancock St., everything, comes around and goes to there, that's why it's so deep. This is probably the worst of the utilities."

The utility work is related to the construction of the Kilroy Building, a 15-story apartment and retail building that will rise on a parcel of land bordered by Chestnut Street and Cottage Avenue near the Dennis F. Ryan Parkway and the Quincy District Courthouse. The first phase of the downtown redevelopment also calls for the five-story Granite Trust Lofts near 1400 Hancock Street.

While utility work on Chestnut Street which is closed to vehicular traffic will be finishing up around Sept. 15th, gas work on the street will continue until the end of September into early October.

According to Suffolk Senior Project Manager Douglas Kimble, the utility work on Cottage Avenue will take approximately four months to complete.

"We are looking at a January completion for Cottage Avenue," Kimble said. "It's the narrowest road around here, but it's also the deepest in excavation at the same time. It's going to go slower than what you're seeing on Chestnut right now because of the depth. We have to make sure we get the trench boxes in the hole and that everything is excavated to the proper requirements."

According to Thomas, some work on Cottage Avenue will require crews to rip up sidewalks, but he said that the work would only be temporary and they will try to work with the schedules of the surrounding businesses so that the work won't interfere with their customer flow.

"Whenever we go across sidewalks it's only going to be a temporary measure to bring the feeds into each building. It's very temporary. We'll try to work with everybody by working away from the hours that they work," said Thomas.

"We'll try to work around everybody's schedule if we have to start a little earlier some days, or later on others, we'll cater to the needs of that business as best we can. We're guests in your neighborhood and we try to keep that in mind as we work. This work should not interfere with anybody's services."

The House That Anet Built

Officially it's now known as the Annette M. Paglierani Center for the Visual Arts.

But affectionately the home of the Quincy Art Association at 26 High School Ave. could also be called "The House that Anet Built."

On Saturday, city officials, family, Art Association members, friends and admirers gathered to dedicate the Quincy Art Association home in loving memory of Anet. It's a fitting tribute to Mrs. Paglierani who helped found the Quincy Art Association as well as the city's ArtsFest. The accomplished artist, beloved teacher and loyal friend to so many died Jan. 16.

Speakers at Saturday's dedication remembered Anet's vision of a vibrant cultural community in Quincy and her passion for the arts.

Anet's son, Joseph Paglierani, thanked the city and especially Mayor Thomas Koch for renaming the Association's home in his mother's memory.

"My mother touched thousands of lives. She is looking down on us and cheering us on to continue the work she started," Joseph said in his remarks to those gathered under a large white tent near the association's home. "Thank you Mayor Koch for this wonderful tribute to my mother."

Among the other family members who attended was Anet's husband, Al, who has volunteered his time to build wooden easels for Art Association art displays.

Mayor Thomas Koch called the dedication a fitting tribute to a remarkable lady. He first met Anet when he was a student at Sacred Heart School and Anet was an art teacher. The Koch family also knew the Paglierani family because they were parishioners at Sacred Heart Church.

The mayor recalled the genesis of the ArtsFest while he was serving as the city's Park Director some 16 years ago. At that time, the Art Association was setting up a small exhibit at the Jazz Festival at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

"We got talking one day and I said Anet, you really deserve your own event. The art association members work so hard and she said she'd love to."

"We got together and the Park Department provided the logistics - the tents, the facilities and assistance - and of course they put together a great program which grew and grew and has come into annual event that people look forward to which is the Quincy ArtsFest."

Over the years, the ArtsFest has blossomed into a premiere cultural event in Quincy and throughout the South Shore. Featuring more than 500 artists, the event will mark its 16th year Saturday, Sept. 21 and Sunday, Sept. 22 at 1 Merrymount Parkway.

Koch said the success of the ArtsFest would not have happened without Anet.

"There's been a lot of folks who are interested in the arts but it was Anet who was carrying the ball single-handedly for many, many years. She was just so full of enthusiasm and passion for the arts. She was a wonderful, wonderful lady. Family was very strong to her, very important to her. She talked about them all the time."

Koch is also an admirer of Anet's art. He has two of her paintings in his third floor City Hall office. One is the Abigail Adams statue, the other is a winter scene of the United First Parish Church as viewed from the Hancock Cemetery.

"She was a very talented and a very gifted artist," the mayor said, adding the city's art community is more vibrant today because of Anet's hard work and passion.

"She was there early on and there have been people who have supported it throughout the years but nobody more than Anet has led the charge, really carried the baton all these years."

"The city is far more cultured today. We talk about we're a good sized city and to have a Quincy Art Association and Choral Society and a Symphony Orchestra. She recognized all that and always wanted to bring them together for purposes of the residents and visitors of Quincy. She was quite a lady."

Renaming the Art Association building in Anet's memory is a most fitting tribute, the mayor said.

"It's a city building. It's been leased out to the Art Association for many years. When I was chief of staff for Mayor Jim Sheets she used to call me and say 'we need this, we need that.' The building had issues like the roof and we used to work with her on those issues as well."

"This is absolutely an appropriate dedication. I can't think of anything better than naming this center which she had such passion for and all that goes on in that center was all she lived for. It's perfect."

"She will live on in the hearts of many whom she touched because she just a special lady. Her name lives on in perpetuity now being affixed to the building."

"The city," he added, "is a better place because of Anet."

Other speakers also praised Anet's love and dedication to the arts.

QAA member Kelly Cobble called Anet the driving force behind the creation of the Quincy Arts Association in 1986. She noted Anet served 14 years as the Association's president.

"Thank you Anet for sharing your job and great love with all of us," Cobble said.

Another QAA member, Dan Myers, described Anet as a friend and mentor to many local artists. "She left a great legacy to this city," he said.

Karen Giovannello, president of the Quincy Art Association, said the Association is proud to have their home bear Anet's name.

"Anet meant a tremendous amount to the Quincy Art Association and she did for many, many years. She was a remarkable lady and we're very proud of her. She would be all smiles by today's dedication and she'd also say, 'you spent too much money,'" (on the handsome new black with gold lettered sign above the front door) she added with a laugh.

The program for Saturday's dedication included a quote from Anet:

"God created this beautiful world and I get to interpret it in painting."

Because of Anet, so many more artists will have that same opportunity for years to come at the Annette M. Paglierani Center for the Visual Arts.

Scenes From Yesterday

VIEW OF THE MIDLAND, HOUGHS NECK, MASS

THIS 1911 postcard is a view looking from today's Sea Street Auto Body shop down Bell Street towards Manet Beach in Houghs Neck. On the right, the corner of Bell Street and Center Road was the home of the old Midland Hotel. Center Road is now Macy Street. The store on the left was one of many at the time whose sign was provided by Moxie, the most popular tonic of the day. Today, this entire intersection is quite different. The corner store is gone and that site is now a parking lot. Two smaller houses have replaced the Midland Hotel. Out of sight on the far right corner was an A&P market, now the site of the Hough's Neck Community Center. The fountain and the trolley tracks are also gone. Other than the houses on Bell Street, the only thing left in his view is the fireplug just to the right of the fountain. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

No Preliminary Election For Mayor

By SCOTT JACKSON

There would be no preliminary election for mayor on Sept. 22 after only two candidates submitted the requisite number of signatures needed to qualify for ballot.

City Councillors Francis X. McCauley and Daniel G. Raymondi both returned nomination papers with more than the 50 signatures needed to qualify for the ballot. A potential third candidate, John Timothy Isbister, did not return enough signatures to land a spot on the ballot.

City Clerk John Gillis said Raymondi returned 8,398 signatures — believed to be a record high for a candidate. The highest number Gillis could recall was about 5,000, returned by Francis H. Foy in 1957. Foy received only 2,233 votes in the subsequent election.

Incumbent Mayor Arthur Tobin had chosen not to run for re-election for a third term. He was reportedly going to be named the clerk-magistrate at Quincy District Courthouse.

A preliminary election for councillor at-large would be needed after at least nine candidates returned the necessary 50 signatures. Incumbents John J. Quinn and Joseph J. LaRaia both qualified, as did challengers Richard J. Koch, Jr., Patricia M. Toland, Timothy P. Cahill, Robert J. Niven, Gregory P. Brooks, William J. O'Hare, and Dennis Buckley.

A possible 10th candidate for councillor at-large, Louis Edward Dolen, arrived at the deadline and the clerk's office would require an extra day to validate his signatures.

A preliminary election would also be needed in Ward 2. Joseph Cortese, Theodore P. DeCristofaro, and John H. McDuff Jr. were vying to replace Raymondi on the council.

The only other contested seat was Ward 1, where David MacMillan was trying to unseat Council President Leo J. Kelly. Ward Councillors John J. Lydon Jr., James A. Sheets, Stephen J. McGrath, and Joanne Condon were unopposed.

Eight candidates filed nomination papers for School Committee, necessitating a preliminary election. Qualifying were incumbents Mary P. Collins, Joan C. Picard, and John J. Sullivan as well as challengers James J. O'Brien, John J. Thompkins Jr., Nicholas C. Verenis, Patrick J. Conroy Jr., and Donna M. Neal.

BELLOTTI WON'T RUN FOR GOVERNOR

During a visit to The Quincy Sun's office, Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti ruled out a run for governor in 1982, barring a dramatic change in events.

"The governor's office is a mess now," Bellotti said. "I'm not even talking about running for it. If someone gave it to me as an even trade I'm not even sure I'd want it."

The field for the Democratic nomination was seemingly wide open. Former Gov. Michael Dukakis and Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill were both challenging incumbent Gov. Edward J. King in the primary. Bellotti, a Quincy Democrat who previously served as lieutenant governor, said he could change his mind but was planning on running for another term as attorney general.

"Who knows what's going to happen four months from now," he said. "I don't have to decide what I'm going to do for another four months but I'm inclined to run for re-election."

Bellotti added:

"I've found a job I know how to do well and I like it. To me it's an important job because I'm a lawyer. I've made it a lot more professional and I know how to handle it."

The members of the Manet Community Health Center Board of Directors wish to thank former Quincy

During that time, we saw firsthand that Daniel placed a premium on professional relationships and earned other's faith and trust, particularly his colleagues' in the physician and nursing communities within the hospital. In our view, he was a champion of primary care and worked with Manet Community Health as a true partner in providing high quality, low cost health care close to home.

Daniel not only nurtured a respectful and productive working environment, he made great strides in bringing Quincy Medical Center back from the brink of bankruptcy to transform it into one of the finest hospitals in the region. Under his leadership, the hospital's quality scores were among the highest in the Steward system. Daniel is a smart and compassionate professional who cares deeply for his patients. For that, we thank him and wish him all the best as he pursues the next phase of his career.

At the same time, we know Daniel left the insti-

Alyssa Mullen Intern At Organic Farm

Alyssa Mullen, a 2009 graduate of Quincy High School, recently graduated Magna Cum Laude from LaSalle University in Philadelphia. She will be working as an intern on a USDA Certified Organic farm in Belleville, Wisconsin.

The farm is operated entirely within the framework of sustainable farming best practices, which provide holistic guidelines for soil and field management, water and air cleanliness and managed woodlands. Primrose Valley

Farm maintains a significant commitment to an environmentally "green" operation. The farm also boasts a large, state-of-the-art commercial greenhouse in which thousands of vegetable plants are germinated and grown in flats in early spring, later transplanted to the fields when weather and plant maturity allow. This provides for stronger healthier crops as well as a jump on the growing season.

The farm has just completed construction of a state-of-the-art 14,000 square foot two story building used for post-harvest cleaning, washing, storage and packing of produce. This environmentally green building provides refrigerated storage that is earth insulated and uses refrigeration-extracted heat to provide the building with its hot water. The facility participates in ongoing experimentation involving gray water recycling and geothermal methods for safe, non-refrigerated vegetable storage.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Spicy Sugar Cookies

I'm always looking for easy ways to make cookies, and enjoy a large one so instead of dropping by the teaspoonfuls, I use a tablespoon.

I found a great recipe for plain sugar cookies, a favorite of most.

But instead of following the usual recipe, I added a couple of spices -which gave them an added flavor.

SPICY SUGAR COOKIES

6 tablespoons butter
1 cup flour
1 egg yolk

1 teaspoon vanilla
6 tablespoons powdered sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Cream the sugar and butter until smooth. Add the egg yolk and the vanilla and beat well. Add the flour, cinnamon, nutmeg and mix until blended.

Drop by teaspoon or tablespoonful onto a lightly greased cookie sheet. Sprinkle sugar on top and bake in a 350 -degree oven for 12 minutes. They are great served as an ice cream sandwich.

Yellow Summer Squash Combo

Most vegetable combinations blend well together if not all. My different combo all began when my daughter Rita brought me a yellow summer squash just picked from her garden.

I began sautéing the sliced squash in some olive oil and red onion and then added some broccoli florets and carrots and voilà: the most colorful tasty combo ever.

It can be served with anything or eaten alone.

SUMMER SQUASH COMBO

1 medium sized yellow squash (sliced thin)

1 tablespoon or so of red onion
2 cups frozen broccoli florets
1 large carrot (thinly sliced)
2-3 tablespoons olive oil (vegetable oil can also be used)

In the hot oil, sauté the sliced onion, and add the squash. After a minute or two add the frozen broccoli florets- and lastly the carrot.

Cover and cook stirring frequently until tender. Because everything is sliced thin, it doesn't take long and any leftover can be enjoyed the next day. I served it with grilled chicken thighs.

Friends Of Wollaston Beach 7th Annual KidsFest Saturday

The Friends of Wollaston Beach (FWB) will hold its seventh annual KidsFest Saturday, Aug. 17th from 3 p.m. to sundown on Wollaston Beach across from the DCR bathhouse.

The free family event will feature a variety of beach games, including; limbo, sack races, hula hoop and jump rope competitions, dancing, and much more. There will be plenty of prizes for the children.

The event is made possible through a variety of grants, partnerships, and donations. Save The Harbor/Save The Bay has once again helped fund the KidsFest with a $1,000 grant. Other longstanding event partners include, the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, The Commonwealth of MA DCR, and Jet Blue Airways.

FWB is excited that a new corporate sponsor, New York Life Insurance Company, has provided $500 worth of prizes for the children. New York Life will also be providing families with digital child identification kits that encompass digital fingerprints and pictures on a compact disc to promote community safety.

Jet Blue Airlines, through SH/SB, has provided beach groups from Nahant to Nantasket with large blue and white marbles that will be scattered along the Boston Harbor shoreline. Those finding a marble are entered into a raffle to win one of several pairs of airline tickets.

Marbles will be scattered along Wollaston Beach for KidsFest as part of FWB's Marble Hunt. The Marble Hunt will conclude of Columbus Day Weekend.

WB will also be raffling off one marble at KidsFest.

"We are so thankful to our corporate and community partners," said FWB President Neil McCole. "Without their generous support, this event would not have been possible over the past seven years. Part of FWB's mission is to promote the wise usage of Wollaston Beach, so we are hoping for a fun-filled day for the families of Quincy."

McCole said the event will conclude with a sundown dance party on the sand. He encouraged families to bring chairs and blankets, and to support our local waterfront restaurants.

Adams National Historical Park Events

The Tory Trail

Norma Jane Langford 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

Local historian, writer, educator, and author of The Tory Trail, Norma Jane Langford will discuss Massachusetts Loyalists who, she says, were portrayed as "enemies of the country."

"Many Colonists," Ms. Langford asserts, "were loyal to the Crown." "We usually think of them as being villains," said Langford; "actually they gave up a lot, they lost their homes, they lost their families," for their beliefs.

The Vassal family—former owners of John Adams' Old House in Quincy—was just such a family.

Ms. Langford, who teaches a class called "The Tory Trail" at the University of Massachusetts-Boston, will highlight the lives and times of these often misunderstood members of Colonial society.

Defiant Brides

Nancy Rubin Stuart 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Award-winning author and journalist, Nancy Rubin

Stuart, will discuss her latest book, Defiant Brides: The Untold Story of Two Revolutionary-Era Women Who Married Political Radicals, an intimate look at the lives and times of Peggy Shippen Arnold of Philadelphia, who helped her husband, traitor Benedict Arnold, betray his country; and Lucy Flucker Knox, a "Boston Belle" and wife of patriot hero General Henry Knox.

Defiant Brides looks at the ways in which two young brides, married to famous, and infamous, men during the upheaval of the American Revolution, maintained their identities and their beliefs in turbulent times.

During her last appearance at Adams National Historical Park, Ms. Stuart discussed her book, The Muse of the Revolution: The Secret Pen of Mercy Otis Warren and the Funding of a Nation, the fascinating account of one of the Adams' closest confidants and the era's most brilliant and controversial female writers.

Book signing and refreshments to follow.

FROM OUT OF THE BLUE

September's birthstone comes in a host of colors other than its signature violet-blue. Sapphire, which is a variety of the gem species corundum (along with ruby), comes in just about every color of the rainbow, from yellow and green to pink and purple. In addition, white sapphire has been used as a substitute for the more brilliant diamond. In the more popular blue color, sapphire is a time-honored selection for engagement rings in Europe. Perhaps the most spectacular and familiar example of this is the 12-carat oval blue sapphire surrounded by 14 solitaire diamonds that Prince Charles gave to Lady Diana Spencer in 1981. You might say that blue sapphire is fit for a princess. The sapphire has long been desired among royalty and celebrities. It represents wisdom, love, faith, and purity. State Establishes New Dam, Seawall Repair Fund

Sen. John Keenan announces information on the newly established state Dam and Seawall Repair or Removal Fund and how local municipalities, non-profit organizations and private residents can apply for funds through this program.

The Dam and Seawall Repair or Removal Fund, M.G.L. c. 29, §2III, was signed into law by Governor Patrick on Jan. 10. The fund was established to provide grants and low interest loans to local municipalities, charitable organizations, and private dam owners, to inspect, repair, and remove dams, seawalls, jetties, retaining walls, levees and other structures aimed at controlling coastal flooding.

Fifty percent of the fund will be allocated to dam repair, while the other 50 percent will be allocated to seawalls and levees.

"This fund addresses the need for extremely important improvements to dams and seawalls across the state," said Keenan. "Giving our local leaders and non-profit partners in our communities the financial tools and resources to make coastal infrastructure improvements is not only beneficial to our environment, but to public safety as well."

After holding a number of public hearings on proposed regulations over the past few months, the Massachusetts Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs (EEA) has established rules and regulations for the administration and implementation of the fund, along with a priority system for the approval of projects.

The regulations are issued under 301 CMR 15.00 by the Secretary of State pursuant to M.G.L. c.29, §2III, and can be found on EEA's website at <http://www.mass.gov/eea>. All parties interested in applying for funds through this program should review the applicant and project eligibility information included in the regulations.

The EEA is also responsible for taking applications, which will be released through a Request for Response (RFR) on CommPass (<http://comm-pass.com>), the state's online procurement record site.

RFR's have been released with applications due by Aug. 29th. Senator Keenan urges all local municipalities, charitable organizations and private dam owners who may qualify for funding to apply.

For more information on the Dam & Seawall Repair or Removal Fund, contact Keenan's office at 617-722-1494.

Manet Community Health Center Open Houses During National Health Center Week

Manet Community Health Center is celebrating National Health Center Week this week with a series of open houses that will include a preview of new health care coverage options available beginning this October under the federal Affordable Care Act (ACA).

Manet is expanding its Community Outreach and Enrollment Team and plans to launch a community-wide awareness campaign about the ACA insurance coverage in early fall.

National Health Center Week comes on the heels of Manet's receiving key state and federal funding to assist South Shore residents with enrollment in new ACA health insurance options. So far, the health center has received $139,322 to expand its multi-lingual Community Outreach and Enrollment Team—$80,164 from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HRSA) and $59,158 from the Commonwealth Health Insurance Connector Authority Navigation Program.

"We are excited to mark National Health Center Week at this important period in our nation's health care history," said Joseph M. Reardon, president, Manet Board of Directors. "Come get a look at new insurance options and all the great services we offer for your health and well-being."

Open houses from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. are scheduled:

- Wednesday, Aug. 14, Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St., first floor lobby, A elevators, and 2nd Fl (B Wing)

- Thursday, Aug. 15, Snug Harbor/Germantown, 9 Bicknell St.

- Friday, Aug. 16, Hull, 180 Washington Blvd.

Visitors can take site tours, register as a new patient, and schedule appointments for back-to-school physicals. Also available will be access to confidential HIV and STD testing, training in nasal Narcan to prevent opioid overdose, sign ups for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) and the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) Nutrition Program, and voter registration.

Each open house will include nutritional information and education, back-to-school readiness resources, and feature giveaways, healthy snacks, and a daily raffle.

Community health centers like Manet, supported by HRSA, treated approximately 21 million people in 2012. One out of every 15 people living in the U.S. now relies on a HRSA-funded clinic for primary care.

Health centers nationwide are poised to play an essential role in the implementation of the ACA, enrolling millions of eligible patients and residents into affordable insurance coverage through the Health Insurance Marketplaces, Medicaid, or the Children's Health Insurance Program.

Michael Coffey Receives BC High Awards

William J. Kemeza, President of Boston College High School, announces Michael Coffey of Quincy was presented special awards at an end of the year assembly to honor BC High undergraduates.

Coffey received the prestigious Richard Reardon Award. The award recognizes students who demonstrate a commitment to service and a concern for the well being of all people.

He also received an award

MICHAEL COFFEY

for Excellence in Spanish Advanced Placement, naming him best in his class.

Christian Sarnie Interns In Keenan Office

Christian Sarnie of Braintree recently completed an internship in the office of state Senator John F. Keenan.

"Chris has been a pleasure to work with," said Sen. Keenan, co-chairman of the Joint Committee on Public Health. "He is intelligent, inquisitive, and reliable in his strong work ethic."

During his internship, Sarnie conducted policy research, helped record and respond to correspondence from constituents and advocacy groups, and tracked legislation sponsored or co-sponsored by the Senator.

Sarnie, a graduate of Braintree High School, is now a sophomore at Bentley University majoring in accounting.

He is actively involved in his school community, participating in the Certified Bentley Leader Program, the Executive Board for the Law Club, and intramural soccer and basketball.

Sarnie said an internship in the Senate was an opportunity to volunteer his time towards public service. The internship also allowed him to learn about and support the legislative process.

"Chris will be missed here," said Keenan, "but I am encouraged by his will to succeed and to contribute to his community. I was glad to have him, and wish him well in future endeavors."

QMC, Manet Health Farmers Market 'Prescription Program'

Quincy Medical Center, a Steward Family Hospital, and Manet Community Health Center are working together to launch a fruit and vegetable voucher program aimed at improving the health of high-risk diabetic patients.

As part of its community benefits program, Quincy Medical Center is piloting the Steward Farmers Market Prescription Program for patients with Type I, Type II or gestational diabetes who are enrolled in Manet's Clinical Care Management. The "prescription program" will enable selected patients and their families to receive free vouchers to purchase fresh fruits and vegetables at local Farmers Markets each week through October, encouraging them to improve their diets and, hopefully, improve their overall health.

"We are very pleased to work with the medical team at Manet Community Health Center to test this innovative approach to managing diabetes through healthier eating," says Donna Rubinate, QMC's interim President. "As a community hospital, our goal is twofold: to treat people when they are sick and keep them healthy throughout their lives. This program is a step in the right direction toward healthy living."

Diabetes affects an estimated 25.8 million children and adults in the United States — 8.3% of the population — and it contributes to more than 230,000 deaths each year with a cost of $176 billion in direct medical costs and another $69 billion in lost productivity. Steward Health Care System has partnered with Mass

Farmers Markets and local farmers to create the Farmers Market Prescription Program to help patients with diabetes better manage their disease. The program helps patients supplement their purchases of fruits and vegetables making it easier for them to incorporate these ingredients into every meal throughout the week. In conjunction with education around diabetes management and nutrition, participants will be encouraged to purchase and prepare healthier meals for themselves and their families.

The overall aims of the pilot are to ensure positive health outcomes, behavioral change and long-term health.

"Here in Quincy, of our 14,500 patients, 1,317 are diabetic, 707 are pre-diabetic, and 1,740 are obese, a condition recognized by the American Medical Association in June as a chronic disease," said Henry Tuttle, Manet CEO. "Given these numbers, we can't take for granted that our patients have a working knowledge of nutritional values, have access to smart food choices, or can afford them, so it's incumbent upon us to meet our patients where they live, learn how they eat and help them understand how to choose fresh fruits and vegetables, how to prepare them and why that's important to their overall health and quality of life."

Healthy eating isn't always convenient or affordable, particularly for low-income patients or those living in poverty yet wishing to eat well.

"These patients require a comprehensive, patient-centered approach to their medical conditions," said Judith Lyden, Manet's Registered Dietician and Certified Diabetic Educator. "Healthy eating is an essential part of managing diabetes. It is exhilarating to be able to offer our patients this amazing opportunity to access our local Farmers Markets for fresh fruits and vegetables and to teach them how to prepare them for their families at home."

New Business Development Office

Velesco Expands Operations At Chamber's New Quincy Center For Innovation

Velesco Pharma has boosted its drug formulation, analytical development and cGMP clinical trial manufacturing services with the opening of a new business development office in the greater Boston area.

Velesco supports early stage drug development projects with a deeply experienced scientific team. Velesco is a CMC CRO, founded and staffed by pharmaceutical scientists with decades of experience in the industry.

"The growth of Velesco's early phase CMC services has led to a need to increase our presence in this global hub for pharma and biotech companies. As we enter our 6th year of operations, we are looking forward to having a presence nearer to our existing and prospective clients," said Gerry Cox, Velesco co-founder and chief operating officer, who will be leading the new office.

"In Massachusetts we invest in the life sciences because we are choosing to shape our own future," said Governor Deval Patrick. "We welcome Velesco to Quincy's new Innovation Center and look forward to them creating jobs and economic opportunities in the region."

Velesco will be the first life sciences tenant of the Quincy Center for Innovation, a 12,500 square foot facility providing inexpensive and flexible office space and support services to assist start-up companies and aspiring entrepreneurs. The QCI is expected to open fully September 1st.

"One of the goals of the QCI is to provide a landing spot for those companies who are not yet located in Massachusetts, but have an interest and need to get acclimated to the region before choosing a permanent location," said Donna Mavromates, Director of the Quincy Center for Innovation.

"Our economic future depends so much on creative partnerships, and I am thrilled that work done together by the Quincy Chamber, ENC, and the City has secured a first life science company at our innovation center with the kind of reputation for ingenuity as Velesco," said Mayor Thomas P. Koch. "This is a tremendous first step, and I very much look forward to watching the innovation center continue to grow."

"We will continue our focus on drug formulation, analytical method development and the supply of cGMP clinical supplies to early phase clinical trials while maintaining an evolving understanding of our clients needs. The Quincy Center for Innovation's emphasis on working with young vibrant companies makes this location an excellent fit for Velesco."

"We are excited to see Velesco expand their footprint here in Massachusetts by building out a presence where their clients and potential clients are doing business," said Robert K. Coughlin, president and CEO of MassBio, the life sciences trade association. "Contract research and manufacturing is a vital piece of the new drug development paradigm and we are proud to be a hub for the world's leading contract organizations."

"We are thrilled to welcome Velesco to the fast-growing Massachusetts life sciences community," said Susan Windham-Bannister, Ph.D., President & CEO of the Massachusetts Life Sciences Center, the quasi-public agency tasked with implementing the state's 10-year, $1-billion Life Sciences Initiative. "The company is a welcome addition, and we are pleased that Velesco selected Massachusetts as the best place for its new business development office. We are confident that Velesco, as a contract research and manufacturing organization, will find in Massachusetts the partners and client base they need to be successful."

City Appealing Judgment To Pay $81,000 In Legal Fees

By SCOTT JACKSON

A federal judge has ordered Quincy to pay $81,000 in legal fees to non-union construction interests who sued the city over its Responsible Employer Ordinance, a decision the city plans to appeal.

The 2010 ordinance requires city contractors to provide health and welfare benefits, a pension plan, and an apprenticeship program. It also contains a residency requirement, under which one-third of employees hired by the contractor needed to be Quincy residents.

In March 2012 The Merit Construction Alliance, a group of non-union contractors, filed a federal lawsuit against the city, claiming that the residency requirement violated the U.S. Constitution's Privileges and Immunities Clause and the other requirements in the ordinance were pre-empted by the federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA). The locus of the dispute was the awarding of bids for construction of the new Central Middle School.

Judge Rya W. Zobel sided with the Merit Construction Alliance last year and issued an injunction preventing the city from enforcing the ordinance. The city has not enforced it on the Central project or others since that decision. As part of the ongoing litigation, the city agreed that the residency requirement was unconstitutional and that the other portions of the law, except the apprenticeship requirement, were pre-empted by ERISA.

Five months prior to the Quincy case being filed, Zobel struck down a similar ordinance in Fall River in a lawsuit brought by the Utility Contractors of New England (UCANE). In a ruling on Aug. 2, Zobel ordered the city to pay Merit Construction Alliance $81,000 in legal costs associated with the case, saying Quincy's defense of the apprenticeship program was without merit. The city had argued it should only pay $20,000 in legal fees.

"Although Quincy's arguments in favor of its apprenticeship requirement were not frivolous, I had already rejected them just a few months before this suit began. Given the recent decision in UCANE, it was clear at the time the lawsuit began that Quincy's case lacked merit," Zobel wrote in the decision.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins said the city is awaiting a final ruling from Zobel on the case before filing an appeal. That appeal, Timmins said, will argue that the apprenticeship program is not pre-empted by ERISA and will contest the ruling on legal fees.

"It was our intention all along to pursue it at the appellate level," Timmins said.

In a statement following Zobel's decision, MCA President and CEO Ronald N. Coglianò said Quincy should have dropped its defense of the Responsible Employer Ordinance after Zobel's ruling in the Fall River case.

"Quincy should have known it was destined to fail in court because only months before the City of Fall River had lost a very similar case," Coglianò said. "Under pressure from special interests, Quincy officials pursued the losing battle and now taxpayers will pay the price for City Hall's stubbornness."

FoodFest Raises $295,000 For Fr. Bill's, MainSpring

Blue skies and warm summer breezes graced the 19th Annual FoodFest & Auction organized by Father Bill's & MainSpring (FBMS), the agency's annual fundraiser held July 30 at The Ocean Club, Marina Bay, Quincy.

Raising $295,000, proceeds will help close the annual 54% funding gap experienced in the emergency shelter programs throughout the winter months. In addition, FBMS helps more than 5,000 needy individuals, including families with children, find housing, jobs and achieve self-sufficiency through prevention programs that target those close to imminent homelessness.

"We are so grateful to our sponsors and participating food vendors for what turned out to be one of the most successful fundraisers we've had in 19 years," said

John Yazwinski, President & CEO of FBMS. "In terms of the weather, the guests, the food and entertainment, we could not feel more fortunate. Our winter months will be made a little brighter by the generosity of everyone involved."

Forty of the South Shore's finest restaurants, bakeries, and beverage distributors, offered their best samples, while almost 1,000 guests were entertained by the Baha Brothers band, East Coast Acappella, Miss Massachusetts and the Revolution cheerleaders.

FBMS presented the Richard C. Welch Dedicated Volunteer award to an outstanding, long-time FBMS volunteer, Corie Bulman. Dick Welch (1941-2009), a decade-long member of the board of directors of Father Bill's & MainSpring (FBMS), oversaw an unprecedented level of change for the agency from the mid-1990s to the mid 2000's.

This year's honoree is Corinne "Corie" Bulman Nagle, granddaughter of Patti and the late Jack Conway, and daughter of Michael and Carol Bulman, who is now President & CEO of Jack Conway Real Estate. Corie was just 14 years old when she established Holiday Hope for the Homeless in 2000 providing gifts to children at the Conway and Evelyn House family shelters in Middleboro and Stoughton respectively.

In addition, Hingham residents Ernie & Mary Sofis were the lucky raffle winners with their choice of one of three luxury destinations, including any Ritz-Carlton in the U.S., Sonoma Wine Country or Hilton Head South Carolina (air fare included).

New Central Middle School Opening Delayed list of items that need to be completed after the students and the staff are in there."

The new three-story $50 million facility will house around 600 students in grades six through eight. When finished the new school will allow for teachers and students to use a number of different 21st century learning tools including interactive white boards, laptops, and iPads.

Mayor Thomas Koch, the chairman of the School Committee, agreed with the superintendent's decision to delay the opening of the new academic building.

"This is a first-class educational facility that's been talked about for 30 years, and I agree with the Superintendent that a little patience is in order to ensure that the building is not just complete, but fully ready for students and staff."

"We may very well have been able to pull it off (open Sept. 4) but creating a little breathing room by extending the opening is the right course."

School committee member Paul Bregoli said that it is unfortunate that the school won't be ready when they were originally told but that it is better for it to be done right before students and staff move in.

"It's unfortunate that its not going to be ready but we want it done right and to get it done right before students and staff move in," said Bregoli. "Losing a couple of weeks or so won't be the end of the world."

DeCristofaro said that the existing middle school has remained undisturbed throughout the summer and classrooms, offices, and curriculum materials remain in place.

"The new Central Middle School represents the collaborative efforts of many talented people from across the city and state," DeCristofaro wrote. "I am confident that the finished school facility will be an educational landmark for decades to come."

DeCristofaro said that the existing Central Middle School, which is located at 1012 Hancock St. and was built in 1894, has gone untouched this the summer with the classrooms, office furniture and technology still in place.

"The existing Central Middle School facility has remained undisturbed this summer with all classroom and office furniture and technology still in place," wrote DeCristofaro. "All curriculum materials are still located in classrooms and Central's teachers were asked to organize their packing with their start-of-school materials easily accessible in case this contingency came to pass."

DeCristofaro said that further updates on the construction progress and move in date would be shared as the project moves closer to completion.

Special Thanks From The Family Of FF John T. Austin

Recently our son John T. Austin, a Quincy firefighter, died while responding to an emergency call. Although John left us at 37 years old, he accomplished a great deal while he lived on this earth.

He played most sports — track, hockey, baseball and football and did not care if he was the best. It was always the love of the team, sport and having fun. He joined the Marine Corps (third-generation Marine) to serve his country and his fellow person. By doing so he traveled to Italy, Bosnia, Croatia, Africa, Panama and many more countries. Upon his return to the states and to civilian life, he joined the Quincy Fire Department. His goal was always to help others.

One former high school classmate, told us how John Kimble added that if they need to tear up the sidewalks they would put in temporary passageways for customers to be able to get to those businesses affected.

"The only time they will need to go on the sidewalk is when bringing new electrical feed into everyone's building," said Kimble. "That road is so narrow, some of the utilities go underneath the existing sidewalks. So with all the different retail and different shops and what not, we know how sensitive that is so we're going to put in temporary passageways if necessary over the sidewalks if we need to tear them up. We have done all new sewer lines on Chestnut and none of those businesses were affected."

Thomas added that there would also be some work that overflows into Hancock Street, which means they will have to shut down part of Hancock during a point in the utility work on Cottage St.

"There will be some work that goes into Hancock because the sewer main is in the middle of Hancock," said Thomas. "When go to do those tie-ins we will have to shut down one lane on Hancock for a day or two to do those tie-ins."

Thomas said that a few different factors could cause delays in the work that is planned for Cottage Avenue.

"Not only could weather delay us, but you never know what's in that ground," said Thomas. "You never know what you're going to find. This is an old city, you're going to run into things."

The next update meeting will be held on Sept. 13th at 9 a.m. in the Suffolk Construction conference room on the third floor of the Granite Trust Building, 1400 Hancock St.

saved her from fellow classmates who constantly bullied her. He made it stop. A mother, whom we never met, told us how her son was taking the wrong road in life, and John mentored and saved him by convincing him that to find direction in his life he needed to join the Marine Corps. That young man, his mother happily reported, is now a Marine and his life has new meaning. The service to other stories went on and on.

John left an organ donor card so that in the event of his death he would continue his legacy of giving. Both cornea were given to help someone see. His blood vessels, bones and skin were also donated along with any other organs that could be used. Even in his death John continues to give of himself.

In today's world it's not about our service to one another but the Porsche in the driveway, the million dollar home, the second home in the Vineyard, etc., we forget what life is really all about. It's the unselfish acts of kindness that we do each and every day for one another. We can all celebrate John's life by emulating his ways and giving to one another.

The John T. Austin family we would like to thank all those who supported and helped us through John's passing.

Ray Waldron, a Quincy firefighter of 11 years, rode in the Pan-Mass Challenge August 3rd and 4th. Once again, he rode with Team CHUCKLE (Cycling Helps Us Cure Kids' Lives). This was Waldron's 10th PMC dating back to 1989. The Pan-Mass Challenge is a 192-mile bike ride from Sturbridge MA to Provincetown MA over two days – 111 miles from Sturbridge to Bourne on the first day and 81 miles from Bourne to Provincetown the second. It is a fundraising event for cancer research for The Jimmy Fund for children at The Dana-Farber Cancer Institute since 1980. In 34 years, the ride has raised over $375 million dollars. The PMC's goal for 2013 is to raise $38 million.

Team CHUCKLE was formed 4 years ago by Ray and his high school friend Rob Brennan. This year the team was comprised of 14 riders from all over the state, and even from New Jersey & Maine. The fire department and the firefighter's Local 792 has always been a big supporter of the team and the team proudly displays the departments patch on the team jersey.

For the past 3 years, Team CHUCKLE has ridden to support a Pedal Partner – a patient at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Last year and this year, the team's Pedal Partner is Tatyana Abrams, a 15-year-old girl from Avon, MA. She was diagnosed with Acute Myeloid Leukemia (AML) in 2008 and was able to receive a bone marrow transplant. She is now in remission thankfully. However, as a result of her treatments, her immune system was left vulnerable and she developed problems with her lungs and respiratory system. Tatyana required a double-lung transplant last year, but is now doing much better. She is very much looking forward to returning to school for 9th grade.

Team CHUCKLE was able to visit again with Tatyana at the Lakeville water stop at mile 84 of the first day of the PMC. According to Waldron, the team captain, "This is why we ride – to see Tatyana doing so well makes everything we do this weekend so worthwhile. It makes our ride so much easier to see these results. What we endure this weekend is literally nothing compared to what these brave kids endure every day. Tatyana truly is an inspiration for everyone on the team."

The Quincy Fire Department has generously supported Waldron efforts with Team CHUCKLE since he started riding in the PMC again in 2010. "The support I get from the department, our union, and all of my sponsors and donors is incredible. I'm very grateful to everyone who supports my ride and the PMC," says Waldron. "It's a great cause and an outstanding experience – the whole weekend. The difference the PMC makes for cancer research is unbelievable."

Along with Rob Brennan from Amesbury, Quincy residents Will Prendergast and James Conley are among Team CHUCKLE's 14 riders in 2013. To date, the team has raised over $42,000. The PMC offers different routes to ride and each rider is required to raise a minimum amount according to the route that he or she rides. The fundraising minimum is $4,300 for the full 2-day, 192-mile route, and lesser amounts for the shorter, 1-day rides. Eight of Team CHUCKLE's 14 riders rode the 192-mile

Oct. 1, donations are still coming in. Donations may still be made in the name of any of the PMC riders at www.pmc.org.

Additionally, a fundraiser, "Cancer Shucks," is being hosted at Brine Restaurant, an oyster bar, in Newburyport on Monday, Aug. 19th on behalf of Team CHUCKLE for the benefit of the PMC.

New YMCA On Track To Open In October

Larger, $30M Facility Will Replace Current 58-Year-Old Building

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

By mid to late October of this year, Quincy residents and YMCA members can expect to see a brand new completed YMCA building on Coddington Street across from Quincy High School.

"We are cooking right along now," said YMCA Executive Director Eric Snyder. "We are on target for the middle or end of October, which is on schedule."

The new $30 million facility will replace the 58 year old building which will be demolished and become parking spaces once the new building is complete. The new building will almost double in size what the members and staff are use to, going from a three-floor 86,000 square foot building to a two-floor 118,000 square foot facility.

"Everything is larger," said Snyder. "We have a larger running track, larger basketball courts, the family pool is almost three times the size of the old one, the health and wellness center is two times the size, and we were able to add additional classrooms and studios with this new building."

It is expected that the new facility will allow growth from 20,000 members to 30,000 members and program participants within two years. The new facility will also save at least $200,000 annually on utilities and maintenance expenses. Within three months of the new building being completed the old one will be demolished and replaced with parking, adding over 100 additional new spaces.

Entering the new building patrons will immediately see two swimming pools to their left with large glass windows that wrap around the outside allowing for an overflow of natural light into the swimming area. One pool will be the traditional six lanes, 25-yard lap pool for swimmers and swimming competitions, the other will be a warmer, shallower family pool used for swim lessons and other activities. A steam room and sauna room are also available to members and guests.

All offices will be centrally located and available as members enter the building, which is a big change from the old building where offices are scattered throughout.

O'Connell - Thomson Basketball Tourney Aug. 24-25

The eighth annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament will be held on Aug. 24-25 at the Fenno Street courts.

The event is held in memory of John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, two standout athletes who graduated from North Quincy High in 2002 and tragically had their lives cut short in the past nine years.

Their families have set up memorial scholarships in their names to benefit North Quincy graduates and the tournament serves to raise funds for these scholarships.

The weekend will feature a 16-team men's tournament and a four-team women's tournament, featuring a number of local college basketball players, as well as many former and current high school players from Quincy. Games begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday and will run throughout both days.

The event has been a great success in the past thanks to the generous donations of local businesses and Quincy residents. Anyone interested in making a donation can write a check to the John "Okie" O'Connell Fund and send it to Dan Duggan, 61 Bedford St., Quincy 02169. (The donations will be split between the two funds).

TREATING POST-TRAUMATIC NECK SPRAIN

Post-traumatic neck sprain often goes by the name "whiplash" because the popular term so aptly describes the neck injury that occurs when the head suddenly whips forward and then backward. Most often occurring as a result of an automobile crash in which the injured occupant is hit from behind, the abrupt flexion and extension of the cervical spine can cause pain, muscle spasms, and impaired range of motion. Other symptoms of whiplash include shoulder and lower back pain, arm pain and heaviness, and fatigue. While head and neck pain may resolve two to three weeks later, and full recovery may take up to three months, some experience pain and disability much longer. In these cases, spinal manipulation may offer relief.

When your spine is out of place, you can experience chronic pain and restricted movement, among other problems. We use safe methods to align your spine to relieve your pain and restore range of motion and flexibility. When you need chiropractic treatment, don't wait. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we can tell you about many simple ways to make your life better; the chiropractic way. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we are welcoming new patients daily. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment at your convenience. We offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Wearing a soft foam cervical collar is no longer routinely recommended for whiplash.

A café and community area are available on the first floor of the new building, right near the pools, allowing for members and staff to get to know each other and grab something to eat. An additional community area — with plans for chairs, a sofa, and flat screen television — will be found at the back of the first floor with glass doors that will open up into the gymnasium and field house.

"We wanted to provide some community space where our members can socialize and get to know one another," said Snyder. "They will now have the ability to just sit down and talk to each other. It is a big difference from the small area we have right now that has a couple of chairs and some tables."

At the rear of the building sits a 30,000 square-foot multipurpose gym with two high school regulation sized basketball courts and a turf field for indoor soccer, lacrosse and many other sports and activities. An eighth-of-a-mile suspended track will wrap around the middle of the multipurpose gym.

Also featured on the first floor is eight early learning classrooms that students and parents will have a separate entrance and drop off location for. The new facility will allow for the early learning center to double in capacity.

The new building also features a child watch play-

ENTERING THE NEW building, members and visitors will first notice the two new swimming pools with views overlooking Coddington Street. The two pools, one a traditional lap pool and the other is a shallow, warmer pool that will be used for swim lessons and other activities. Natural light will be let into the pool area with large glass windows that surround both pools. The shallower pool has a ramp built in to make it handicap accessible.

room, outdoor playground, welcome center, along with a men's and boys' locker rooms, women's and girls' locker rooms, and a family locker room that all lead out to the pool area.

"We have four locker rooms, a women's and men's, a boys' and girls' and a family locker room for parents who don't feel comfortable allowing their children into the boys' or girls' locker room just yet," said Snyder. "Those two locker rooms, the boys' and the girls', are more open allowing for staff to supervise more easily. It is really important for our children and families to feel protected and that they are in a safe environment."

The child watch playroom will allow members to drop off their children for up to two hours while they are using other areas of the facility. Children will be separated into age appropriate play zones where they can play with toys and also work with different learning materials.

The second floor is home to the health and well-being center, healthcare partner center, and an entrance to the field house. The health and well-being center is 19,000 square-feet and includes cardio equipment, free weights, three group exercise studios, a spinning studio, and adaptive fitness equipment. In the old building members had to use two floors to do their work out routines.

"This building is 100 percent usable space and also more energy efficient," said Snyder. "There are 10 skylights throughout the building allowing for natural light to flow in. The building is much larger, more efficient, and accessible for our members. None of this would be happening without the people in the community's help."

THE NEW 118,000 square-foot YMCA facility includes a large, 30,000 square-foot area in the back of the building where two high school regulation basketball courts will be along with a turf field and track that runs along the middle of the multipurpose space.

The Micheli Center For Sports Injury Prevention Partners With South Shore YMCA's Branch

The Micheli Center for Sports Injury Prevention (The Micheli Center) opened in April 2013. Founded by Dr. Lyle Micheli, Director of the Division of Sports Medicine at Boston Children's Hospital, The Micheli Center uses evidence-based strategies to reduce risk of injury in athletes while enhancing individual sports performance. Personal programs are developed to prevent athletes from obtaining injuries in their sport, to be able to play longer and safer.

For each individual athlete to be successful a work out regime is essential. The Micheli Center is partnering with YMCA South Shore - Quincy Branch in Quincy, so athletes from all over New England can train and fulfill their individual program prescription for injury prevention at their local YMCA.

Personal Injury Risk Profiles are at the core of The Micheli Center's operations. After going through an extensive fitness evaluation, clients meet with a board-certified Sports Medicine physician and are provided with an individualized prescription outlining steps they can take to minimize their risk of sports injuries.

Concussion Prevention

Theodore Walsh of Quincy was named to the spring semester Dean's List at Franklin Pierce University

Programs offer athletes a comprehensive description of concussive brain injury and its occurrence in sports. Athletes learn about their own personal risk of injury, receive instructions on how to reduce their risk of sustaining a sport-related concussion, baseline testing, computerized measurements of their brain function, standardized assessments of their balance, and guidance on how to play their sports safely.

The Running Program at The Micheli Center assists healthy runners of all ages and skill levels who seek a multidisciplinary analysis of running style, gait, distance, age, competition level, and more to determine an individualized injury risk profile.

Specialty Programs to develop sports injury prevention plans for dancers, figure skaters, throwing athletes, and more are also available.

Coach and Community Clinics are informational sessions for those currently involved in coaching, athletic training, strength and conditioning, or parenting young athletes. During these clinics The Micheli Center team reviews the most current research in the fields of sports medicine, injury prevention, and performance training.

Personal Training sessions to ensure proper technique when fulfilling the prescriptions received at The Micheli Center will be led by certified professionals who specialize in training children and young adults. Both one-on-one sessions and small session with groups of 2-10 customers are offered.

"The YMCA is an ideal partner, as they are respected, reliable, and available to everyone. Together, we hope to make athletics safer, while continuing to encourage exercise and sports participation for everyone," said Dr. William P. Meehan III, Director of The Micheli Center for Sports Injury Prevention.

"The Greater Boston Y branches partner with like minded cause driven organizations like The Micheli Center For Sports Injury Prevention in Waltham to promote healthy living among youth. It is a natural fit for trainees progressing in their program to continue their prescription at a full service YMCA in their community, as they do in Waltham. There is potential for valuable research outcomes that will result from a partnership such as ours and shared nationwide. In addition, through a combination of educational lectures, attendance at Y events and using cross referral channels when appropriate, our organizations are strengthening the community together," said Natalie A. Norton, Senior VP of Operations at the Greater Boston YMCA.

2008 Quincy High Graduate Standout At URI

Michael LeBel Ends College Baseball Career With Numerous Records

Michael LeBel recently completed his record setting baseball career at the University of Rhode Island (URI).

LeBel, a graduate of Quincy High School (2008), started every one of the 224 games of his four-year career. LeBel, a three-time team captain, played short-stop and third base at URI. He set numerous all-time records at URI including: home runs 30; runs batted in 159; runs scored 192; extra base hits 95; total bases 433; and assists 587.

In addition, LeBel ranks second all-time in the following categories: hits 260; doubles 52; triples 12; and stolen bases 81.

LeBel ended his career as he had started with a strong offensive performance during the last week of the season when he batted .438 (7-16), had two home runs, eight runs batted in and six runs scored and was named Atlantic 10 Player of the Week. He had a career batting average of .300 and a slugging percentage of .498.

Throughout his career LeBel earned many individual awards for his baseball prowess. In 2009 he was named to the Conference All-Rookie team. In 2010 he was named to the Conference All-Championship Team.

In 2011 LeBel was voted

by the league coaches as having the Conference's best throwing arm for infielders and as one of the best base-runners and was selected to the second team All-Conference as a short-stop.

In 2012, in what would have been his senior year LeBel was voted by Baseball America as the pre-season Atlantic 10 Player of the Year, and selected by College Sports Madness to the pre-season All-Conference team. After several games LeBel clearly established his worthiness of the pre-season accolades as he batted .523, had one home run and a .923 slugging percentage, but he suffered a season-ending left shoulder injury that required corrective surgery.

LeBel, who after several games was unable to bat due to his injury, volunteered to pitch since his right shoulder was sound. Before undergoing surgery, LeBel remarkably pitched two and one-third innings and posted a respectable 3.86 earned run average.

The hallmark of LeBel's collegiate career will be his leadership, his work ethic and academic excellence. In addition College Baseball Daily selected LeBel in 2012 to be one of several college baseball players to write a blog on college baseball. He battled back from a near career ending injury by undergoing an aggressive rehabilitation program that enabled him to complete his senior season as a red-shirt. In his senior season LeBel led URI in home runs, runs batted in, total bases, slugging percentage, sacrifice flies and hit by pitches; and was second in stolen bases. A finance major and two-time selectee to the Atlantic 10 Baseball Academic All-Conference Team, LeBel was awarded URI's prestigious Elizabeth Holmes award which is given annually to an outstanding URI male athlete who displays both academic and athletic excellence.

LeBel, a product of the various Quincy Youth Baseball Leagues, Legion baseball and Quincy High School sports, is one of the top scholar athletes that Quincy has produced.

12-Year-Olds Playing Hard-Nosed Baseball At Cal Ripken World Series

By JOE REARDON

Resiliency has been the calling card of the Quincy 12-year-old baseball team for the past two years and despite three losses heading into Tuesday night's showdown against Hawaii in the Cal Ripken World Series, the New England champs have played their typical hard-nosed ball in Hammond, IN.

Take Monday night's duel against El Dorado, AR. Martin McCormack gave Quincy the early lead in the bottom of the second with a two-run blast. Curtis Frazier also came alive at the plate with a pair of hits and an RBI.

Colin McGrath, who by Cal Ripken rules, could only pitch four innings, was sensational on the mound with six strikeouts. Jack Free relieved McGrath and was equally as sharp with four more strikeouts in just 1-2/3 innings of work. Arkansas rallied, though, and pulled out a 4-3 win to put Quincy's back against the walls going into Tuesday against Oahu.

Manager Mark Free saw the game as a big step and believes Arkansas would have continued having problems with McGrath. "The rules are six innings in two games and he had two more innings," said Free. "With the way he was pitching I think we would have held on."

The tough loss was quickly forgotten after a trip to Wendy's and the team began to focus on the Hawaii tilt. "As bummed out, disappointed and hurt at the end of last night's game, some fries and Frostys helped them shake it off pretty quick," said Free.

After destroying Maine 10-0 to earn its second consecutive N.E. title, Quincy has taken its share of lumps at the Hammond Optimist Youth Sports Complex. Nervous and tight in its first game, Quincy had an uncharacteristic tough time in the field with four errors in an 11-1 rout against a very good Kentucky squad. Chris Frazier knocked in a run and had three hits and Connor McDonald struck out five batters in three innings of work in an 8-1 loss to Crown Point, IN.

No matter what happens against Hawaii, the season has been an enormous success and the trip to Indiana by the 63-person contingent of players, managers, families and friends is one the team won't forget. The players took in a Chicago White Sox game and got to know the Arkansas and Hawaii teams who were staying in the same hotel.

"My goal (against Hawaii) will be to keep them loose and relaxed and have fun playing baseball," said Free. "They've grown closer together. It's been a phenomenal experience outside of baseball. That's the stuff they'll remember. They've been very friendly and the kids (from all the teams) have been really getting along. Even the siblings have bonded with siblings from the other teams."

As for the support from the residents of Quincy, Facebook and Twitter have been swamped with well wishes. "Win, lose or draw as Mayor (Tom) Koch said at our event before we left, we have have 93,000 people in Quincy rooting for us and supporting us," said Free. "People are feeling our pain a little, but they're proud we're out here fighting and competing."

Stephen J. McGrath: Loyal, Dedicated Public Servant

Steve was even more remarkable as a loyal friend, mentor, and loving husband, brother and uncle. His sharp wit, love of history and politics and his passion for life were truly wonderful gifts that his friends and loved ones will always cherish. My prayers, and those of our entire community, are with Steve's wife, Jane, and his family during this incredibly difficult time."

Mr. McGrath served as city solicitor under then-Mayor James Sheets from 1990-2002. The two had served together on the City Council prior to that, and both ran for mayor in 1989 - Mr. McGrath finished third in a four-person preliminary election and Sheets defeated businessman Peter O'Connell in the general election to replace the outgoing Francis McCauley, who chose to not seek a fifth term.

Following the election, Sheets offered the city solicitor's position to Mr. McGrath. Sheets remembered meeting with his transition team to discuss appointments in the administration, and telling the group why he was choosing to name his former opponent the city's top lawyer.

"I sat across from him on the City Council for a number of years," Sheets recalled saying during that meeting. "He loves being in the political arena. He knows the City Council and he can work with people. He'll be able to work with me."

Mr. McGrath would remain city solicitor for each of Sheets' six terms as mayor.

"No one in my 12 years was more loyal," Sheets said. "He was always there for me. I was thrilled when Mayor Koch named him director of human resources."

"Steve was a very special person," Sheets added. "He loved not only his country but the democratic process - he loved to be part of it. He had a special understanding of how democracy should work."

Prior to his appointment as city solicitor, Mr.

McGrath first served on the City Council for 12 years. At the age of 24 in 1977 he was elected Ward 5 councillor, unseating incumbent Warren Powers. Mr. McGrath was re-elected Ward 5 councillor four times - also serving as council president in 1986 and 1987. He ran for an at-large seat in 1987, topping the field in that election.

During his time on the city council Mr. McGrath served with two mayors - Arthur Tobin and McCauley. Tobin remembered Mr. McGrath as a fierce advocate for his constituents, particularly on the many construction projects that took place in the city while he was mayor.

"Whatever the issues were facing the city, he advocated strongly for the people of Ward 5," Tobin said. "While I was in [City Hall] we had the Stop & Shop building construction. He was helpful on that."

Tobin, now clerk-magistrate at the Quincy District Court, said he and McGrath had a cordial relationship during that time. Their friendly relationship continued in recent years when Mr. McGrath visited the courthouse on city business.

"He was doing quite a job for the administration," Tobin said. "We had a good, amicable relationship. I wish to offer my sincere prayers and sympathy to his wife and family. We'll keep him in our prayers."

McCauley and Mr. McGrath served together, and sat next to each other, on the council for four years before the former was elected mayor in 1981. Mr. McGrath's stint as council president also came during McCauley's time in City Hall.

"We got along pretty well. We didn't always agree on the issues but he was a good guy - he was a solid performer," McCauley said. "My wife and I and the McCauley family extend our sympathies to his family."

Former Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly served with Mr. McGrath on the council. Kelly helped Mr. McGrath secure the necessary votes to become council president - he wound up being chosen unanimously by his colleagues. Additionally Kelly managed Mr. McGrath's campaign for councillor-at-large in 1987 and for mayor two years later.

"He was one of the finest gentlemen I ever met," Kelly said. "He was just one nice person. I never saw him in an argument and I never saw him lose his temper."

The two continued to be friends, and Kelly would often stop and chat with Mr. McGrath when visiting City Hall.

"Me and Steve were pretty tight over the years," Kelly said. "I never went to City Hall without seeing him."

Chuck Phelan, now the city's director of information technology, was elected to the Ward 5 council seat when Mr. McGrath ran for the at-large seat. The two had known each other since Mr. McGrath's first council campaign in 1977, and Mr. McGrath encouraged Phelan to run for Ward 5 councillor. Both remained close in recent years working together under Koch.

"It's a huge loss, it just seems so tragic," Phelan said. "I feel really sad for Jane, his wife. Stephen lived a good life and died way too young."

Mr. McGrath was also close with another former Ward 5 councillor, George Burke, who later served as an at-large councillor, as Mr.

STEPHEN J. McGRATH takes his oath from City Clerk John Gillis after being elected City Council president in January, 1986.

McGrath did, and then was elected Norfolk County district attorney. The two lived next to each other in Wollaston and became friends.

"He was a wonderful neighbor and so was his wife Jane," Burke said. "We were neighbors for many years and friends for many years. It's breaking my heart because today (Monday) is his birthday."

"I'd worked with Steve over the years. He was a tremendous gentleman and very dedicated to the City of Quincy. It's a close friendship that we had. I can't believe he's gone."

Jim Timmins, Quincy's current city solicitor, worked under Mr. McGrath when the latter was city solicitor in the Sheets administration. Timmins said Mr. McGrath served as his mentor during those years.

"He was my mentor while I worked in this office under Mayor Sheets. Steve was a terrific example of how to work as a city solicitor," Timmins said. "It's a really difficult loss personally and professionally for me. I really looked up to Steve and I had a high regard for him."

Another longtime Quincy official, City Clerk Joe Shea, lauded Mr. McGrath for his commitment to the city.

"Steve was a well respected public official," said Shea, who worked with Mr. McGrath for 22 years. "He was an excellent lawyer and he also understood the city's neighborhoods and political atmosphere in Quincy. He did a lot for the City of Quincy and he was well liked by people throughout the city. He practiced law and understood city government. He will be sorely missed."

Sen. John Keenan also remembered Mr. McGrath for his commitment and service to the city.

"Steve had so many gifts and talents, and could have done so many different things in life," Keenan said. "We are so fortunate that he chose to work for the city he loved. He brought to work each day an honest commitment to public service, an even hand, an incredible knowledge of government, and a calm, practical willingness and ability to solve problems."

"We are all so grateful for the nearly 40 years he spent making Quincy a better place. I learned so much from Steve, and will miss his sense of humor, his advice, and his friendship. My prayers are with him, his wife Jane, and his family."

Rep. Ron Mariano, the House majority leader and a former member of Quincy School Committee, said he would greatly miss Mr. McGrath.

"Steve was a good friend, someone who I will miss a lot," Mariano said. "It's a huge loss to the city."

Mariano added that Mr. McGrath would often attend his campaign fundraisers in Boston. The two would sit and chat once other guests had started to leave.

"He was just an adorable person to be around," Mariano said.

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will hold Office Hours in the Second Floor Conference Room at Quincy City Hall at 1305 Hancock St. on Thursday, Sept. 19 from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

O'Donnell and members of his staff will be on hand to answer questions about the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds.

The Register will have information about the Massachusetts Homestead Act as well as on-site work stations that can provide in real time the status of your mortgage discharge, a print out of your deed or a demonstration of how Registry technology works.

Last month, a landlord in North Quincy was beckoned to the station to meet with Crime Prevention regarding the amount of calls at his multi-unit property. According to neighbors and Officers working the area, many of the calls were related to drug use or sales.

The landlord was advised of the problem tenants and initiated action to evict them. In addition, he was advised to contact the Quincy Police Drug Unit about activity at his building. A few days later, the landlord spoke with Detective Keenan, informing him that he observed a male suspect pull into the driveway, exit his vehicle and enter the front door of the building. Within one minute, the same male exited the front door and walked back to his car. When the landlord asked the suspect what he was doing, the suspect ignored him and drove away.

The landlord also provided additional information about other suspects who were driving up to his building, running in and driving off, which he believed was a drug deal.

On Aug. 1, Drug Unit Detectives set up surveillance of the building. At approximately 6:15 p.m., Detective Duran and Detective Sergeant Tapper observed a blonde female, later identified as a tenant, walk from the area of the building to a side street. A car drove down the street, put its hazard lights on and stopped by the tenant, who walked over to the car and entered the front passenger's seat.

Detective Duran followed the vehicle as it drove around the block, then observed the tenant get back out of the car one minute later, less than 100 yards of where she was picked up and less than 50 yards from her residence. Although all members of the Drug Unit believed that a drug deal had occurred, it was decided that this incident would help support probable cause for the next incident, which would happen the next day.

On Aug. 2, Detective Sergeant Tapper, Detectives Coen, Duran, O'Brien and Keenan set up surveillance again. At approximately 3:10 p.m., the same car and driver returned to the area of the building and parked one house away. The tenant exited the building, looked down the street at the suspect's car, then ran back into the building, emerging seconds later and then entered the front passenger's seat of the car.

As the car pulled away, Detective O'Brien followed directly behind it. Detective Keenan took over surveillance a few streets away. As the car approached Newbury Avenue, it pulled over and the tenant exited the car and began walking towards her house. The suspect then drove away.

Detectives O'Brien and Keenan followed the car while Detectives Coen, Powers, and Detective Sergeant Tapper encountered the tenant on the sidewalk. When Detective Powers displayed his police badge, the tenant looked di-

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your honesty might upset some people, but you inevitably win more admirers for having the courage to tell the truth when others are more likely to scramble for cover.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your efforts to defend your project begin to show favorable results. You should soon be able to win over even the most determined detractors who had lined up against it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You win praise for your selfless efforts in a very difficult situation. But be careful not to allow your generous nature to be exploited by those who have their own agenda.

rectly at him and began running across the street toward her apartment. Detective Powers yelled, "Quincy Police stop!" but she continued running.

As she ran, Detective Coen pulled his vehicle ahead of her, jumped out and told her to stop, but she kept running. As she fled, the tenant began taking items from her mouth and threw them in the driveway of her building. Detective Powers grabbed hold of the tenant as she finished throwing the second item from her mouth. At this time, Detective Coen took the tenant to the ground as she continued to resist the commands to, "Stop resisting! Quincy Police!"

Detective Coen noticed that the tenant was attempting to make swallowing motions as she tried to break free of his grasp. At this time, fearing that the tenant was trying to swallow narcotics and destroy evidence, Detective Coen was able to extract a knotted plastic bag containing a light brown powder from her mouth. During the brief struggle, the tenant continued to resist arrest even after being placed in handcuffs and at one point unsuccessfully attempted to use her knee to strike Detective Coen.

Detective Coen advised the tenant of her Miranda Rights to which she stated she understood. Detective Coen asked her what was in the plastic bag she just spit out of her mouth and she stated, "Heroin." Detective Powers recovered the two knotted plastic bags containing Heroin in the tenant's driveway, where she threw them.

When questioned further, the tenant said that she purchased the Heroin from the male suspect in the car, buying two bags of Heroin for $100 US dollars, paying with a hundred dollar bill. She said that the suspect gave her the third bag for free.

The tenant, a 52 year-old Quincy resident, was arrested and charged with, "Possession of Class A (Heroin), Conspiracy to Violate the Controlled Substance Laws and Resisting Arrest." It was later discovered that the tenant was previously found guilty of Possession to Distribute Class A in Quincy District Court, so she was charged with a subsequent drug offense.

Meanwhile, Detectives O'Brien and Keenan continued to follow the suspect as he travelled south on Quincy Shore Drive. Detective Sergeant Tapper told the Detectives to stop the suspect vehicle now that the tenant was under arrest. Detective Keenan requested a marked cruiser to stop the suspect, but then the suspect reversed direction, heading north on Quincy Shore Drive towards the Neponset Bridge/Dorchester.

QPD Communications was notified of the change of direction and requested the Massachusetts State Police for assistance with the impending motor vehicle stop. The suspect vehicle traveled over the Neponset bridge but was stopped in traffic. Detective O'Brien was directly in front of the suspect vehicle while Detective Keenan was directly behind his vehicle. The Detectives elected to encounter the vehicle as it was stopped in traffic, to prevent the suspect from fleeing or attempt to destroy/swallow drugs.

As Detective O'Brien exited his vehicle, the suspect began to beep his horn. Detective Keenan approached the driver's side of the suspect's vehicle. The suspect initially was fixated on Detective O'Brien as he walked towards him. The Detectives observed the suspect make a big swallowing motion. Detective Keenan opened the door and attempted to prevent the suspect from swallowing drugs. A small plastic bag with a light brown powder flew out of the suspect's mouth. The suspect continued to struggle and refused all commands to stop swallowing.

The suspect, a 23 year old Dorchester resident, was led from the vehicle and placed under arrest. Detective O'Brien advised the suspect of his Miranda rights however the suspect indicated that he didn't speak English. The suspect was charged with, "Distribution Class A (Heroin), Possession to Distribute Class A (Heroin) and Conspiracy to Violate the Controlled Substance Laws."

Suspect Sought In Unarmed Robberies

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Quincy Police are looking for what they believe is the same suspect in the unarmed robberies of the Walgreens at 330 Hancock St., this past Saturday and the South Coastal Bank at 77 Granite St., last Friday.

Quincy Police Captain John Dougan said that the man seen robbing the South Coastal Bank on Aug. 16th resembles the same man who robbed the Walgreens on Aug. 17th. The suspect in both instances robbed via demand note asking for cash. No weapon was shown at either robbery.

On Aug. 16 around 9 a.m., the suspect, wearing a white baseball hat and gray long sleeve shirt, entered the bank and passed the teller a note before fleeing towards Whitwell Street with an undetermined amount of cash.

On Aug. 17 at approximately 9:12 a.m., a suspect entered the Walgreens on Hancock St. in North Quincy and asked for a pen before handing a demand note to the clerk. The suspect is described as a white male, late 30's to early 40's in age, POLICE ARE SEARCHING for this man who robbed the South Coastal Bank Aug. 16. Police believe the same man also robbed Walgreens in North Quincy Aug. 17.

wearing a green colored Boston Celtics short-sleeve t-shirt with a shamrock on the front, and a matching colored baseball cap. He was also wearing blue jeans that were ripped at the knee, and white sneakers.

The police report states that, "It appears to be the same suspect who robbed South Coastal Bank in Quincy on 08/16/13, based on the notes passed."

Anyone with information on either robbery is urged to call Quincy detectives at 617-479-1212.

Morrissey Suffered Fainting Episode Prior To Four-Car Crash

DA Will Not Face Criminal Charges, Clerk Magistrate Rules

By SCOTT JACKSON

Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey will not face criminal charges for causing a four-car crash in Milton that left the Quincy Democrat and former legislator hospitalized.

On Monday at Quincy District Courthouse a clerk-magistrate ruled in closed hearing that Morrissey would not face a criminal charge of operating to endanger for his role in the July 16 crash. The district attorney was cited for a lane violation following the crash, and fined $100. A clerk magistrate from Worcester was brought in for the hearing to avoid a conflict of interest.

"The hearing just concluded and no criminal complaint has been issued against me," Morrissey said following the hearing. "At the hearing, I presented a number of pieces of evidence to the clerk for consideration."

Morrissey released 47

pages of records – including medical records from Milton Hospital, where he was taken after the crash, cellphone records, the State Police accident report, and data from his SUV's electronic data recorder (EDR) or black box – to The Sun and other media outlets after the hearing concluded.

The hospital records show that the 58-year-old district attorney had no ethyl alcohol in his blood when taken to the hospital following the crash. The records state that Morrissey suffered from vasovagal syncope following the crash, which the National Institutes of Health describe as a benign condition and the most common cause of unexplained fainting, caused by the body's reaction to certain triggers. Morrissey said high temperatures on July 16 caused him to faint.

"I suffered a medical episode called a vasovagal syncope which is best described as an isolated fainting episode as a result of dehydration and fatigue on one of the hottest days of the year," he said.

The medical records also indicate that Morrissey fractured his index and middle fingers on his right hand in the collision. He was released approximately 24 hours following the crash.

The cellphone records show that Morrissey was not on the phone at the time of the crash at 5:47 p.m. on the July 16. Morrissey made several phone calls from his cellphone starting at 5:30, completing the last call one minute prior to the crash. Morrissey said he was trying to make dinner plans and then ordered a pizza during his drive home.

"My wife was returning home from a family reunion in Nova Scotia with her brother and sister. At approximately 4:12 p.m., I spoke with her on my cell phone and she advised me that she would not be home until 9:00 p.m. that evening," the district attorney said.

"Shortly after leaving work at 5:30 p.m., I made a series of telephone calls to friends and family to see if they were available to join me for dinner. Unsuccessful in making plans for dinner, I called a local pizza shop in Quincy and ordered a pizza to pick up. The call to the pizza shop was the last call I made before the accident and it lasted 28 seconds. All of the calls I made after leaving work at approximately 5:30 p.m. were to individuals who are stored in my cell phone directory and the calls were made on my hands free wireless system. My telephone use was not a factor in the accident."

Texting was also not a factor. The last message Morrissey sent or received or sent prior to the collision was at 5:14 p.m.

According to the State Police accident report Morrissey's Ford Explorer was traveling eastbound on Centre Street in Milton when it crossed the double yellow line in the middle of the road, sideswiping a Toyota Highlander. The Highlander spun counterclockwise and rolled over before coming to a rest on its wheels. Morrissey's explorer continued heading east in the westbound lane, striking a Ford F-150 head-on. Those vehicles stopped and fourth swerved off the road to avoid the accident and came to a rest on a stonewall.

State Police analysis of the Explorer's EDR showed Morrissey's car was driving 29 miles per hour five seconds before the crash with the Highlander, and was traveling 34 miles per hour when those two collided. The accident took place in a 30-mile per hour zone. The EDR analysis also found that the Explorer's steering wheel moved suddenly to the left immediately prior to hitting the Highlander, and that Morrissey was wearing a seat belt. He said the findings were consistent with his medical diagnosis.

"My actions immediately before the crash were consistent with my medical diagnosis of suffering from a vasovagal episode or passing out," Morrissey said.

In addition to Morrissey the driver and passenger of the Highlander and the driver of the fourth vehicle were taken to area hospitals and treated and released that evening.

"I am grateful that no one involved in the accident was more seriously injured. I wish the other parties in the accident a speedy recovery," Morrissey said.

"Lastly, I hope this accident serves as a cautionary tale whenever a heat wave hits our region. When the media broadcasts those warnings about staying cool and hydrated to avoid serious health problems in the heat, take them seriously."

Improved Water, Sand Quality Themes At Beach Hearing

Concerns Over Loitering, Speeding Cars, Loud Music Also Expressed By Attendees

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The Metropolitan Beaches Commission, established in 2006, was created with one goal in mind; to improve the state of area beaches with the help of community members and Save the Harbor/ Save the Bay, an organization focused on bringing the public back to the waterfront.

Last Wednesday, commissioners and roughly 50 members of the public toured Wollaston Beach before gathering at the Kennedy Senior Center for a public hearing aimed at sharing ideas and offering suggestions on how to improve what commissioner and state Sen. John Keenan called "a great natural resource for the city."

By summer's end, the commission will have held ten public hearings in Nahant, Lynn, Revere, Winthrop, East Boston, South Boston, Dorchester, and Hull, in addition to Quincy.

Save the Harbor/ Save the Bay spokesman and Director of Strategy, Communications, and Programs Bruce Berman, instructed meeting-goers to break up into small groups of ten to freely discuss and share their views on what could be done to improve conditions at Wollaston Beach. Group members were also encouraged to contribute how they thought the beach had improved since the 2007 meeting of the Metropolitan Beaches Commission.

As each group presented to the board their findings, common themes began to emerge. Attendees wanted to see improvements in water quality, loitering, speeding cars, loud music, sand quality, and littering.

Others proposed the placement of ferry routes to and from Boston as a means to boost accessibility.

Increases in attendance, multiculturalism, excellent fishing, family friendly events such as cookouts and a kite festival organized by the Friends of Wollaston Beach, and an overall sense of community were cited as positive aspects of the beach-going experience in Quincy.

"These beaches are made to be used by people. They need to be clean and well maintained," said Berman. "People in Quincy didn't lose hope and they didn't lose their connection to the water, and you can tell whether it's the winter or it's the summer that people love these beaches"

Attendee and State Rep.

Bruce Ayers, who grew up a stone's throw away from Wollaston Beach, has always had a connection to the water. "Wollaston Beach has always been a special place to me," he said. "I learned to fish, swim, sail, and water ski there. Now that I'm lucky enough to be the state representative I realize how important it is to work with the Metropolitan Beach Commission."

Ayers recognized that improvements have taken place since the commission released its initial report on 14 state-owned Department of Conservation and Recreation maintained beaches in 2007. "Over the years we've been lucky enough to get money for designated summer patrols," he said. "What we've been trying to do is make sure that there's no loitering, littering, speeding; I know there are problems there and that's why at meetings like tonight we can share ideas and information."

Save the Harbor/ Save the Bay is largely funded by private donations, foundation funds, and corporate support, however approximately $8 million in state funding has gone toward the improvements seen at Wollaston Beach today, including repairs to the beach wall, the construction of handicap ramps, the placement of benches with awnings to protect beach-goers from the sun's rays, and water fountains.

"We've been very lucky over the years to get the necessary monies to improve the beach," said Ayers. "I think we're all here tonight in different capacities but we are all using them to reach the same goal."

"I'm often struck by how disconnected Boston got from the water," said Berman, who hopes to implement several of the suggested improvements beginning in 2014.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Sept. 5, 1666, firefighters in London begin blowing up homes in a desperate attempt to halt the spread of a great fire through the city. By the time the fire was finally snuffed out the following day, more than 100,000 people had been left homeless.

- On Sept. 7, 1776, during the Revolutionary War, the 8-foot-long American submersible craft Turtle attempts to attach a time bomb to the hull of British Admiral Richard Howe's flagship Eagle in New York Harbor. It was the first use of a submarine in warfare.

- On Sept. 6, 1915, a prototype tank nicknamed Little Willie rolls off the assembly line in England. It weighed 14 tons, got stuck in trenches and crawled over rough terrain at only 2 mph. For secrecy, production workers were told the vehicles would be used to carry water on the battlefield. The new vehicles were shipped in crates labeled "tank," and the name stuck.

- On Sept. 3, 1935, a new land-speed record is set by Britain's Sir Malcolm Campbell. On the Bonneville Salt Flats of Utah, Campbell and his 2,500-horsepower car Bluebird made two runs over a 1-mile course at speeds averaging 301 mph.

- On Sept. 8, 1945, U.S. troops land in Korea to begin their postwar occupation of the southern part of that nation, almost exactly one month after Soviet troops had entered northern Korea to begin their own occupation. Although the U.S. and Soviet occupations were supposed to be temporary, the division of Korea quickly became permanent.

- On Sept. 2, 1969, America's first automatic teller machine (ATM) makes its public debut, dispensing cash to customers at Chemical Bank in Rockville Center, N.Y. It wasn't until 1971 that an ATM could handle multiple functions, including providing customers' account balances.

- On Sept. 4, 1972, U.S. swimmer Mark Spitz wins his seventh gold medal at the Summer Olympics in Munich and establishes new world records in all the events. The record would stand until Michael Phelps took home eight gold medals at the Beijing Games in 2012.

New Book Spotlights Howard Johnson's

If you're old enough to remember the 1975 World Series and election of Ronald Reagan as President, then you can probably recall the heydays of Howard Johnson's.

But how much do you really know about one of the most successful businessmen of the 20th century who got his start in Quincy?

Howard Johnson and his "orange roofed empire" is the subject of a new book by Anthony Sammarco entitled A History of Howard Johnson's: How A Massachusetts Soda Fountain Became an American Icon.

JOHNSON

Sammarco, 55, grew up in Dorchester and lives in Boston and Osterville. His 160-page book is a trip down memory lane for those who grew up on "28 Flavors," dined at one his many restaurants that stretched from coast to coast, or stayed at one of his motor lodges.

"There are 10 chapters and each one of them goes into a little more detail about who he was, what his company represented as well as the people who worked there including the candy dippers and ice cream makers. Each one of them was part of the success that Howard Johnson represented," Sammarco says.

Chapter titles include "The Johnson Family, The Beginnings of the Orange-Roofed Empire" and "Father of the Franchise Industry and the Tendersweet Clam."

There are also photographs including candid shots of Howard Johnson in the 1930s and 1940s as well as some taken at his home when he lived on Summit Avenue in Wollaston.

Sammarco, who has written 56 books — many on the neighborhoods of Boston — suggested to History Press that he write a book about Howard Johnson.

"I had been lecturing on this for the last few years and I have lots of information and great photographs so the History Press said, 'yes, they'd like to do it.'"

Sammarco's book chronicles Johnson and this American business success story. Through his hard work and determination, the Howard Johnson brand built the largest restaurant chain in the U.S. throughout the 1960s and 1970s reaching more than 1,000 company owned and franchised outlets.

At the time of his death in 1972, Howard Johnson was a multi-millionaire worth an estimated $30 million.

But he was not born with a silver ice cream scoop in his mouth.

Nor did he graduate high school.

"People don't realize Howard Johnson had an eighth grade education," Sammarco says. "He left school in the eighth grade not because he had bad grades but because his father had gone into bankruptcy and he worked with his father selling cigars as a wholesaler."

"During World War I, Howard Johnson was drafted and he served in the American Expeditionary Force in France, also known as the Yankee Infantry. When he came back after the Armistice, he and his father developed a mild cigar that was called the Yankee Infantry cigar."

"It wasn't very successful," Sammarco added.

In 1921, Howard Johnson's father died. He left the company $30,000 in debt — at least a half million dollars today.

But Sammarco notes that Howard Johnson didn't just close up shop and walk away.

As he explains in the book's introduction, "With a $500 loan from his widowed mother and another loan of $2,000 from Dr. George Dalton, a well-known internist and close family friend, Howard Johnson purchased from Dick Simmons in 1925 the Walker-Barlow drugstore at 89 Beale St., Wollaston, where he had been working."

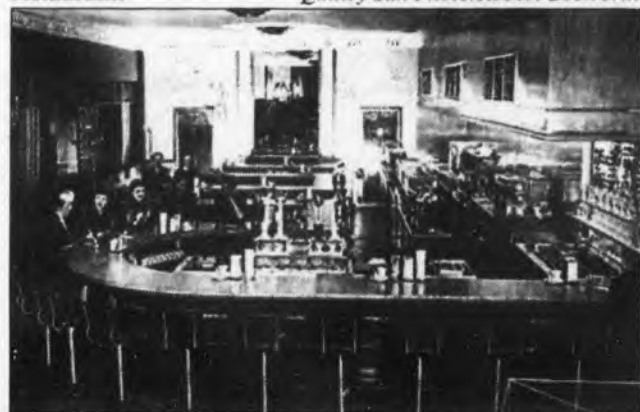

The drugstore included a marble soda fountain and by the mid 1920s, Johnson began producing a rich, creamy ice cream with doubled butterfat and consistent quality. The ice cream was popular in the store and soon he had ice cream stands at Wollaston, Nantasket and Revere Beaches.

How good was the ice cream?

One estimate said Howard Johnson sold $60,000 worth of ice cream cones that first summer — 14,000 cones on one Sunday.

The sweet taste of ice cream success led to the opening of his first restaurant in the iconic Granite Trust Building in Quincy Center in 1929. A fortuitous turn of events that same year really put the restaurant on the map.

The Eugene O'Neill play "Strange Interlude" was banned in Boston but allowed to perform at the Quincy Theatre on Hancock Street opposite Howard Johnson's restaurant. The play averaged five hours and patrons were provided a dinner break. They crossed the street and dined at Howard Johnson's restaurant. The dinners, Sammarco notes, were served one dollar per plate.

This episode in the Howard Johnson story is among many highlighted in Sammarco's book.

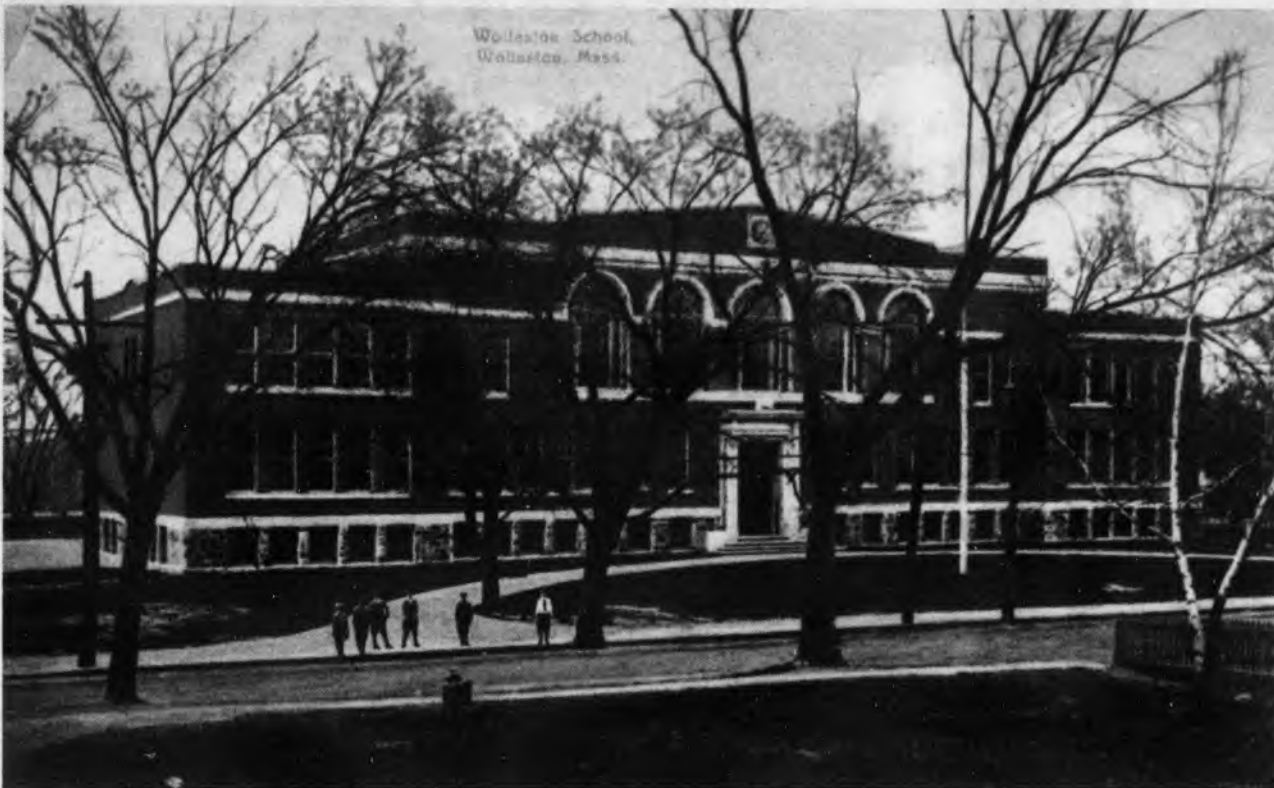

There are other passages that are sure to offer a glimpse of what made Howard Johnson tick and his business philosophy.

"Howard Johnson's was a microcosm of American society in the mid 20th century. Everyone knew Howard Johnson: wealthy, middle class, poor," Sammarco says, noting one photo in his book shows Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis leaving the Howard Johnson restaurant in Hyanis.

"She's got her big glasses on, wearing chunky gold jewelry. Everyone dined at Howard Johnson's."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A postcard view of the Wollaston School on Beale Street when it opened 100 years ago in 1913. This Colonial Revival style building, built for less than $170,000, replaced an early wooden building built by the Wollaston Land Association that was across the street in what is now Safford Park. The Adams School on Abigail Avenue near Faxon Park was built at the same time as this school and of the same design but was sold by the city in 1984 and is now condominiums. This Wollaston school was closed and almost sold at the same time as the Adams, but was reopened after neighborhood demands. This year, the school is planning a centennial celebration. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

He's Unrepresented In Massachusetts

No, I'm not sleepless in Seattle, I'm unrepresented in Massachusetts!

Another election cycle has come and gone, and still, my points of view are totally unrepresented. When will you Democrat voters wake up and realize that that party to which continue to vote are not representative of what they believe in?

You just voted in Markey, when if you went down the list of his votes in Congress, you would want to burn him at the stake!

He voted for the bill that allows babies born in the last week of pregnancy can be legally murdered by their "doctors." He has voted for bills that would allow some of the most disgusting of behaviors be made legal. He has voted to keep the borders open and continue the flood of parasitic non-contributors to destroy our system of safety nets.

The Congress of "our representatives" just voted that they and their staffs be exempted from socialized medicine. It is good enough for you and I but not good enough for they or their staffs, even though there is an amended provision that they must abide by the same law as the rest of us.

Now our "president" is trying to delay the provision of Obamacare from being implemented until after the 2014 elections because the public will be so horrified by the provisions that they will throw out all the bums that voted for it. (That includes all of the Massachusetts delegation to Congress.)

Even the major unions that fought for these ridiculous laws are trying to be exempted from its claws. They are running like rats from a sinking ship!

I hope the votes of this state and this country smarten up before the country that our fathers fought and died to protect is irreversibly ruined.

Beware The Lionfish

Many people who have seen the lionfish may think of it as a beautiful, colorful creature, but don't be fooled by its stripped design because this venomous fish is wreaking havoc to ecosystems and food chains a like. Lionfish have come to be known as invasive species.

Invasive species are plants or animals that invade environments that they are not native to. This is an extreme issue because these invasive species can eat or run out the native species, causing chaos in the food chains. Often the main reasons for invasive species are unfortunately through humans. When large boats or ships dock they empty out ballast water, which they have taken in at another port. This water can often contain plants or animals from a foreign region that quite possibly can take over this new, unfamiliar habitat.

All it took was a few lionfish to start an invasion.

They reproduce rapidly and quickly spread. It can't be pinpointed exactly how they may have gotten to the Americas, maybe humans or even a hurricane. However, the point is they are destroying coral reefs and decimating local fish populations because with their venomous spikes, they have few predators. Humans did not realize the potential of these candy stripped fish when they were first spotted around the North Carolinas.

Once native to the Indo-Pacific, these fish have now been spotted up the coast as far as New England and New York and down in the Caribbean and Bahamas.

Biologists, who are realizing the impact of this fish, are trying to discover ways to stop this invasion. There are divers diving down to stab the fish with three-pronged spears, however, this proves to be inefficient because they can only stab one at a time. Fisheries and lionfish programs are trying to hunt the fish, as it can be eaten once all the poisonous spines are removed. However, this just isn't enough! This lionfish is just unfortunately persistent and thriving. So if you ever see a lionfish, report it because although they are beautiful creatures, they are posing quite a threat to ecosystems and food chains.

McIntyre Calls For Traffic Survey

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor James R. McIntyre applied for a comprehensive study of traffic in the city, which would be carried out under a joint federal/state program if approved.

The survey – including a study of the need for more off-street parking and the feasibility of a shopper's mall in the downtown area – was motivated by the MBTA's expansion into Quincy and Braintree.

"Traffic patterns in the city no doubt will have to be substantially changed because of the coming of the MBTA," the mayor said. "We have got to plan now for an orderly flow of traffic or we could have a real nightmare on our hands in the 1970s."

The survey, McIntyre explained, would determine the need for things such as additional roads, new signal devices, and a network of one-way streets in Quincy Center.

McIntyre said Quincy was one of eight communities in Greater Boston to be selected for the TOPICS program, a federal program for highway safety and other area improvements. The program was backed by federal funds and carried out by the state Department of Public Works.

The mayor expected the application for the traffic study to be approved as the first step in the TOPICS program.

GIANTS PLAN MOVE TO QUINCY

The Lowell Giants, a minor league football team affiliated with the American Football League's Boston Patriots, planned to relocate to Quincy for the upcoming Atlantic Coast League season.

The Quincy School Committee had accepted the team's application to relocate, though the move wouldn't be finalized until agreement over lightning for the Giants' new practice field – likely the field on Coddington Street next to the Vo-Tech – were ironed out. The lighting issue was considered an easy one to be addressed.

Giants General Manager Joe Bellino, a former Patriots running back and a Heisman Trophy winner at Navy, said the club would purchase the lights and pay for their use, provided the city pay the installation costs.

The Giants also agreed to pay $50 a night for the use of the practice field, and $410 a night to use Veterans' Memorial Stadium for home games. The team would also provide free tickets to high school and junior high players and coaches.

The Giants were coached by Ross O'Hanley, a former Patriots defensive back. His assistants included former North Quincy High standout John "Butch" Mahoney.

Bellino was expected to talk about the new Quincy team as the keynote speaker of a meeting of the South Shore Quarterback Club in Hingham. Onree Jackson, a rookie quarterback originally drafted by the Boston Patriots before being cut and signed by the minor league Giants, was also scheduled to speak.

The Atlantic Coast League was considered one of the premier minor leagues in football. Some sixty players who played in the league in 1968 were on the rosters of National and American Football League teams in 1969.

A LOOK INSIDE the first Howard Johnson store that opened near the corner of Beale Street and Newport Avenue in 1925 and remained in operation until 1964 when it became one of the company's offices. Fire destroyed the building in 1969. It lacked an "orange roof" but was nonetheless a landmark in the Wollaston area. In January, 1972, the site was dedicated as a historic site with a granite marker.

Howard Johnson's Ice Cream: Just A Sideline In 1925

Site Of First Store In Wollaston Was Dedicated As A Historic Site 41 Years Ago

Editor's Note: The following story appeared in the January 20, 1972 issue of The Quincy Sun. Howard Johnson returned to Quincy as the site of his first store in Wollaston was dedicated as an historic site.

By PAUL HAROLD

Howard D. Johnson, one of Quincy's most famous "favorite sons," returned home last week, accompanied by his own son, Howard B. Johnson.

Occasion was the dedication of a granite marker at the Wollaston MBTA station, near the corner of Beale St. and Newport Ave., site of the first Howard Johnson store in 1925.

For the elder Johnson, it was a homecoming.

"I love Wollaston," he said. "I was a member of one of the first classes to graduate from the Wollaston grammar school." The school is within sight of his first store.

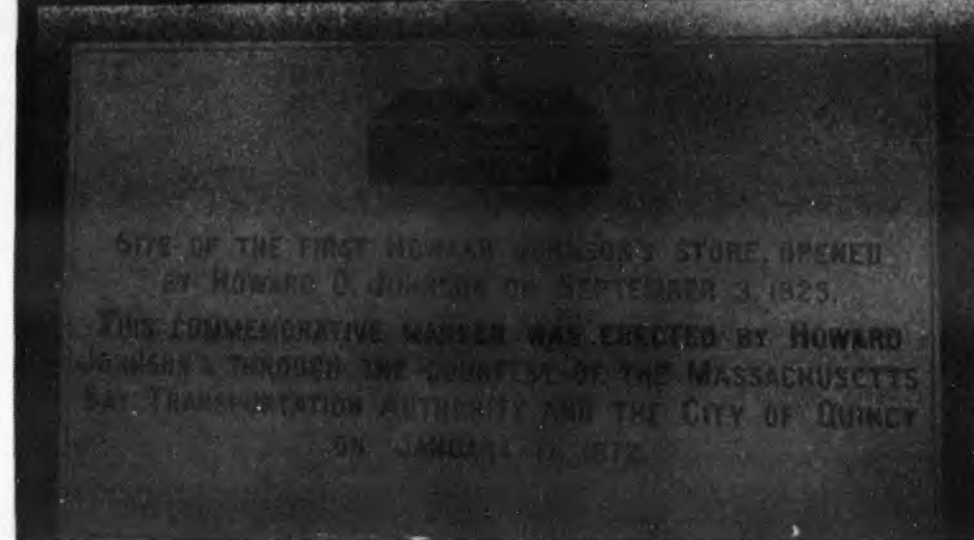

The elder Johnson told the crowd gathered, that at his first store he sold patent medicines and newspapers. Ice Cream started out as a sideline.

To top his neighboring competitor who featured three flavors, Johnson developed the famous "28 Flavors" that became his trademark.

He opened a stand at Wollaston Beach the following year and in 1929 opened a restaurant in downtown Quincy, in the South Shore National Bank Building.

His ice cream proved to be an unqualified success, but because of debts he was at first unable to expand. It was then that he thought of the idea of a franchise, selling supplies and use of his name to other businessmen. Like his ice cream, the franchising idea caught on and by 1935 Johnson was fast becoming "Host of the Highways," with 25 restaurants.

In 1940 there were more than 100. Today there are 871 restaurants and 438 motor lodges.

Dignitaries at last week's dedication ceremony included Mayor Walter J. Hannon, former Mayor James R. McIntyre, Rep. Joseph E. Brett, Councillor John J. Quinn, MBTA General Manager Joseph C. Kelly and MBTA Director Forrest I. Neal of Quincy.

Also on hand were a number of friends and former employees. Among them was Everett E. Porter of 66 Whiton Ave., Quincy Point, formerly of Wollaston.

Porter, a 41-year employee with the Johnson Company, made the ice cream in the basement of the original store.

One of the secrets of the Howard Johnson ice cream was doubling the usual butterfat content to make it richer. Porter said he helped develop the "28 Flavors," noting that pistachio was the flavor he preferred.

After the usual speeches and the unveiling of the marker, as befitted the occasion, Johnson and his son who now runs the restaurant-motel empire, scooped up a drum of the famous ice cream.

Today, most of the Howard Johnson ice cream for the eastern states is made at the Brockton plant, but Quincy remains the home for the candy manufacturing, food processing as well as some clerical and administrative offices.

The historic event was captured by a number of photographers, one being Mrs. Rudolf Oberg, 37 Walker St., North Quincy, a member of the Quincy Historical Society. To add to the society's collection of Howard Johnson memorabilia (which includes his chair from the drug store and original ice cream scoops), Mrs. Oberg was given the spoon Howard D. and Howard B. Johnson used for the ice cream scooping ceremony.

DIAMOND JEWELRY WITH A VINTAGE LOOK

Vintage-inspired diamond jewelry has always been popular, and the passion for these pieces shows no signs of letting up any time soon. Signature designs of the Victorian, Edwardian, and Art Deco eras are particularly embraced, especially the intricate scrollwork and architectural designs of Art Deco jewelry and the floral romance of Victorian-style necklaces, bracelets, and rings. This enthusiasm has given a boost to the appeal of "rose cut" diamonds, which first became popular in the mid-16th century. The basic rose cut has a flat base (no pavilion) and a crown composed of symmetrically arranged triangular facets (usually 12 or 24), which rise to form a point. Rose-cut diamonds are combined with brilliant-cut diamonds as complementary design elements.

Antique diamonds will always hold a unique, romantic quality. This makes them excellent investments and cherished heirlooms. A respected source for exquisite jewelry is located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center where you can shop for the widest selection of unique jewelry items and the most fabulous diamonds and gemstones. Hannah's Crusted Fried Ice Cream

Last week I tasted the most delicious dessert ever—because it has some of my favorite ingredients in it.

If you have ever has fried ice cream in a restaurant, as I have occasionally, you just wonder how they can fry something so cold and not have it melt.

My granddaughter Hannah made today's recipe, which as you will note is very easy—but wait until you taste it.

CRUSTED FRIED ICE CREAM
5-6 scoops vanilla ice cream
1 cup or so of crushed corn flakes
1 cup or so of crushed graham crackers vegetable oil for frying

1 beaten egg
1 cup caramel sauce (heated for topping)

Place the corn flake crumbs and the graham cracker crumbs on a paper plate or aluminum foil and mix them together for the crust.

Instead of the corn flake crumbs that come all prepared, it's best to crush the corn flakes for a better crust. The same goes for the graham crackers.

First, heat the oil in a skillet. Scoop the ice-cream, roll it in the beaten egg and then the corn flake and graham cracker mixture. Sauté quickly turning until golden brown and serve with the heated caramel sauce.

Muffins With Fruit, Nuts

Today's recipe is for an all-purpose muffin so that you can be creative and use whatever fruits, nuts or berries at hand. You don't have to be an experienced baker to make them and it's one of the easiest recipes I've ever tried.

I made them with blueberries because they are so plentiful this time of year.

ALL-PURPOSE MUFFINS
2 cups flour
½ cup sugar
1- tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk (I used 1%)
1/3-cup vegetable or coconut oil (I used coconut oil)

1 large egg, lightly beaten
Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease a 12-cup muffin tin, or line with baking cups. I like the cups, they are easier to remove and serve.

In a large bowl, combine the flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Then blend together the milk, oil and egg. Add to the dry mixture with a fork just until moist.

Now gently stir in the fruits and nuts or any of the following.

If you are using the blueberries, add one cup along with a teaspoon of lemon zest.

If using cranberries, add one cup of fresh or dried cranberries with one teaspoon orange zest. If using nuts, add 1/4 cup of pecan or walnut pieces.

Quincy Property Sales Outpacing Norfolk County

Register O'Donnell: Real Estate Deeds Up 18% Here

By SCOTT JACKSON
Property sales in Quincy are growing at a faster rate than Norfolk County as a whole.

According to Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell, there were 1,303 real estate deeds filed for Quincy properties during the first seven months of 2013 – Jan. 1 through July 31 – an increase of 18 percent over the same time period in 2012, when 1,102 deeds were filed. County-wide, the number of deeds filed increased by 12 percent to 9,818 during the first seven months of this year. O'Donnell said the numbers are good news for the city.

"Quincy is a well-run community. It's an attractive community – you have a beautiful waterfront," O'Donnell said in a recent interview. "I think a lot of people who grow up in Quincy want to stay in Quincy. People who haven't grown up in Quincy see a lot of attractions that make it desirable and if the market is priced right people will buy.

"There are communities in Norfolk County that are struggling and clearly Quincy over this seven-month period is doing better than the countywide average. That's good news for Quincy."

Deeds – filed when a property changes owners, including sales and transfers – aren't the only measure by which Quincy is outpacing Norfolk County through the first seven months of this year. O'Donnell said the number of mortgages in the city grew by seven percent in that time period, while they actually decreased by two percent in the county as a whole.

"The figures may have gone down countywide because interest rates ticked up, so maybe we had less re-finance activity," O'Donnell said. "Quincy was one of those communities where purchase and sales seem to have driven the market [for mortgages]."

Foreclosures are also down in Quincy. Through the first seven months of 2012, 47 properties were foreclosed on. In those same seven months in 2013, that number fell by 68 percent to 15. Foreclosure notices, the first step in the process, are down 24 percent. From January 2012 to the end of that July, 81 foreclosure notices were issued for Quincy properties. In that same time period this year 61 were issued.

O'Donnell said those statistics – the increase in home sales across the county and a decrease in number of foreclosures – show that the housing market is starting to rebound following the recession that began more than five years ago.

"This has been a prolonged economic downturn that goes back to 2007-2008. The trend seems to be getting better," O'Donnell said. "Depending on where the houses are priced, we hear brokers at the registry telling us there's less inventory which has caused competition for the houses that are

August Moon Festival Draws 12,000

26th Annual Event Celebrates Community's Diversity

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

This year's August Moon Festival, considered one of the largest one-day events on the South Shore, has proved that it is quickly becoming an event for the entire Quincy community along with many surrounding South Shore communities.

"It is no longer just an Asian event. Walking around you see a lot of different faces, it's an event for the entire Quincy community and the South Shore," said Gabriel Cheong, president of the Quincy Asian Resources Board of Directors. "There are a lot more family activities, which makes the event more family friendly. The longer we've been running the bigger it has become."

The 26th annual August Moon Festival continued to exceed its attendance and fundraising records with an estimated 12,000 people in attendance at Sunday's festival. Cheong said that he wouldn't be surprised if there were even more than the number of people they had projected would attend the event.

"We projected that there would be around 12,000 people at the festival but I wouldn't be surprised if we exceeded that," said Cheong. "Our foot print this year was way bigger than in previous years. This year, as opposed to last year, the Hancock parking lot and the back lot were completely full."

The festival not only attracted more people than in previous years but it also raised more money than last year, which was a total of $100,000. The August Moon Festival serves as the largest fundraiser for Quincy Asian Resources and all the money raised goes towards the programs that Quincy Asian Resources runs.

"We definitely did the best we ever have in terms of fundraising," Cheong said. "We exceeded what we made last year before we even held the festival. We have more and more families coming out, and more and more individuals contributing along with small sponsors and vendors."

More than 90 different restaurants, businesses, and community groups set-up booths along the 1400 to 1600 block of Hancock Street. Guests enjoyed Hip Hop dancers, Chinese-style folk dances, samurai demonstrations, Chinese instrumental music, martial arts demonstrations, and a watermelon-eating contest. Performers, such as Yuan Chi Dance, Shaolin Kung Fu, Girls' Chinese Yo Yo, and many others from across the state took to the main stage until the festival closed at 5 p.m.

Those in attendance were also able to participate in a number of activities, one in particular was a big hit this year.

"This is the first year we had a dunk tank and it was very popular," said Cheong. "We had a number of volunteers in there along with our own Executive Director John Brothers, Councillor Doug Gutro and many others. This was probably the activity that raised us the most money. It was really well received and we will probably seek out more local 'celebrities' next year."

Cheong added that they hope to continue to expand and add more booths and activities in the coming years.

"Every year we strive to be bigger and better and have more activities," said Cheong. "We want to try new things and attract more people each year we hold the festival."

A memorial service for Edward L. Goldman, Sr., 75, of Quincy will be held tomorrow (Friday) at 11 a.m. in Brown University's chapel, Providence, RI.

Mr. Goldman died Aug. 12 after an accident in his Quincy home.

Born and raised in Pawtucket, RI, he was a graduate of the LaSalle Academy in 1955, earned a BA from Brown University and a JD from Georgetown Law School, where he also taught for a time as adjunct professor of contract law.

He was truly an American patriot and a citizen of the world. In 1965, after a successful Naval career which included being the executive officer on the USS Brattleboro and working in the war room for the chief of naval operations in the Pentagon during the conflict in Vietnam, he began working on President Lyndon Johnson's Pennsylvania Avenue Commission helping to revitalize the main street of our nation's capitol.

Throughout the 1970s, Mr. Goldman worked for the pioneering computer corporation, Sperry Univac, eventually as director and general counsel, which afforded him the opportunity to travel the world negotiating and overseeing the legal aspects of selling their legendary computers across the globe, and also as chief lobbyist, advocating for the nascent computer industry in Washington, D.C. While there he served on President Ronald Reagan's 1981 Task Force on Trade with Non-market Economies, advising the administration on ways to improve global commerce.

In the early 1980s he indulged his love of travel and lived abroad where he served in various capacities including CEO, general counsel, international counsel and Asia Pacific regional manager to major high tech companies including Apollo Computer and the EMC Corporation. He managed and negotiated a wide variety of business transactions in both the domestic and international environment and

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.
AN INSIDE LOOK AT GENERAL HEALTH

The dentist can tell quite a lot about patients' general health simply by looking inside their mouths. For instance, if teeth show signs of abnormal wear, it is quite possible that the patient is a tooth-grinder ("bruxer"), which could be a sign of an anxiety problem requiring mental health care. In other cases, eroding enamel may be an indication that a patient is experiencing a backup of stomach acid into the mouth associated with "gastroesophageal reflux disease" (GERD). If so, this chronic disorder should be diagnosed and treated. In addition, while dry mouth may be associated with dehydration, allergies, smoking, or new medications, it may also be an early warning of diabetes or Sjogren's syndrome, an autoimmune disorder.

Our goal is to provide the best dentistry possible in the most comfortable way. We want to help you. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where you will receive a professional exam to detect and address any existing or impending oral health problems. Please call us at 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment for the highest quality dental treatment in a warm and caring environment. Learning everything you can about your options, risk and benefits, is the key to making an informed decision. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Swollen gums that seem to overgrow the teeth may indicate a need to adjust the dosage of medication for heart disease or seizures or drugs used to suppress the immune system (such as before a transplant).

Back To School? Shop Smart

Getting ready to go back to school?

Join the crowd!

In 2012, $83.8 billion dollars were spent on back-to-school shopping in the U.S., according to the National Retail Federation. That breaks down to the average person spending around $688.62 on their children in grades K-12.

Of course, not everyone will spend that much, but before you dive into buying new clothes and supplies, check out these back-to-school budget tips from the Better Business Bureau:

Make a shopping list. Even if you don't know the exact school supply list, you should get an idea of school clothing and other school needs. Make a list for each child, but start by "shopping at home" for items that you may already have left over from last year. For some items, it's worth spending a bit more (a high quality backpack will last for years).

Create a budget. Do a quick price search online for the items on your list and add them all up. Be sure to clip coupons, and make note of discount codes and any cash-back or rebate programs. If your goal is to reduce spending, now is the time to decide how much you want to cut.

Set up email alerts at your favorite stores. Monitoring pricing early on is key to finding good deals on quality products. Many sites will have an informed community of savvy shoppers on their blog or in their forums who willingly share deals, exclusive coupons, rebates and insider information on where and when to find the best prices, popular models and links to helpful resources. These alerts will assure you don't miss out on the hottest, and/or limited, opportunities.

Take advantage of discounts. Many stores offer student and teacher discounts on hot items like laptops and uniforms. Retailers will be trying to make room for fall fashion and the newest models, so there are incredible savings to be had on older items.

For more tips, visit bbb.org.

'A New Journey' For Former Sterling Middle School Principal

Christine Barrett New Principal At Point Webster School

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

For Christine Barrett, the new principal at Point Webster Middle School, being a part of the Quincy Public School System, not only as an administrator but in other roles as well, has allowed her to give back to the community she grew up in and learned so much from.

"You always want to give back to the city that gave you so many opportunities, I think that's important," said Barrett. "I was very fortunate to have the experiences I had in the Quincy Public School System and I wanted to be able to provide the children in the city of Quincy with those same opportunities. There are so many great teachers, coaches, people that impacted me in my life and I want to make sure that continues for the students now."

Although she is excited to take on her newest role as Point Webster's principal, Barrett said she is very sad to be leaving Sterling Middle School where she was principal for nearly six years.

"I will miss everything about Sterling. That's the first place I was ever principal, so it's a very special place. The students are great, the staff's great, it's a really, really special school and it will always be a special school to me," said Barrett. "I'm going to give 110 percent no matter where I am. I think it's new; it's a new journey for me and anything new requires a lot of time and attention so I've been trying to acclimate myself to the building, and getting to know people and getting to know the students."

'YOU ALWAYS WANT to give back to the city that gave you so many opportunities,' says new Point Webster Middle School principal Christine Barrett. She had served nearly six years as principal at Sterling Middle School before her new appointment.

Barrett, a Quincy High School graduate, attended St. Bonaventure University after high school where she received her Bachelors in Journalism. It wasn't until after she graduated college that she realized what her true calling was.

"When I graduated from college I was like 'what am I doing, I obviously want to work with kids.' I worked for the recreation department for years, I was very involved in sports, this was a natural calling for me," Barrett said. "So I became a long term substitute at Quincy High School and was hired there as a physical education teacher in 1996 after taking courses at B.U. (Boston University) and getting certified. I later went and got my first masters from Cambridge College and my second masters from Eastern Nazarene College."

Barrett was the Dean and head boys and girls volleyball coach at QHS before she moved to assistant principal at Sterling and subsequently principal a year later.

"Some of things that you do as a coach carry over into what you do in the classroom and as an administrator," said Barrett. "I was fortunate to receive a full scholarship to college on a volleyball scholarship, and for me as a coach, as a teacher, as an administrator I want the children in the City of Quincy to have those same opportunities, if not more than I did. The biggest thing is to never lose sight of why you're here, and you're here for the kids."

CHRISTINE BARRETT, new principal at Point Webster Middle School, has worked in the Quincy Public School system since 1996 when she began her career as a physical education teacher at Quincy High School. She later served as the head volleyball coach for both the boys and girls teams for the Presidents until her appointment as assistant principal at Sterling Middle School.

During her nearly six years as principal of Sterling, Barrett made a number of changes and additions to the school, including summer programs, MCAS programs and pamphlets, and troop drives, but what she is most proud of is receiving over $100,000 in grant monies.

"The big thing that I feel proud of is we had the opportunity to write several grants over at Sterling. It's not about what I do; it's about the opportunities the kids have. Being able to provide the kids with over $105,000 in grant money in four years, to me, is huge," said Barrett. "It's one of those things where I don't think of them as accomplishments because we wrote them (the grants) because it was the right things to do. I see an opportunity for a grant the worst they could say is no, or I could bring all these awesome experiences or programs to the kids and to the staff."

The grants allowed for enrichment programs and summer programs for the students and staff of the school. Barrett was also able to work with an outside company to get the school over $50,000 in office furniture donated to the school.

"As long as the students have the opportunities and support they need, that's what I am here for," said Barrett. "It is all about the kids and giving them positive opportunities, and giving the staff the tools they need to give the students those opportunities. I think with the collaboration of the staff and the support of parents over at Sterling, we did a lot of nice things for kids, whether it was making sure there were after school programs they were involved in, whether they were successful from a sports end, we wanted to provide them with opportunities."

Now moving into the principal position at Point Webster Barrett's first goal is to get to know the students and staff along with trying to fill the shoes of former principal Jim McGuire.

"Jim was here for 14 years, so yeah that's big shoes to fill. As a middle school principal he was kind of our leader because he had been around the longest and had the most experience at the middle school level," said Barrett.

"He loved this place and I want to be able to give these students the same thing if not more than what Jim and his staff were able to provide for the students of Quincy and the Quincy Point community. I want to keep the traditions that he's put in place with his staff, and continue to keep this a great middle school, that's my goal."

"My biggest thing is knowing every kid in the school, I want to get to know every student in this building, by name. That's important to me, to know the children, and know different things about them, and how you can support them. You want to be there for them because middle school is not the easiest time in your life; you go through a lot of physical, emotional changes. Jim has a school here where there is a very, very positive culture and climate and I think that's very important."

Leaves Snug Harbor With Heavy Heart But Excited By New Opportunity

Daniel Gilbert New Principal At Broad Meadows School

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Daniel Gilbert, the new Principal at Broad Meadows Middle School, is leaving his position of five years as Principal of Snug Harbor Elementary School with a heavy heart but also with an excitement to begin a job at a school he has always been drawn to.

"Is it hard to leave (Snug Harbor)? Yes. When you put your heart and soul into any job you do, no matter if it's logically in your brain that it's time to move on, in your heart it's always going to tug you in certain places," said Gilbert.

"To be honest I've always been drawn to Broad Meadows. Talk to anybody that's ever worked at Broad Meadows, there is something special about it, and I'm excited to be part of that. Are there going to be challenges, of course, there are always challenges in any job, it's just a different challenge. I wanted to make sure I would be working with the community that I've been with for the past five years. It's kind of a natural progression in some respects."

The draw to Broad Meadows was not only because of the school climate and the opportunity to continue to work with some of the students he had at Snug Harbor but also because of a pull he said he has always had towards middle school students.

"I've always been drawn to middle school kids and I think in many respects every adult has a soft spot for a middle school kid because of the number of changes they have to go through. Emotionally, physically, peer wise, this is a very difficult time for them and I've always been drawn to that," said Gilbert. "I've always felt that it's the greatest rate of growth in the human experience, except for zero to two years old. I've always been drawn to it because I felt like I could offer something to kids and be helpful to them and sometimes to be somebody just to talk to. When you treat kids respectfully, and you treat them in kindness, they return it in kind."

'IF I AM going to take a job I'm going to do that job to the best of my ability,' says new Broad Meadows Middle School Principal Dan Gilbert. Before his new assignment, he had served as principal of Snug Harbor Elementary School for five years.

Gilbert has worked in the Quincy Public School System for 15 years starting his career as a student teacher at Broad Meadows and North Quincy High School while he attended the University of Massachusetts Boston for his graduate degree. He was hired full time by the school system in 1998 as the social studies and reading teacher at Point Webster Middle School, which is something, he has carried over into his administrative roles.

"I am a teacher, I always will be a teacher. It's important, I think, for administrators to continue to teach, it's just a different way of teaching," said Gilbert. "Do I teach U.S. History anymore, no I don't, but I do teach kids how to interact, I do teach kids how to take pride in their school, I do help teachers try to become better. I think the administrator role, as far as I'm concerned, is about continuing to teach and helping people do better."

After teaching at Point Webster, Gilbert became the assistant principal at Lincoln Hancock and then became the principal of Snug Harbor for five years.

"I'll miss the kids, I'll miss the community, and I'll miss the staff at Snug Harbor. I've had some great, great, great times at that school; it's just a great place," said Gilbert. "Fortunately for me those kids that I'll miss I'll either see next year, or this year, or the year after, or the year after that. I'm really excited to be their principal again. When I was at Snug, my first day of school I didn't know a single kid, my first day at Broad Meadows I will know at least a third of the school, maybe half."

Gilbert says that even though he is sad to be leaving Snug Harbor he is focused on doing the best job he can when he walks through the doors of Broad Meadows on the first day of school.

"I've always felt that if I am going to take a job that I'm going to do that job to the best of my ability and work as hard as I can to be part of a team of people that has done some remarkable work already. I don't think about 10 years, 15 years down the road, I don't think that's fair to the students, and I don't think it's fair to the families," said Gilbert. "I have truly felt like, and will continue to do, and take, any kind of action, or make any kind of decision always in the best interest of our students. That has always been my philosophy. I think for principals, the biggest part of their roles is to teach, it's just a different way, it takes place in a different format, it may take place in my office, it may take place in the hallway, it may take place in the gymnasium, and it may take place in the classroom."

Gilbert's main focus and goals for his new school include becoming a part of a team of faculty that already works well together and to always have high expectations of the students.

"I think for me, to start, is to become an integral part of a team that already works very well," said Gilbert.

"Any school I've ever worked at it was always very important for me to make sure everybody has high expectations for our kids and that kids believe regardless of their past school experience they can learn. If we give kids the right supports and we make sure that kids feel a part of the school, and that they are a valuable part of that school, any kid can learn. I think my experience at Snug, where that school has demonstrated, either through MCAS or receiving accommodations from the state, assures me of that fact.

"My overall goals have always been, and will always be, to make sure that kids learn, beyond what they think that their expectations are. My role is to help teachers to do that. It's funny, you think about being the principal, and you think, 'well you're the principal, so you're in charge,' where as I feel my job is to support. I need to support teachers so that they can do the best they can do in the classroom, in whatever form that takes."

66 Public School Students Participate In Summer YouthWorks

For the past six weeks 66 students from the Quincy Public Schools participated in the 2013 Summer YouthWorks program adding to their already extensive work readiness portfolio.

With the help of the South Shore Workforce Investment Board students were able to work at sites that included several Quincy School Community Partners such as the South Shore YMCA, Quincy Housing Authority, Quincy Career Center, Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy Public Schools along with many others that have taken on YouthWorks participants with open arms and have made the experience a continued success for all YouthWorks students.

The primary component of the YouthWorks program is subsidized employment in which participants worked for approximately 30 hours per week over the last six weeks in a variety of fields including maintenance, landscaping, information technologies, youth camps, and a variety of office professions.

Each student-employee of the Quincy YouthWorks Program worked closely with program facilitators and site supervisors setting goals and improvement targets for their employment. Throughout the summer, students were mentored on how to improve upon skills they have learned throughout their employment.

In addition to the summer work experience, students attended career development days where they learned how to maximize their value as employees. Skills such as financial literacy, interviewing, job selection, and professional job etiquette were addressed. Participants created portfolios that included their resumes, cover letters, thank you notes, and their own business cards. The students had an opportunity to network with various officials and executives from the business community along with gaining valuable experience by practicing their interviewing skills.

All participants will leave the program with a completed Massachusetts Work Based Learning Plan to add to their portfolio as they pursue future employment opportunities.

On Aug. 15 students and administrators celebrated the completion of this year's YouthWorks Program during a luncheon held at the QHS cafeteria and courtyard.

ADMINISTRATORS ATTENDING a ceremony marking the culmination of this year's YouthWorks Summer Program included (from left) Keith Segalla, executive director of Career & Technical Education and Instructional Technology; state Rep. Tacky Chan, Edward Smith, co-facilitator for QPS YouthWorks Program; Joyce Livramento-Young, executive director of South Shore Workforce Investment Board; School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, and Chris Shannon, director of Youth Services for South Shore Workforce Investment Board.

Celebrating Back To School

My husband and I spent our entire careers in education. We lived by the school calendar for much of our lives – as students and educators.

In our retirement, we established a custom of going someplace special on the first day of school. Sometimes we would be on a trip or sometimes out for lunch.

One first day of school we went to Sudbury for lunch at Longfellow's Wayside Inn. The dining room was not particularly busy. There were guests here and there in the dining room and a large party at a huge round table in front of the fireplace. It was a party of ten young women, all lovely in summery dresses. They were having a wonderful time – everyone was happy. After we had ordered our meal, we began to wonder what the occasion was for the party of ten. Was it a bridal shower? Was it a birthday? Was it a change of job? Was it a baby shower? Was it a promotion? What was it?

All of a sudden we looked at each other – knowing we had the same thought at the same time! These were young mothers celebrating the First Day of School!

Then we mused about the arrangements that had been made, perhaps mid-summer, perhaps on the beach, perhaps at a pool, perhaps at a BBQ, perhaps at a child's birthday party. "Let's meet at the Wayside Inn on the first day of school to celebrate making it through school vacation, to celebrate collective wishes for a good school year for our children, to celebrate the wonderful teachers we are entrusting with our children, and to celebrate that little bit of freedom the school calendar grants us!"

We didn't have to ask. We knew we were correct!

JEROME I. FRIEDMAN, winner of the 1990 Nobel Prize in Physics for helping to discover quarks, spoke to 50 North Quincy High students recently. Visits Students At NQHS Nobel Laureate: Scientists Need To Take Risks, Not Fear Failure

By SCOTT JACKSON
Nobel laureate Jerome I. Friedman told students at North Quincy High School scientists need to take risks and not fear failure.

Friedman shared 1990's Nobel Prize in Physics with two other American scientists — Henry W. Kendall and Richard E. Taylor. From 1968 to 1972, while Friedman was a professor at MIT, the trio conducted electron scattering experiments at the Stanford Linear Accelerator that helped prove the existence of quarks — subatomic particles that come together to form the protons and neutrons that make up atoms.

Though best known for his work at the Stanford Linear Accelerator, Friedman told the 50 North students who attended his lecture that an experiment he undertook a decade prior to that is what taught him to take risks.

Shortly after earning his doctorate from the University of Chicago in 1956, he began investigations into parity — a concept in quantum mechanics that means changing 'x' to '-x' in a coordinate system would not change the laws of nature, according to Friedman. Specifically, Friedman was trying to prove the non-conservation of parity — meaning the laws of nature would change if the coordinate system was — a study which many in the scientific community felt was a waste of time.

"We were one of the first three papers which discovered non-conservation of parity. This told me something — in science you have to take risks. If you don't try something that is far out you'll never discover anything really important," Friedman said. "Reach out, try your best. Failure is not a disgrace. In fact, if you're in science and you don't fail a few times it means that you haven't tried things which are difficult or imaginative."

"Failure is not always a negative thing — if you don't fail you haven't tried hard enough."

As a child growing up in Chicago during the Great Depression, Friedman didn't aspire to be a physicist. He went to a high school focused on the arts, taking very few math and science classes, and hoped to be a painter. That all changed when he picked up Albert Einstein's book "Relativity." Friedman has trouble understanding some concepts in the book, but he found it interesting and decided to enroll in the University of Chicago because that's where Enrico Fermi was teaching.

"I said to myself 'this is really interesting stuff, I would like to understand it better,' and I decided to go to the University of Chicago instead," Friedman explained. "I got a scholarship there and Enrico Fermi was teaching there — he's one of the greatest physicists of the 20th century."

Fermi, an Italian-American physicist, was responsible for the creation of the world's first nuclear reactor — Chicago Pile-1 — and was one of the scientists who worked on the Manhattan Project. While studying at the university Friedman asked him to be his research supervisor, and Fermi readily agreed.

"It felt as though I had just won the lottery," Friedman said. "I had the chance to see Fermi up close. I helped him in experiments and he was a wonderful man, a very kind man. He tried to teach everyone physics — he felt he could explain anything to anybody. He was marvelous lecturer."

Friedman earned his master's degree from the University of Chicago in 1953 and set out to earn his Ph.D., with Fermi as his thesis advisor. Fermi died of stomach cancer in 1954, and Friedman continued his thesis work, mostly on his own.

After his research into non-conservation of parity,

Friedman began his work at Stanford where he learned how to conduct electron scattering experiments that he would end up winning the Nobel Prize for.

Following his stint at Stanford, Friedman began to work at MIT. But he chose to commute to California to work on the Stanford Linear Accelerator once that was constructed. Using the accelerator — which provided 60 billion times the magnification power of a regular microscope — Friedman and other scientists were able to observe the insides of protons and neutrons and discover quarks, a particle so small no one knows its actual size.

"We know they're there but they're so small we don't know what their actual size is," Friedman explained to the students. "To give you an idea what the upper limit is, if I take a carbon atom — and a carbon atom is very tiny, much smaller than a virus — and expand it to the size of the Earth, the upper limit of a quark would be smaller than a quarter of an inch."

More than a decade and a half passed before Friedman, Kendall, and Taylor were awarded the Nobel Prize for the team's research. Friedman was shocked when he heard the news, and still can't believe the weekend he spent in Stockholm — where he accepted the award from King Carl XVI Gustaf of Sweden — actually happened.

"It was a complete surprise when I won it," Friedman said. "The weekend in Stockholm was just magical. It was so magically it I can't believe it happened and I have to sometimes go through the photo albums to reassure myself that it really did happen."

Friedman is now retired, though he continues to give lectures and serves on various committees. He has also taken up one of his childhood hobbies — painting. Friedman ended his presentation by showing students a half-dozen of the paintings he's done in recent years, and told them never to give up on the arts and humanities.

"No matter what you study — whether you go into science or any other area — never give up the arts and the humanities," Friedman said. "It's such an important part of your life. It will make much better life for you if you really pay attention to these things and be involved in them."

New Book Spotlights The History Of Howard Johnson's

"Either you went there for a piece of pie and a cup of coffee at the counter or you had a meal traveling or you went to one of their other restaurants which were the Red Coach Grill or Ground Round"

"I think sometimes people looked at Howard Johnson's as the traditional standby. It was always reliable, the food was always good, it was the same type of food you got in Maine as in Florida and as a result, his ice cream — with 28 flavors — appealed to every pallet."

"He made in some ways the public aware that he was providing them with good quality, sensibly priced foods but it was also something that they were never disappointed."

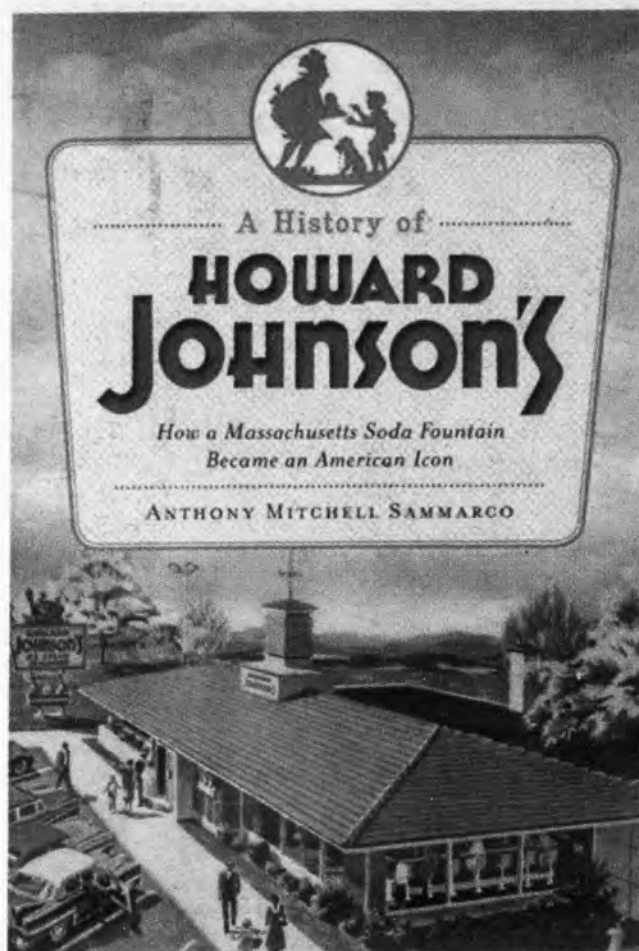

Sammarco says part of Howard Johnson's drive to succeed was to take care of his widowed mother and sisters.

"Howard Johnson was someone who had grit and determination and obviously a desire to succeed. From some of the things I've read about him, Howard Johnson once said he had a widowed mother and sisters to support and he wasn't going to make a go of it if he didn't push."

"He would be there at 5 a.m. in the morning until 11 o'clock at night. He'd go home, shower, go to bed and was back at work seven days a week. I think what surprised me about Howard Johnson was the ability of not only working but succeeding. He really did. I was impressed by the man. I would have loved to have met him."

The book also offers intriguing insight into the Howard Johnson franchise phenomenon.

Back in 1935, if you wanted to open a Howard Johnson's restaurant, it cost $2,000.

"Some people put down everything on a Howard Johnson franchise," Sammarco notes. "And in the first year, they grossed $100,000. That was incredible in 1935 to 1939."

The franchise tag also carried with it stipulations.

"A franchisee had to cook six fresh turkeys a day, you could only serve 28 flavors (of ice cream) and you had to present everything in a way that was standardized."

"He had what he called the Howard Johnson bible and you followed it to a T."

He was also known to do "spot inspections" at some of his restaurants.

"He'd go to a restaurant and he'd say 'why is that paper there? It should be there.' He would also go into the kitchen and check the cleanliness of stoves, refrigerators . . . one time he was almost arrested because he said he was Howard Johnson. They said, 'yeah, and I'm Santa Claus.'

"The police were called and eventually he had to perform identification and he proved he was Howard Johnson but I think a lot of times people were kind of surprised that this man would take such an interest and such a dedicated aspect to a franchise but that's why it was successful," Sammarco says.

"Howard Johnson was someone who once said 'I never slept, I never drank, I never ate except when I was thinking about Howard Johnson's. His business was paramount,'" the author says.

"He knew it wasn't just his income that was contingent on the success of the business but all of his employees. Whether they were waitresses or ice cream makers or delivery men, you had to realize that he had these freezer trucks that would go out selling ice cream to the children in Wollaston, Dorchester, Milton and it was one way of not only making a little profit but it was also testing it with children in the neighborhood to create those 28 flavors.

"He opened up these ice cream shops at Wollaston Beach and Revere Beach, Nantasket Beach. People would get a hot dog and an ice cream cone. It may have cost at the time 35 cents but then you begin to realize he was able to pay his father's debt off in two summers — just at those ice cream stands at those beaches."

Sammarco graduated with a history degree from UMass Amherst in 1979 and frequently lectures on Howard Johnson. He says one man came up to him at one speaking engagement and was crying. He told he grew up in Quincy and his grandfather would take him and his seven brothers and sisters to get an ice cream cone once a week at Howard Johnson's.

"You brought back so many memories that I haven't thought of," the man told Sammarco.

That, Sammarco says, is what his book is all about.

"It's the good feeling. What is history? History should be something that jogs our own memory, our place but also realize that Howard Johnson created something that yes we remember him in a book but we also remember what he did and it's a fascinating glimpse."

"Business history is something that in a lot of ways you don't always think of as something that is part of a neighborhood or community history. It affects it but Howard Johnson really started in Quincy and parlayed it into a nationwide company of restaurants and motor lodges."

Today, only two Howard Johnson's restaurants remain — one in Bangor, ME, the other in Lake Placid, NY.

A former motor lodge in Baldwin Park, a suburb of LA, was also used to film scenes for an episode of the hit TV drama "Mad Men." But while Don Draper and his wife Megan were real, the Howard Johnson's was not.

It was actually a former Howard Johnson motor lodge but today it's a Regency Inn and Suites. The Inn's crimson-and gold exterior was replaced with the chain's signature orange and turquoise colors through the magic of television.

Howard Johnson once said he never forgot Quincy.

Sammarco says he hopes readers will develop an appreciation of what Howard Johnson meant for the local community and for the man himself.

"I hope they take away a much more appreciative aspect of what business history and Howard Johnson's restaurants and motor lodges are a great time capsule of American business in the 20th century. If they can realize that this man with grit and determination was able to parlay hard work, drive and business acumen into something that was not just a success but it was also part of a community's success."

"Today, whether you think of Howard Johnson's as something that was something our grandparents appreciation, it could be the same thing today. This man who actually made a decisive and concerted effort to be a success."

A History of Howard Johnson's: How a Massachusetts Soda Fountain Became an American Icon is available at area bookstores and internet booksellers.

Militia Rally Past Seminoles In Thriller, 29-22

By JOE REARDON

Quarterback Jim Yaitanes proved Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium that he's all about the bling, in the form of a Eastern Football League championship ring, and he's not going to let some discomfort slow him down along the way.

Yaitanes shook off a painful fractured toe injury after taking over in the second half of the Quincy Militia's showdown against a tough Eastern Mass Seminoles squad and willed the home team to a thrilling 29-22 come-from-behind victory. The win improved Quincy's record to 3-2 while the Seminoles lost their second game of the season to drop to 3-2 also.

The charismatic Yaitanes was flat out sensational in the final 30 minutes, completing 6-of-9 passes for 123 yards and three huge touchdowns. After dropping to 2-2 with a loss in its previous game against the Worcester Mass Fury, the Militia needed a victory to stay in striking distance of first place and the chance at home-field advantage in the playoffs.

James Shuler, Chris Joyce and Joun Fraser had touchdown catches, Xavier Gonzalez ran a score in, and Aaron Smith came up with a huge interception in the closing seconds to clinch the win.

Quincy floundered in the first half, but looked to be re-energized in the second, thanks to some choice words from Yaitanes. The Militia did its job defensively on the first drive with George Gonzalez and Xaveir Gonzalez registering sacks on consecutive sacks to stall the Seminoles at mid field.

"We were two different teams," said head coach Vaughn Driscoll. "The first half we came out flat. There was no spark. Jimmy got us fired up in the locker room and gave his usual inspirational speech. That was it. We took off from there."

Yaitanes was eager to get into the game, despite his injury.

"We tried to switch it up and get a little momentum shift," he said. "We want to win every game, but we take every game one at a time. We have some unbelievable players and we stick together. We have one goal. We have a great bunch of fans, great owners, cheerleaders and they put it all together. It's a great organization. We're trying to win a ring."

The Militia fell behind 15-0 early in the third quarter, but Driscoll knew Quincy was on the verge of breaking out on both sides of the ball.

"We knew our offense could score, and quickly too," said Driscoll. "We knew our defense would settle down and we made some adjustments. We want to finish 8-2, 7-3 at the worst. We want to host at least one playoff game, if not two. This was a must win. It was huge."

The Seminoles' defense frustrated Quincy in the opening half and into the third. The Militia marched to the Eastern Mass 14 in the second quarter after starting quarterback Joe Cellini connected with Shuler for a 24-yard completion. The drive stalled, though, when the Seminoles got a hand on Conor Flaherty's 29-yard field goal attempt.

Yaitanes went to work on the Militia's first possession of the third, completing three passes for 55 yards, including a 12-yard touchdown strike to Fraser with 5:47 remaining in the quarter. Flaherty drilled the point-after kick and the lead was cut to 15-7.

Quincy shocked the Seminoles on the ensuing kick-off when Gonzalez snatched a fumble and raced 15 yards to make it a 15-15 contest just 14 seconds later.

World Series 'Awesome Experience' For Quincy All-Stars

Much More Than Baseball For Cal Ripken Players, Coaches, Family, Friends

By BILL GRIFFIN

The baseball was just fine, but it is the people they met and they adventure they shared that Quincy's Cal Ripken 12-year old All Star Team will long remember from its wonderful ride to the World Series in Hammond, Indiana.

"The experience was awesome," said coach Mark Free. "I think we had a party of 57 including players, coaches, family and friends. We all had a great time. To experience something like the World Series and everything it has to offer is something we will always remember."

Quincy defeated Hawaii, 9-7 in its final game of the series behind a 3-for-3 night from Curtis Frazier and two hits from Martin McCormack last week. Quincy finished the series at 1-3, tied with Hawaii and Arkansas in its bracket. Quincy missed a trip to the final round on a runs-allowed tie-breaker which allowed Hawaii to advance.

"They're 12-year old kids and they wanted to play more baseball. They were disappointed, but they understood the big picture as well and they knew they had a special experience," said Free.

The journey for the district, state, and New England champs began with a memorable send-off from Adams Field. There were police motorcycle escorts and rides in limousines. People cheered. There were stories and pictures in the paper. Social media lit up with good wishes. They arrived at Logan, boarded the plane, and received a surprise introduction.

"The captain of the plane came on the loud speaker and announced the Cal Ripken team from Quincy was on board and on its way to the World Series," said Free. "Everybody on the plane cheered. It was something to see."

When they arrived, there was the banquet of champions. Former major league player Darrel Chaney of the Reds and Braves, a Hammond native, spoke to the players. Each player was introduced and received a wooden bat engraved with: New England Champions. They joined a parade with the players from each team in the World Series. They talked and joked and made friends.

"They had a chance to interact with kids from all over the country," said Free.

There was a bowling tournament in which players from different teams were grouped together on the same squad. There was a bat boy and two Diamond Girls assigned to each team. Diamond Girls are Hammond natives who performed community service in exchange for help with college tuition.

The made friends with kids from Hammond, Indiana. They made friends with kids from New York, Kentucky, Alabama, North Dakota, Arkansas, Idaho, and Hawaii. There are some things that money or riches cannot buy.

"I think the friendships will last. I know for a fact that they are still communicating with kids they met," said Free.

There was a sightseeing trip into Chicago for the adults. There was shopping on Navy Pier and a game at Cellular Field between the Twins and White Sox. It was a grand time. And there was a day at practice that may have best told the story. Free stopped the drills and spoke to his team.

"I asked them: What did they see," said Free. "One said a building. Another said a park. Someone said a practice field. I said I saw 12 kids from Quincy playing baseball in the middle of Indiana and I thought that was pretty special."

Quincy began the pool-play tourney with losses to Kentucky and eventual champion Crown Point, Indiana. This set up a must-win game with Arkansas.

"We knew if we won our final two against Arkansas and Hawaii, we could go to the elimination round," said Free.

Quincy seized an early 2-0 lead against Arkansas on a two run homer by McCormack and added another on an RBI by Frazier. However, Arkansas rallied for a 4-3 decision.

"That was a heartbreaker," said Free. "The kids were down, really disappointed, but what I liked best is we kept fighting. We knew we had to beat Hawaii by six runs to advance."

Quincy started fast against Hawaii with two in the first. Frazier singled, McCormack doubled for one run, and Colin McGrath rapped a single for another and a 2-0 lead.

After Hawaii drew even at 2-2, Frazier belted a home run for a 3-2 lead. Hawaii tied it at 3-3, but Quincy put away the game with four in the fifth.

Frazier, McCormack and Tom Kelly had hits while J.P. Kelley worked a key walk in the rally. Quincy was up, 9-5 at one point, but Hawaii closed to within 9-7 for the final. Quincy did not have the six-run margin of victory it needed to advance.

Kelley had a single and a walk for Quincy while Kelly had two hits in the win over Hawaii. McGrath closed out the win on the mound.

"It was good to see our bats come alive in the final game. The pitching that we faced in the series was excellent," said Free.

Arkansas, Hawaii, and Quincy all finished at 1-3. Hawaii advanced on the basis of fewest runs allowed among the three clubs.

"To show how balanced the series was, there were 10 teams and five of us finished at 1-3. We missed by four runs allowed of advancing to the final round," said Free.

It has been a landmark year for his team. They rolled to the district, state and regional titles with an 11-game winning streak and a 90-13 run differential. They savored memories for a lifetime at the World Series. And it is not over. This weekend, they will compete in a tournament at Abner Doubleday Field in Cooperstown, New York, the home of baseball's Hall of Fame. When their teacher asks them what they did over their summer vacation, they will have no problem answering the question.

"The experience of the World Series and going to Cooperstown is something that always stay with them," said Free.

BESIDES PLAYING BASEBALL, Quincy's All Stars got to watch some baseball - the Big League variety - taking in a Chicago White Sox game at Comiskey Park, U.S. Cellular Field. Here they are joined by team coaches as well as some of the family and friends who travelled with the team to Hammond, IN for this year's Cal Ripken World Series.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor

DO YOU SIT HUNCHED OVER A DESK?

If you find yourself sitting at your desk in a continuing forward-leaning posture, you may be setting yourself up for back pain or exacerbating existing back and neck problems. Sitting in an office chair for prolonged periods increases stress in the back, neck, shoulders, arms, and legs, and can also increase pressure on the back muscles and spinal discs. In an effort to reduce these stresses, take intermittent "stretch breaks" to open up the front of the body and renew joint mobility. One easy-to-perform stretch involves breathing deeply, clasping your hands behind you, and arching your back and extending your head backward for a few seconds, and then exhaling. Regular chiropractic treatment can provide longer-lasting posture fixes.

The good news is that we can usually correct bad posture with a regimen of chiropractic care aimed at doing so. The goal of FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC is to help you attain optimal health quickly, safely, and competently. We provide you with a variety of tests and services aimed at achieving that goal. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy, Quincy, where we are on the cutting edge of today's chiropractic technology. Call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment and start feeling better. We offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. It is a good idea to get up from your desk every half hour to walk and stretch your legs, get your circulation going, and bring increased amounts of oxygen into your lungs.

Militia Rally Past Seminoles In Thriller

taness and took its first lead of the game with 9:27 remaining in the third. Quincy capped a 10-play, 71-yard strike with Chris Joyce pulling in a six-yard pass to take the 22-15 advantage.

Seminoles' Quarterback Leon Finlea (14-28, 266 yards, TD) completed two passes for 62 yards and Tim Jones scored from three-yards out with 5:49 left in the third to lock things at 22.

Finlea, who is also the Seminoles' head coach, came out of retirement to play against the Militia. Driscoll was very aware of Finlea's credentials both on the field and sidelines. "He's a phenomenal quarterback," said Driscoll. "He's always been a leader and is a genius with both the offense and defense. He's a class act and his organization is a class act. They're a tough team. No matter when you play them they're going to bring it to you."

Yaitanes, with his pinpoint passes, proved to be too much for the Seminoles, taking the lead for good with 2:34 remaining. Speedy Dolan Reid broke a pair of tackles on the kickoff and scampered 70 yards to give the Militia tremendous field position at the Eastern Mass 30-yard line. Six plays later, Yaitanes connected with Schuler for 15 yards, to put Quincy up 29-22.

Finlea led the Seminoles on one final drive, completing a pair of passes for 14 yards and bringing Eastern Mass to the Militia 7. Aaron Smith proceeded to pick off a Finlea throw with 43 seconds left to clinch the win.

Driscoll has been preaching an us-against-the-world mentality to the Militia and the entire roster is buying into the program. "We preach commitment, unity and hard-nosed play," said Driscoll. "Our goal is to get to that championship win a ring. That's what we're working so hard for. These guys deserve it. They represent unity. We're one family and that's great."

Senior League All-Stars Leave Mark Of Excellence

By BILL GRIFFIN

As Quincy Senior League All Star coach Rick Beach watched the World Series final game on ESPN-U Saturday between Pennsylvania and Panama, he had one thought.

"I thought about how close we were to being there. A bounce or a call here or there and we would have been right there," he said.

Pennsylvania eliminated Quincy in the championship bracket of the Northeast Regionals in Freehold, New Jersey earlier this month. In the fifth inning of the game, the score was tied 2-2. Quincy was close, a hit or a big play away from a regional title. Pennsylvania won and went on to the World Series finals where Panama won the title, 2-1. Where does that leave Quincy?

"There were 10 teams that made the World Series and I think five were from the United States," said Beach. "I'd say that puts us in the top 10 in the United States and in the top 20 teams from around the world. That's not a bad way to end up."

After Quincy rolled to wins over Maine and Rhode Island in the double-elimination regionals, Pennsylvania defeated Quincy, 7-0. Tyler Beach and Pat Keohane each had a hit against Pennsylvania's top pitcher.

"He threw very well. The caliber of pitching we saw was excellent," said Beach.

This put Quincy in a must-win situation in the loser's bracket against Delaware and Quincy delivered. Ethan Yau, who was undefeated on the mound in Senior All Stars and Junior Legion, fired a five-hitter and fanned five in 5 1/3 innings of work to lift Quincy to a 4-2 victory and a rematch with Pennsylvania.

Keohane had three hits for the winners while Bobby Salvucci and Sean Holleran chipped in with two apiece. Aaron Clancy and Tyler Beach each had a hit.

The decisive moment in the game came in the sixth inning. With Quincy holding a two-run lead, Delaware put runners on second and third. Dave Suslowicz, who was brilliant in relief throughout the tourney for Quincy, picked a runner off second and then struck out three to clinch the win.

"Tyler at shortstop did a good job calling for the pickoff and I have complete trust in Suslowicz in relief," said Beach.

The victory matched once-beaten Quincy against undefeated Pennsylvania. Quincy had to sweep two games to win the regionals and the Senior All Stars started fast, jumping to a 2-0 lead in the third. Beach singled and Keohane doubled for a run. Clancy walked and worked the first-and-third steal with Beach for another run and a 2-0 lead. Pennsylvania tied it in the third on a two-run home run and won it, 6-2, with a four-run rally in the fifth.

"They had a couple of key hits," said Beach. "We had a two calls that didn't go our way. We had a runner picked off and another tagged out in a rundown, but we didn't get the calls."

Beach, Keohane, Salvucci, Holleran, Bryan Turner and Troy Shepherd all had hits in the game for Quincy.

Suslowicz had a terrific tourney in relief, fanning eight giving two hits and no runs. Pat O'Connor had six steals in seven tries for Quincy's go-go offense. Beach had a fine tourney at short and Quincy played excellent defense throughout the playoffs.

"Suslowicz was phenomenal," said Beach. "He was good enough to start, but I knew I could count on him at the end of games. We kept running the bases like we had all year. The caliber of the pitching we faced was very good, so we had to fight to score runs, but our defense was excellent. We made all the plays."

Clancy and Shepherd each had a pair of hits in the 11-2 opening win over Maine. Beach, Shepherd and Turner had hits while Clancy, Greg Paulo, Yau and Suslowicz shared the duties on the mound.

Clancy and Suslowicz combined for a strong pitching effort in a 6-1 win over Rhode Island. Beach, Salvucci, and Shepherd had singles for Quincy.

There was more than just baseball. Quincy enjoyed the complete tourney experience and spent time with players from Maine to Maryland, especially the team from Rhode Island.

"We stayed at the same hotel with Rhode Island and our kids hung around with their players. They made some friends which was a good thing to see," said Beach.

It was a remarkable season for Quincy. Almost all the Senior All Stars also played on the Junior Legion team. Their season began in mid-April and ran into the second week in August.

They were 43-3 overall and 11-2 in the tournament. One of the losses came in the Legion playoffs when Quincy had to play with half a team due to a scheduling conflict. That is splendid baseball, a mark of excellence which may not be matched in the city for many years.

"That's 46 extra games along with the high school season. What I will remember most is how much they loved to play baseball," said Beach. "The extra experience under game conditions made us better. There's no substitute for game situations. I was proud of the way we played in the tourney. We were right there with Pennsylvania and they were a run away from winning the World Series."

It is a special group of kids who have played together since they were nine when they lost in the state finals to Kingston. Last year, they made the semifinals before losing to Rhode Island. This year, they were in the regional championship. There has been winning and baseball, but there has also been a closeness which will last a lifetime.

"That's what it's all about," said Beach. "Winning baseball games is one thing, but the most important thing is that they will be friends for life. They are close off the field. They're growing up, getting their licenses and many of them will go to different high schools. But they will be friends forever. They'll always have this experience. They're a good group of kids and they do the right thing. That's what is most important."

Youngsters Learn Basketball Skills At Round Ball Hoop Camp

HAPPY CAMPERS – For over 20 years, Ted Stevenson and Paul Beston have run the Round Ball Hoop Camp at North Quincy High School. Two weeks full of basketball drills, games and contests. Coaches from Suffolk University and BC High gave lectures and demonstrated drills. The kids leave tired and happy after a fun day of learning more about basketball. Each camper received a Round Ball basketball and T-shirt. Shown here are some of the campers who participated this summer. A Round Ball Camp will also be held next spring.

O'Connell - Thomson Basketball Tourney Saturday - Sunday

The eighth annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament will be held on Aug. 24-25 at the Fenno Street courts.

The event is held in memory of John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, two standout athletes who graduated from North Quincy High in 2002 and tragically had their lives cut short in the past nine years.

Their families have set up memorial scholarships in their names to benefit North Quincy graduates and the tournament serves to raise funds for these scholarships.

The weekend will feature a 16-team men's tournament and a four-team women's tournament, featuring a number of local college basketball players, as well as many former and current high school players from Quincy. Games begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday and will run throughout both days.

The event has been a great success in the past thanks to the generous donations of local businesses and Quincy residents. Anyone interested in making a donation can write a check to the John "Okie" O'Connell Fund and send it to Dan Duggan, 61 Bedford St., Quincy 02169. (The donations will be split between the two funds).

The House That Anet Built

Officially it's now known as the Annette M. Paglierani Center for the Visual Arts.

But affectionately the home of the Quincy Art Association at 26 High School Ave. could also be called "The House that Anet Built."

City officials, family, Art Association members, friends and admirers gathered Aug. 10 to dedicate the Quincy Art Association home in loving memory of Anet. It's a fitting tribute to Mrs. Paglierani who helped found the Quincy Art Association as well as the city's ArtsFest. The accomplished artist, beloved teacher and loyal friend to so many died Jan. 16.

Speakers at the dedication remembered Anet's vision of a vibrant cultural community in Quincy and her passion for the arts.

Anet's son, Joseph Paglierani, thanked the city and especially Mayor Thomas Koch for renaming the Association's home in his mother's memory.

"My mother touched thousands of lives. She is looking down on us and cheering us on to continue the work she started," Joseph said in his remarks to those gathered under a large white tent near the association's home. "Thank you Mayor Koch for this wonderful tribute to my mother."

Speakers also fondly remembered Anet's late husband, Al, who passed away 11 days after Anet on Jan. 27. Al - who was a Navy veteran of World War II and Korea - had volunteered his time for many years building wooden easels for Art Association art displays.

Mayor Thomas Koch called the dedication a fitting tribute to a remarkable lady. He first met Anet when he was a student at Sacred Heart School and Anet was an art teacher. The Koch family also knew the Paglierani family because they were parishioners at Sacred Heart Church.

The mayor recalled the genesis of the ArtsFest while he was serving as the city's Park Director some 16 years ago. At that time, the Art Association was setting up a small exhibit at the Jazz Festival at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

"We got talking one day and I said Anet, you really deserve your own event. The art association members work so hard and she said she'd love to."

"We got together and the Park Department provided the logistics - the tents, the facilities and assistance - and of course they put together a great program which grew and grew and has come into annual event that people look forward to which is the Quincy ArtsFest."

Over the years, the ArtsFest has blossomed into a premier cultural event in Quincy and throughout the South Shore. Featuring more than 500 artists, the event will mark its 16th year Saturday, Sept. 21 and Sunday, Sept. 22 at I Merrymount Parkway.

Koch said the success of the ArtsFest would not have happened without Anet.

"There's been a lot of folks who are interested in the arts but it was Anet who was carrying the ball single-handedly for many, many years. She was just so full of enthusiasm and passion for the arts. She was a wonderful, wonderful lady. Family was very strong to her, very important to her. She talked about them all the time."

Koch is also an admirer of Anet's art. He has two of her paintings in his third floor City Hall office. One is the Abigail Adams statue, the other is a winter scene of the United First Parish Church as viewed from the Hancock Cemetery.

"She was a very talented and a very gifted artist," the mayor said, adding the city's art community is more vibrant today because of Anet's hard work and passion.

"She was there early on and there have been people who have supported it throughout the years but nobody more than Anet has led the charge, really carried the baton all these years.

"The city is far more cultured today. We talk about we're a good sized city and to have a Quincy Art Association and Choral Society and a Symphony Orchestra. She recognized all that and always wanted to bring them together for purposes of the residents and visitors of Quincy. She was quite a lady."

Renaming the Art Association building in Anet's memory is a most fitting tribute, the mayor said.

"It's a city building. It's been leased out to the Art Association for many years. When I was chief of staff for Mayor Jim Sheets she used to call me and say 'we need this, we need that.' The building had issues like the roof and we used to work with her on those issues as well."

"This is absolutely an appropriate dedication. I can't think of anything better than naming this center which she had such passion for and all that goes on in that center was all she lived for. It's perfect."

"She will live on in the hearts of many whom she touched because she just a special lady. Her name lives on in perpetuity now being affixed to the building."

"The city," he added, "is a better place because of Anet."

Other speakers also praised Anet's love and dedication to the arts.

QAA member Kelly Cobble called Anet the driving force behind the creation of the Quincy Arts Association in 1986. She noted Anet served 14 years as the Association's president.

"Thank you Anet for sharing your job and great love with all of us," Cobble said.

Another QAA member, Dan Myers, described Anet as a friend and mentor to many local artists. "She left a great legacy to this city," he said.

Karen Giovanniello, president of the Quincy Art Association, said the Association is proud to have their home bear Anet's name.

"Anet meant a tremendous amount to the Quincy Art Association and she did for many, many years. She was a remarkable lady and we're very proud of her. She would be all smiles by today's dedication and she'd also say, 'you spent too much money,' (on the handsome new black with gold lettered sign above the front door) she added with a laugh."

The program for Saturday's dedication included a quote from Anet:

"God created this beautiful world and I get to interpret it in painting."

Because of Anet, so many more artists will have that same opportunity for years to come at the Annette M. Paglierani Center for the Visual Arts.

Register O'Donnell: Quincy Property Sales Outpacing Norfolk County

out there. You just hope it keeps trending up."

The key to keeping the housing market's recovery going, O'Donnell added, is more stability in the job market.

"If you don't have confidence that you're going to keep your job or if you think your hours are going to be cutback you're not going to go around buying a house or if you wanted to upgrade your house you're probably just going to stand pat," he said.

Quincy, O'Donnell believes, will also benefit in the future from the revitalization of Quincy Center. He said the $1.6 billion project will help make the city a more attractive place to live for.

"It's a project, I think, that is going to have a lot of benefits for Quincy," O'Donnell, a Norwood resident, said. "Does it increase sales prices — who knows? But to the extent that you make a community attractive you're going to increase the demand for housing because people want to live there. This project has a lot of attractions — not only for housing but for retail sales and stuff like that."

O'Donnell heads the county's Registry of Deeds, which is responsible for recording land records, including deeds, mortgage papers, and decisions from local agencies such as zoning and planning boards. The registry was first established in 1793 when Norfolk County was created, and they have some property records going back to that year. All the records are viewable either in person at the registry's headquarters in Dedham or online at norfolkdeeds.org.

"We're one of the few registries of deeds that still print books. You can do it the old fashion way by going to the books, which have all the information, or you can go on our website and what we've done is put all this information out and available for research on the internet," O'Donnell said.

Those records have numerous uses. Someone looking to sell their home, for instance, can look up recent sales to see how much property nearby is selling for. Or curious homeowners could learn more about the history of their property.

In addition to property records, the registry's website provides numerous resources for current and prospective homebuyers. The website contains information for first time homebuyers and those going through foreclosure, information on how to declare a homestead — which offers homeowner's up to $500,000 worth of protection against creditors, not including mortgage lenders — and information for what to do in case of a death in the family, among other services.

"We try to use this website as an information tool," O'Donnell explained.

O'Donnell also holds office hours in the 28 cities and towns that comprise Norfolk County. The registry will hold office hours in Quincy on Sept. 19, from 10 a.m. until noon at City Hall. The office hours give residents a chance to meet with O'Donnell and other registry staff, and to file certain documents including homestead declarations.

On Monday, Aug. 12 at approximately 10:10 a.m., Officers Sean Kelley and Stephen Cleary were dispatched to School Street on three parties causing a disorder. Upon arrival, the Officers immediately recognized the male and two females from numerous past incidents in Quincy Square. As in most of the past incidents, the three parties were intoxicated.

One of the females was yelling and although advised repeatedly to lower her voice, she continued which resulted in being placed into protective custody for her own safety. The other female and the male were sent on their way.

Officer Cleary went to the station to file the report, but soon after was dispatched again to School Street for a disorder involving a baseball bat. Upon arrival, Officers Cleary and Kelley saw the male suspect and female suspect standing in front of Summer Street yelling at each other. Both parties are homeless and travel with a shopping cart. The shopping cart was in the middle of the street with their items scattered on the ground.

A witness came forward and stated he observed the male hitting the female. The witness said another man came out of one of the buildings holding a baseball bat in his hand ordering the male suspect to leave the female alone. The male suspect shouted at the man with the baseball bat "Mind your own f@#$%^& business." The man with the baseball bat told the male suspect not to come near him or his property. The witness said he observed the man with the baseball bat retreat towards his door as the male suspect came towards him. As the male suspect neared, the man with the bat struck the male suspect in the leg with the bat. The man with the bat then retreated to his home as the male suspect followed him. The male suspect approached the home and punched the glass door causing it to shatter. The male suspect then threw a glass bottle at the house causing the bottle to shatter. The witness then called "911."

The Officers went to the home and spoke to the man with the bat, who said that he observed the initial arrest, then about 10 minutes later heard yelling again between a male and female. He saw the male suspect slap the female in the face while she was sitting on the ground. He then saw the male push the female down as she attempted to stand, resulting in the female falling back and striking her head. He believed the female suspect was in danger so he went outside holding a baseball bat by his side telling the male suspect to leave her alone.

He stated that the male suspect pushed him and threw several punches, so he told the male suspect to stop or he was going to hit him with the baseball bat. He stated the male suspect continued his attack so he struck him in the left thigh with the baseball bat, then retreated to his home and heard the glass door break. He stated he attempted to call "911" on his cell phone but the call was lost. He stated the "911" operator called him back and he informed the operator that the police were already on scene.

The male with the baseball bat said that he came out to protect the woman, adding that, "I didn't think anyone in their right mind would come after me while I was holding a baseball bat."

Officer Cleary asked the female suspect if the male suspect was her boyfriend and she said he was. When asked what happened, the female suspect said she did not see anything and denied being hit by the male suspect. She then began to cry but refused medical attention and a prevention order.

The female suspect was uncooperative and sent on her way. The male suspect, a 35 year-old homeless person, was arrested and charged with, "Domestic Assault and Battery, Malicious Destruction of Property and Assault and Battery."

Nice Work!

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IN THIS SCENARIO?

Due to recent events which occurred outside the City of Quincy, namely the kidnapping and murder of a young woman in South Boston and the recent assault in an elevator in Boston, I decided to add a scenario with my article for a few weeks. This column is aimed at addressing what citizens could do under a wide range of threatening circumstances.

Most Important - There is no perfect answer to each situation, since there are so many variables. Additionally, this is not a complete list - there are so many incidents that occur daily across the nation. This is more to make readers think about what they might do if in one of these predicaments. Hopefully, family members, friends and co-workers will talk about this article, go over scenarios and come up with additional ideas. These recommendations are more to consider your options in the unlikely chance that this could happen to you.

As a parent, I have reviewed these scenarios with my family. Although disconcerting, failure to educate children (of all ages) with options and actions would be something that no parent would want to experience. So the first point that I want to stress is that there are so many people today walking around with headphones on or with their head down continuously texting, never looking up - totally unaware of their surroundings and unable to recognize a threat.

People need to use all their senses and their common sense to recognize a potential threat, even if it is based on a "bad feeling" or when the "hair goes up on the nape of your neck." Here is the first scenario:

Scenario #1: A robber, with a weapon, demands your purse or wallet. Do not attempt to fight the assailant off. Take out your wallet slowly. Do not hand it to him because you will be getting closer to him. There is a good chance he doesn't want you - he wants money, so toss it away from you and run, screaming, "Help."

If after you toss the purse or wallet and he doesn't go for it, it is clear that he wants you. Now is the time to scream and fight. If you are with another person, consider telling the other person to run as you toss the purse or wallet. This diversion of two people running and screaming in different directions and the purse in another may help you get free.

MANY MORE HAPPY ONES
GOD BLESS, YOUR FAMILY

Holy Spirit, you solve all problems, light all roads, so that I can attain my goal. You who give the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances of my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things, confirming once again that I never meant to be separated from you even in spite of all material illusions. I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer for three consecutive days. After 3 days the favor will be granted even if it is difficult. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. N.S.

Prayer to St. Theresa

Oh Glorious St. Theresa
Whom almighty God has raised up to aid and counsel mankind. I invite your miraculous intercession. So powerful are you obtaining every need of body and soul, our Holy Mother Church proclaims you a "Prodigy of Miracles." Now fervently I beseech you to answer my petition (mention here) and carry out your promise of doing good upon earth of letting fall from heaven a shower of roses. Henceforth, Dear little flower, I will fulfill your plea to be made known everywhere and I will never cease to lead others to Jesus through you. Amen.
(Say prayer everyday for 9 days. By 4th day, ask for a sign. If prayers are to be answered between 4th and 9th day, you will see a rose in a Magazine, TV picture or receive Roses. You can also get strong scent of roses in home even if no roses are present. Must promise publication. Thank you.) D.M.

Councillors Seek Update On Downtown Redevelopment Project Three Six-Story Buildings To Replace 15-Story And Five-Story Buildings

By SCOTT JACKSON

On the heels of a major change to the $120 million Merchants Row project, the City Council will review the entire $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center at an upcoming meeting.

Councillor Doug Gutro, chairman of the downtown committee, said he and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci plan to introduce a resolution at the Sept. 3 council meeting calling for an update on the project as soon as possible. Gutro and Palmucci had originally written the resolution to allow councillors to meet with executives at Twining Properties — a New York-based developer who replaced the Beal Companies as a partner in the project earlier in August — and make sure that the mix of retail, commercial, and residential space in the new Quincy Center would not be altered significantly going forward.

"The resolution was an opportunity for us to get to meet the new partner," Gutro said.

The resolution cites the redevelopment of the former South Weymouth Naval

Suspects 'Desperate' With Drug Problems Police Solve 14 Out Of 15 Bank Robberies This Year

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy has seen an increase in bank robberies over the past 13 months, but police say they have been able to track down nearly every suspect involved.

Banks in the city have been robbed 15 times between July 2012 and Aug. 16 of this year, when the most recent robbery took place as of Monday. Of those robberies, only one remains unsolved according to Lt. Det. John Steele.

"We've had 15 [bank robberies] in the past 13 months. Fortunately 14 of them have been solved," Steele said.

The one case that hasn't been solved is the June 26 robbery of the Eastern Bank at 63 Franklin St. Steele said they have good pictures of the suspect, who he described as a heavyset female, but no leads.

That Eastern Bank branch has been robbed five times in the last thirteen months – more than any other bank in the city. It was also robbed on July 30 and Aug. 17 of last year – police have charged one suspect with both those robberies – and on Jan. 28 and Aug. 14 of this year.

The Rockland Trust branch at 301 Quincy Ave. has been robbed twice over the past 13 months – on Sept. 4, 2012, and again on Aug. 14 of this year. The Sovereign Bank branch at 1150 Hancock St. was also robbed twice, on Dec. 15, 2012 and Aug. 7, 2013.

The other robberies were at Colonial Federal Savings Bank, 15 Beach St., on July 16, 2012; Quincy Credit Union, 100 Quincy Ave., on Feb. 11, 2013; Braintree Co-operative Bank, 505 Quincy Ave., on April 25, 2013; Citizens Bank, 1200 Hancock St., on July 8, 2013; Citizens Bank, 371 Hancock St., on July 27, 2013; and South Coastal Bank, 77 Granite St., on Aug. 16, 2013.

Steele said that the 15 bank robberies over the past 13 months is about four or five more than they would typically see in that same time period, adding that he considers the increase more of a blip than a worrisome trend. He couldn't give a reason for the increase, but did note that most of the suspects have admitted to having drug problems after being arrested.

"Virtually every person we've arrested says they have a drug problem," Steele said. "They're desperate."

The robberies have been unarmed ones, where the suspect passes a note to the teller. While suspects may feel they can getaway easily, Steele said that's not the case. The Police Department, he said, has been able to work with banks – who all have high-quality camera systems installed – and with an FBI bank robbery task force to solve the cases quickly.

"Your chances of not being apprehended are very low," Steele said.

Marty Finnegan's Legacy Extends Far Beyond Sports

Former High School Coach Remembered By Friends, Colleagues

By SCOTT JACKSON

Longtime Quincy Public Schools coach and Athletic Director Martin C. Finnegan will be remembered by his friends and colleagues for a legacy that extends far beyond the city's basketball courts and football fields.

Mr. Finnegan — who died July 29 in California at the age of 85 — worked in the School Department for 42 years, starting in 1950 as a teacher and coach. He coached basketball, football, tennis, and golf during his 25 years as a coach, including 13 years as varsity basketball coach at Quincy High.

Following his coaching career, Mr. Finnegan was named athletic director for the School Department, a position he held until retiring in 1992. Richard DeCristofaro, now the superintendent of Quincy's schools, coached Quincy High's varsity basketball team during Mr. Finnegan's tenure as athletic director. The junior varsity coach at that time was Mitch Finnegan, Mr. Finnegan's son. DeCristofaro said the three would often sit and chat following the team's practice.

"Marty would often come down with some words of wisdom. He would meet with us and give us those pearls of wisdom that only he could," DeCristofaro said.

For Mitch Finnegan, coaching at Quincy High School under his father was a dream come true.

"One of my lifelong dreams was to coach at Quincy High School," he explained. "It was the opportunity of a lifetime to coach for him. My dad was a great athletic director to work for."

Mitch Finnegan went on to coach and teach in Brockton, Boston, Lexington, and Weston, where he served as head basketball coach for a half-dozen years before hanging up his whistle six years ago. He now serves as the director of wellness education for Weston Public Schools.

Like his son, Mr. Finnegan also branched out from athletics. While still coaching, he was named Quincy Public Schools' social health coordinator, where he oversaw the school system's response to the drug crisis of the late 1960s and 1970s.

"Marty was the first person to hold the position. It was a continuation of his with work student-athletes and families. He was able to help so many in the schools and in the community," DeCristofaro said. "He really branched out from athletics. He dealt with so many students who were at risk. If anyone needed something, Marty was there."

"Marty, I believe, left an undeniable legacy and memory within the community," DeCristofaro added.

Bill Gaine, the executive director of the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA), also remembered Mr. Finnegan for his contributions off the field.

"Marty Finnegan's legacy goes well beyond the boundary of the Quincy Public Schools to a commitment of leading wellness and chemical health trainings and workshops. It was a personal and professional privilege to partner with Marty Finnegan at hundreds of school presentations from Provincetown to the Berkshires as he shared his charisma and counsel to students on the priority and capacity of making healthy MARTY FINNEGAN, a longtime Quincy Public Schools coach and retired athletic director, died July 29 at the age of 85. life choices," Gaine said.

"The Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association respectfully joins the Finnegan Family in mourning the loss of a giant of a gentle man who has made magnanimous contributions to student-athletes throughout Massachusetts."

Aside from his work with the School Department, Mr. Finnegan also served as a coordinator Project Impact — the predecessor to Impact Quincy — where he trained teachers and other community members to help teenagers coping with alcohol and drug problems.

For his work with Project Impact, Mr. Finnegan was named The Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year" for 1988. He was the fourth recipient of the award, now known as the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award. Janet Powell, at the time a teacher at Broad Meadows, nominated Mr. Finnegan for the award. The two had worked together on Project Impact.

"I had the joy of working closely with Marty in the 80s and 90s as a member of Impact Quincy, which is still in existence and is one of the longest functioning community-based coalitions in Massachusetts," Powell said after Mr. Finnegan's passing.

"Marty always had a huge smile, an infectious laugh and saw the positive in any situation. He was truly a part of the solution and never a part of the problem. He was a real leader who led by example and inspired all those around him to accomplish more than they thought possible, but more importantly, to be a person of integrity, compassion, and dedication."

"He was dedicated to his wonderful wife and family and was a loyal friend.

Marty Finnegan has left an imprint on my life and has given me an example of the way to live one's life and face challenges that are inevitable for all of us."

Following the funeral services for Mr. Finnegan, 150 former players and coaches attended memorial organized by Ron Ivil. Mr. Finnegan coached Ivil on the basketball and football at Central Middle School and then Quincy.

"He was quite a coach and quite a gentleman," Ivil said. "If you had any problems at all you would go see Marty."

At the luncheon, Ivil and other members of the Quincy High School Fifties Alumni Benefit Fund presented Mr. Finnegan's wife, Norma, and children a framed a picture of him. She then gave the picture to school administrators, and it will hang in the Quincy High School gym's lobby next pictures of Munroe MacLean and Bill Sullivan.

During the luncheon many of Mr. Finnegan's former players reminisced about their late coach.

"We had a lot of players there that got up and told stories about Marty," Ivil said.

Mitch Finnegan was at the memorial luncheon. Being there reminded him of the night before he began coaching at Quincy High School when he asked his father if there was anything he would have done differently as coach.

"I would have made sure my players knew how much I loved them — I was so tough and disciplined they didn't understand how much I love them," Mitch Finnegan recalled his father saying. "After the luncheon it was pretty clear those players knew that. Our family was overwhelmed by ketball at Quincy High School. His coaching tenure spanned 25 years, including 13 years as varsity basketball coach for the Presidents.

their stories."

To honor Mr. Finnegan's legacy, his family established a new fund to assist Quincy students-athletes who may not be able to afford a sport's participation fees. Donations to the fund may be made to the Martin C. Finnegan Fund, c/o Quincy Public Schools, 159 Burgin Parkway, Quincy, MA 02169.

"We were trying to identify a meaningful way to celebrate my father's life, my sister Patricia came up with the idea of establishing a fund to help families who might not be able to afford the user/participation fees in the athletic program," Mitch said.

"As an athletic director, my father hated the idea of participation fees, and felt that nothing should ever stand in the way of a student-athlete being able to participate. We hope that folks wishing to remember my dad would help support this effort."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 14, 1901, U.S. President William McKinley dies after being shot twice by a deranged anarchist. One bullet deflected off a suit button, but the other entered his stomach, passed through the kidneys and lodged in his back. When he was operated on, doctors failed to find the bullet, and gangrene soon spread throughout his body.

• On Sept. 15, 1935, German Jews are stripped of their citizenship, reducing them to mere "subjects" of the state. German Jews were excluded from a host of high-profile vocations, from public office to journalism, radio, theater, film and teaching — even farming. Jews found it difficult to buy food, as stores would not admit Jewish customers.

• On Sept. 9, 1942, in the first and only air attack on the U.S. mainland in the war, a Japanese floatplane drops incendiary bombs on Oregon's Mount Emily, setting fire to a state forest. The president immediately called for a news blackout for the sake of morale.

• On Sept. 12, 1951, former middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson defeats Randy Turpin to win back the belt at the Polo Grounds in New York City. Robinson, a New York City native, had lost the belt to Turpin two months prior in Turpin's native London.

• On Sept. 10, 1977, at Baumettes Prison in Marseille, France, Hamida Djandoubi, a Tunisian immigrant convicted of murder, becomes the last person executed by guillotine. In 1981, France abandoned the guillotine forever.

• On Sept. 13, 1989, Hurricane Hugo approaches the Leeward Islands. Over the next 12 days, the category 4 storm would kill 75 people from the island of Guadeloupe to South Carolina. The environmental toll in the Carolinas was severe, and one national forest lost about 70 percent of its trees.

• On Sept. 11, 1991, a Continental Express commuter plane crashes near Houston as it prepares to land, killing 14 people. Short of workers, an inspector had been drafted to assist the afternoon maintenance crew. The inspector worked on putting the screws on the plane's horizontal stabilizer, but did not finish the job.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1917 POSTCARD is a view of the then new Montclair Depot on the Granite branch of the Old Colony Railroad. Constructed in 1870, the Granite branch tracks left the mainline just south of the Atlantic Depot and crossed the Montclair marshes joining the right of way of the old Granite Railway line in East Milton. A wooden trestle spanned the Sagamore Creek that crosses through the marsh. Because of its remoteness the trestle became a popular jumping off spot for skinny dippers where the tide was high. The tracks continued on from Milton through West and South Quincy and rejoined the mainline at Capen's Bridge near today's Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree. The passenger service, with two other depots in East Milton and West Quincy, were discontinued after 70 years in 1941. Over those years and even later countless tons of Quincy granite was shipped from the freight yards at the West Quincy station. Today, the Southeast Expressway follows the track's route through Milton, West Quincy and South Quincy. The depot above was located near the end of Harriet Avenue in Montclair, just beyond the green of the tenth hole of today's Presidents Golf Course. It was built to serve the commuters of Hillside Park a new residential subdivision laid out on the old Pope Farm north of West Squantum Street. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Shipyard Petition, Letter Drive

By SCOTT JACKSON

Citing the threat of massive layoffs at the Fore River Shipyard, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce launched a petition and letter drive, on behalf of the Local 5 Shipbuilders Union, demanding President Jimmy Carter and the Navy direct more work to the yard.

The shipyard was in the process of building the final three ships of a 10-ship contract to build liquid natural gas (LNG) tankers. The three tankers were expected to be finished in 1980, with no more ships in sight. Local 5 officials said layoffs of the yard's 5,000 workers could begin in the fall. The shipyard, they feared, could be closed by August 1980.

"My gut feelings is that I think we (the shipyard) will get work," said Ron Zooleck, executive vice president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. "But we're afraid it will be crumbs, so the Navy can say 'see what we did for you.' We're after the whole loaf."

A good chunk of the 'loaf' officials were seeking was a 10-ship contract to build the Navy's new Aegis destroyers. The first ship in that series had already been awarded to the Litton Shipyard in Mississippi.

Shipyard and other officials hoped the Navy would allow General Dynamics, the shipyard's owner, to bid on one of the $400 million destroyers or award them to the yard without a bid. U.S. Rep. Brian Donnelly had already asked the Navy to skip the bidding process and award some of the destroyers to the yard.

MASS. CONSTITUTION TURNS 200

A series of events in Quincy were planned to celebrate the bicentennial of the drafting of the Massachusetts Constitution.

The Bay State's constitution was written in September and October of 1779 by John Adams at his law office, which is now known as the birthplace of his son John Quincy Adams. Adams was assisted by his cousin Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin. Bowdoin and Samuel Adams served as the second and fourth governors of the state, respectively, under the new constitution. John Hancock, a Quincy native, was the first to be elected governor under the constitution.

As part of the centennial celebrations, the constitution was to return to Quincy in an armored truck under police escort. It would be placed on display at the John Quincy Adams birthplace in 23-foot long case, allowing about two-thirds of the document to be viewed.

The Massachusetts Constitution served as a model for the U.S. Constitution, which was written in 1787.

Congress Must Fix Medicare Payment System

Seniors, people with disabilities, military families and their health care providers should take note: there is hope that Congress is finally moving to make important changes to Medicare. For more than a decade, Medicare reimbursements to physicians have been ruled by a formula calling for large annual cuts in payments. Every year, physicians have worried about the viability of their practices; Medicare and Tricare military patients have wondered if their doctors would stop seeing them.

As Congress considers legislation to repeal the current payment formula and develop quality measures of care, the physicians of the Norfolk South District Medical Society, along with the Massachusetts Medical Society, urge Senators Elizabeth Warren and Ed Markey and Representative Stephen Lynch to continue to work toward these changes. A new and better payment formula and improved quality measures must be created to stabilize Medicare well into the future and give patients peace of mind in knowing their doctors will be there for them. At the same time it must help physicians, particularly those in small offices, to keep their practices viable and open to their patients. Congress has never been closer to fixing a broken system than it is now. It should capture the opportunity and act.

program should receive wide spread, high visibility advertising. Newspaper articles and stories, signs in store windows, signs posted around the town and around the school. "We are watching our schools, and we are watching YOU." A watchful community could provide the needed security.

Has the Quincy School Committee discussed plans to increase school security?
John J. Marshall

A Plan For School Security

With the opening of schools and the tragedy Sandy Hook fresh in minds communities are considering ways to increase school security. For some it seems like the only solution is to add more guns into the situation. This is based on the assumption that more guns equals more safety. Arm teachers and other school personal. Hire armed security guards. Allow college students to carry firearms.

Perhaps there is an alternative. A plan is being offered. It does not involve government participation or spending nor the need for guns in the schools. The solution comes from the local level, from the people in the community directly involved.

Each school through its parent-teacher association establishes a school watch committee. Using community resources, such as retired people, walkers, local delivery people, mailmen, volunteers, neighbors, stay at home moms and dads, and concerned citizens, a school watch committee is setup. Their job is to patrol school environs, be observant, identify suspicious persons or behavior and report such to police. Perhaps they could be given training and supplied with cell phones. Twenty volunteers donating just two hours a week could provide coverage for five 8 hour days (7 to 3, 8 to 4). The more volunteers, the less the individual burden.

Quincy Students Enjoy Musical Trip To West Point

Four days after the Marathon bombings, Jack Foley and John Frazer of Quincy, together with 38 other members of the select Boston College High School Chamber Choir, were about to leave for a West Point concert tour, when the Boston lockdown in pursuit of the second 'Marathon Bomber' delayed all travel out of the city.

Once the lockdown was lifted they set out from NY and arrived in Poughkeepsie at midnight and much to their surprise our boys found welcoming notes on their pillows saying 'Boston Strong.'

Despite losing a full day's itinerary because of the delay, the original schedule was resumed. Saturday's activities included a tour of the Vanderbilt Mansion and the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library and Museum. This was followed by a trip to the Regina Coeli Catholic Church in Hyde Park to sing at Mass followed by a concert. Both priest and parishioners were grateful to have the choir with them not only for their music but also for the effort the boys made in coming to join them.

On Sunday they visited the United States Military Academy at West Point and the renown Cadet Chapel. Here the BC High School Chamber Choir sang at the Worship Service after which an inspirational concert was performed with several cadets joining in. Following the service a brunch was held on campus at the Thayer Hotel. After a guided tour of the academy the choir returned by bus to Boston College High School that evening.

Throughout the weekend it was evident this was not a routine high school trip. Flags were at half-mast every where they went. Clergy and public alike expressed their concerns and prayers for the people of Boston as well as their appreciation and standing ovations for the Chamber Choir performances. Rendition of our National Anthem at concerts or in restaurants brought people proudly to their feet to join in.

The Boston College Chamber Choir, under the expert direction of Dr. Marina Rozenberg, was outstanding and represented their high school and city well, truly being men for others and for Boston.

Quincy High Class Of 1963 Bids Fond Farewell To Old School

The Quincy High Class of 1963 celebrated their 50th reunion Aug. 17 at the Neighborhood Club.

Approximately 100 classmates were in attendance. Classmates came as far as California, Tennessee, Florida, Carolinas, Maine and Ohio. The day began with a tour of the "new" high school as the razing of the "old" high school began the same week.

The Quincy High School new principal, Larry Taglieri welcomed the members of the class of 1963 into the new school on Saturday for tour. He also helped the classmates say good bye to the old Quincy High School, expected to be demolished before students return to school the first week of September.

The sign outside welcoming the class of 1963 was emotionally moving to all members, knowing the old school will no longer be in existence. All were pleased to see the original Pony statue in a case in the lobby of the new school that previously stood in the foyer entrance of the old school. The Pony was a favorite hang out and meeting place.

As Larry Taglieri greeted members of the class, he was caught off guard when Tom DiTullio, a 1963 classmate, appeared. Tom was Larry's former teacher in Quincy. Tom DiTullio, a former Quincy teacher, spoke on how proud he was and how rewarding it was to be witnessing his student now the principal of Quincy High School.

The group of about 30 were overwhelmed with the 330,000 square-foot school. "How jealous we are that we didn't have this for a school," remarked Margaret Nigro Allen, Pat Russo Jolls and Kathleen Morrill Nicholson. Herbert Johnson was in awe when he saw the woodworking shop. He was ready to go back to school.

Janice Hunter Tocchio was so impressed she stated if she had gone here she may not have shipped out of so many classes. Hank Dondero, Fozi Saba and Bob Glynn were taken back by the technology. "The kids are so blessed to have such an advanced school."

Jeanne Calaruso Swanson asked a lot of questions about the academic studies and was amazed by the multiple cultures attending the school which are represented with the flags hanging from the sky lighted roof over the cafeteria.

Michael Kuja from Connecticut, who spent most of his career in the Air Force Special Forces traveling all over the world, said this was a state-of-the-art school.

Irene Boynton, Joyce Abbott and Fred Palmer all from out of town said the new school offered so much more than what they had. The culinary, the art and academic programs are such opportunities for the younger generation. Married classmates, Janet Warner Miller and Fred Miller were proud of Quincy High Old and New.

Ray Grasso brought his grandson who soon will be attending the new high school. Jake's eyes got bigger and bigger with curiosity as he toured. Ray felt fortunate that his grandson will have this experience.

Larry Taglieri, the new principal, stressed that the education and the curriculum was structured to the real world. He was so enthusiastic, the classmates all felt 16 yrs old again and this was their first day of school.

The tour was arranged by Jean Giagrande with School Supt. Dr. Richard Decristofaro and QHS Principal Larry Taglieri. Giagrande, a nurse administrator, said she was so happy the girls had the same opportunities as the boys to take classes in the trades.

The Class of 1963 felt proud to be able to celebrate their milestone before the last brick was dismantled from the building that held so many memories for them. This class has withstood the test of time forming friendships that have lasted; marriages that have developed and also been saddened by the loss of classmates. But as the razing of Quincy High proceeds, the memories we share will live on and the formation of a new building that will hold memories for generations to come will stand tall in its place. This was expressed by Judy Malvesti Carnes.

An extended thank you goes out to the school superintendent and the principal for assisting with the class of 1963 celebration.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Oatmeal Cake

If you love oatmeal cookies, I think you will enjoy this cake recipe. It tastes almost the same as the cookie, only more moist. And it can keep well also, even better a couple of days later.

OATMEAL CAKE

- 1 cup quick Quaker Oats
- 2 sticks unsalted butter (softened)
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 large eggs
- 1-1/3 cups flour
- 1- teaspoon baking powder
- 1- teaspoon baking soda

1/2- teaspoon salt

1- teaspoon cinnamon

Preheat oven to 325-degrees. Grease and lightly flour a 9 x 12 inch baking pan. (I used Pam already mixed with the flour.)

Place the oats in the bowl and pour 1 -1/3 cups boiling water over them; blend them and let soak for 20 minutes.

Cream the butter with the sugars in a large bowl. Mix in the vanilla and the eggs one at a time. Mix the oats into the mixture and then place the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and cinnamon. Mix for one minute.

Bake for 30-35 minutes or until toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean.

Easy Beer Batter

I was flipping through some cookbooks and found the easiest batter to coat all kinds of food. It is very similar to a tempura batter-a favorite of mine.

This batter can be used with chicken, fish or any vegetable.

When I made it, I used it with haddock and also did battered cauliflower.

BEER BATTER

- 1- cup beer (any kind) room temperature

1- cup flour

Salt and Pepper

3 pieces of fish

Extra flour for coating

3 tablespoons vegetable oil

Mix the beer into the flour. Let it set for 15 minutes allowing the beer to do its thing.

By now the batter is fluffy. Place the fish or anything you are using, first in the flour shaking off the excess, and then the batter.

Sauté in hot oil, turning until golden brown and drain on paper towel.

Quincy College Opens New Biotech, Compliance Lab

Can Accommodate 45-60 Students Each Semester

By SCOTT JACKSON

When Quincy College begins its new academic year next week dozens of students will have the chance to use a new, state-of-the-art biotechnology lab that will prepare students for careers in the growing industry and help lure biotech firms to the city, according to school and community leaders.

The new Biotechnology and Compliance Laboratory, located on the second floor of Quincy College's Saville Hall, will accommodate between 45 and 60 students in the school's biotechnology and compliance program each semester. It includes new equipment used throughout the biotech industry, such as a chromatography system, used to separate components of mixtures, and a thermocycler, which is utilized for conducting temperature sensitive experiments.

The school officially opened the lab on Aug. 21 at a ribbon-cutting ceremony attended by more than two-dozen local and state officials, Quincy College's leadership team, and representatives from firms in the biotechnology sector.

Mayor Thomas Koch said the new lab would help prepare students for the workforce and provide an incentive for biotech companies to relocate to the city.

"What we're doing here today plays into the goal of getting some of these businesses to chose Quincy, whether its for research or its for manufacturing. One of the assets that we have is what you're doing here," Koch said.

"An educated workforce assists in those businesses getting the right people to work for them. It assists us — along with all the other assets we have, whether transportation, historical, cultural, or otherwise — to draw them here to Quincy. This is a very important day, not only for the college but truly for the City of Quincy and the economy of Quincy and the South Shore."

The lab was funded in part by a $3 million federal grant and a $100,000 grant from the Massachusetts Life Sciences Center, a state-funded agency overseeing a $1 billion initiative to promote life sciences throughout the state. Greg Bialecki, Massachusetts' secretary of housing and economic development, said the goal is to double the life sciences industry in the state over the next decade, which can only happen if workers are sufficiently educated.

"The key to that is an educated workforce. That's what is going to make it possible — not for us just to sustain what we have here but to continue to grow the way we have," Bialecki said. "We're delighted that this adds to our capacity to bring students into our growing life sciences arena. It's a very diverse area, lots of different occupations, and we need people at every level of education."

CUTTING EDGES

The "brilliant cut" is the most popular cut for diamonds and other colorless stones because it ensures that maximum light will be reflected out through the front of the gemstone. Variations on the outline result in the oval and boat-shaped marquise. Colored stones, on the other hand, are often shown to their best advantage with the "step cut," with its rectangular or square table facet and girdle and parallel rectangular facets. The corners of fragile stones may be removed to create octagonal stones. Mixed cuts are stones that are usually rounded in outline, with the crowns (above the girdle) cut as brilliants and the pavilions (below the girdle) step cut.

Many sapphires and rubies are cut in this style.

Air Station, a development known as SouthField, as a project where a new developer called for changes to the mix of commercial, residential, and retail usage after taking over the project.

"They basically want to delay the commercial and retail aspects and emphasize the residential," Gutro said referring to Starwood Land Ventures, the airbase's new developer. "That's being met with concern."

The new Merchants Row plan — which has an expanded footprint and features three six-story buildings instead of a 15-story and five-story building as originally called for — will also be reviewed at that meeting, Gutro said.

"It's about getting a fresh understanding of the changes are how it affects the mix of residential, commercial, and retail," he explained.

Gutro said he's in favor of the block's expanded footprint because it will allow for additional development, including a large increase in the amount of street-level retail space. On the other hand, Gutro has questions about how the new plans will affect pedestrian access to the site and parking access in the area.

Mayor Thomas Koch also welcomed the news that Street-Works would be expanding the footprint of the Merchants Row site.

"They saw the opportunity to expand the footprint of the first phase by acquiring more property, and they capitalized on that opportunity. In the end, the entire project will be better for it," Koch said in a statement released Tuesday afternoon.

Richard Heapes, a partner with Street-Works, said the firm will present the new Merchants Row plans to the City Council and Planning Board, but neither will need to approve the alterations.

"It is still in compliance with the downtown plan. We'll share plans with the City Council and the Planning Board but it doesn't require additional approval," Heapes said.

The Merchants Row project is being built on the wedge-shaped block bounded by Hancock and Chestnut Streets and Cottage Avenue. The original plan was for the 15-story Kilroy to be built in the area that was once the Bank of America parking lot, and the five-story Granite Trust Lofts to be built along Hancock Street, in a space previously

Murphy New HR Director, Grazioso Named Mayor's Operations Director

Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday Director of Operations Helen Murphy will take over as head of the City's Human Resources Department following the sudden passing of Director Stephen McGrath earlier this month.

Murphy's appointment as Human Resources Director is effective immediately, and her place on Mayor Koch's immediate office staff will be taken by former City Purchasing Agent and Assistant State Treasurer Alfred Grazioso, Jr., Koch said.

Salaries for the two positions are $92,792 for the human resources director and $82,967 for the director of operations.

In a press release, Koch called Murphy the "a very easy choice under very difficult circumstances," noting that Murphy worked closely with McGrath on a wide range of personnel issues on the Mayor's behalf and is intimately familiar with the workings of the city's HR office. The office handles employment matters and health insurance issues for city employees.

"There is no one more capable of stepping into this position than Helen. She brings a tremendous depth of knowledge of the issues in that department, a great work ethic and that same inherent sense of treating everyone with fairness and dignity that we remember so well of Steve," Koch said.

As the Mayor's Director of Operations, Murphy oversaw the day-to-day function of City government, including managing major projects, handling finances and coordinating responses to major issues. Prior to joining the Koch administration, Murphy was Executive Director of Elder Housing Corp., the nonprofit agency responsible for construction of the Squantum Gardens senior housing complex, and she was also a long-time aide to Mayor James Sheets.

"I have been so very fortunate over the past two decades to work with, look up to, and learn from a handful of incredible people — chief among them Stephen McGrath. While I am greatly saddened at the loss of my friend, I am thankful for the all wisdom he shared with me and humbled by the opportunity Mayor Koch has given me to take on this role that Stephen so cherished," Murphy said.

Grazioso was the city's Chief Procurement Officer and Purchasing Agent from 1994 to 2003, serving under Mayors Sheets and William Phelan. He went on to become an Assistant State Treasurer for Administration and Finance and the First Assistant Executive Director of the Massachusetts State Lottery Commission under state Treasurer Timothy Cahill.

Koch cited Grazioso's experience in government finance and his leadership roles at both the local and state level as a "extraordinary asset for the City of Quincy," and noted his community service in the city for groups such as Quincy Youth Hockey and the Flag Day Committee.

"Al is one of the most well-respected members of our community, and I am thrilled that we are able to get him back to City Hall. His passion for our city is unmatched, and his experience, knowledge and commitment will be a great addition to our team," Koch said.

Added Grazioso:

"Having served under two previous Mayors, I am privileged to once again serve the residents of Quincy under the leadership of Mayor Koch, for whom I have a great deal of respect."

'Restoring Our Coasts By Learning From Nature' Topic

The Thomas Crane Library and the Park Department's Environmental Treasures program are offering a free two part program entitled "Restoring Our Coasts by Learning from Nature" with Dr. Anamarija Frankic, Associate Director of the School for the Environment at UMass Boston.

On Monday, Sept. 9 at 7 p.m. at the library, Dr. Frankic will discuss the exciting new field of biomimicry and how it can be used to restore our coastal environment. She will describe the Green Harbors Project she created with UMass Boston students to explore through "LivingLabs" what nature would do to improve conditions in the harbor.

Frankic is an adjunct professor at the Institute of Fisheries and Oceanography in Croatia and has been awarded a Fulbright Fellowship to establish a biomimicry course and the LivingLabs program in Croatia.

On Sunday, Sept. 15, Dr. Frankic will lead a walking tour at Squaw Rock to discuss how biomimicry can be applied to Quincy's coastal ecosystems. The tour will start at 1 p.m. in the parking lot at the Nickerson Post at the end of Dorchester Street in Squantum.

Federal Education Officials Tour Quincy High School Building Showcased For Green Technology, Curriculum

By SCOTT JACKSON
Officials from the U.S. Department of Education joined state and city leaders on a tour of Quincy High School showcasing the building's green technology and curriculum.

Donald Yu, a senior advisor to Education Secretary Arne Duncan, and Andrea Falken, director of the department's Green Ribbon Schools Program, toured the school as part of the "Education Built to Last" Facilities Best Practices Tour. Quincy High was selected to be part of the tour after Duncan named it a Green Ribbon School – an honor bestowed to 64 schools nationwide in April for their efforts to reduce environmental impact and utility costs and promote environmental education.

"I love getting out of D.C. and seeing all the great work you folks do," Yu said. "You guys do all the great work – you guys have all the great, innovative best practices and our job is just to help put a spotlight on all the work you do, help connect you guys to all the other schools around the country who want to do similar things that you're doing and just need you guys to show the way."

"It's really a pleasure to be here," Falken added, "and see one of the schools that we've read so much about and heard so much about. Particularly in Quincy I'm really excited to see a career

U.S. DEPARTMENT of Education officials recently joined state and city leaders on a tour of Quincy High School showcasing the building's green technology and curriculum. This past April, U.S. Secretary of Education Arne Duncan announced that Quincy High School was among 64 schools and 14 school districts named Green Ribbon Schools nationwide. From left: School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro; Special Advisor to Secretary of Education Donald Yu; Director of Green Ribbon Schools Program Andrea Falken; Mark Abdella of focused school on the list." School Supt. Richard DeCristofaro, one of many local officials who accompanied Yu and Falken, said he was excited that the Department of Education was recognizing the new school.

"We are thrilled to be honored in such a great way," he said. "It's such a beautiful building. So many people have such a great part in this building and what it does for our kids, what it does for our teachers and what it does for the future – the green future."

"We're very, very appreciative of what the U.S. Department of Education has done and what our local people have done."

Joining Yu, Falken, and DeCristofaro for the tour were Mayor Thomas Koch, School Committee members Barbara Isola and Anne Mahoney, Planning Director

Gilbane Building Company; Eugene Caruso of Tishman Construction; Massachusetts Undersecretary for Energy Barbara Kates-Garnick; Executive Director of Green Schools Robin Organ; Executive Director of Massachusetts School Building Authority Jack McCarthy; Mayor Thomas Koch; state Treasurer Steve Grossman; architect Alex Pitkin; Director of Public Buildings Gary Cunniff; School Committeewoman Anne Mahoney, School Committee Vice Chairwoman Barbara Isola; and Carolyn Sarno of Northeast Energy Efficiency Partnerships.

"Everybody always looks around and says 'why all the holes?'" Pitkin said, referring to the many holes lining the auditorium's walls. "This is actually functional. We're sitting in a room that has displacement air conditioning. That's why it's so quiet in here and so com-

A Message From Supt. DeCristofaro

X2. Aspen X2 will offer exciting opportunities for home-school connections through the Student/Parent Portal; look for more information on this feature later in the fall.

Last spring, Mayor Koch and the School Committee collaborated with the Superintendent's Leadership and Principal Teams to fund additional academic classroom and academic program teacher positions to maintain average class sizes well below the School Committee Policy guidelines.

In addition, professional positions were added to restore library services at the middle school level and funding was provided for teacher support staff for elementary school book borrowing and technology. Along with the creation of part-time Athletic Director positions at each high school, this year's budget restored the Freshman Athletic program at both high schools.

This year, Quincy Public Schools will continue the transition to the Massachusetts Frameworks for Common Core State Standards. After being piloted at selected schools, new Common Core-aligned textbooks and technology tools will be implemented at all elementary schools with the Journeys Reading program for Kindergarten through Grade 5 and Grades 4 and 5 of Go Math!

At the middle school and high school levels, there will be new Common Core-aligned textbooks and technology tools for Mathematics.

Middle and high school Language Arts instruction will continue to reflect the strong Common Core emphasis on non-fiction content area texts. Beginning in 2014, MCAS testing will begin to assess this transition to the Common Core State Standards, with test items based on the standards for both English Language Arts and Mathematics.

Many technology upgrades have been completed this summer, including the installation of wireless access at all school buildings with separate guest network capabilities.

New technology labs were completed at the Parker and Clifford Marshall Elementary Schools, and twenty-five iPads were purchased for each high school, along with a number of laptops, document cameras, projectors, educational software, operating system upgrades, and ongoing technology professional development throughout the school system.

Along with staffing, curriculum, and technology enhancements, we are working on many initiatives across the school system. At North Quincy and Quincy High Schools, Grades 11 and 12 students will make a difference in their schools and communities through volunteering in the second year of our Community Service pilot. Extended day opportunities will be available for students at all levels and include chorus, orchestra, theater, Robotics, and middle school athletics.

Our partners in the Quincy School-Community Partnership continue to enhance our students' educational opportunities through providing backpacks and school supplies for a number of elementary school students, real-work experiences to high school Career and Technical Education students, and funding the Mentoring program for new professional educators.

Our school buildings will be ready for the new school year, with improvements such as newly retiled floors and new carpeting, repainted classrooms, refinished gym floors in five buildings, and repairs to building mechanicals including addressing electrical, plumbing, and heating issues. Custodians across the school system have worked diligently all summer to prepare classrooms and offices for the new school year.

Through funding appropriated last spring by Mayor Koch and the City Council, many security upgrades have been completed, including video intercom systems, electronic building entry systems, staff identification, classroom door locks, and new lighting and cameras in all buildings. We are also grateful for the support of the Park Department in maintaining and improving the landscaping at our school buildings.

We are continuing to work with the Massachusetts School Building Authority and the Public Buildings department on the construction of the new Central Middle School, which will open later this fall and are in the planning stages of window replacement projects for the Merrymount and Wollaston Elementary Schools and North Quincy High Schools with anticipated completion in Summer 2014.

Please remember that the most meaningful factor in assisting students to have a successful school experience is the concern, participation, and involvement of their parents. In order to help your children attain their goals, we need your involvement, whether it be through attending parent-teacher conferences, volunteering in your child's school, and most importantly, reinforcing the importance of on-time school attendance, appropriate behavior and class participation, and completion of schoolwork. You can also stay informed about your child's school and all of Quincy Public Schools through our website www.quincypublicschools.com or by following us on Facebook or Twitter (@QuincyPS).

As you enjoy the last few days of summer vacation, please note the calendar for the opening days of school below. Your principal will be happy to answer any questions you might have related to the opening of school or feel free to contact my office at 617-984-8700.

The first day of school for Grades 1-9 is Wednesday, Sept. 4.

Grades 10-12 will begin school on Thursday, Sept. 5.

Pre-Kindergarten and Kindergarten students will attend an Orientation at their individual schools on Friday, September 6; each family will receive a postcard with information on this event.

The first day of school for Kindergarten and Pre-Kindergarten is Monday, Sept. 9.

On behalf of all of the staff at the Quincy Public Schools, best wishes for a successful school year to you and your family.

Sincerely,
Richard DeCristofaro,

Back-To-School Safety

By LT. DAN MINTON
Quincy Police Crime
Prevention Officer

It's that time of year again. Time to send your children back to school. It can be a frightening time for parents, but if you prepare your child for the big world you may help save them from getting into trouble.

- Make sure your children are taking the safest route to school and friends' houses, one that avoids danger spots like alleys, new construction, and wooded areas.

- Encourage your children to walk and play with friends, not alone, and to stay in well-lit, open areas where others can see them.

- Don't hang a house key around your child's neck. It's a telltale sign that you won't be at home when they return from school. Put it inside a pocket or sock.

- Teach children to walk confidently and stay alert to what's going on around them.

- Encourage your children to look out for other kids' safety and report anything they see that doesn't seem right.

- Tell your children to stay away from strangers who hang around playgrounds, public rest rooms and empty buildings.

- Rehearse with children their full name, address, and phone number (including area code) and how to make emergency phone calls from home and public phones.

- Tell children never to accept gifts or rides from someone they don't know well.

- Check your neighborhood for areas that threaten children's safety, like brush in wooded areas, overgrown shrubbery, abandoned buildings, bad lighting, vacant lots littered with debris, no sidewalks or bike paths next to busy streets.

- Teach children to go to a store clerk or security guard and ask for help if you become separated in a store or shopping mall. Tell them never to go into the parking lot alone. Accompany your children to public rest rooms.

- Teach children no one, not even someone they know, has the right to touch them in a way that makes them feel uncomfortable. Tell them that they have the right to say "No" to any adult in this situation.

If you teach the above tips to your children, they will be better prepared to survive in this great big, sometimes crazy, world.

COMFORTABLE, COMPASSIONATE AND CREATIVE SERVICES

Dear World

My young son starts to school today. It's going to be sort of strange and new to him for awhile, and I wish you would sort of treat him gently. You see, up to now he's been king of the roost. He's been boss of the backyard. His mother has always been near to soothe his wounds and repair his feelings. But now things are going to be different. This morning he's going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start out on the great adventure. It is an adventure that might take him across continents, across oceans. It's an adventure that will probably include wars and tragedy and sorrow. To live his life in the world he will have to live in, will require faith and love and courage.

So, World, I wish you would sort of look after him. Take him by the hand and teach him things he will have to know. But do it gently, if you can. He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true. But teach him also that for every scoundrel there is a hero. That for every crooked politician there is a great and dedicated leader. Teach him that for every enemy there is a friend. Steer him away from envy, if you can, and teach him the secret of quiet laughter. In school, World, teach him it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat. Teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone says they are wrong. Teach him to be gentle with gentle people and tough with tough people. Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone is getting on the bandwagon. Teach him to listen to all men - but teach him also to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and take just the good that siphons through. Teach him, if you can, how to laugh when he is sad. Teach him there is no shame in tears. Teach him there can be glory in failure and despair in success. Treat him gently, World, if you can, but don't coddle him, because only the test of fire makes fine steel. Let him have the courage to be impatient. Let him have the patience to be brave. Let him be no man's man. Teach him always to have sublime faith in himself, because then he will always have sublime faith in mankind.

This is quite an order, World, but see what you can do. He's such a nice little fellow, my son!

Tips From The MA Chiropractic Society Inc.

Backpack Safety, Computer Work Station Ergonomics, Sports Injury Prevention

From Backpack safety, computer workstation ergonomics and sports injury prevention The Massachusetts Chiropractic Society Inc. offers Tips

So many students from elementary school to college use a computer on a daily basis and many have not been taught the proper way to work at a computer to avoid potential injuries such as repetitive motion injuries. Teaching kids now the proper way to use the computer workstation can help to avoid poor working habits later in life.

Here are some tips from The Massachusetts Chiropractic Society Inc:

- Position the computer monitor so the top of the screen is at or below the child's eye level. This can be accomplished by taking the computer off its base or stand, or having the child sit on firm pillows or phone books to reach the desired height.

- Make sure the chair at the workstation fits the child correctly. An ergonomic back cushion, pillow or a rolled-up towel can be placed in the small of the child's back for added back support. There should be two inches between the front edge of the seat and the back of the knees. The chair should have arm supports so that elbows are resting within a 70- to 135-degree angle to the computer keyboard.

- Wrists should be held in a neutral position while typing - not angled up or down. The mousing surface should be close to the keyboard so your child doesn't have to reach or hold the arm away from the body.

- The child's knees should be positioned at an approximate 90- to 120-degree angle. To accomplish this angle, feet can be placed on a foot rest, box, stool or similar object.

- Reduce eyestrain by making sure there is adequate lighting and that there is no glare on the monitor screen. Use an antiglare screen if necessary.

- Urge your child's school or PTA officials to provide education on correct computer ergonomics and to install ergonomically correct workstations.

Backpacks continue to be a concern for parents of school age children.

With the workload increasing each year as well as the amount of books being brought home, here are some guidelines from The Massachusetts Chiropractic Society Inc. on backpack safety:

- Make sure the child's backpack weights no more than 5 to 10 percent of their body weight. A heavier backpack will cause the child to bend forward in an attempt to support the weight on his or her back. For example a 50-pound child should not carry more than 5 pounds.

- Where it sits makes a big difference. A backpack should never land more than four inches below the waistline. A backpack that hangs too low increases the weight on the shoulders, causing the child to lean forward when walking and distort their posture.

- Urge a child to wear both shoulder straps. Lugging the backpack around by one strap can cause the disproportionate shift of weight to one side, leading to neck and muscle spasms, as well as low-back pain.

- The shoulder straps should be adjustable so the backpack can be fitted to your child's body. Straps that are too loose can cause the backpack to dangle uncomfortably and cause spinal misalignment and pain.

- Use rollerpacks or backpacks on wheels with caution. Children tend to overload these packs because they are on wheels and then need to haul them up bus and school stairs resulting in injury. Many school districts have banned rollerpacks because they clutter hallways resulting in dangerous trips and falls.

- A backpack with individualized compartments helps in positioning the contents most effectively. Make sure that pointy or bulky objects are packed away from the area that will rest on your child's back.

- Just because a backpack is bigger does not mean it's better. The more room there is in a backpack, the more your child will carry and the heavier the backpack will be.

Sports injuries are common for kids of all ages. Parents and their children could be overlooking the importance of proper nutrition and body conditioning needed for preventing injuries on and off the playing field. Parents need to work with their kids and make sure they receive proper sports training. Chiropractors can provide advice on sports training, nutrition and injury prevention. Encourage your child to:

- Wear the proper equipment

- Eat healthy meals
- Drink water - hydration is key

- Follow a warm up routine. Be sure your child or his/her coach includes a warm-up and stretching session before every practice, game or meet. A slow jog, jumping rope and/or lifting small weights reduces the risk of torn or ripped muscles. Flexibility becomes a preventive key when pushing to score that extra goal or make that critical play

- Get plenty of rest. Eight hours of sleep is ideal for the young athlete. Lack of sleep and rest can catch up with the athlete and decrease performance.

Make A Dental Check-up A Back-To-School Basic

By DR. LINDA VIDONE

Backpack. Pens and pencils. Organizers and notebooks. New first day outfit and shoes too. And, because you're so on top of it, you've even made an appointment for your child's annual physical.

Sounds like everything your child will need to be prepared to go back to school, right? Not so fast. There is still a very important item could be missing from your back-to-school list: a dental check-up.

Dental disease, commonly known as tooth decay, is the most common chronic childhood disease. It is five times more common than asthma, yet it often goes untreated resulting in cavities, pain and infection. Dental disease is responsible for 51 million school hours missed by children every year across the United States. When left untreated, dental disease can also interfere with a child's ability to learn, speak properly, and eat, leading to poor nutrition and problems in school.

The good news is that dental disease is also almost 100 percent preventable with continued attention to oral health care. Dental check-ups are crucial for identifying risks and preventing more serious problems of tooth decay and gum disease from developing. Your child's dentist can identify early signs of diseases beyond cavities, like diabetes and vitamin deficiencies. A dentist can also determine whether your child is at risk for cavities and suggest preventive measures like sealants on molars or fluoride varnish protection.

At home, you can help your child protect his or her teeth throughout the school year with a few simple tips:

- Make brushing and flossing a twice daily event in the morning before your child heads to school and as the last activity before going to bed. Good oral health is an important part of a child's overall well-being, especially as the teeth are developing.

- When packing a child's lunch, cut down on sugary juices, sports drinks, and sodas. Sugar and acid in these drinks can eat away the tooth's enamel and make the tooth more vulnerable to decay.

- If your child participates in a school sport, make sure he or she wears a properly fitted mouth guard. According to the American Dental Association, sports-related injuries knock out two million teeth per year. Your child will be 60 times less likely to suffer tooth damage than an athlete not wearing a mouth guard.

- Remember that bottled water doesn't have tooth decay fighting fluoride. If your town's drinking water is fluoridated, you can save money, and the environment, by skipping the bottled water and purchasing a water bottle to hold tap water.

Most importantly, schedule a back to school appointment with your child's dentist. Start a positive tradition that will last his or her entire life. Your child should leave the dentist's office with a new toothbrush, a sticker and a brighter smile. And you will walk away with peace of mind, knowing you have a full picture of your child's overall health and that your son or daughter is truly ready to start the new school year.

Terence Lau and Timothy Chu of Quincy, juniors at Boston College High School, together with 10 other BC High students and under the guidance of faculty members Michael Gardner and Ms. Yi-ching Yang, recently participated in BC High's 12th annual Beijing Summer Seminar.

The Beijing Seminar is a four-week academic exchange program offered by BC High in conjunction with High School Number 2 in Beijing, China.

While in China, Lau and Chu attended intensive daily language classes, as well as classes in history and Chinese culture. They lived with host families to fully immerse themselves in everything the Chinese culture has to offer and they received academic credit for this experience.

The group also participated in excursions to the Forbidden City, the Great Wall of China and the ancient city of Xi'an.

Archbishop Williams Adding 7th, 8th Grade Programs Next Fall

Archbishop Williams High School, a Catholic, co-educational high school in Braintree, announces it will add a 7th and 8th grade in the fall of 2014.

With the addition of the 7th and 8th grade, Archbishop Williams will provide the first and only co-educational Catholic 7-12 high school in the area.

School President Dennis M. Duggan Jr., said he is excited about this new opportunity for students.

"Our mission of educating young men and women spiritually, academically, morally and physically guides us every day. We look forward to expanding our mission to include boys and girls at this most crucial, turning point time in their lives," said Duggan.

"Our dedicated faculty, campus ministers, administrators, coaches and staff are excited about helping our new students develop and grow in this most challenging time for young people. We are confident that our environment of respect, trust, support and learning will allow our students to reach their potential in school, college and life."

All 7th and 8th graders will have access to high school level courses and technology, including iPads, SMART Boards and Apple TV, as well as the school's science labs, auditorium and gymnasium.

Co-curricular offerings including drama and chorus will be available, and 7th and 8th graders will be eligible to participate in the school's interscholastic athletic program at the appropriate level.

"Welcoming students to AWHHS in the 7th and 8th grade will let us prepare them for the PSATs and SATs two years earlier and prime them for the important transition to our high school curriculum," said School Principal Dr. Carmen Mariano.

"We will offer six years of writing across the curriculum, expose our 7th and 8th graders to high school courses before they enter high school and to collegiate courses (through our dual enrollment program) before they enter college. Academic rigor, consistency, and preparation are alive and well at AWHHS. Expanding our grades will plant those seeds deeply into the soil of our future," Mariano said.

AWHHS educates more than 500 boys and girls in grades 9-12 from 40 cities and towns surrounding Boston, and has a thriving international student program.

Archbishop Williams will accept applications for 7th and 8th graders this fall. For more information and an application visit awhs.org.

"This is just another opportunity for us to bring more people from different communities and regions into this growing life sciences sector that is growing across the state."

Rep. Tackey Chan welcomed the state's investment in Quincy College's new lab, and said educating the workforce is a linchpin to economic growth.

"The important thing in the 21st century is bringing everyone up to speed on the new economy. This is one very important step for the state to be able to partner with a local group, Quincy College, to bring this wonderful resource here," Chan said.

"I look forward to advocating at the State House to encourage the continuation of our technology and growth of this industry but also, more importantly, seeing more people get to work, be better educated, and most importantly being aware of the work place environment, which is what this is."

Quincy College President Peter H. Tsaffaras said the school's biotechnology program and new lab would allow students to find work after graduation, allowing them to become productive members of society.

"I've always thought the greatest social program that ever was invented is a job that gives people dignity and respect," Tsaffaras said. "The graduates of this program, soon after their graduation, will be able to go into a field where they will have a job that can give them dignity and respect and give them the opportunity to either start a family or continue their own lives in a very productive way."

"They'll become productive members of society both economically and socially."

Tsaffaras also noted that the lab space was actually his office until it was converted into a biotechnology lab over the course of several months.

"Ten months ago this was my office and the boardroom — we've done this in less than ten months," Tsaffaras said. "A year from now there will be individuals, who as a result of the way we've touched their lives, will be productive members of our society. It's really a humbling thing to think what we do to help people out. People come to us and we work with them to help them be productive."

Quincy Rec, Police Basketball Team Participates In Tournament

For the sixth year the Quincy Recreation and Police Departments have brought a team to play in the Metropolitan Mayors Coalition Shannon Grant Basketball Tournament. “Teamwork” is the team name taken from the program, which has placed recreation leaders at Kincaide Park and Fenno Park during summer months in a preventative recreation program designed to encourage and supervise positive recreational activities for teenage youth.

The nine-member team competed well and was only a buzzer beater away from advancing to the finals. They also finished a strong second in the three-point shooting contest as Tyshawn Moore netted seven points after winning a shoot out to get to the finals.

The eight-team tournament is made up of the member communities of the Mayors Coalition – Chelsea, Somerville, Everett, Winthrop, Malden, Medford, Cambridge, Revere, and Quincy. Somerville hosted the events at Trum Field.

In the first round game the Teamwork Quincy team came back from a nine-point deficit to defeat Winthrop by one. In the second round game they again came from behind to take a one-point lead with three seconds remaining in the game. Revere worked a perfect in-bound play to win 25-24 as the clock expired.

The Quincy team was made up of a very talented players who were proud to wear the Teamwork jersey for the day. Brothers Joijuan and Joe Phoenix both stood out when they were on the court, hitting each other play after play for easy baskets. After finding themselves in a nine-point hole late in the first game, the team called upon shooters Jackie Chen and Tyshawn Moore to bring them back. The duo answered the call hitting four three-pointers down the stretch to bring Quincy to victory.

Also playing well for the Teamwork squad was Vincent Tran, who spent the day corralling rebounds and getting to the line for some easy points. Matt Gerakis and Andy He both scored key baskets down the stretch in the comeback effort in the second game, a run that was sparked by back-to-back defensive stands in which Cornelius Koch and Greg Clarke came up with big steals to start the offense.

The Quincy Recreation Department would like to thank the Metropolitan Mayors Coalition, the Quincy Police Department, and all the members of the Teamwork basketball squad. The tournament was a huge success, and department hopes the team is as proud of their performances as they are.

Hoop Players Remember John O'Connell, Dennis Thomson

8th Annual Memorial Tourney Draws Top Basketball Players; Raises $5,000 For Scholarships

By BILL GRIFFIN

For 18 hours over two days the best of playground basketball was played out on the sun-splashed courts at the corner of Fenno and Hancock Streets.

The eighth annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament showcased the best talent in the city and top college players from across the state last Saturday and Sunday. It raised money for charity and it kept fresh in the minds of their friends the memory of two remarkable athletes who loved sports and fun and life.

"It's as good as any playground tournament I've ever been around," said Dave Jaehnig who played at Westfield State and has been a member of the championship team four times in eight years.

The tourney honors John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, two excellent athletes who graduated from North Quincy in 2002 and had their lives cut tragically short in the past nine years. There is a men's division with 16 teams and a women's division with four teams.

"What we do for charity is important, but the most important thing is to honor their memory. If we didn't raise a dime, it would be worth it to keep their memory alive," said Dan Duggan, a classmate of O'Connell and Thomson who has done all the thankless, endless work of organizing a landmark event over the past seven years after Jimmy Finn started the tourney.

"I think Jimmy was a rec coach of John and Dennis who wanted to honor them," said Duggan who played basketball and baseball at North.

O'Connell and Thomson were each three-sport athletes. O'Connell played golf, basketball and baseball. Thomson played football, basketball and baseball. O'Connell was a center and captain of the basketball team. Thomson was the starting quarterback on the football team.

"John was a good pitcher and first baseman, but his best sport was basketball," said Duggan who played baseball and basketball with the two. "Dennis was an excellent all-around athlete, but football was probably his best sport."

It was rarely difficult to find the pair. Just follow the laughter.

"In the yearbook, John

was named best all-around and best personality. Dennis was named life of the party, so that gives you some idea," smiled Duggan.

Along with being an athlete, Thomson was a cheerleader. Actually, he was a cheerleader of some legend.

"One year, Dennis decided the girls volleyball matches were going to be the place to be," said Duggan. "North has a great tradition in volleyball. Dennis went to every match and got the crowd going. Every match he would have a different routine. People came to see what Dennis was going to come up with. He'd paint his chest and blow on a plastic bugle. He'd do anything. Pretty soon, every game was a sellout and we went to the state title. Dennis was right in the middle of it."

O'Connell had a brilliant singing voice. He joined the choir. Three-sport athletes who sing in the choir are a trifle unusual, three-sport athletes who bring other players along with them into the choir are more rare than snow in July.

"John had a great voice. He could sing solos," said Duggan. "Most of the time guys join the choir because the girls are there. In my class, they went to follow John. I don't know if they could carry a tune, but they wanted to be around John. That's the kind of kid he was."

Jaehnig offers a different perspective. He was two years younger than O'Connell and Thomson and he looked up to them as athletes who could play and have fun.

"They were legends of Quincy. Everyone knew them," said Jaehnig. "They were perfect role models. Dennis was always making us laugh. John was loyal and generous to everyone."

The crowd which ringed the Fenno Street Courts two and three deep for two days in August speaks well to the number of people O'Connell and Thomson touched.

"Look around. You see all ages," said Duggan "You see their classmates, kids who were older than them and kids who were younger than them. You see adults who knew them. You see kids who came to play in the

EIGHTH ANNUAL John O'Connell-Dennis Thomson Basketball Tournament drew some of the best men's and women's players from the city and throughout the state. Among those participating in the women's competition were (front row from left) Alannah Wynn, Jackie Branca, Erin Cain and Ashley Chard. Back row: Kate Carelzon, Ashley Fox, Norma Cumbee, Ashley Boyd and Kristen Penney. The event was held at the Fenno Street courts and raised approximately $5,000 for scholarships established in memory of O'Connell and Thomson, two 2002 North Quincy High School graduates who lost their lives tragically.

OTHER PLAYERS supporting the eighth annual O'Connell-Thomson Memorial Basketball Tournament were (from left) Ian Kilpatrick, Dan Duggan, Mark Maher, Shayne Cranmore, tourney from out of the city who never heard of them. That's what the tournament is all about, to make sure their memory stays alive."

John's mother Mary enjoyed a hot dog and worked her way between groups of friends as basketballs cut through nets and players flew across the courts.

"The tournament makes me wish that he was here," she said. "But I look around and I see not only his friends, the kids he played with, but also their parents who knew John and come every year to remember him."

John's sister, Catherine, recently finished a storybook career at Newbury College. This was her third year playing in the tournament. She talked about her inspiration for the game she plays so well.

Banner Year For Quincy Junior League All Stars

By BILL GRIFFIN

For Quincy's Junior League All Stars, it began with indoor workouts at Marina Bay in January and it ended with a terrific performance in the Northeast Regional Championships in Freehold, New Jersey in August.

Manchester, New Jersey rallied for two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to hand Quincy a heartbreaking 3-2 loss in the elimination game of the regionals, but the defeat did not dim the season of excellence produced by the 14 players from Quincy over the course of their season.

"I could not be prouder of the kids and the way they handled themselves all summer. They did a great job representing Quincy," said coach Mark Jaehnig.

Quincy roared to the state title with 10 straight wins by a run differential of 126-23 and advanced to the regionals. It was the third time in five years Quincy put a team in the regionals. Quincy won three of its first four games in the regionals which showcased the best teams from Maine, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland.

With one loss, Quincy faced Manchester in a must-win situation in the double-elimination tourney. Lefty Matt Monahan pitched a fine game, keeping Manchester off balance with a mix of curves and fastballs.

After Manchester went up, 1-0, Cody Desmond stole third and scored on a wild throw to tie it at 1-1. Chris Wallace drilled an RBI double for a 2-1 lead in the fifth.

Quincy had chances to add insurance runs in the sixth and seventh, but the score stayed at 2-1 entering the bottom of the seventh. A walk, an error and a double tied the game at 2-2 for Manchester.

With runners on second and third, Quincy decided to walk the bases loaded. Desmond made a fine play on a liner in shallow center to save a run, but Manchester was able to push home the game-winner on a ground ball for a 3-2 decision.

"It was a tough loss, but I thought we showed a lot of class when we gave them our 'two-clap' salute after the game," said Jaehnig. "Max Storch, Chris Mann and Tim Keohane played excellent defense in the infield. Kevin Fitzgerald, Shawn Kelly and Desmond were outstanding in the outfield. We had one bad defensive inning out of 34 in the tourney."

At the opening banquet, Quincy chose to be introduced as a unit rather than individually and its teamwork showed in a 6-2 win over host Freehold in the opener of the tourney. Monahan hurled a three hitter and struck out three. Storch added a two-run double while Desmond and Mark Munroe had an RBI. Will Phelan and Chris Mann worked a double-steal for a run.

Owen Lynch earned the save thanks to a fine catch in center by Desmond.

"We all wore our 'Boston Strong' T-shirts. It was our theme for the tournament," said Jaehnig.

Quincy made it two straight wins with a 10-6 decision over top-seeded Tolland, Connecticut. Monahan and Mann had RBI to put Quincy up, 3-0, but Tolland rallied to tie. Fitzgerald responded with an RBI hit and Dara Griffin worked a walk with the bases loaded for another.

Erik Barber bunted for a hit and Storch drove in a run to back the pitching of Matt Fox who hurled four innings of quality middle relief.

"Wallace, Storch, Mann, Keohane, Kelly, Desmond and Fitzgerald all played excellent defense for us," said Jaehnig.

The win was a costly one. Lynch broke an orbital bone in his eye going after a popup in a difficult sun. Desmond was hit on the left elbow with a pitch. He couldn't pitch or throw from the outfield for the rest of the tourney. He played first and flipped the ball to a teammate underhand to throw when he played the outfield.

"Owen had to fly back to Boston for treatment," said Jaehnig. "Our rallying cry became Owen Lynch. We wanted to keep winning until he could rejoin us."

Playing without Desmond and Lynch, Quincy fell to Massapequa, New York, 6-2 for its first loss of the tourney.

Kelly had an early RBI for a 1-0 lead, but Massapequa took control with six in the second inning. Keo-hane and Storch each had two hits while Phelan and Griffin had a hit apiece.

Phelan hurled three shut-out innings on the mound in relief.

"It was a disappointing loss, but in the middle of the sixth inning in every game, they played the YMCA song," said Jaehnig. "The teams would come together and dance to the song. Our kids were frustrated, but they joined in and showed how to have fun playing baseball."

Quincy stayed alive with a 7-4 win over Freehold. Desmond and Storch had RBI as Quincy went out to a 3-0 lead.

After Freehold tied it at 3-3, Quincy went up on an exciting play in the fifth. With the bases loaded and two out, Desmond lifted a popup which found an open spot and dropped safely in the outfield. Two runs scored easily and Mann, hustling all the way from first, raced home for a 6-3 lead.

Griffin drove in an insurance run. Storch combined a good fastball and curve to earn the win on the mound with relief help from Fitzgerald in the seventh.

"The game was a character check for us," said Jaehnig. "There was a big home crowd and Freehold was determined after losing earlier to us."

This set up the finale against Manchester who ended up playing Massapequa for the title. Massapequa won and advanced to the world series in Taylor, Michigan.

"It was a great season for the kids," said Jaehnig. "With House League, AAU, Babe Ruth and Junior League, they played over 80 games and they played excellent baseball. It was a season they will always remember."

CAUGHT NAVAL GAZING?

The seemingly ubiquitous use of hand-held tablets and smart-phones has literally placed many users in positions that eventually lead to pain. According to one study, 84 percent of mobile phone users reported experiencing pain in at least one part of their bodies, usually the base of their thumbs. So-called "Blackberry thumb" is caused by strain that results from even light pressure, which is magnified 5 to 10 times at the base of the thumb. Another problem revealed by research involves the fact that as many as 9 out of 10 handheld-device users hold their devices at navel level. Staring downward in this manner for prolonged periods sets the stage for neck strain and back problems. Chiropractic treatment can help.

Do you frequently use a hand-held tablet? Seek a professional chiropractic examination immediately to see if yours is a condition which comes within the scope of chiropractic. The pain you suffer may be because the cause of the pain has been ignored and proper treatment has been delayed. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, you'll find an experienced and helpful staff of health care professionals dedicated to serving your health care needs. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. There are a variety of habits, from cell-phone use to carrying heavy handbags, that the chiropractor may point to as causes of neck and back pain.

DA Morrissey Hosts Summer Basketball Camp

The Quincy gym was loud with laughter and the sounds of kids practicing their layups and learning life lessons this month, as Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey held his office's annual summer basketball camp for local kids.

"The camp provides a blend of constructive activity and constructive messages for the kids chosen to come," Morrissey said. "We combine basketball skill building with talks from older kids who have made good choices and adults they respect. They take away more than a better jump shot."

Many of the youngsters who attend the camp are hand-picked by the adults around them for a positive summer experience. "We are always looking for ways to help good kids stay on the right path," Morrissey said.

Retired Southeastern Regional Vocational and Coyle Cassidy High School basketball coach Carl Boen, who runs the three-day program alongside Norfolk DA staff, provides instruction for campers in grades 3 through 8.

Quincy High School Basketball Coach Dave Parry and several members of his team opened the camp doing warm-up drills with the campers. New QHS principal Lawrence Taglieri, himself a Quincy High graduate, stopped by to welcome the kids to his school.

Dr. Wayne Westcott, South Shore YMCA Fitness Research Director and author, talked with campers about the Importance of exercise and diet. Joanne Morrissey stopped by with fresh fruit for the participants on their final day.

Massachusetts State Police Trooper Brian Tully engaged the youngsters on the importance of team work and how it relates to the work of the State Police and law enforcement.

"The lessons many of us learned in sports and extra-curricular activities when we were young became the basis for later good decisions and personal success," Morrissey said. "This is a good opportunity to pass those lessons along."

Basketball Players Remember John O'Connell, Dennis Thomson

"It's John, always John. I play with him and for him," she said. "I think about if he were here. He'd be right over there sitting with his friends, having a drink and making someone laugh."

The event has also served the community. Both families have set up memorial scholarships to benefit North Quincy graduates and the tournament raises funds for those scholarships.

"The generosity of public officials and business people has been unbelievable," said Duggan. "Some businesses donate gift cards for raffles and others just take out a check and write it."

Over the eight years, the John O'Connell Fund has awarded 23 scholarships for North Quincy High seniors. It has made monetary gifts and donations to people with special needs. It has paid for batting cages at Adams Field and helped with the cost of fees that are charged to play basketball at North. It has donated to the sick and the needy.

"People have donated Bruins tickets, Red Sox tickets and souvenirs," said Duggan. "I have a friend, Andy Mannix, who works for the Celtics, and he has helped us with Celtics gear. I want to thank the volunteers and the community for all they've done."

It is terrific basketball. Athletes from Quincy who play hoop in college bring their teammates with them for the tournament. The talent, reputation and respect for the tournament have grown through the years. If you are a basketball person and it is late August, you are here.

"I know this year everyone on my team with the exception of one played college ball," said Jaehnig who has played in all eight tournaments. "I've seen a couple of Division 1 players, a few Division 2 and a lot of Division 3 kids. It's excellent basketball."

There is also a sense that this is a place and time to play the game hard, clean and fair.

"In eight years, I haven't seen one fight. I haven't seen anything close," said Duggan.

"I'll be back next year. I'll be back for as long as I am able to play," said Jaehnig.

Here are the winning teams for this year's tournament.

In the men's division, the winning team included five Quincy residents:

Brian Mahoney, Kevin Mahoney, Anthony DiBona, Julian Colarusso and Paul Donoghue. Other teammates are Jordan Rote, Ryan Coburn, Brendan Carter, and Brian Clarke.

In the women's division, the winning team included one Quincy resident, Kate-lyn Mark. Teammates are:

Jessica Duff, Megan Berry, Molly Griffiths, Marissa Velez, Kellyrose McCarthy, Jamie Insel and Cara Hart.

Duggan said this year's tournament raised approximately $5,000, the most since the first year when Gov. Mitt Romney donated $5,000 to the cause.

"To raise this amount of money in our eighth year through so many different donations and contributions is an amazing tribute to Dennis and John, which is really what this tournament is all about," Duggan said.

He also thanked the following sponsors who helped make this year's tournament a success:

Mayor Tom Koch, West Elm Variety, Mike McFarland, George Burke, P.J. Kennedy & Sons, Boston Herald, Beth Donovan, Houghton Family, Malachy's Saloon, Tackey Chan, Kevin Coughlin, John Keenan, Kirsten Hughes, Doug Gutro, Law Office of Pat Foley, Joe Finn, Jim McCarthy, Monaco Family, Gina Scanlan, Granite City Self Storage, Bruce Ayers, Ryan Gardiner, Kevin McAuliffe, Pete Moynihan, Katie Papelian, Andy Mannix, Matt Mooney, Derek Chamberlain, Brian Doyle, Chris Herren, Pollara Family, Allison Gagne.

Boston Beer Garden, Nix's Mate, Howl at the Moon, Konditor Meister, Atlantic Beer Garden, The Whiskey Priest, The Playwright, Clarke's Faneuil Hall, Briar Group, Braintree Brew House, Glynn Group, J.J. Foley's, Fours, The Chantey, Port 305, Siro's, O.B.'s Café, Kelly's Roast Beef, Uno Chicago Grill, Quincy Athletic Club, Baby-cakes, Balducci's House of Pizza Dairy Freeze, The Screening Committee, Pizzi Family and Briar Group.

Chasing Away Deer

Question: I'm having trouble with deer sneaking into my yard overnight and chewing up the lower branches of my trees and eating other plants in my garden. How can I get rid of them, other than sitting up all night so I can scare them off? -- Renee in Columbus, Ga.

Answer: Here are a few ways to discourage deer from making your yard their salad bar:

- Move gardens away from shady or wooded areas. Deer tend to stay out of sight using shaded, tree-laden areas for cover. They'll lurk near vegetable gardens that are close to such areas.
- Reduce or move plants that deer love to eat, like leafy shrubs and tender green plants. Try mixing in plants they don't like, such as snapdragons, begonia or holly with your vegetables or flowers to make the area less palatable.
- Consider fencing. If all else fails, barrier fencing can keep most deer off of your property. The drawbacks are the cost of installing and maintaining the fence, and no longer having an unrestricted view beyond your property. Deer can leap as high as 9 feet, meaning fencing needs to be at least as high.

- Try a homemade solution. Many homeowners hang bars of soap from tree branches or fenceposts around the property, betting that the perfume or the soap itself will repel deer.

- Use a commercial repellent. Deer repellent sprays are available that can be applied to the edges of your property throughout the gardening season.

HOME TIP: Place bars of soap in the toes of old knee-high nylon stockings and tie the stockings to tree limbs, as a homemade deer repellent.

On Sunday, Aug. 18 at approximately 2 p.m., Officer James Cassidy (along with his K9 partner Khiya) was monitoring vehicle traffic at the intersection of Hannon Parkway and the Parkway. During this time, there was a large public event being held in the area and pedestrian traffic was heavy.

Officer Cassidy observed a Jeep Liberty exit the IHOP lot and turn right onto the Parkway, failing to stop at the red light located at this same intersection. The vehicle then passed by Officer Cassidy on the Parkway towards Franklin Street and School Street. The male operator was the only occupant.

Upon request, the driver handed the officer a driver's license issued in Puerto Rico. The driver's hands were shaking as he gave the license to the officer, which prompted the officer to advise the driver to relax. When told why he was being stopped, the driver responded in broken English, "I know...sorry." When asked who owned the vehicle, the driver said it was his friend's but could not provide a registration.

Officer Cassidy observed that the driver appeared unusually uncomfortable (based on hundreds of motor vehicle stops) as he continued to move his arms, rubbing his neck and removing his hat. A quick inspection of the license revealed that the lamination was peeling and the bar code/lettering on the back was not centered. Once Quincy Police Communications was unable to locate any record of a license with the information off of the license, Officer Cassidy requested a second cruiser. Officer Cassidy, speaking limited Spanish to the driver, was able to determine that the suspect was coming from Russell Street, but denied coming from the IHOP parking lot. The officer also noted that there was only one key in the ignition, many air fresheners, two full bottles of water in the center console area and a number religious items hanging from the interior of the vehicle.

Based on training and experience, the officer recognized that these items are commonly associated with person or persons dealing and delivering street level narcotics. The officer also noted that the driver had two folds of money, one inside his wallet when he was handing me his license and another fold of money in his pocket. Officer Cassidy also noted that the driver failed to keep eye contact with him and twice reached towards the door handle with his right hand.

Looking down towards the interior door handle, the officer observed a green Mentos container sitting inside of it. Again, from training and experience, officers know that those involved in dealing narcotics utilize small breath mint containers to hold/carry illegal narcotics. Based on all the facts that were available, Officer Cassidy believed that he had reason to believe that the driver was operating a motor vehicle without a valid license and in possession of illegal narcotics. As the driver stepped from the vehicle, he attempted to remove the Mentos container from the door and place it inside his right shorts pocket. Officer Cassidy quickly got control of the driver and retrieved the Mentos container, which contained 19 glassine corner bags believed to be cocaine, crack, and heroin.

The driver/suspect, a 24-year-old Roslindale resident, was immediately placed under arrest and charged with, "Failure to stop for Red Light, Unlicensed Operation of Motor Vehicle, Possession w/Intent to Distribute Class B Substance and Possession w/Intent to Distribute Class A Substance."

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IN THIS SCENARIO?

Due to recent events that occurred outside the City of Quincy, namely the kidnapping and murder of a young woman in South Boston and the recent assault in an elevator in Boston, I decided to add a scenario with my article for a few weeks.

This column is aimed at addressing what citizens could do under a wide range of threatening circumstances. Most Important - There is no perfect answer to each situation, since there are so many variables. Homecoming Sunday Sept. 15 At United Methodist Church

On Sunday, Sept. 15, Quincy Community United Methodist Church, located at 40 Beale St. in Wollaston, will celebrate its annual Homecoming Sunday.

"Regardless of what the calendar may say, for Quincy Community the 'new year' really begins in September," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church. "For the past several years, one of QCUMC's parishioners, Jeannie O'Connor, has created a power point presentation on the past year's events. The video will make its debut at the worship service, which will also include Holy Communion."

After worship, the church will have its traditional Homecoming Hot Dog Roast, held indoors. Hot dogs and beverages will be provided; participants are asked to bring a salad or dessert to share. Everyone is invited to attend.

For more information call the church office at (617) 773-3319.

Bereavement Workshop

The workshop will continue on Tuesday evenings from 6 to 7:30 p.m. through Nov. 26. All are welcome.

Milton/Quincy Congregation Rosh Hashanah Open House

The New Milton/Quincy Congregation, formerly Temple Shalom of Milton, will hold a Prospective Member Open House Thursday, Sept. 5th, beginning with its Tashlich Service at 5 p.m. at Turner's Pond on Central Avenue in Milton.

Tashlich is the symbolic casting away of sins on Rosh Hashanah by throwing bread onto the water. All interested families in the South Shore and Greater Boston area are invited to attend, and can get more information by emailing or calling the congregation office at 617-698-3394.

Following the short Tashlich service, visitors are invited to a Mincha (afternoon) service and Dairy Pot Luck Dinner at a nearby congregant's home, where they will get to meet Rabbi Alfred Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Mollitor, learn about the congregation's programs and activities, and obtain membership information. New visitors who call ahead and attend the Open House may receive complimentary seats for one High Holiday service.

The New Milton/Quincy Congregation is also accepting registrations to its Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School, which meets on Sunday mornings and Tuesday afternoons. For religious school information, call the school office at 617-698-3395.

Quincy High School's 270 solar panels drew the attention of officials who toured the school. The panels, and other green technology such as high-efficiency boilers and a wind turbine, have helped reduce the school's energy consumption by nearly 30 percent. Pictured here are Andrea fortable. Everyone of those holes is allowing air to very slowly and effectively move across our bodies and then be exhausted up above."

Falken (left), the director of the U.S. Education Department's Green Ribbon Schools Program, and Donald Yu, a senior advisor to Education Secretary Arne Duncan.

The school also utilizes solar panels and a wind turbine to help produce green energy. Not only is the use of renewable energy good for the environment, but Pitkin said it also lets students familiarize themselves with the technology.

"We have 40-kilowatt solar voltaic panels on the roof. We have a wind turbine up there as well. The kids have a really good sense of all the future elements that are going to be part of their lives," he said.

Pitkin added that the building is designed to use 30 percent less energy than a comparable school of the same size.

Santoro, who helped plan the new building during his nine-year tenure as principal, explained how the new school had been designed to focus on collaboration between subject areas. Science and math classrooms, for example, now occupy the same wing as many of the technology classrooms such as welding, engineering, automotive, and carpentry — in the old Quincy High the technology classrooms were in a separate building from the rest of the classrooms.

Santoro gave two examples of how the new layout benefits students studying green technologies. In the first example science and culinary students came together to grow food for Quincy High's student run restaurant, and in the second example science and technology students worked to map tides in Quincy Bay.

"Daily our culinary students send up lettuce to the greenhouse," Santoro explained. "The science kids are feeding that lettuce to the worms. The worms are creating soil and the kids are growing things to put back into the restaurant."

"Engineering kids designed buoys," he continued. "The carpentry kids, plumbing kids and the welding kids built them. The science kids put transmitters on top of them. They were released in Quincy Bay and beep back we're they are so that the kids at Quincy High know which way the tide flows in the event there is an oil spill."

After leaving the auditorium Santoro began the 90-minute tour by showing the two dozen people on hand for the tour the school's gym, which includes an indoor track above the gym, a weightlifting room, and smaller exercise room.

Most of the tour was spent in the school's science, technology, and math wing. Santoro explained that each floor was designed to boost interdisciplinary learning locating academic classrooms next to similar technology classes — on the wing's top floor biology and health science classrooms were placed next to each other, for example.

The tour group viewed the roof of the science, technology, and math wing, which houses 270 solar panels on one side and a greenhouse with additional solar panels on the other side. Welding students helped install the solar panels near the greenhouse by building a stand to prop them up off the floor, Santoro explained.

Santoro finished the tour in the school's arts wing. There the group viewed the school's fashion technology classroom, where Yu and other officials looked at pictures of clothing students had made from repurposed material, like used juice boxes and candy wrappers. The group was also shown Quincy High's broadcasting studio and the backstage area of the auditorium. And Cuniff showed the contingent the five energy efficient, natural gas boilers that heat the building.

A Job Well Done

what they might do if in one of these predicaments.

Hopefully, family members, friends and co-workers will talk about this article, go over scenarios and come up with additional ideas. These recommendations are more to consider your options in the unlikely chance that this could happen to you. As a parent, I have reviewed these scenarios with my family. Although disconcerting, failure to educate children (of all ages) with options and actions would be something that no parent would want to experience. So the first point that I want to stress is that there are so many people today walking around with headphones on or with their head down continuously texting, never looking up — totally unaware of their surroundings and unable to recognize a threat. People need to use all their senses and their common sense to recognize a potential threat, even if it is based on a "bad feeling" or when the "hair goes up on the nape of your neck."

Here is the second scenario:

Scenario #2: In a parking lot, a suspect with a gun approaches you and orders you to get into the trunk of his car. Don't give it a second thought — don't do it. Take your chances fleeing, screaming for "help" while running in a "zigzag" pattern to avoid being shot. The suspect has a plan for what he wants to do with/to you. This is the weakest part of the suspect's plan because he doesn't know what you are going to do. A gunshot draws attention. He isn't interested in shooting you as much as he wants to escape, so that he can fulfill his plan elsewhere. If the suspect grabs on to you, fight for your life, biting, scratching, kicking and most importantly, screaming. If you go into the trunk or windowless van, you are putting yourself in extreme danger. It is unlikely that the suspect will let you go because you are an eyewitness against him.

If you end up in the trunk, wait until the car moves so there is the sound of the engine to drown your actions out. If you still have your cell phone, make note of the plate, make and color of the car in order to call "911" with the info. Most cars have a pull cord inside the trunk, but if the suspect is putting you in there, count on the cord being inoperable. Kick out the back taillight and stick your arm out the back taillights and start waving. The driver won't see you but others will. To prevent this from occurring in the first place, be cognizant of your surroundings. If you are at a mall, be aware of parking next to windowless vans that are often used for abduction purposes. Some serial killers attack their victim by pulling them into the van while she is attempting to get into an adjacent car. If you come out to your car in the parking lot and you are concerned that there is a windowless van next to your car, consider asking security to walk you to your car, or wait for other citizens in the area to walk with you. People, by nature, are good and willing to get you to your car safely. As always, once in the car, lock your doors and drive off immediately.

Social Security Help In The Aftermath Of Disaster

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

For some, recent years have been made difficult by natural disasters. Fatal tornadoes in Oklahoma. Massive wildfires and strong earthquakes in Colorado and California. Landslides in Washington. Flooding in Texas, North Carolina and Florida. Hail storms in Tennessee. Hurricane Sandy along the Eastern seaboard. And now, we brace ourselves for yet another hurricane season.

In addition to the catastrophes caused by Mother Nature, there are man-made tragedies, such as the theater shooting in Aurora, Colorado that killed 12 and injured 58; the Sandy Hook Elementary School massacre in Newtown, Connecticut, which left 26 children and staff members dead; and the Boston Marathon explosions, killing three and injuring more than 260.

When disasters strike, despite the immediate response by so many well-intentioned people and organizations, it's often hard to know where to turn. But when it comes to the need for disability and survivors benefits, Social Security is always here to serve those who require our services.

Dependent survivors of wage earners, such as spouses, minor children, and in some cases parents or grandchildren, may be eligible for survivor benefits when the family's provider dies. The sad fact is that about one in eight of today's 20 year-old workers will die before reaching age 67. The good news is about 96 percent of people age 20 to 49 who work have survivors insurance protection if they die and leave behind young children and surviving spouses.

Social Security is here to help people inflicted with disabling conditions as well. In fact, disabled workers account for about 19 percent of all Social Security benefits paid. One in four of today's 20 year-old workers will become disabled before reaching age 67.

Our emergency services reach more than the limited numbers of people who die or become disabled as a result of a tragedy. For example, if you are still receiving a paper check and the delivery of mail is interrupted due to severe weather, in many cases any Social Security office can issue an immediate replacement payment. To avoid this situation, however, switch to electronic payments as required by law. Even if your mailbox — or home — is destroyed due to an emergency, or you are evacuated or displaced, your payment will always arrive on time every time if you receive it electronically.

Sometimes, emergencies cause Social Security offices to close. If you want to check whether your local office is open, the best place to go is to Social Security's Office Closings And Emergency Information page at www.socialsecurity.gov/emergency. This site is a great place to visit before you try to go to an office, especially when severe weather is affecting your area.

The emergency page also offers valuable FEMA advice that can help you prepare for or cope with emergency situations.

While we all hope and pray to avoid disasters, unfortunately, they are bound to occur. The best we can do is to be as prepared as possible to deal with them if they happen. And know that Social Security will be here for you when you need it.

Be prepared. Visit www.socialsecurity.gov/emergency.

Councillors Seek Update On Downtown Project occupied by two now-raised buildings.

Heapes said that soon after Street-Works broke ground on the Merchants Row project in June, they were contacted by owners of buildings on Cottage Avenue and Hancock Street who agreed to sell their properties.

The Cottage Avenue building that will be razed is home to the Granite Rail Tavern, Quincy Jade, and Tully's Café. On Hancock Street, the buildings that will be torn down include a number of businesses such as a gym, coffee shop, and a tax preparation office. Rogers Jewelers on the north end of the block and the Clash of the Ash, Alba Restaurant, and two nail salons on the southern end of the block will not be affected, though the nail salons could leave in the future.

Those businesses that will need to move will likely have until the end of the year to do so, Heapes indicated.

Because Street-Works now controls more land on the block, they will be able to build two six-story buildings on Cottage Avenue instead of the 15-story Kilroy. Parts of the Granite Trust Lofts will also be six-stories tall, instead of five as originally planned. The new plan will allow Street-Works to save on construction costs associated with the project without reducing the overall quality of the buildings.

"The reason we did this is construction costs in Boston are spiking right now. There's a lot of construction going on right now — it's a matter of supply and demand," Heapes said. "You can build six stories cheaper than the high rise."

The expanded footprint will also allow Street-Works to spread out the 186-vehicle underground garage, meaning it can be built on one level instead of two. According to Heapes that means the project can continue largely on its original timeframe.

"With a bigger site, instead of having two levels of parking we can have one level," Heapes said. "That shortens the amount of time we're in the hole. We'll be still be delivering units by 2015."

The larger footprint of the site will also mean more street-level retail space. The original Merchants Row plan called for 35,000 square feet of retail space, while the revised plan has 58,000 square feet. A public courtyard in the center of the block will also be expanded by 50 percent.

The amount of space dedicated to residential use will remain the same. And renovations of the Granite Trust Building at 1400 Hancock Street will still take place as originally envisioned in the plans. The Kilroy and Granite Trust Lofts will retain their names, and the third building will be given its own unique name.

$1.5M Bond Issue For QHS Site Landscaping Before Council

A bond to pay for landscaping the site of the old Quincy High School will be on the agenda when the City Council returns from its summer recess Sept. 3.

The council authorized a $1 million bond to pay costs associated with the demolition in June, but cut $1.5 from that bond that would've paid for landscaping because no plans for the site were submitted — once the old school is torn down it will be converted into green space, with some parking.

Old QHS: Only Memories Remain

DEMOLITION CREWS prepare to begin razing the old Quincy High School building last Tuesday.

BY WEDNESDAY afternoon, a portion of the Coddington Street landmark was already down.

MOST OF THE school building- which opened in 1924 - was reduced to rubble by Thursday evening.

THE FINAL SECTION of the old high school came down Saturday afternoon. In the background is the new QHS.

Nearly 90 Years,

Landmark Demolished*

By SCOTT JACKSON

Eighty-nine years after it opened, the old Quincy High School met its demise at the hands of a demolition crew, who took four days to reduce the 136,000 square-foot building to a pile of bricks and twisted metal.

A demolition crew from NASDI began tearing down the building last Wednesday (Aug. 28), using an excavator to raze the part of the school nearest Coddington Street in two days. The fourth day - Saturday, Aug. 31 - was spent taking down the part of the old high school that abuts the new one.

A crowd gathered on Coddington Street as demolition began. Many of those who were present attended the school. Among those on hand was Elaine Nilsen Caliri, a 1960 Quincy High graduate, who was saddened to see her alma mater be torn down.

"It's so sad to see it come down where it's been there for so long and it's sort of a historical building," Caliri said. "I have a lot of memories going back - the good friends that we had. One of my good friends that moved away was up over the weekend. I brought her by to show her."

Caliri wasn't the only alumnus who felt that way.

"We were the last class to leave and have a 50th reunion," said 1963 Quincy High graduate Jean Giagrande. "It's very sad. We had a lot of great memories and a lot of marriages came out of our class that are still together."

"This is so sad," Pat Walsh-Matterazzo, a 1966 graduate, added. "We had a lot of great memories in there. A lot of great friendships came out of there that we still have."

The city had received permission to tear down the building earlier in August, and some of the school's graduates stopped by the school daily since then to see when demolition would begin.

"I've been coming by here everyday for two weeks waiting for it," said Donna Ciardi Ames, a 1967 Quincy High graduate. "It's very sad, I have a lot of memories."

"That's where my home-room was- on the first floor right where they're working now," Ames added, referring to the school's westernmost portion, where demolition began.

Other graduates who stopped by, including 1969 alumnus John Pope, hoped to bring back mementos from the school they attended.

"It's heartbreaking. You get your learner's permit,

Gardeners' Mission: Eliminate Black Swallow-Wort Pods

By PAT ARTIS

Throughout the years, members of the Wollaston Garden Club and other city gardeners have been in a private war to eliminate invasive plants from their gardens.

These plants threaten bird and butterfly populations and other native plant communities, and cost city governments millions of dollars in plant loss and for removal.

This summer, along with the usual suspects like Oriental Bittersweet, Japanese Knotweed, and Garlic Mustard, local gardeners are dealing with a bumper crop of Black Swallow-wort.

Black Swallow-wort (Cynanchum nigrum), also called "the dog strangling vine" can be found in well-maintained gardens, climbing chain-link fences, or mounding over border vegetation in all parts of Quincy. It is really difficult to weed out completely because its white, fleshy tentacles break off easily, but leave an extensive root system untouched.

However, by extremely persistent weeding, and digging out the root rhizome, the gardener can eventually be successful. Gardeners should wear gloves when pulling pods or digging up weeds to avoid potential skin irritation. Black swallow-wort weeds should not be thrown into a compost pile or put into yard-waste bags or barrels, but placed in tied plastic bags and put in the trash for incineration; their stoloniferous roots will re-sprout and seeds will not be destroyed in the composting process.

BLACK SWALLOW-WORT, also called the "dog strangling vine," found along the Wendell Avenue fence side of Sailors' Home Pond in Wollaston.

Citizens are reminded to compost all other yard waste in the regular yard waste collections. For more information about black swallow-wort go to <http://www.nps.gov/plants/alien/fact/cyclol.htm>.

According to Quincy

SEEDS ARE DISPERSED by wind. Depending on how much sun they receive, pods will be opening from now into the fall. These plants threaten bird and butterfly populations and other native plant communities.

resident, Kathy Wagner, who gave out information about the invasive at the main branch of the Thomas Crane Library Aug. 24: "Many local gardeners have no idea what they are dealing with when they first find it in their gardens; its shiny green leaves come in pairs and it even sports a small purple star-shaped flower in July.

"Over a few seasons they discover it has taken over the garden, quickly winding around fences and shrubs, strangling out other plant species and eventually displacing them permanently. At this time of year it has green pods, green-bean like in appearance; the pods are beginning to open now and the winds will soon release from each pod hundreds of seeds, beginning a whole new generation of plants."

Citizens should remove the green seed pods now, before they turn brown, preventing the next generation from sprouting. The City of Cambridge has organized neighborhood "Pod Patrols" to rid their community of this invasive weed, with the slogan "Spread the Word... Not the Weed."

Diane Hill, Youth Chair of the Wollaston Garden Club, recently led some Lincoln-Hancock students on a "pod patrol" to collect pods from along a fence in their school yard. Some enterprising Horticulture students from Quincy High School, like Alan Tran, at atranreveolver@gmail.com have been working, for a fee, as gardener's helpers, removing the pervasive "dog-strangler" weeds from private gardens.

Tran says to really get rid of the invasive plant "you have to dig deep, remove the primary root, and keep weeding until it's gone."

Pat Artis is a past president of Wollaston Garden Club, trained in identification of MA Invasive Species, and a Gardening Consultant of the National Garden Clubs, Inc.

ONE OF THE FOUR Bethany Church Pinnacles (left foreground) was struck by lightning Sunday morning around 9:55 a.m., just prior to the start of the 10 a.m. worship service.

There were about 100 people in the church when the incident occurred. No one was hurt and the service was cancelled.

Bethany Church Pinnacle Struck By Lightning

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Bethany Congregational Church, 18 Spear St., was closed for three days after lightning struck one of the four pinnacles on the bell tower sending chunks of debris crashing 120 feet to the ground this past Sunday.

"This is the second time lightning has struck in the 17 years that I have been here," said Rev. Bill Harding. "We don't know the extent of the damage yet but it is not as bad as the July 2000 incident."

This was the second time in 13 years that the church's bell tower was hit by lightning. Back in July 2000 a bolt of lightning knocked off one of the four gargoyles and a pinnacle causing over $100,000 in damage. In the July incident a 600-pound chunk of concrete crashed down inside the church into the classrooms of the Montessori School for Early Learning, leaving a four-foot by four-foot hole in the roof above. The damage extended to the floor below, which housed the Quincy Teen Mothers program. Fortunately, no one was hurt during the July 2000 occurrence.

Sunday's lightning strike occurred a few minutes before the start of the regular worship service.

"It was around 9:55 a.m. just before service was about to start. We had about 100 people in the church plus kids at the time of the strike," Harding said on Tuesday. "We heard a loud bang, the building shook and the windows cracked. We have about 10 holes in the roof and pieces of debris went as far as the high school and library. It is a blessing that most of it came down on the handicap ramp, and by the grace of God no one got hurt."

There's never been a better time to buy a first home

Three reasons why:

- 1) Rates are at all-time lows – a huge advantage for first-time homebuyers. Your money goes further. And you get to lock in historically-low monthly mortgage payments.
- 2) The eastern Massachusetts real estate market tends to be resilient. Prices here have stabilized...or are starting to move up. Waiting now could cost you later.
- 3) With Colonial Federal's First-Time Homebuyer Program, you get: > A reduced downpayment with no PMI required > A mortgage with a competitive rate > You work one-to-one with our responsive lenders, professionals who want to help you get into your first home > All from a local neighborhood bank specializing in helping people buy homes since 1889.

This is an outstanding opportunity – most likely once-in-a-lifetime – for first-time homebuyers. Is that you...or someone you know? Come see us. Or call VP/Retail Lending Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Sept. 22, 1554, Spanish explorer Francisco Vasquez Coronado, his health badly deteriorated from injuries and the toll of his strenuous travels, dies. Coronado explored much of the southwestern United States, but never found the fabled Seven Cities of Gold he had sought for decades, and died believing that he had been a shameful failure.

- On Sept. 21, 1780, during the American Revolution, American Gen. Benedict Arnold meets with British Major John Andre to discuss handing over West Point to the British, in return for money and a high position in the British army. The plot was foiled, and Arnold, a former American hero, became synonymous with the word "traitor."

- On Sept. 19, 1827, after a duel turns into an all-out brawl, Jim Bowie kills a banker in Alexandria, La., with an early version of his famous Bowie knife. The actual inventor of the Bowie knife, however, was probably not Jim Bowie, but rather his equally belligerent brother, Rezin Bowie.

- On Sept. 16, 1893, the largest land run in history begins with more than 100,000 people pouring into the Cherokee Strip of Oklahoma to claim valuable land that had once belonged to Native Americans. With a single shot from a pistol, the mad dash began.

- On Sept. 20, 1960, California hot rodder Mickey Thompson takes another shot at the world land-speed record. Although he only managed to coax his streamlined Challenger up to about 378 mph on his first run and 368 mph on the second, his speedy trips across the Bonneville Salt Flats won worldwide fame for the car and its driver.

- On Sept. 18, 1974, actress Doris Day, one of the biggest box office draws of the 1950s and '60s, wins a $22.8 million malpractice suit against her former lawyer. After the death of her third husband, Martin Melcher, in 1968, she discovered that her $20 million in life savings had disappeared.

- On Sept. 17, 1983, 20-year-old Vanessa Williams becomes the first black to win the Miss America crown. Williams later launched a successful singing and acting career, including a featured role on the hit television sitcom "Ugly Betty."

Bellotti Treasurer Run Looks Doubtful

The door isn't closed but it appears Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti will not be a candidate for state treasurer next fall.

"I haven't rule it out," Bellotti said in a recent interview. "It's not an easy decision because of family considerations and professional considerations but it's coming down to really a family situation and a personal decision and how it will impact my family."

Bellotti and his wife Gayle have three children. The oldest, age 18, is beginning her freshman year in college this fall. Their other children are age 16 and 10.

Running for a state-wide office requires a lot of time away from home building coalitions of support in all regions of the Bay State.

Bellotti says he's given a possible run for state treasurer strong consideration this summer. The 50-year-old expects to make a final decision - in or out - later this fall and perhaps as early as this month.

A former state representative, Bellotti has served as Norfolk County sheriff since 1999.

Speculation about a Bellotti bid for state treasurer has been swirling since current State Treasurer Steve Grossman announced in July he will seek the Democratic nomination for governor in 2014.

Will Bellotti be among the hopefuls seeking an open state treasurer seat?

"On a scale of one to 10 - with 10 meaning I'm definitely going to run - I'd say I'm a three or four," Bellotti says.

He's already surveyed the political landscape and feasibility of a state treasurer run. He says he can put together an organization, raise the money needed to compete with other candidates and has a strong base of support.

"Will I be able to be viable and be a strong candidate knowing who may be in the race? Yes," he says.

However, family considerations are weighing strongly on his decision to make that bid.

"Is this something I want to be myself and my family through? I have not closed the door on it but those considerations are weighing heavily on it right now," says the well-known Quincy Democrat who has not lost a political race since winning a state representative term in 1992.

A Bellotti for State Treasurer campaign would certainly spice up the local political scene.

While the last few city elections have been political buffets with many contested races - including some hard-hitting campaigns for mayor - this fall's municipal ballot has only a few table scraps for election junkies (four candidates for three school committee seats and two vying for Ward 4 councillor.)

Next year's state election could also be quiet in these parts unless one of the state legislators representing Quincy decides to vacate their seat. It doesn't appear, right now anyway, that that's going to happen.

Bellotti would certainly be considered a top-notch candidate if he decides to run for state treasurer. He has the name recognition, fundraising ability and political resume to make a serious run.

Bellotti is the son of former Massachusetts lieutenant governor and attorney general Francis X. Bellotti. As lieutenant governor, his father successfully defeated sitting governor Endicott Peabody for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1964 but bowed in the final election to Republican John Volpe. The elder Bellotti made a triumphant return at the ballot box in 1974, winning the first of his three terms as attorney general.

Mike Bellotti agrees there is a perceived expectation that because his father was a state-wide office holder, he too would someday try to make that same political leap.

But he says his father is not pushing him to run state-wide.

"My father deep down I know he would enjoy the ride. I think my father would be enthusiastic and animated over a state-wide effort on my part and he would be involved. But he hasn't encouraged me and he's not pushing me."

"He's not one to push. He challenges us to make up our own minds," Mike says.

A state-wide run for office would also require a candidate who has the ability to raise sufficient campaign cash.

Mike Bellotti is a proven fundraiser.

He raised more than a half million dollars when he unseated Jack Flood in the Norfolk County sheriff race in 1998. Flood - a former Republican state legislator - had been appointed sheriff by Gov. William Weld to fill the unexpired term of the late Clifford Marshall. Bellotti was re-elected without opposition in 2004 and easily turned aside a challenge from a token Republican opponent in 2010.

Before running for sheriff, Bellotti was elected state representative in the First Norfolk District in 1992. He was re-elected twice and served six years before making his successful bid for sheriff in 1998.

Bellotti doesn't have to risk his sheriff seat if he decides to run for state treasurer. His current sixth-year term is not up until 2016. He says he will definitely run again for sheriff in 2016 unless he is elected state treasurer next year.

Bellotti has flirted with the idea of running for a state-wide office before.

In 2002, he geared up for a run for secretary of state when Bill Galvin announced he'd run for the Democratic nomination for governor. But Galvin backed out of the race when the field grew crowded with other candidates including State Senate President Thomas Birmingham and State Treasurer Shannon O'Brien, the eventual nominee. She lost to Republican Mitt Romney.

"I was raising money, I was putting a field together. I was in," Bellotti says of that brief campaign for secretary of state. In one month, he had raised $150,000 in campaign funds.

Bellotti appeared to have a clear shot at the Democratic nomination. And, no Republican opponent had appeared on the horizon, either.

But then Galvin bowed out and Bellotti stayed put.

Now, about a dozen years later, Mike Bellotti is faced with another decision:

Run for state treasurer or sit this one out and wait for another political opportunity to surface in the future.

"The door is not closed but more and more the family considerations are becoming a greater factor than can I win factor," Bellotti says. "The assessment is no longer about field, money or message. It's about what does this really mean to the family," he says.

Stay tuned.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1967 postcard view of Quincy Square looking north on Hancock Street. On the left the Corvette is parking outside the Thom McAn Shoe Store. Across Granite Street the business block included the Claus Gelotte camera store and the billboard was on the Norfolk County Trust building originally built for the Mount Wollaston Bank. These buildings have been replaced by the Della Chiesa Family Memorial Plaza that is at the base of today's Stop & Shop headquarters building. In the center of the old Quincy Savings Bank Building is now home to several businesses including The Quincy Sun. On the right was the newly opened Pewter

Pot Muffin House previously the Colonial Restaurant. That building, including the Claffin News Stand, was recently demolished to make way for the Granite Trust Lofts residential condominium building in the new Merchants Row. Next to Claffin's was the Boston Gas Company, and out of sight around the corner is Rogers Jewelry. Rogers is the only store in this general area at the time of this picture that is still in business. The postcard was published by the Merrimack Post Card Company of Vermont. Nash Retires After 52 Years

By SCOTT JACKSON

Judge Kenneth L. Nash, presiding justice at the Quincy District Courthouse, retired following 52 years as a jurist.

A graduate of Brown University and Boston University's law school, Nash played major league baseball for the Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Cardinals prior to launching his political career. Between 1913 and 1918 he served as a state representative and then state senator.

He left the state senate in 1918, having been appointed a special justice at the Quincy courthouse by Gov. Samuel McCall at the age of 30. In 1933 Nash was named presiding justice at the courthouse by Gov. Joseph B. Ely.

A lifelong Weymouth resident, Nash was considered the most esteemed judge in Massachusetts. That esteem was evident in 1963 when Gov. Endicott Peabody, a Democrat, appointed Nash, a Republican, as the first chief justice of the state's 72 district courts.

As Nash left the bench speculation over who would be appointed his successor began to mount.

Among those reportedly being considered for the position were Wollaston resident Dennis F. Ryan, the court's clerk for the past 17 years; Braintree attorney Edward H. Libertine; former Quincy Bar Association President Stephen T. Keefe, Jr.; and Christopher Armstrong, chief legal counsel to Gov. Francis W. Sargent.

Sargent, a Republican, was expected to announce the appointment following November's gubernatorial election. Of those reportedly being considered for the position, all were Republicans except for Ryan, a Democrat.

Rep. Joseph E. Brett told The Sun that he backed Ryan for the position in a letter to the governor. Brett said the Sargent responded to his request, saying he would give Ryan "careful consideration." The South Shore Constables Association also wrote to the governor, urging him to appoint Ryan.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT TOPS 17,000

Quincy Public Schools expected a record number of students when the new school year started Sept. 9.

School enrollment for the previous school year was 16,948, and officials expected there would be at least 200 more than that in the new school year, putting the total around 17,150.

In addition to the record number of students, 875 classroom teachers would be reporting to work in the new school year. That total included 127 new teachers hired over the summer.

POINT FARM FLOURISHES

Anthony Panarelli didn't stop working after retiring from the Fore River Shipyard. Instead he found a new hobby, creating a 90-foot by 60-foot 'farm' at his home on Atherton Street, less than a half mile from the hustle and bustle of Quincy Square.

The farm included 235 tomato plants on the property, some of them more than six feet tall. The average yield for each tomato plant was a half-bushel.

The farm also included a dozen other crops including corn, potatoes, onions, scallions, green and red peppers, chichory, escarole, Swiss chard, beets, cucumbers, squash, and even fig trees.

Panarelli had been gardening as a hobby while working at the shipyard, but in his retirement it became a fulltime job for him.

"Three years ago I put in a load of manure - nothing since, no fertilizers," Panarelli said. "I raise the tomatoes from my own seeds - tomatoes dried in the sun. And I weed all the time."

"He takes care of it like a baby," Panarelli's wife added.

Quiz Show Team Deserves Billboard Recognition

Late in the past school year, the team from North Quincy High School won first place in the WGBH High School Quiz Show.

What a great accomplishment!

Many of us congratulate that team, and the school for quite a high achievement. And I'm hoping the City of Quincy would also honor the team and the school by having this achievement advertised on a billboard situated at the foot of the Neponset Bridge, Quincy side, for this entire school year.

In the past, the city has honored past high school sport teams for high accomplishments. So, why not for ACADEMIC, too?

Come on, Mayor and City Council, show your school spirit!

Commends Mayor On Murphy, Grazioso Appointments

I would like to congratulate Mayor Thomas Koch for his two recent appointments. Helen Murphy as Head of Human Resources and Alfred Grazioso as Director of Operations. They are both two outstanding citizens of the City of Quincy and I wish them both the very best in their new positions.

Helen Murphy was my legal secretary in my law office before she decided to make a career with the City of Quincy. She has done an outstanding job as Director of Operations.

It is interesting to note that I was the Ward 5 city councillor and later Warren Powers also become Ward 5 city councillor. Warren Powers made a career working for me when I was district attorney.

At a campaign meeting in my law office, he met Holly

Grazioso and they married. They have been married for many years and she is the sister of Alfred Grazioso.

The Graziosos were neighbors of mine for many years on Warren Avenue and when I was elected district attorney, Alfred Grazioso, Sr. asked me if I would give his son, Kenny Grazioso, a job in the District Attorney's office. He came to work for me and did an excellent job.

Steve McGrath, who was also the Ward 5 city councillor, was my next door neighbor on Warren Avenue and we became very good friends and I will miss him dearly.

Helen Murphy will have to do a very good job to replace my next door neighbor, but I am sure she will do an excellent job for the City of Quincy.

I wish them both well in their new positions.

"This year's Harry Potter celebration will be held on Saturday, Oct. 26, and will be based on the creatures of the Forbidden Forest and the Black Lake," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, Pastor of Quincy Community United Methodist Church.

The doors will open at 1 p.m. and the event will begin at 1:30 p.m. Everyone will once again have the opportunity to be chosen by a 'magic wand,' to be part of the Sorting Ceremony, and to share in the Great Feast. However, the 'classes' and other activities will be brand new.

The annual event is so popular that it has sold out every year—sometimes several weeks prior to the day. Reservations are required. To avoid disappointment, everyone is strongly encouraged to make their reservations early by calling the 'Harry Potter Hotline' at (617) 773-6854. To help make the registration process faster, all tickets purchased by Oct. 15th are $6 per person and $20 for a family of four. For those paying at the door or those who send in their payment later than Oct. 15th, the cost is $8 per person and $25 for a family of four. In either case, children under three are free. All children must be accompanied by an adult. Hogwarts style costumes are encouraged, but not required.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Rita's Fish Cakes Delux

When we get together down the Cape, we always bring along either something already cooked or something to throw on the grill.

My daughter Rita brought her delicious fish cakes and after heating them in a warming oven, we were ready to enjoy them.

FISH CAKES

- 1 ½ pounds cod (or a favorite fish)
- ½ cup white wine
- 1 small onion and another for sautéing
- 1 stalk of celery
- 2 cloves garlic
- 3 russet potatoes (boiled and mashed)
- 1 egg
- Lemon slices for serving
- 1-tablespoon fresh parsley
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil

First poach the fish in the white wine, the sliced onion and garlic. When cooled, flake and place in a bowl. Sauté a small onion and a stalk of celery until tender. Add to the flakes. Rita put the potatoes in a ricer for a smoother consistency. Add the beaten egg and the potatoes until blended.

FOR THE COATING

- 1 egg
- 1 cup of flour
- ½ cup plain breadcrumbs (mix together with the corn flake crumbs)
- ½ cup corn flake crumbs

After the fish is well mixed, form them into a patty, and then coat them in the flour, egg and breadcrumb and corn flake mixture.

Sauté in the hot oil for a few minutes on each side until they are golden brown. Place in a 400-degree oven until crispy. Serve with lemon wedges or a favorite topping.

All-Purpose Muffins

This recipe is for an all-purpose muffin so that you can be creative and use whatever fruits, nuts or berries at hand. You don't have to be an experienced baker to make them and it's one of the easiest recipes I've ever tried.

I made them with blueberries because they are so plentiful this time of year.

ALL-PURPOSE MUFFINS

- 2 cups flour
- ½ cup sugar
- 1-tablespoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup milk (I used 1%)
- 1/3-cup vegetable or coconut oil (I used coconut oil)
- 1 large egg, lightly beaten

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease a 12-cup muffin tin, or line with baking cups. I like the cups, they are easier to remove and serve.

In a large bowl, combine the flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Then blend together the milk, oil and egg. Add to the dry mixture with a fork just until moist.

Now gently stir in the fruits and nuts or any of the following.

If you are using the blueberries, add one cup along with a teaspoon of lemon zest.

If using cranberries, add one cup of fresh or dried cranberries with one teaspoon orange zest. If using nuts, add 1/4 cup of pecan or walnut pieces.

Bake for 25 to 30 minutes

INTERFAITH SOCIAL SERVICES Executive Director Rick Doane accepts a donation of fresh vegetables from Joe Reardon and John Keohane of Keohane Funeral Home. The vegetables were grown by Scott Whittemore of the Keohane staff in a garden at their Quincy location.

Harvest Helpers Seek Garden Surplus To Help Needy Families

"What am I going to do with all of these tomatoes and cucumbers?"

Many backyard gardeners ask themselves this question every September. Some gardeners freeze them. Others offer a few to neighbors.

Now there is another option — donate them to families in need through Harvest Helpers.

Harvest Helpers, a partnership between Interfaith Social Services and Keohane Funeral Home is the first program of its kind in Massachusetts.

In the spring, the program offered free plants to local residents who volunteered to grow them for Interfaith Social Services' food pantry. Those vegetables they have grown and been delivered to families served by the food pantry.

Harvest Helpers is now asking the wider community for help in providing fresh fruits and vegetables to hungry South Shore residents.

"Last year over 18,000 hungry people came to our food pantry looking for assistance," said Interfaith's Executive Director, Rick Doane. "We distributed 593,000 pounds of food to families in need throughout the South Shore, we rely on support from the community to keep up with the demand. Keohane Funeral Home, our Harvest Helpers partner, generously donated plants so that volunteers could grow a good supply of fresh produce for our clients."

"As the growing season winds down, we hope that other gardeners will choose to participate in Harvest Helpers by donating some of their garden surplus to their neighbors who are struggling to make ends meet."

"We know from the gardens behind our funeral home and next to Interfaith Social Services that they can produce," said funeral home

Co-President John Keohane. "We hope that our neighbors with extra fruits and vegetables will put them to good use by donating them to the food pantry."

"Several people, including some of our clients have already come by with donations from their gardens," said Doane. "They know that it may otherwise go to waste and feel that giving it to the food pantry is helping to give back to the community."

Donations are accepted at Interfaith Social Services, 105 Adams St., Quincy and Keohane Funeral Home 785 Hancock St. in Quincy between 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

For more information or to schedule a different time for a donation, contact Interfaith Social Services at 617-773-6203, rdoane@interfaithsocialservices.org or Keohane Funeral Home 617-773-3551, info@keohane.com.

Farmers' Market Future Also Topic Of Discussion

Downtown Project, Adams Green Updates On Council Agenda

By SCOTT JACKSON

The redevelopment of downtown Quincy was the center of attention when the City Council returned from its summer recess Tuesday night.

Councillors Doug Gutro and Brian Palmucci submitted a resolution calling for an update on the Quincy Farmers Market, which uses the Hancock Lot. Gutro, chairman of the council's downtown committee, said the resolution was filed in part to know if the market has lost any parking spaces as a result of the Merchants Row construction. About half the cars that once parked in the 76-car lot at the corner of Chestnut Street and Cottage Avenue have been diverted to the Hancock Lot.

"I will be interested to find out if they've been impacted by the Merchants Row construction," Gutro said in a phone interview prior to Tuesday's meeting.

As the Quincy Center project progresses, the farmers market will need to move out of the Hancock Lot because that area is slated to be developed. The current plan is for the farmers market to have a new home in the Cliveden Street area once that portion of the project is completed. In their resolution, Gutro and Palmucci call for an update on plans to temporarily relocate the market after the Hancock Lot closes and before it can move to the Cliveden Street area.

"As a city we have to provide some certitude they will have a temporary home and then a permanent one," Gutro said. "We want to know how long they will be in the Hancock Lot and what's plan B."

As previously reported, Councillors Gutro and Palmucci also filed a resolution seeking a meeting with Twining Properties executives. Twining joined Street-Works as a partner in the $1.6 billion project in August, replacing the Beal Companies. Gutro and Palmucci wanted to know if the change in partners would mean a change to project's planned mix of commercial, retail, and residential space, and also review changes to the Merchants Row component of the project.

A separate resolution filed by Gutro seeks an update on the Adams Green project, one of three improvements the city must undertake as part of downtown redevelopment. The project will create a new park between City Hall and the United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents), which will require the closure of the portion of Hancock Street between the buildings.

As part of the project, numerous streets in the area will be upgraded. Those transportation improvements, being funded by a $6 million federal earmark, will be overseen by the state Department of Transportation (MassDOT). MassDOT opened the project up to bids in July, and the bids were scheduled to close Aug 27. Gutro is seeking an update on both the construction timeline and the design of the new park.

"When are we going to have the loss of parking? When will Hancock close? What's the status of the design of the park?" Gutro said.

Gutro is also seeking an update on plans for the Quincy Center MBTA station. The station is not part of $1.6 billion downtown project, but the need to redevelop the facility came to the forefront in July 2012 when the station's 870-car garage was closed because of structural concerns. Earlier this summer, the city put out a request for qualifications (RFQ) to design a new mixed-use facility that would sit over the train station.

That mixed-use facility would include 250,000 square feet dedicated to a new court facility, which would replace the existing courthouse on the Dennis F. Ryan Parkway. Also included are 100,000 square feet of office space, part of which would be allocated to the National Park Service, as well as ground-level retail space and a parking facility.

"I think this is the administration being proactive and making sure we have the right people on board," Gutro said. "I just want some clarity."

New benches (pictured) and fences were donated by Twin River Technology, and the diamond was redesigned to accommodate a Pony League-sized field. Fore River Field Facelift

Expanded Baseball Diamond, New Bench Areas

By SCOTT JACKSON

The baseball field at Quincy Point's Fore River Field got a major facelift this summer, including an expanded diamond and new bench areas.

The baseball diamond, named for Ray Dunn, was expanded earlier this summer from Little League-sized dimensions to larger Pony League dimensions. The change means the pitcher's mound at the field is now 50 feet away from home plate, as opposed to 46 feet, according to Chris Cassani, the executive director of the city's Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments.

"The diamond was redesigned, repointed - we have a Pony League sized pitcher's mound. Pony League is sort of the halfway point between Little League and a full-sized diamond," Cassani said. "There will be 11 and 12 year old kids playing Pony League over here."

The city spent about $10,000 to upgrade the field, which was approved by the City Council in April as part of a $40,000 appropriation to the Park Department. The diamond at Fore River Field is the only Pony League-sized diamond in Quincy.

Previously, Pony League teams played at Faxon Park, using a portable mound on a softball diamond.

In addition to the new dimensions the baseball diamond also has new bench areas, including new aluminum benches with fencing in front to protect players. Twin River Technology, a chemical production company located at 780 Washington St., purchased the new benches and fences as part of a $5,000 donation to the city for restoring the field.

The following children's and family programs are scheduled at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

International Dot Day

Sunday, Sept. 15th is International Dot Day, a celebration of the book The Dot by Peter Reynolds and the power of creativity. We have had too many ideas to limit our celebration to just one day so children of all ages are invited to celebrate circles and dots with us all month long.

As you enter the library from the parking lot take a few minutes to read The Dot, posted on the children's room windows, as you walk along the covered walkway.

Beginning Tuesday, Sept. 3rd stop by the children's room to participate in the 100 Dot Project. Each person is invited to decorate and sign 1 of 100 cardboard dots which we will then use to create a giant 3 dimensional dot sculpture.

Saturday, Sept. 7th stop by the children's room any time from 10 a.m. to noon to make your very own dot wreath.

Monday, Sept. 9th from 2 to 4 p.m. stop by the children's room and create your own framed piece of circle art.

Monday, Sept. 16th from 2 to 4 p.m. stop by the children's room and create a craft. This will be a grab bag style program featuring a number of dot and circle crafts. Limit one craft per child.

Monday, Sept. 23rd from 2 to 4 p.m. stop by the children's room and try your hand at a dot to dot puzzle or play a dot game.

Create a framed masterpiece, do a dot to dot puzzle and help decorate our fall tree with colored circles when you visit the Adams Shore Branch in September.

All month long the North Quincy Branch will feature a library-size connect the dots quest and a drop in art project to see what you can create with 10 black dots.

Do a connect the dots puzzle and add your fingerprints to a giant dot when you visit the Wollaston Branch in this month. We will be using these dots to create an art installation.

We will conclude our celebration of The Dot and begin our fall storytimes with two Dots and Spots storytimes for children ages 3-5, Friday, Sept. 27th at 10 a.m. in the main library children's room and Monday, Sept. 30th at 10 a.m. at the North Quincy branch. A Monthly Chronicle of the Adams Family

In Their Own Words

By KATHLEEN SULLIVAN-MORAN

August marked the 200th anniversary of Abigail "Nabby" Adams Smith's death - John and Abigail Adams' first born child - at the age of 48. The popular 2008 HBO miniseries, John Adams, portrayed her brave battle with breast cancer and death. Surrounded by her parents, husband, and children, Nabby died at Peace field in Quincy, on Aug. 15, 1813, and was buried in the Adams Family tomb in Hancock Cemetery. Today, however, let's reflect on happier times for Nabby.

In June of 1784, Nabby traveled with her mother, Abigail, to meet John and John Quincy Adams in Europe. The family was reunited after almost five years of separation due to distance and war and initially resided in the Auteuil section of Paris. When John Adams was appointed the first American Minister to the Court of St. James in 1785, the family moved across the English Channel and settled in Grosvenor Square, London. In late spring of 1785, eighteen-year-old John Quincy Adams returned to America to begin his studies at Harvard College; this separation led to a delightful and charming correspondence between the siblings.

The following are excerpts of letters written by Nabby to John Quincy, from July to September, 1785.

London Grosvenor Square July 4th 1785

Every day, hour, and minute, your absence mon chere frere, pains me more and more... I would walk, my Brother is gone. I would ride, my Brother is gone. I would retire to my chamber. Alas, I meet him not there, I would meet him in his apartment-but where is it? I would set to my work, and he would read to me-but alas, this is Passed...I only wish for you and should esteem myself happy.

August 11th

Before you receive this Letter, I suppose you will have arrived in Boston, been received by all our Friends... And now permit a sister who feels herself, greatly interested in every event in which you may be engage, to inquire how you are pleased and gratified whether content and happy... Tell me all that I entitled to know of what passes within your Mind...

Tell me also, if I am too particular in writing you... whether you find yourself informed by my scribbling of things which you wish to know...

I want to know, whether your disposition for rambling has left you. If it has, I believe you bequeathed it to me...

Thursday August the 11th, 1785

...there is an opportunity to convey Letters tomorrow to Boston...I must wish you Health happiness and peace and hasten to subscribe myself your affectionate sister A Adams

Thursday (September 21, 1785)

Being the Anniversary of His Majesty's Coronation we all went to Court...This is such a ridiculous ceremony that I always feel provoked...to see so many People, waiting in expectation to be spoken to by the Royal Family, and eagerly solicitous for their Smiles, I like the King better than the Queen...She does not forgive us. Peace be with her. I thank Heaven, that I am not dependent upon her frowns or smiles.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SENSITIVITY TRAINING

When a cold drink causes tooth pain, the root structure of one or more teeth may be overly exposed. If so, the focus should be on the "dentin" layer, which lies beneath the enamel and contains millions of tiny tubules connected to nerve endings. Gum recession and enamel erosion lay bare this sensitive tissue, which is usually protected by enamel and gums. Even hard brushing can wear away gum tissue to the point where dentin tubules are exposed to hot and cold drinks. Dentin can also become irritated by the overuse of tooth-whitening agents at home. In any case, the dentist can help reduce sensitivity by sealing exposed dentin and eliminating the cause(s) of dentin exposure. Tooth pain can be a rather huge pain and irritation. It can completely dull your thinking, make your entire face feel painful, and can also keep you from eating properly. We are a highly qualified and experienced team of oral health care professionals. We will discuss all of your options with you. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where our entire staff is thoroughly trained, skilled and sensitive to your needs. Call us today at 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

Rev. Doug Gray New Pastor At First Church Of Squantum

'My Goal Is To Help This Church Be Healthy Because Healthier Churches Grow'

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

For Rev. Doug Gray, the new pastor of the First Church of Squantum, it was the people and the opportunity he saw to help the church that encouraged him to take the position as its new pastor.

"These people and what God's getting ready to do is what drew me here. The people are so funny and they're so much fun and truly unique individuals and they love us being who we are too. One of the things that I look for in a church, before I move, is for the wave that God is preparing for them.

"Every time God gets ready to do something you can feel the surge like the wave beginning, and so like a good surfer I want to be on the wave when it goes and there is a great wave starting with this little church. It has really big dreams," said Pastor Gray.

"Part of the wave I see is the Squantum community is beginning to turn over. There are younger families moving into the area, it's becoming even more of a bedroom community for Boston proper and all those people need folks to help them raise their kids and become better people. All those people have needs, some of which they may not know about, and I think this church is poised to be in the right place at the right time to do all the right things.

"One of the things that's really cool about this church, that drew us in, it's a real neighborhood church. It's part of the heart of the community here in Squantum. It's one of the hubs around which things, and people, and groups happen. That's a great mission, and we're in just the right place with just the right people to help that happen."

Pastor Gray has been involved in ministry since 1988 and became ordained in 1994, spending the last 11 years at a church in Wisconsin before moving to Quincy at the end of July. Before being called to be a pastor, Gray went to college for chemistry and became a chemist in Los Angeles.

FIRST CHURCH of Squantum's new pastor, Rev. Doug Gray, likes to play the guitar and sing during worship. He learned to play on his own so he would be able to play during worship.

"I thought I was going to be a high school chemistry teacher. I was a chemistry major in college. I spent a year working as a chemist in L.A. and I was miserable. I was unhappier that year than I have been in my whole life.

"When I finally set aside my plan and started being open to what God wanted I realized I was missing people being locked up in a lab all day. It's not me. I'm way too exuberant for that," said Gray.

"Sometimes when I don't listen to God whispering, then God's voice gets louder, and if I'm still not listening then I get hit with something. The two-by-four that hit me, that time, was when my grandfather who was my spiritual mentor, was killed by some folks driving drunk. I looked at what I was doing and thought is this really good news, is this all God has in mind for me? I had a sense of God asking me, the same question that Jesus asked Peter, which was 'do you love me?'

"I had all of these reasons for not being a minister yet; I'm not wise enough, I'm 20 something what do I know, what am I suppose to say to an 80 something who has walked with God for 60 years, and I've walked with God for 10, what do I say?

"I had a sense of God just asking the question again 'do you love me?' I had a sense of God saying to me 'I'm wise enough for both of us.' I always thought that I might be one some day, but I had a sense that day was now. God wasn't interested in all those excuses, so 'do you love me' and if my answer was yes and I knew this is what he wanted, then why not? Unlike being a plumber or an electrician, or being a lawyer or doctor, it's not a family business. It's not a career you choose - it's a career that chooses you."

After coming to the realization that he was meant to be a pastor, Gray went back to school. He attended grad school at Princeton Theological Seminary in New Jersey receiving his Masters of Divinity before going on to be the pastor at a number of different churches throughout the country.

With a lot of different ideas from his past ministries, Pastor Gray said he plans to talk with church members and learn more about the church dynamic before he changes or adds anything.

"Programs in ministries are very contextual; they're what works for that bunch.

REV. DOUG GRAY is the new pastor at the First Church of Squantum on Bellevue Road. Gray has been in ministry since 1988 and became ordained in 1994. Before being called to serve the church Gray was a chemist in Los Angeles. Quincy Sun Photos/Emily Armstrong Usually the best ideas are the ideas that come out of that group so I don't know that I want to bring my ideas in without the folks here seeing that's what they want to do," Pastor Gray said.

"One of the new sciences is a system thinking, a system theory, that we are all connected in a web, well the churches work like that, we're all connected, if you take a piece out, or injure a piece in a church it doesn't work the same so you have to know how the pieces go together. I have some short-term goals, but the long-term goals I have to know how the web goes together before I can help that.

"In our day and age the idea of denomination has changed. People are not locked into denominations - they are locked into a good community. It's one of the reasons why I'm not anxious to change anything about how we are situated, about our worship space, because it's tradition, and there are folks who have a traditional idea about what worship space should be."

Besides getting to know what the members and community expect the church to be and become Gray is also focused on growing the member base and making the church a healthier place where people in the community want to go.

"I really see the growth in this little church. Once we start really looking and thinking intelligently and creatively about how to interact with the community there is no stopping it," said Pastor Gray.

"In a Congregational Church, church is a team sport, so we are going to be doing that visioning together. You don't grow a church to just grow a church. You love people and you worship Christ and then churches grow. So my goal is to help this church be healthy, healthier than it is right now, because healthier churches grow. It's in the design, you don't have to boot strap yourself into growth it happens because you're doing the things that are health, you love each other, you treat each other well, you think about other people, you show compassion and the grace that you show that's what makes people want to be there. A church is more than the building it's the people, and you have to become the church that people want to go to."

Lightning Strikes Bethany Church

Due to several pieces of loose stone still attached to the pinnacle the church and fire department decided to cancel the 10 a.m. service, and the church was closed Monday and Tuesday. Harding said that he hoped to have the church open fully by Wednesday.

On Tuesday, debris could be found outside and inside of the church but the most evidence can be found outside in front of the handicap ramp and scattered throughout the property. Large pieces of stone covered the handicap ramp and entrance, while other pieces were found on the Thomas Crane Library lawn, and across the street from the church. A number of windows in the church have been boarded up due to falling debris cracking them and even breaking some. At the church's playground there are a number of large pieces in the lawn, and one that even broke the bench that sits in the fenced in area. Electricity was out in a number of areas throughout the church, and the bell was also not working as of Tuesday. Harding said he believes that the million-dollar organ may also have been damaged during the incident.

REV. WILLIAM HARDING points to a metal and wooden bench in the playground courtyard of Bethany Congregational Church that was damaged Sunday morning when the church's steeple was hit by lightning sending one of the four pinnacles to the ground. Chunks of concrete are scattered throughout the church's property and some even landed across the street at the old Quincy High School site and next-door at the Thomas Crane Library.

Harding said he hopes insurance will cover the costs of repairing the roof and replacing the pinnacle and that church would likely start a fundraising campaign to make other improvements that could help fend off future strikes.

'Open And Affirming Conversations' At Good Shepherd Lutheran Church

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 308 West Squantum Street, North Quincy, announces its upcoming conversation series entitled "Open and Affirming Conversations" which begins Wednesday, Sept. 18 at 7 p.m. at the church and will continue each Wednesday evening through the end of October.

The public is invited and encouraged to attend the seven week series that will reflect on matters of importance to the lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) community in Quincy.

"We are excited to host this series," said Pastor Nathan Pipho. "We have members who identify as LGBT and Quincy is a diverse city with many of our neighbors identifying as LGBT. We hope an honest public conversation about the reality of living as a LGBT person in Quincy can be a helpful resource to all residents of our city."

Area non-profit organizations serving the LGBT community participating in the series include the Greater Boston Chapter of Parents, Family and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG), the Boston Alliance of GLBT Youth (BAGLY), the Queer Asian and Pacific-Islander Alliance (QAPA), and the LGBT Aging Project which will screen the critically acclaimed documentary "Gen Silent" which follows six LGBT seniors as they navigate the health care system.

Additionally, local religious leaders will provide a theological perspective on welcome and members of Good Shepherd will start the series off by sharing their own stories of LGBT inclusion and acceptance. A detailed schedule can be found on the congregational website at www.GoodShepherdQuincy.org.

"According to a recent survey by The Barna Group of over 400 young people, the most widely held view of the Christian church, held by 91% of respondents, is that the church is 'anti-gay,'" explained Pastor Pipho. "In addition to this series as a resource for people of any or no faith perspective, it is our hope that this series gives voice to Christians who believe the full acceptance and celebration of LGBT people and relationships is compatible with, and even inspired by, the teachings of Jesus Christ."

The series is free and open to the public.

Participants are invited to any or all of the Wednesday sessions. Parking is available in the church parking lot and the meeting space is handicapped accessible.

Members of the congregation will provide light refreshments each session.

For more information, call the church office at 617-328-8348 or visit the website at www.GoodShepherdQuincy.org.

"Open and Affirming Conversations" is being dedicated to the 25th Anniversary of the founding of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA) and its policies and teachings that fully welcome LGBT persons into the life and leadership of the church.

Snug Harbor Students Receive Backpacks

Harvard Pilgrim Health Care recently conducted its annual "C2C Backpack Sorting Event" at their corporate headquarters on Crown Colony Drive in Quincy.

The annual event, in conjunction with Cradles to Crayons, and the Quincy School ~ Community Partnership, supplies backpacks for the students attending the Snug Harbor Elementary School in the Germantown section of Quincy.

Approximately 60 HCHC employees donned red T-shirts to sort the donated school supplies and inserted them into 300 backpacks for distribution to the students.

Richard DeCristofaro, Snug Harbor Elementary School Assistant Principal Michael Marani, and School Psychologist Jess Sikora. Snug Harbor student Sam McGahan personally thanked the crowd for providing the backpacks for all students. Jarod Newton of Cradles to Crayons told those in attendance that his organization was proud to be associated with this tremendous initiative.

CPA Ballot Question Before Council Tuesday

By SCOTT JACKSON

A referendum that would allow the city to contribute additional money towards its Community Preservation Act fund appears headed for November's ballot.

In 2008 Quincy voters approved a ballot question establishing a CPA fund, which is financed through a one percent surcharge on property taxes. The first $100,000 in assessed value for each residential property is exempted from the surcharge, as are residential properties owned by some seniors and those who qualify for low-income housing. The state also matches a portion of CPA funds in each community.

The proposed ballot question, introduced by Councillors Kevin Coughlin and Doug Gutro, would take advantage of an amendment made to the Community Preservation Act in 2012 that would allow the city to commit other local revenue streams, such as hotel/motel tax receipts, towards the CPA fund, which would also be eligible to receive a match from the state. CPA funds are used to pay for a number of projects, including the purchase of open space and space for recreation; affordable housing projects; and renovation of historic properties.

Coughlin and Gutro floated the proposed ballot question in the spring. The wording for the binding question was submitted to the council for approval at Tuesday night's City Council meeting, which was held after The Sun went to press. In a phone interview prior to the meeting, Gutro was optimistic it would pass so that he and others in favor of the question could make a case for passing it.

"I think it's great if we can reach approvable language," Gutro said. "We can get out there and explain why it benefits affordable housing, why it benefits historic preservation, and why it benefits open space."

If approved by the council, the referendum on changing the CPA fund would be one of three questions for voters to decide on Nov. 5. The other two questions include a binding referendum on changing the mayoral term from two years to four years, and a non-binding question merging the two high schools into one school with two campuses: North Quincy High would host all students in grades 9 and 10 while all grade 11 and 12 students would go to school at Quincy High.

Unlike the CPA question, the other two are on the ballot as a result of petition drives.

High School Fall Seasons Are Here Again

Quincy High School Presidents

By BILL GRIFFIN

The warm, lazy summer months seem to pass more quickly than any other season. Vacations have slipped away, the beaches grow quiet, school begins again and a schedule of sports starts at full throttle at Quincy High this week.

The football team opens at home against Malden Catholic Friday, September 6 at 7:00 p.m. The Presidents then will play a rare game against neighboring Braintree on the road Thursday, September 12 at 4:30.

"I can't remember Quincy playing Braintree in football. Braintree was always committed to 10 or 11 games in the Bay State Conference," said Quincy coach Bill Reardon.

The new playoff system for high school football teams puts less emphasis on league rivalries and commitments and makes non-league matchups like Quincy-Braintree more likely.

The Presidents will try to build on last season's 7-4 season which was Quincy's first winning year since 2005 and included a 30-14 victory over North Quincy which stopped a three-game losing streak on Thanksgiving.

Quincy returns just four starters. One is promising junior quarterback James Lam. However, Quincy graduated its brilliant skilled players: Jalen Green, Jaquan Harris and Alex Heffernan. The trio helped power an offense which scored 304 points (27.7 points per game), posted 30 or more points five times and propelled the Presidents to wins in five of their last six games.

Two-way standouts Peter Cedrone and Jackson Lam will be sorely missed.

Braintree, Hingham, and Duxbury loom as big tests on the schedule for Quincy.

The boys and girls soccer teams both open this week as well. The girls are at Middleboro (Sept. 4) and at Fontbonne (Sept. 6). The boys are at Bridgewater-Raynham September 6.

The highlight of the season for the soccer teams are a pair of intra-city doubleheaders against North at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The first is Saturday, September 28 when the girls play at 5:00 and the boys play at 7:00. On Saturday, October 19, the boys meet at 4:00 and the girls play at 7:00.

The girls volleyball team, led by returning starters

Nicole Jorgensen, Gabby Zorkers and Emma Kelly, will open its march towards another tournament berth at home against Silver Lake Wednesday, September 11 at 5:30.

Quincy and North will meet twice during the volleyball season. The Presidents travel to North Quincy Monday, September 30 at 6:00 and then host the Red Raiders Wednesday, October 23 at 6:00. Each school has a rich volleyball tradition, and both matches should be well worth watching.

The boys and girls cross country teams open their season at home against Whitman-Hanson Wednesday, September 4. Both races are at 3:30 at Paget Field.

Each team will run in the Patriot League Championships October 26.

Quincy's golf team opens against Catholic Memorial at the George Wright Golf Course Monday, September 9 at 3:30. The Presidents will face North Quincy twice. The first meeting is Tuesday, October 8 at Presidents Golf Course at 3:30, and the second is at Granite Links Tuesday, October 15 at Granite Links Golf Course.

North Quincy High School Red Raiders

By BILL GRIFFIN

The beginning of school is a time of fresh beginnings and great hopes.

This is especially true at North Quincy where the Mark Nutley era will begin Friday, September 6 at 7:00 when the Red Raiders begin their football season on the road against Medford.

"It would be nice to find a couple of 6'2, 300-pound linemen, but things have gone well in our early practices," smiled Nutley who will begin his first season as head coach after succeeding Jim Connor.

Nutley has a solid core to build around with backs Eddie Guinto and Antoine Allen and linemen Don Sharpe and Vinny Tran, but North will be tested on the road early in the season.

After traveling to Medford, the Red Raiders are at Boston Latin for their second game before hosting Dedham in the third week of the season. North plays two more road games against Hanover and Middleboro before finally returning to Veterans' Stadium October 18 against Pembroke.

The boys soccer team opens with two home matches against Middleboro (Sept. 11) and Silver Lake (Sept. 13). Both games are scheduled for 3:30 starts.

Coach Paul Bregoli's girls soccer team will begin its chase for another tournament berth at home against Abington Thursday, September 5 (5:00) and will host East Boston September 10 at 3:30.

The girls and boys soccer teams will play a pair of intra-city doubleheaders against Quincy. On September 28, the girls will play at 5:00 and the boys meet at 7:00. On October 19, the boys will play at 4:00 and the girls meet at 7:00.

Kerry Ginty's volleyball team, which went 18-2 and lost a 3-2 decision by two points to Brookline in the semifinals of the South Sectionals last year, open September 9 at home against Fontbonne and travels to Middleboro on September 11. Both matches are slated to start at 5:30.

North hosts Quincy September 30 at 6:00 and meets the Presidents on the road October 23 at 6:00.

The Red Raiders will feature returning standouts Rose Bennett, Carolyn Schwartz, and Maya Umoren.

The boys and girls cross country teams opened against Whitman-Hanson Tuesday at Paget Field and travel to Duxbury for meets on September 10.

The golf team starts its season against Archbishop Williams Wednesday, September 5 at Presidents Golf Course at 3:00 p.m.

North and Quincy face each other twice in golf. The first match is October 8 at Presidents Golf Course at 3:30 and the second is a week later on October 15 at Granite Links Golf Course at 3:15.

When the time comes for women and girls to just have fun, colored gemstones and gold chains match up well with jeans, cotton tops, casual dresses, crisp button-front shirts, and blazers. One of the best ways to enjoy jewelry with these two complementary elements is to combine them. Doing so involves taking a small-link gold chain and interspersing a seemingly haphazard arrangement of colored gemstones among its links. For the most part, gemstones such as tourmaline, citrine, amethyst, peridot, topaz, garnet, iolite, and turquoise can be either faceted or cut en cabochon and set in bezels. When spaced according to taste along the length of the chain, it exudes a decidedly Bohemian elegance that is very much in vogue.

Every time you want to show off your fun and free-spirited side, bohemian jewelry is the way to do it. It is so vivacious and makes a statement. Our bohemian jewelry is beautifully designed and we love the fanciful feel that it can add to anyone's wardrobe. Presidents Kick Off Season At Home Friday Night

By BILL GRIFFIN

There are reasonable expectations and there are foolish expectations.

Let's begin the foolish. Quincy finished 7-4 last year and posted its first winning record in eight seasons. The Presidents defeated North on Thanksgiving for the first time in three years. The freshman and JV teams were undefeated. Turnout is over 100. Therefore, The Presidents will roll through their schedule, make the playoffs and sail into the Super Bowl.

Now for the reasonable. Quincy lost 20 seniors and returns only four starters. They are in the same division with Hingham and Duxbury. A wiser hope would be the Presidents began a culture of winning last season and as their talented young players grow comfortable to varsity speed, the team will step towards another winning season and a berth in the playoffs.

"We lost not only a lot of seniors, but real quality players," said coach Bill Reardon whose club opens at home against Malden Catholic Friday at 7 p.m. "We hope winning breeds winning, but right now we have a lot of young players and lot of jobs to be won. There's competition for every spot. Nobody showed up thinking they had a spot clinched. It's competitive and that's a good thing."

Quincy's strengths are the return of gifted junior quarterback James Lam and physical strength up front. For years, Quincy produced good, quick backs, but lacked power in the lines. That changed last year and the trend is likely to continue thanks to diligent work in the weight room in the off season.

"James is a nice piece to have back," said Reardon. "Physically, nobody has pushed us around in the scrimmages and I hope that continues. We have size and strength, particularly on the defensive side of the ball, and that has showed in the practice and in the scrimmages."

The weakness is in the inexperience of good young players who are moving up to varsity ball from the JVs and freshman. The game moves more quickly, the hitting is harder, the quick decision-making in an instant is more difficult.

"Right now we're looking for our players to recognize coverages and formations, and react to what the offense what might do," said Reardon. "As they get more repetitions and exposure to varsity ball, I think the recognition and adjustments will improve."

Lam took over for Andrew Schaaf last year when Schaaf suffered a leg injury in the pre-season. He is a junior with a full season of varsity experience against excellent competition. He has a strong, accurate arm. He is smart, confident, and sees the field well. He has size and he is an athlete. He piloted a team which scored 304 points last year, including 42 against Hingham and 28 against Duxbury. He has a chance to be special.

"He also has the ability to make something happen if a play breaks down and that a great asset," said Reardon.

Senior captains Matt Kozlowski and Matthew Hines and junior Ken Garcia are also three quality returnees for the Presidents. Kozlowski has excellent technique and experience at right tackle and defensive end. Hines is a strong tight end and defensive end. Nobody works harder than Garcia in the secondary.

"Kozlowski's technique is phenomenal," said Reardon. "He took on much bigger kids last year and more than held his own because his technique is so good. Hines was the king of the weight room. He won our strongest player competition. Kenny is not the biggest player you'll find, but nobody hustles more or plays with more enthusiasm."

Quincy lost three brilliant skilled players and this could have an impact on Lam and the offense. Jalen

Green was a 200-yard per game machine and one of the best backs in the state. Green punted, kicked field goals, returned punts and returned kickoffs. Jaquan Harris ran the ball, caught the ball and was a standout in the secondary. Alex Hefferman had a magical ability to find an open spot and catch the ball in traffic. They will not be easily replaced.

"They are big shoes to fill," said Reardon "Robbie Munroe and J.T. Bain have looked good at wide receiver so far and we have good depth at running back."

Bain, a junior, is an excellent post player for the basketball team. Munroe, a senior, was probably the best hitter on the baseball team. They are two athletes who are both over six feet and should present Lam with a pair of inviting targets.

Jalen Chase has looked good at fullback and Tomaz Silva, who will do the kicking for Quincy, is also in the picture at the position. Garcia, senior captain Alex Alexandre and Jahvae Handsome-Field, who was a standout freshman last year, are in the battle for the job at tailback.

"It's good competition. Running back is a position where you need depth and hopefully, we'll have it," said Reardon.

William Young, Mike Munroe, Isiah Uzamere, Abraham Hoti, Hines and Kozlowski are working up front on offense. James Haskins has looked good on the defensive side of the ball.

Reardon likes his linebackers Dan Guarente and Jake Bergonzi. Juniors Ryan Turpin and Aramani Cardoso have worked well in the secondary.

"I'm sure as the season goes on, you'll see more kids getting playing time," said Reardon.

Reardon is obviously pleased with the large turnout, but there will be two-way duty for several players, at least at the beginning of the season.

"We'll definitely have some going two ways, but I'd like to have as few as possible," said Reardon. "As the season goes on and the younger players develop, we should have fewer kids going both ways. That's the plan."

Quincy is in Division 2 South and the Keenan Division of the Patriot League with Duxbury, Hingham, Whitman-Hanson and Silver Lake. Duxbury and Hingham are traditional powers. Whitman-Hanson should be strong. It is likely the top two from the division will make the playoffs which presents a significant challenge for Quincy.

"Every week's a challenge. There are no cupcakes," said Reardon. "I think we can definitely compete for a playoff spot. I have a great group of kids to be around and work with. We'll improve and I think a playoff spot is a reasonable goal."

New High School Football Playoff Format

By BILL GRIFFIN

High school football teams will operate under a new Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA) playoff system this season which will reduce the number of Super Bowl champions from 19 to six.

Each team will be placed in one of four geographic regions (North, South, Central or West). Each region will be divided into six divisions which are determined by a school's enrollment.

Quincy is in Division 2 South along with Barnstable, Braintree, Duxbury, King Philip, Marshfield, Marshfield, Natick, Needham, Taunton, and Wellesley.

North Quincy is in Division 3 Southwest with Bishop Feehan, Hingham, Hopkinton, Medfield, Milton, North Attleboro, Norwood, Oliver Ames, Stoughton and Walpole.

Each team in the state will play a seven-game regular season schedule. After seven games, the teams will be power-rated by the MIAA selection committee to determine who qualifies for the playoffs.

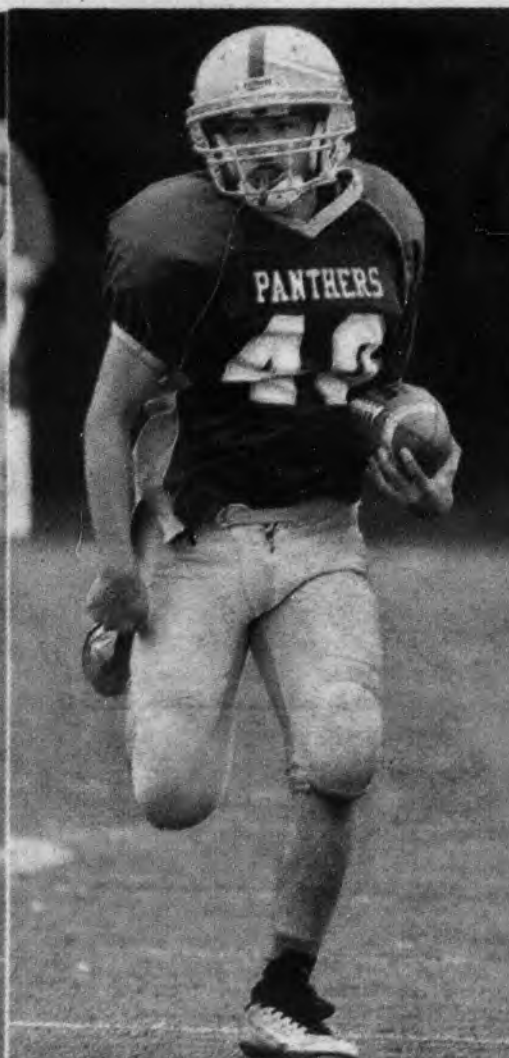

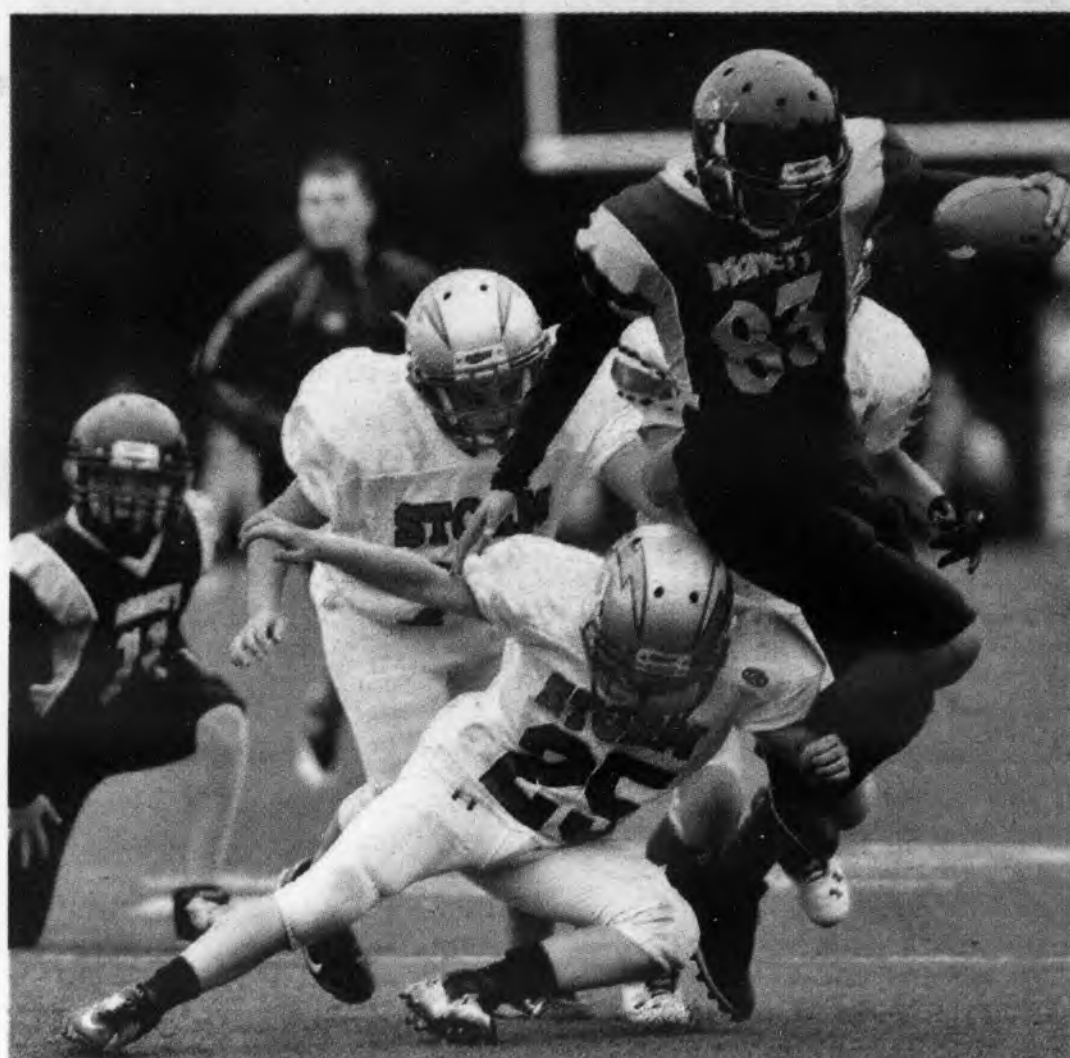

Teams that qualify will begin the sectional playoffs the weekend of November 1-2. Teams that do not qualify and teams that are

North Quincy Red Raiders Road Opener Friday

By BILL GRIFFIN

The core of the team is solid. North Quincy has two gifted running backs who can run inside and out and are a threat to score every time they touch the ball. There are two experienced linemen who can play sides of the ball and are capable of dominating their spots along scrimmage.

The key for North Quincy (3-7 last year) is the development of a corps of young players, especially along the offensive line, if the Red Raiders are to move towards a winning season and contend for a spot in the playoffs.

"We're young," said first-year coach Mark Nutley whose team opens at Medford Friday at 7 p.m. "We could have three sophomores seeing their first varsity action on the line and how well they come along will be a big factor in our season. We have four excellent seniors and we are going to lean heavily on them."

Antoine Allen (12 touchdowns and over 1200 yards last year) and Eddie Guinto are the three-year starters in the backfield. Allen is a special talent who needs only the smallest crack to break a big play. In the first play of a scrimmage against Abington (13-0 last year), he took a simple handoff, bounced outside off a tackle and raced for 18 yards. If he has the ball, he can score.

"He can take it to the house any time he touches the ball and that puts pressure on any defense," said Nutley.

Guinto is a rare fullback with excellent speed who can also do the heavy work at the position. He is a legitimate breakaway threat. He runs inside and blocks well, but he also has the speed to punish any defense which focuses too closely on Allen.

"I think in terms of speed if Eddie and Antoine had a flat-out race, Eddie might win. He is capable of the big-gainers," said Nutley.

The linemen are Vinny Tran and Don Sharpe. Tran has started for four years and Sharpe has started for three. Tran is that rare player who can take on blocks, frequently double-teams, shed them and make the tackle. He has played defensive end, noseguard and in the interior on offense. He has ruled every position that he has played.

"When Vinny plays defensive end, that means there's one side of the field where the other team has a problem running the ball," said Nutley. "When he plays noseguard, he can take over the line of scrimmage."

Sharpe is a veteran who has performed well on both sides of the ball. He and Tran bring experience and proven talent to a young group up front which needs to mature as the season progresses.

"Don is a quiet kid, but he will do anything you ask," said Nutley. "He worked hard over the summer and he's going to be one of the leaders that we will rely on heavily."

Although the offensive line is young, there are teams on which blue-chip backs can make a line look good. Guinto and Allen don't need much, just a seam to run through, and this makes the blocking much easier. Both backs need only a little bit.

"Most of the time it's the line that makes the backs look good, but this year I think Antoine and Eddie will help our line. They don't need huge holes," said Nutley.

Sophomores Derek Hounh, James Bronyhton, Conor Pound, Zack Dangora and juniors Nick Manning and Fred Flynn have showed well in practice for North. Cornelius Koch has also played well, especially on the defensive side of the ball.

"They looked good in practice, but the scrimmage against Abington was an eye-opener for them," said Nutley. "Abington really comes after you. It was a good experience, because that's what we'll face during the season."

Two of the toughest players to replace from last year's squad are quarterback Andrew Minton and Matthew MacPhail who was a dual threat at wide receiver and safety. Minton showed pinpoint accuracy late in the season especially in the face of a series of big hits in the Quincy game. MacPhail had good hands and moves. He also had a team-high eight interceptions in the secondary.

"Andrew Kiley (a junior) and Joe Fallon (a sophomore) have done a good job in practice. Andrew has a little more varsity experience from last year. They're both in the mix at quarterback," said Nutley. "Bryan Turner has looked very good at safety and wide receiver. He's an athlete with good speed."

Junior Dayvon Jones, Joel Lawless and Alex Chen give North depth in the offensive backfield. Koch, Tran and Sharpe have looked strong up front on defense. Dangora, Guinto, Lawless, Chen, Jones and sophomore Jacob Grady form a solid group at linebacker.

"I like our linebackers. They could be a strength for us," said Nutley.

Turner, Allen, Eric Cohane-Jones, Matt Donovan and Joe Phoenix have all worked well in the secondary.

"Again it's a matter of experience," said Nutley. "We have some inexperience in the secondary, but I think they'll improve as the season goes on."

Numbers are an issue for North. The Red Raiders dressed just over 30 player for the Quincy game last year. This year the turnout is close to 50 which is an improvement. Nutley would like to see more of the same.

"I remember when so many kids went out at North that they had to go buy more helmets. That's what I'm shooting for," he said. "We're getting more kids out from different groups at school at that is a good thing."

The lack of depth will mean a good deal of two-way duty for several important players. The same names pop up on the offensive and defensive side of the ball, but Nutley thinks his club can handle the load.

"We'll have kids going both ways. We have no choice, but I think a lot of high schools have two-way players," he said. "This is where the leadership comes in. Vinny, Antoine, Eddie, and Don are seniors who work as hard as anyone. They were leading the charge this summer. They are good role models for the younger kids.

The early schedule will test the seniors and their leadership. After Medford, North plays Boston Latin on the road before returning for its home opener against Dedham in the third week of the season. The Red Raiders are not home again until Oct. 18 against Pembroke. Four of the first six games are away from home. Playoffs spots will be decided after the first seven games. It will not be an easy road.

"I honestly don't think it will be a big factor. We have seniors who have been on the road before and they'll help us adjust to it," said Nutley.

Nutley feels the playoffs are a reasonable goal for his club which is in Division 3 Southwest and the Fisher Division of the Patriot League. If the Red Raiders make the playoffs, it would end a long drought for North.

"I think the playoffs are a goal we can reach. It would be the first time since the 1992 Super Bowl team that North has been in the playoffs," he said. "Everybody talks about Quincy (a 30-14 loss last season) and Quincy is big, no doubt about it. But we want to be known as a playoff team at North Quincy High. We want to be in one of the two top spots in the Fisher Division when the playoff spots are picked."

Nutley is working his first season as head man at North after being an assistant to Jim Connor. There is a difference.

"If there is a question, you have to answer it. If there is a decision, you have to make it. I've made a couple of mistakes, but I'm learning from them," he said.

eliminated from the playoffs will resume their schedule against opponents to be determined by the selection committee.

The sectional semifinals (Nov. 8 and 9) and finals (Nov. 15-16) will produce champions in each of the six divisions in all four regions. The state semifinals will be held Nov. 22 and 23 to reduce the field to two teams in the state in each of the six divisions.

The six Super Bowls will be held at Gillette Stadium Dec. 7.

Quincy and North Quincy will still meet in their traditional Thanksgiving game Nov. 28 at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 10 a.m.

The system, which was approved by a vote of the member schools last year, is operating on a two-year trial basis.

Quincy Youth Football League 2013 Season Preview

By SEAN HALPIN

The Quincy Youth Football League will kickoff its 63rd season of varsity football Sunday, Sept. 8th, at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

QYFL President Paul Doherty is anxious for the kickoff of this weekend's games. Under his leadership, the league has seen some great improvements over the past three years. Most recently, the QYFL has seen its overall Player and Cheerleader turnout rise by 35% this year.

"I'm really excited about the 2013 season. I think it will be the best in league history," said Doherty. "If we continue this path, I think you'll see more and more players matriculate to the high school football teams and eventually you'll see both North Quincy and Quincy High School have two thriving football programs again."

Quincy Youth Football began the season with the Annual Varsity Jamboree last Thursday night and they'll end the season with the QYFL Championship Game and Cheerleading Competition on Nov. 3rd. The following weekend, Nov. 10th, The QYFL will host its first ever All-Star Game between the combined teams of the Desmond Division versus those of the Myers Division.

The North Quincy Apaches look to see return to past glory after a tough 2012 campaign. Second year Head Coach Ted Arnott has reason to be optimistic, his Apaches return seven starters from last season: QB/DE Dylan Malcolm, OL/DL-Josh Moore, C/LB- Dara Griffin and All-Leaguers: Devin Ganno (RB/DE) and Jake Roos (TE-DE) lead the way for North Quincy. The Apaches look for former JV Players Liam Murphy (OG-DT), Win Tran (RB-DB) Nate Sleiman (RB-DB), Chris Donaghey (WR-CB) and Connor Donaghey (WR-DB) to step up big on the Varsity this season. Newcomers Bobby Stevenson (FB-LB) and Miles Easterling (OG-DT) will round out the lineup for North Quincy.

The Houghs Neck Manets faced low numbers in 2012, now look to make a dramatic return with a "New look and New Attitude" in 2013. The Manets have seen a huge turnout this season under new franchise holder, Bill Lugelle and new Head Coach Mark Giordani. The Manets sport all new equipment and uniforms this weekend. Leading the way for Houghs Neck are Anthony Epps (WR-DB), Pat Nazzaro (OL-DL), Sonny Cugini (QB-LB), Peter Reed (FB-LB), Pat Deery and Rob Hill (OG-OL).

The Milton Mustangs under new Head Coach, Rhile Rhodes and Varsity Coach Rich Laine look for retuning starters Rich Laine (RB-CB) and Colin McSweeney (OG-DL) to lead the way for the Milton squad.

The Squantum Storm look to pick up where they left off in 2012, when they finished in first place in the Regular season. Head Coach, Mike Killilea's squad returns 6 starters from last season including Three All-league players: Raphy Veras (OT-DT), Mark Monahan (C-DE) and last years third leading scorer Max Storch (RB-DB). Tim Layden (QB-DE), Ty Finn (OT), Tom Veasey (DB), Luca Smith (LB) John Paul Kelley (RB-LB) and Cullen Walsh (RB-DB) also lead the way for the Storm.

Last year's runner-up, Quincy Point Panthers continue the quest for their 19th QYFL Banner. The Panthers feature returning starters Nick Mayberry (QB-DB), Ronin Conteras (OL-DL), Jayo DaRosa (WR-DB), Melvin Gonzales (RB-DB), Mario Vrap (RB-LB) and anchoring the offense will be All-League linemen Bryan Hanly, Robert Wilson (OG-DT), Jack-son Quinn (OT-DT) and Ryan Malloy (OT). Look for big things out of Panthers Head Coach Noel Dibona. The 2012 QYFL Coach of the Year has got his hat in two races this fall: one for a QYFL Championship and the other for a seat on the Quincy School Committee.

The 2012 QYFL Champion, West Quincy Elks defend their title with a mostly new cast. Lineman Connor Ainsley (OG-DT) and Jamal Williams (OG) return from last season as Head Coach Justin Thorley looks to James Crump (QB-LB), Shorn Hawthorne (RB-DB), Anthony Rizzatano, Adam Vu (WR-DB), Alex Kiley (RB-DB) and Davi Soares (RB-DB) to fuel the Elks high-powered offensive attack.

Prediction: Too close to call!

The Junior Varsity, Freshman and Flag Football levels kickoff the season Saturday morning, Sept. 7th. Jayvee's start at 9 a.m., freshmen at 10:30 a.m. and flag football at noon.

The Houghs Neck Manets host the West Quincy Elks at Lebreque Field in Houghs Neck. The Quincy Point Panthers Host the Milton Mustangs at Fore River Field in Quincy Point and the North Quincy Apaches host the Squantum Storm at Pageant Field in Wollaston.

QUINCY RUNNING BACK Dolan Reid scored on a 25-yard run in the Militia's 34-20 win over the Randolph Oilers last Saturday night. The victory improved the Militia's record to 4-2 on the season.

Militia Down Oilers 34-20, Improve Record To 4-2

By JOE REARDON

Count running back Jordan Moore as a player who absolutely thrives on the field coming off a bye week.

The speedster lit up the Randolph Oilers' defense for 106 yards on eight carries and a pair of scoring scampers in the second half to pace the Quincy Militia to a 34-20 win at Veterans Stadium, Saturday night. The victory was a big one for the Militia as they improved to 4-2 on the season and allowed them to keep pace with the undefeated Worcester Mass Fury in the Eastern Football League heading into Saturday's game at Taunton against the Gladiators. The loss dropped the struggling Oilers to 1-5 on the season.

Moore's first scoring run, a seven-yard burst off left tackle, came with 4:24 left in the third to give Quincy a 28-14 lead. Moore had a huge series with five rushes for 44 yards. Randolph cut the Militia advantage to 28-20 early in the fourth quarter when quarterback Mark Reale plunged in on a one-yard keep to cap a seven-play, 53-yard drive.

Moore iced the game for the Militia with 1:52 left when he barrelled his way through a hole up the middle and sprinted 31 yards for the score and a 34-20 lead.

Moore was ready and rested after the bye week and admitted he felt re-energized. "We got a lot of rest and worked out a lot," he said. "That was it - all work. I've got the best line in the league and I've got the best corners in the league. We're putting in our work and continuing to put in our work."

QUINCY MILITIA jumped out to an early 6-0 lead when quarterback James Yaitanes and wide receiver Chris Joyce (above) connected on a 79-yard touchdown reception.

Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

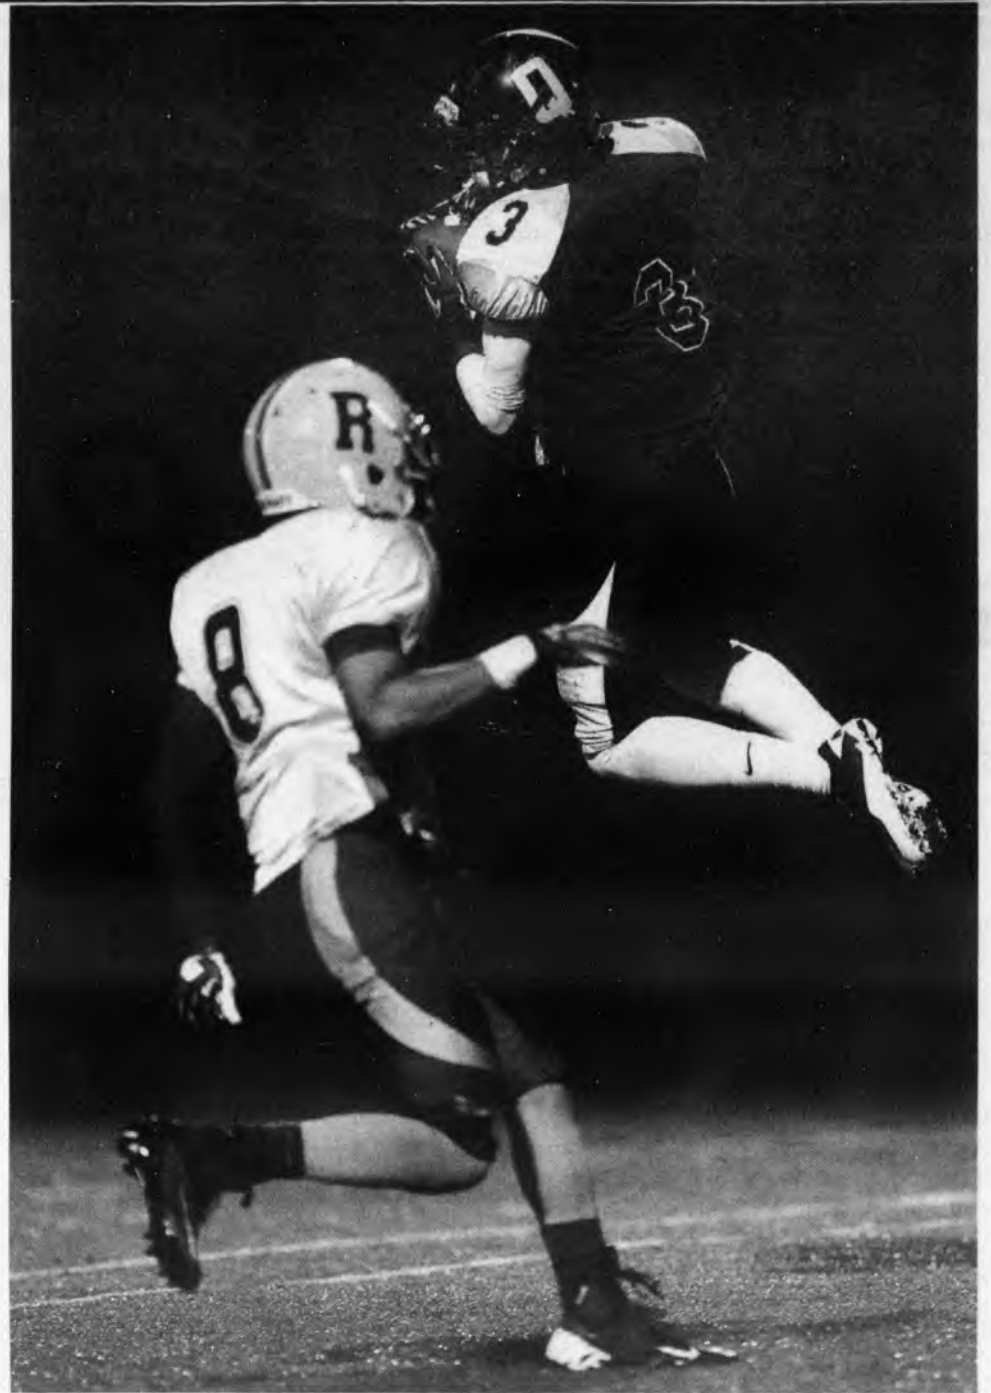

We're not facing Worcester next week, we're facing Taunton and that's what I'm looking forward to."

The game wasn't without its mistakes for the Militia, who gave up a handful of penalties and had its share of mental mistakes on the night.

Head coach Vaughn Driscoll promised his squad would have a tough week of work after too many mental errors and penalties for his liking. "We had about a dozen guys that were banged up and were able to rest them which is good," Driscoll said of the bye week. "Still, we had so many mental mistakes. I gave them last Sunday off. It showed because on Sundays we get to work everything. We fell apart a little bit today which is sad. Every time, for some reason, close wins, we still fall apart. That's something we need to fix because we can't have this. It's one of my concerns.

"We were a family. We had a breakdown in Worcester. We came back and regrouped, became a family again and played great against the Seminoles. Today, because of our mistakes keeping them in the game, MILITIA WIDE RECEIVER James Schuler leaps for a 14-yard touchdown reception from quarterback James Yaitanes in Quincy's 34-20 victory over the Randolph Oilers last Saturday night at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

we had breakdowns. It was on both sides of the ball and on special teams. This is stuff we can't have. Good teams can't do that. Good teams overcome adversity. If we go into Taunton and play this way, Taunton will put it on us."

The first quarter turned into a shootout and ended with the teams tied up at 14. Quincy scored on its first play from scrimmage when quarterback James Yaitanes hit receiver Chris Joyce in stride down the right sideline for a 79-yard score and the 6-0 lead.

Randolph worked the ball down to the Militia 15 on the next possession as quarterback Mark Reale connected on three passes for 51 yards. Safety Terrance Gomes picked off Reale's sixth pass of the drive, though, to stop the Oilers' surge. A bad snap on a Militia punt gave Randolph a first down at the Quincy 13 two possessions later and running back Brandon Cox (17 carries, 78 yards, two touchdowns) ran in untouched from the 5-yard line three plays later to cut the lead to 7-6.

Yaitanes put the finishing touches on a 51-yard drive by connecting with James Schuler for a 14-yard score with 1:55 left in the quarter, but Cox barged in from the 4 after an 80-yard kickoff return by Patrick Kromah to tie it at 14-14 less than a minute later.

Quincy took the lead for good in the second when Dolan Reid followed up a terrific 52-yard punt return with a 25-yard scoring run off left tackle. Conor Flaherty, who was handling punting duties for the first time this season and had a bpot of 61 yards, added the extra point to make it 21-14 with 7:24 left in the half.

QUESTIONING THE USE OF ANTIBIOTICS

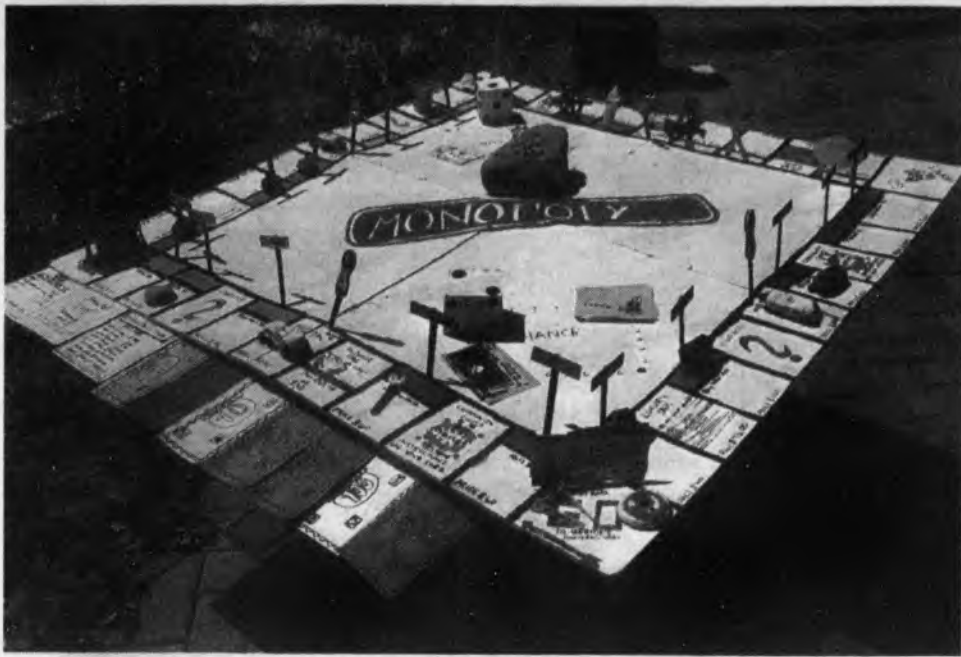

In light of the fact that unnecessary use of antibiotics has given rise to dangerous strains of drug-resistant bacteria, medical doctors and patients are being warned to curtail antibiotic use. One notable example of this problem concerns childhood ear infections. In many cases, antibiotics not only fail to shorten the duration of the infection by any significant amount, but they are also not likely to prevent its recurrence. Because foregoing antibiotic medication to treat ear infections may be as effective as doing nothing at all, patients may want to consult with a chiropractor, who believes in unleashing the body's innate healing powers to fight infection. Chiropractic's drugless approach to healing is often the best first-line treatment.

This informative column about the use and/or misuse of antibiotics has been brought to you as a public service. At FAMILY PRAC-

HOUGHS NECK MONOPOLY created by youth at the LaBrequette Playground was voted the top display at this year's Quincy Recreation Arts & Crafts contest. Voting took place outside Quincy City Hall. More than 550 ballots were cast. Photos Courtesy Quincy Recreation

550 Ballots Cast In Recreation Contest

Houghs Neck Monopoly Top Arts/Craft Display

This year's Quincy Recreation Arts and Crafts display at City Hall Plaza saw one of the closest contests in recent years with over 550 ballots cast and high voter turnout from both the public and the playgrounds.

Each park spent countless hours working on their projects, which made for a great final display and a close competition. All of the 14 playgrounds and Happy Acres deserved to be in the number one champion spot but unfortunately only one could be chosen.

The champion of the 2013 Quincy Recreation Arts and Crafts display was "Houghs Neck Monopoly" made by the children of LaBrequette Playground. Coming in a close second place was "Boston Strong" by Forbes Hill. The third and final winner was "Marathon Medal" by Beechwood.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said that the children, recreation leaders, and arts and crafts specialists deserve special recognition for the hard work involved in producing such great projects. Arts and crafts specialists Taylor Dennehy, Shelly Donovan, and Ashley Kostka organized the exhibit and voting.

The leaders at the winning playground, LaBrequette, are Katie Flaherty, Sarah Goonan, and John O'Callaghan. The youth that spent countless hours on "Houghs Neck Monopoly" are Alex Rheault, Campbell Tierney, Cole Schaaf, Sam Schaaf, Jack Schaaf, and Aidan McGuinness.

The leaders at the second place park, Forbes Hill, are Tyler Braun, Kara Reardon, and Sarah Tabek. The youth that worked on "Boston Strong" are Johnny Norton, Chris and Conner Donaghey, and Devlin and Colby Saint Marie.

The leaders at the third place park, Beechwood, are Curran Jorgensen, Courtney Timmins, and Dominic Venuti. The youth that worked on "Marathon Medal" are Matt Kelly, Michael Levine, Brigid Kyle, Faye Fitzpatrick, Ben O'Mahoney, and Jordan Della-Barba.

In the special entry category, "Happy Acres University," the entry created by the summer special needs program supervised by the Recreation Department was the top voter with over 100 votes. The staff that supervised the work on "Happy Acres University" is Jaclyn Bryson, Joe Hutchins, Justine Lomanno, Chris Connolly, Roxanne Lydon, and Kathleen McDowell.

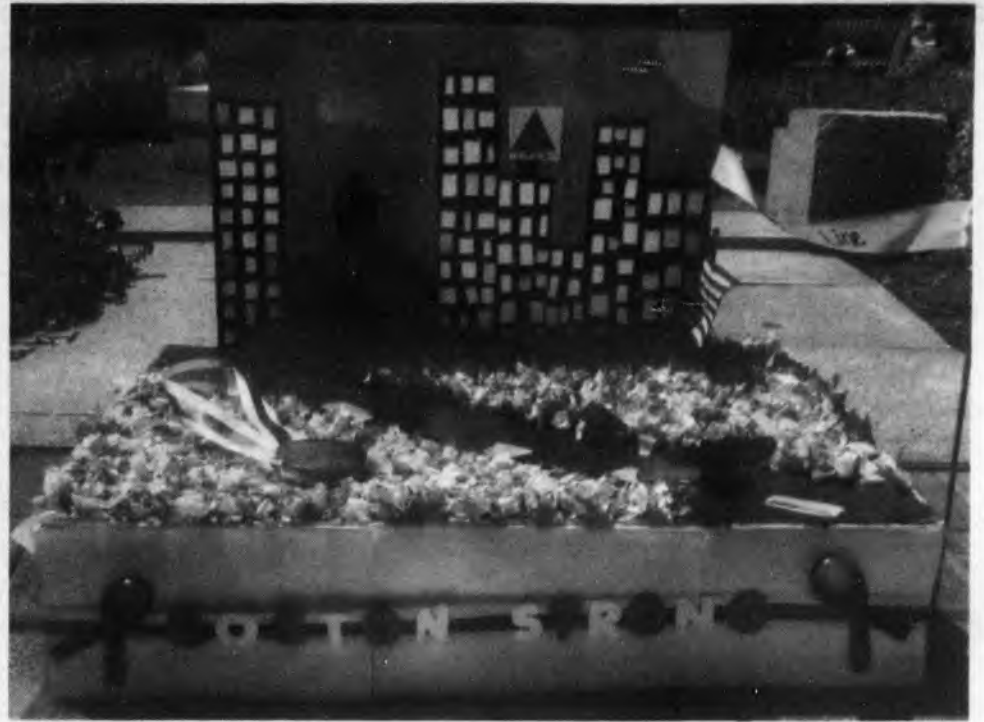

Welch also wanted to thank the local merchants who greatly supported this events by providing donations for the winners. "Their generosity helps to make this event possible." Many thanks for the kind generosity of Balducci's House of Pizza, Mario's Pizzeria, Schoolhouse Pizza, and Super Chef Pizza. They helped make this year's event tremendously successful once again.

On Sunday, August 25, 2013, at approximately 5:55 A.M., Officers Dwayne Goldman and Chris Bulger were dispatched to an East Squantum Street apartment on the report of an abandoned "911" call. The Dispatcher advised responding units that he called the number back and a male at the apartment stated the call was accidental by his girlfriend. The Dispatcher then spoke with the female who said she was having a problem and hung up. Upon arrival, the Officers repeatedly knocked on the door but no one would answer, so the Dispatcher called back and advised the occupants to open the door. Moments later, a female opened the door and blurted out, "I don't want to deal with this right now. I just got the sh$% kicked out of me." She added that there was no longer a problem and she just wanted to go to bed.

LT. DAN MINTON

The female said she did not want to talk to the Police, denied calling "911", that her boyfriend did and he was passed out inside. Officer Goldman told the female that he would need to speak with her boyfriend, so she went inside and yelled at him, "Go out and see the cops. They won't leave until you talk to them. You beat the sh$% out of me and then called 911 so this is what you get." The boyfriend then emerged from the bedroom, sporting a black eye. When asked why he called "911", the boyfriend said he accidentally pushed the button, but then stated that his girlfriend has medical issues without elaborating as to what they are. At that point, the girlfriend said, "I got the sh$% kicked out of me just now." She confirmed that it was her boyfriend who assaulted her.

As Officer Bulger stayed with the boyfriend, Officer Goldman led the girlfriend/victim to another room where he questioned her about the incident. She again denied anything happened (even though she said numerous times that her boyfriend assaulted her) and refused to cooperate. After a few minutes, Officer Goldman was able to convince the girlfriend/victim to give him an account of the incident. She said that her boyfriend arrived home at approximately 5:00 A.M. and was intoxicated. He spent the night in Boston and took a cab home, leaving her car in Boston. She was upset about this and an argument ensued. As the argument escalated, the boyfriend grabbed her by the arm and began to throw her around. He then got on top of her and plunged his knee into her chest. He then put her in a strangle hold for several seconds. She added that she did not lose her breath or consciousness, but the strangle hold and the knee to her chest were very painful. She also stated that he trashed her apartment and tossed her furniture around. Much of the apartment was in disarray and there were some pieces of furniture knocked over.

The girlfriend/victim said that he has done this in the past, as recent as a few weeks ago when he again plunged his knee into her chest and caused what she believes was a "bruised rib." She said that she did not call the Police or seek medical help after that incident. While speaking with her, Officer Goldman noted several red marks on both sides of her neck that appeared to be consistent with having been placed in a strangle hold. She also had a large red mark and scratches on her arm that appeared consistent with having been grabbed and pushed around. She admitted that she punched, scratched and bit her boyfriend during the scuffle as she tried to get out of the strangle hold. Based on the victim's statement and physical evidence available, Officer Goldman advised the victim that he would be placing her boyfriend under arrest for domestic assault and battery. At that point, she adamantly stated that she did not want him arrested and that she would not press charges. The Officer advised her that he would be arrested and charged anyway. The victim then refused to give her personal information other than her full name. She also refused to allow the Officer to take photos of her injuries. She also refused any medical treatment and stated if she wanted to go to the hospital she would take herself. When asked if she wanted an emergency restraining order, she said no and then asked her boyfriend could just stay there and sleep it off. Officer Goldman then approached the boyfriend, a 34 year old Quincy resident, that he was under arrest, which led to his girlfriend yelling out that she wanted "nothing to do with this." At that point, the boyfriend/suspect lifted up his arm and showed a bite mark on his left bicep. The Officer believed that the injury was consistent with a defensive wound from somebody being held in a strangle hold attempting to break free. Before he entered the cruiser for transport, the suspect asked why he was under arrest him instead of his girlfriend. The Officer reiterated all the evidence that pointed to him being the aggressor. The suspect then asked for the Officer's name and badge number, which he gave verbally and added that would be on the arrest report. Nice Work!

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IN THIS SCENARIO?

Due to recent events which occurred outside the City of Quincy, namely the kidnapping and murder of a young woman in South Boston and the recent assault in an elevator in Boston, I decided to add a scenario with my article for a few weeks. This column is aimed at addressing what citizens could do under a wide range of threatening circumstances. Most Important - There is no perfect answer to each situation, since there are so many variables. Additionally, this is not a complete list - there are so many incidents that occur daily across the nation. This is more to make readers think about what they might do if in one of these predicaments. Hopefully, family members, friends and co-workers will talk about this article, go over scenarios and come up with additional ideas. These recommendations are more to consider your options in the unlikely chance that this could happen to you. As a parent, I have reviewed these scenarios with my family. Although disconcerting, failure to educate children (of all ages) with options and actions would be something that no parent would want to experience. So the first point that I want to stress is that there are so many people today walking around with headphones on or with their head down continuously texting, never looking up - totally unaware of their surroundings and unable to recognize a threat. People need to use all their senses and their common sense to recognize a potential threat, even if it is based on a "bad feeling" or when the "hair goes up on the nape of your neck." Here is the third scenario:

Scenario #3: It's late at night and you are alone waiting for the elevator. Is it better to wait for the elevator or just take the steps? Stick with the elevator. Stairwells are bad places to be alone in and it is the perfect crime spot because it is usually secluded and sound proof. So, as the elevator door opens, you see the occupant(s) and you get a bad feeling, or a sense or a hunch that you are in danger if you walk inside. You think to yourself that you are being foolish because there is nothing solid to support your concerns and you don't want to insult someone by not getting in with them. Listen to any of these built-in psychological tools; your hunches, your suspicions, your intuitions, your inner sense. Do not get in - tell them to go ahead - that you are waiting for your husband, etc. Don't feel bad about hurting their feelings or insulting them by your actions. It is always good to have your cell phone at the ready or even talk with someone advising them where you are and have them walk/talk you out of the building to your car. If you are really aware of your surroundings, know where the fire alarms and AEDs are, since activation will bring the Police.

Twin Rivers President and CEO Scott Chatlin said the company chose to help fund the renovations at Fore River Field after being contacted by Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall.

"He asked us to do something in the community. We decided to do this one because it's very close to our site. We're less than a half-mile away, if that, and we were very excited to do something in the community close to the plant," Chatlin said. "It's mainly for the safety of the kids so they're able to stand in a safe area and not get a foul ball to the head."

"We're absolutely thrilled to have a partner like Twin Rivers involved in the ball field here in Quincy Point," Croall added. "It's obviously an upgrade to the facility. It's great for the kids and the baseball community. We're grateful as a community to have corporate citizens step up and help us deliver the enhancements to the ball field."

(We Don't Need To) See You In September

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Summertime is over, and it's time to face the fall. Hopefully, your family has enjoyed a nice vacation and you've had your share of fun in the sun. You may even reminisce about the popular song, "See You in September," which was written by Sid Wayne and Sherman Edwards and made memorable by The Happenings in 1966.

As children, teenagers, and young adults return to school, now is a good time for you to take a look at the books, too - whether that means starting your retirement planning, making sure your retirement plans are on track, or taking the plunge and applying for Social Security retirement benefits.

But just because you have Social Security business and retirement matters to tend to does not mean you need to fight the traffic and trudge into a busy government office. We don't need to see you (in person) in September. That's because whether you're working on your retirement planning or ready to retire, you can do everything from the comfort of your home or office computer at www.socialsecurity.gov.

If you've been to our website before, you'll notice that the new homepage is even better. We've revised the homepage and made it clearer and easier to use. You'll now find what you want, without the need to read through a lot of links.

If you're starting to think about a retirement that is in the far-off future, a good place to begin is with Social Security's Benefits Planners at www.socialsecurity.gov/planners. You can use the planners to help you understand your Social Security protection as you plan your financial future. In fact, you can learn about survivors and disability benefits as well as retirement benefits. No matter how new you may be to the working world, it's never too early to begin planning for a sound financial future.

For those of you with more years of work under your belt, get a more precise look at what your benefits will be with Social Security's Retirement Estimator at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator. The Estimator makes use of your reported wages from past years and projects your current earnings into the future to give you an instant, personalized estimate of your future benefits. You can change the variables, such as date of retirement and future earnings estimates, to see what you can expect in different scenarios.

If you're ready to say goodbye to the daily grind of working and you're ready to apply for Social Security retirement benefits, it's exciting to know that you can apply from the comfort of your home or office in as little as 15 minutes. Once you complete the online application for benefits, in most cases, that's all there is to it. No papers to sign or documents to provide. Give it a try when you're ready to retire at www.socialsecurity.gov/applyonline.

You have better things to do in September than to come see us. Whether you're just beginning your retirement plans, making sure your long-term plans are on track, or you're ready to retire, we don't need to see you in September. Take advantage of our new, easy-to-use website at www.socialsecurity.gov.

One Last Look At The Old QHS From The New QHS

PARTING SHOT - A passerby stops to take a photo of what remains of the old Quincy High School last Thursday evening from the entrance near the new Quincy High School.

you get your license, first girlfriend – maybe your first wife – it's a lot of memories," Pope said. "I live in Whitman, I came down here yesterday and I came here today. I was hoping I could get a couple bricks. My brother and my sister went here. I got three or four lifelong friends I still see today."

The city does plan on making bricks available to the public, but it's unknown how they will be distributed or how many will be available.

Joe Giggey, a 1981 Quincy High graduate, said many of the school's alumni would be interested in the bricks.

"Those were the best of times and the worst of times for a lot of us," Giggey said. "To have a photo and a brick from the old school gives you something to share with family and friends. All the afterschool programs have fundraisers and as alumni most of us want to help, so what better than to have a piece of history, something from our past that we can share with our kids and grandkids."

Not all Quincy High graduates were sad to see the school go.

"It was long overdue. They couldn't save it – it's cheaper taking it down than it is trying to save it. It was just an accident waiting to happen anyway," said 1989 graduate Louis O'Leary. "They already have the new high school, which is state-of-the-art. I haven't been inside but I've heard it's really, really nice. It really helps out knowing that there's a new school."

Others who didn't attend Quincy High also stopped by Coddington Street to witness the demolition. North Quincy High graduate Bruce Crofts, his daughter Heather Crofts Holet, and her children Benjamin and Luke all stopped by to see the school get torn down.

"I go to church here across

DEMOLITION OF the old Quincy High School got underway last Wednesday morning as crews and an excavator began razing the rear of the building.

the street at Bethany Congregational Church, and all my friends went to Quincy High School. It's been quite an experience to see the new high school go up and to see the old one coming down – it's really emotional," Crofts said. "My grandson here is a great fan of big machinery so he thought this giant excavator would be the best thing you could ever do. He doesn't want to do anything else now but watch this excavator – it's a great thing for a three-year-old."

The now-demolished school, which opened its doors to students in 1924, was designed by Cram and Fergusson, a Boston-based architecture firm that also designed Saint Chrysostom Episcopal Church on Linden Street.

The school was the third high school built in Quincy. The first high school opened in 1852 on High School Avenue off of Quincy Avenue and was subsequently demolished. The second high school opened in 1894 on Hancock Street, and is now how home to Central Middle School. That school will close sometime this school year when the new Central opens just north on Hancock Street. The 1924 high school was built because the previous building proved to small.

LATER ON WEDNESDAY, demolition crews moved to the front of the old high school as on-lookers watched from a sidewalk on Coddington Street.

"The 1920s was a period of outstanding population growth," said Ed Fitzgerald, executive director of the Quincy Historical Society. "I think it simply outgrew Central."

The old Quincy High was expanded twice after it opened. The first addition, connected to rear side of the original building, opened in 1953. The Vocational - Technical School opened in 1967, originally as a separate school before it was incorporated into Quincy High. The 1953 addition was torn down in 2008 and the Vo-Tech was razed a year later to make way for the new Quincy High.

The new Quincy High School opened in 2010, and the old school was closed. The city studied the feasibility of preserving the school, but a report filed by Public Buildings Director Gary Cuniff said renovations needed before the building could be reopened would exceed $50 million. Demolition of the school and capping a wall of the new school will cost $1.6 million; a $1.5 million bond to landscape the site and convert into a green area with parking spaces is pending in the City Council.

After old Quincy High closed, it was chosen as a set for the Kevin James film "Here Comes the Boom," which shot there in the spring of 2011.

Report Out On Wollaston Center Redevelopment

Vision Includes Convenient, Diverse Transit-Friendly, Neighborhood

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The final report detailing the potential and suggested framework for the redevelopment of Wollaston Center is now available on the City's website and outlines key recommendations from the Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) in conjunction with the City to revive the center.

Over the last six months the City along with the MAPC and residents worked together to identify a vision for the station area, develop land use and zoning recommendations, complete a market analysis, and suggest transportation improvements.

The report states that the overall vision from the residents, businesses, and property owners in Wollaston Center was to maintain a convenient, walk-able, transit-friendly, and diverse neighborhood while adding new housing options and businesses to enliven the atmosphere of the center.

The key recommendations, that would help build upon the core concept of having a transit-oriented development, include land use and zoning changes transportation changes, and public realm improvements.

"The community's involvement in the visioning process was an absolutely integral part of this report and will continue to be so as we move forward with the revitalization of Wollaston Center," said Ward 5 City Councillor Kirsten Hughes. "Through this work, we have a great menu of options and that's the right place to start."

For the land uses and zoning the report suggest that the city update zoning requirements that provide

Furnace Brook Restoration Begins

The restoration of sections of the Furnace Brook, including debris removal, wall repair, and ultimately the dredging of sediment, is now underway as part of a flood-relief package included in Mayor Thomas Koch's Capital Improvement Plan.

The work is designed to provide maximum water-flow capacity within the Brook, which is a primary reason for flooding problems in a number of West Quincy neighborhoods, city officials said.

According to city officials, the project is the first wholesale restoration of the Brook in a number of years, and will contribute to broader flood relief efforts now underway in several neighborhoods.

The Furnace Brook work is part of a larger package of mitigation measures that includes new tide gates, new and larger drainage systems, and other relief measures amounting to more than a $10 million portion of the Capital Improvement Plan.

Work is now almost complete for a drainage improvement project this year in North Quincy, and one is scheduled to begin shortly in the Spence Avenue area of Quincy Point.

The package is the culmination of engineering and design plans first discussed in the aftermath of devastating floods of March 2010, in which many homes — especially in West Quincy — were flooded due to record rainfall.

flexibility for developers while supporting the vision of the community, reduce minimum lot size requirements for multi-family and mixed-use development, reduce the building setbacks, and reduce parking requirements for residential development.

The MAPC suggests that to encourage transportation use in the center the city should reduce street widths on portions of Beale Street and Greenwood Avenue to create a wider sidewalk and on-street bike facilities, improve pedestrian crosswalks and intersections and mid-block locations, and undertake a comprehensive parking study for Wollaston Center to determine on and off street capacity, utilization, and turnover to be able to develop parking management strategies.

Suggestions to improve upon the public realm include branding Wollaston Center as the unique and diverse neighborhood business district that it is, extend the existing streetscape treatments on Hancock and Beale St. to areas of the center where those treatments don't exist.

Each recommendation is outlined and described in greater detail throughout the report which can be found via the City's website at www.quincyma.gov. The frameworks outlined in the report represent a starting point and not a final plan.

"Wollaston Center is vital to our City's future, and this is a critical starting point to capitalizing on its tremendous future potential. Just as we did with Quincy Center, we will be exploring all of our options and working closely with the community to transform vision to reality in the months ahead," said Mayor Tom Koch. "I wish to thank Planning Director Dennis Harrington, Director of Transportation Planning Kristina Johnson and the MAPC for their work on this important project."

City Starts Expanded Catch Basin Cleaning

The Department of Public Works has launched a new, expanded program to clear all 9,300 of the City's storm drains and catch basins starting this week in Squantum and moving city-wide, Mayor Thomas Koch announces.

The program specifically targeting all of the City's storm drains for cleaning expands on past DPW efforts to clean drains prior to major storm events. The sediment and debris that builds up in roadside drains can play a serious role in pooling water and even flooding in some areas of the City.

The initiative comes as an aggressive flood relief program in a number of City neighborhoods is continuing citywide as part of Mayor Koch's Capital Improvement Plan.

"There are no silver bullets when it comes flood relief and drainage, but we are making real progress in a number of neighborhoods, and a practical initiative like this can make a real difference," Koch said.

Residents are asked to make every effort possible to avoid parking on top of drains when the project is scheduled for their neighborhood. The DPW will use message boards and the City's website, www.quincyma.gov to provide notification.

Residents with questions or concerns about the work are asked to call the office of Public Works Commissioner Daniel Raymondi at 617-376-1959.

Council Approves 180-Unit S. Quincy Apartment Building

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council unanimously approved a proposed six-story, 180-unit South Quincy apartment building after being told the building would have a minimal traffic impact on surrounding streets.

Known as Zero Penn, the new building will be constructed in the wedge-shaped parcel of land near the intersection of Burgin Street and Penn Street, in the vicinity of the Quincy Adams MBTA station. Boston-based developer Cabot, Cabot & Forbes first pitched the project to the council in June. The council, acting in its capacity as Quincy's special permit granting authority, didn't vote on the project after Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci requested additional information on the project, including a more thorough traffic study.

Engineering firm Tetra Tech conducted a new traffic study in July in response to those concerns. Part of the study looked at nine intersections along the corridor running from the intersection of Burgin Parkway and Granite Street, down Burgin Parkway, and then up Centre Street to its intersection with Brooks Avenue. According to traffic engineer Mike Hall, the study found the 180-unit building would have a minute impact on all the intersections they looked at.

"The traffic increases from the project will be pretty small, one percent or less than one percent at all the intersections, with the exception of the Penn Street/Burgin Parkway intersection, which is essentially the site drive, where the traffic increases from the project would be only two percent in peak hours," Hall said.

According to the traffic study, the 180-unit development at Zero Penn would add 70 vehicle trips during the weekday a.m. peak hour, 88 during the weekday p.m. peak hour, and 92 during the Saturday peak hour.

The study also looked into traffic generated by the Lowe's store, located across the street from the Zero Penn site.

When Lowe's went through the permitting process with the council in 2008, they were asked to factor into their traffic study

Gerard Ceurvels, Thomas McGovern New Fire Lts.

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Firefighters Gerard Ceurvels and Thomas McGovern were both promoted to lieutenants during a swearing-in ceremony on Sept. 4 at City Hall.

"It is a great day certainly for the fire service in Quincy, we have an outstanding department, but also in particular to both the McGovern and Ceurvels families, both long serving firefighter tradition families," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "This is a very, very meaningful day. I know this is a great day, and an important day and it's a happy day for both of these outstanding firefighters, and both of these outstanding families."

After being sworn in by City Clerk Joe Shea, both men received their new badges; Ceurvels received his new badge from his wife Jean, and McGovern's son Tommy presented him with his new badge.

"The rank of lieutenant, company officer, is a very difficult job. You're the first company to make the call of whether it's offense or defense and how the incident is going to progress, so a lot is on their shoulders in that position," said Fire Chief Joseph Barron. "I congratulate the families. This is a very proud day, and a very proud day for the Quincy Fire Department."

Ceurvels, who has been with the department for almost 30 years, said the new promotion brings a renewed interest to the job that he has always enjoyed doing.

"I've always loved and enjoyed this job," Ceurvels said after being sworn in. "The new position brings a renewed interest and I am looking forward to it."

Ceurvels comes from a family of firefighters, his father was a Boston firefighter, his brother, Joseph Ceurvels, is a Quincy Fire Captain and his sister is a lieutenant with the Boston Fire Department as a dispatcher.

"I come from a long line of firefighters. My dad was a Boston firefighter until his tragic death in the line of duty at the young age of 48," said Ceurvels. "He left behind my mom, four boys and two girls, and from that day on I had a burning desire to become a firefighter."

Ceurvels worked with Barron in North Quincy and now works as a part of the fire prevention team.

"Jerry Ceurvels has been on the department for 30 years and we worked together for many years, down in North Quincy in Engine 2. We worked together, so I've seen his work, he does an outstanding job as a firefighter," said Barron. "For the past year or so he's been filling in at fire prevention and gained a lot of credentials in that area doing inspections and doing fire investigations, and we are going to try and keep him there for a little while longer. He does an outstanding job and he is going to be an excellent lieutenant."

Although Barron said he isn't as familiar with McGovern's work he said he has heard nothing but good things about him from his deputy chief.

"Tom McGovern has been on the department for 11 years and I haven't had as much of an opportunity to work closely with him, but I've seen him at fires, he does an outstanding job," said Barron. "I've spoken to his deputy chief and company officers and they all have great praise for the work he does, he's been an excellent firefighter and he's going to make an excellent lieutenant, so we are very happy and proud of him to have made this accomplishment."

McGovern, whose father is a retired Boston firefighter and grandfather was a retired Boston fire captain, has been with the department for 11 years.

"They were my inspiration for becoming a firefighter," said McGovern. "I feel privileged to be promoted. This is just a tremendous honor."

• On Sept. 27, 1540, in Rome, the Society of Jesus -- a Roman Catholic missionary organization -- receives its charter from Pope Paul III. The first Jesuits took vows of poverty and chastity, and made plans for the conversion of millions to Catholicism.

• On Sept. 23, 1875, Billy the Kid, born William Henry McCarty, is arrested for the first time after stealing a basket of laundry. He broke out of jail and roamed the American West, eventually earning a reputation as an outlaw and murderer, with a rap sheet that allegedly included 21 murders.

• On Sept. 29, 1907, Gene Autry, perhaps the greatest "singing cowboy" of all time, is born in Tioga, Texas. While Autry was no cowboy, he was a genuine Westerner who had lived on a ranch. His lasting fame came from films and his first movie, "In Old Santa Fe," eventually was followed by nearly 100 other films.

• On Sept. 28, 1918, a Liberty Loan parade in Philadelphia prompts a huge outbreak of the flu epidemic in the city. By the time the epidemic ended, an estimated 30 million people were dead worldwide. The most likely origin of the 1918 flu pandemic was a bird or farm animal in the American Midwest.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A real photo postcard view of a demonstration of man-lifting kites at the Harvard Aero Meet at Atlantic in September 1910, 103 years ago this week. The 500-acre aviation field was on leased land around today's Kennedy Senior Center on East Squantum Street. Although kites are mostly thought of as toys they played an important role in the development of powered aircraft. The first device flown by the Wright Brothers at Kill Devil Hill in 1900 was a double-winged kite that they later added a motor to and flew in their first powered flight three years later. Shown here flying from kites is Samuel Perkins of Boston who was an advocate of using man-lifting kites to carry field observers for overhead reconnoitering and to carry life-sized dummies aloft as practice targets for sharpshooters seated in aero planes. This air meet featured a variety of early flying machines and was only the second held in the U.S. It attracted thousands of visitors to Quincy for over a week. Delahunt New D.A.

By SCOTT JACKSON

William D. Delahunt, a 33-year-old Quincy attorney, was sworn in as Norfolk County district attorney after being appointed to the position by Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Delahunt replaced another Quincy resident, George Burke, as the county's top prosecutor. Burke resigned the post to return to private practice.

A former Ward 5 councillor and legal counsel to the Quincy Police Department, Delahunt served three years as a state representative before being named district attorney. He vowed to remain active in the Quincy community in his new post.

"Just because I have been appointed district attorney does not mean I have lost interest in the City of Quincy," Delahunt said. "I was born here. I have lived here all my life and God willing I always will be here. I have an active interest in what happens in this city, not only as a district attorney but as a citizen and taxpayer."

Delahunt had also been a candidate for councillor-at-large in the upcoming city election, but said he would drop out of the race following his appointment as district attorney.

Burke's resignation ended his 16-year career in public service, which also included a stint at Ward 5 councillor. He extended his best wishes to his successor.

"Bill Delahunt is a very fine gentleman," Burke said. "He is an outstanding attorney and I wish him the very, very best in the job as district attorney of Norfolk County because it is a difficult one with the burden of the prisons and the increase in crime in our cities."

Burke said he was looking forward to his return to private practice and to "some piece and quiet in my life - the first, really, since I got out of law school."

Delahunt called his predecessor "a man of high integrity," adding that Burke was always "fair and direct in his dealings with me."

NIGHT BROADCASTS POSSIBLE FOR WJDA

On the eve of its 28th anniversary, radio station WJDA was considering adding nighttime broadcasts.

The station launched on Sept. 13, 1947 and had operated from dawn to dusk since then. Jay Asher, son of late WJDA founder James Dudley Asher, said he wanted to be able to broadcast around-the-clock.

"We'd like to be a full-time station," Asher said. "It would give us the chance to provide local basketball and hockey coverage, for instance. We want listeners and we have to give them a reason to tune in."

Expansion to nighttime broadcasting would require an engineering study and approval from the Federal Communications Commission.

In addition to nighttime broadcasts, Asher said WJDA could soon add a third sister station. WESX, based in Salem, was already partnered with WJDA.

MOSWETUSET HUMMOCK WORK PLANNED

Sen. Arthur Tobin announced that the historic Moswetuset Hummock would be restored as part of a $968,000 revitalization project on Quincy Shore Drive.

The restoration work planned there included improvements to a trail, construction of a new wooden bridge, tree and shrub planting, and creation of a new 10-car parking lot.

Added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1970, the two-acre site had been the summer seat of Chickatabot, leader of the Moswetuset Tribe, and was the location where Chickatabot first met Myles Standish in 1621 to discuss trade between Plymouth Colony and the tribe.

Enjoyed Column On Mike Bellotti

As a political junkie who got his start in politics back in 1970 working in Frank Bellotti's failed gubernatorial run, I remember well the campaign lessons I learned back then as a young college student interested in politics.

I enjoyed last week's Son Beams column on Michael Bellotti and his career in politics as both a state representative and county sheriff. I think in 1970, Frank was younger than Michael is right now and I can say I have now campaigned for two generations of Bellottis both father and son.

If he ran for statewide office, I would be there for him but as he said, he is much more than just an elected official. He is a husband, father, son, and brother first. Family counts first. We need more politicians talking like that. Michael Bellotti like his father is a real person. I am proud to call Michael and his father my friend. Part of me only wishes, I could be 22 years old again working inside that 1970 Bellotti campaign headquarters in Dewey Square Boston.

Thanks Rob for a great Son Beams column.

Book Talk: Joe Moakley's Journey At Crane Public Library Sept. 17

The public is invited to the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy, on Tuesday, Sept. 17 at 7 p.m. for an engaging presentation about the first biography of popular, long-serving congressman Joe Moakley.

In this book, author Mark Robert Schneider charts one of the most unusual transformations in American politics. A native son of South Boston, Moakley was an effective and influential House member, whose greatest influence and legacy is, paradoxically, far from home in the fields of El Salvador and Central America.

Garden Club Celebrates Anne Hutchinson Birthday Anniversary

For the past four years, in celebration of Anne Hutchinson's summer birthday, a floral arranger from the Wollaston Garden Club has created a hanging wreath design for the memorial sign at Anne Hutchinson Square at the corner of Newport Avenue, Beale Street, and Grandview Avenue in Wollaston.

This year's design is a monogram wreath, created in a pave' design style, by club past president, Ruth Griffin, who is also club Special Projects chair and studies floral design with a Sogetsu School of Ikebana teacher. Griffin has designed many times for the Museum of Fine Art's Art in Bloom. She explained her wreath design in this way. "The square oasis represents the site; enclosed in the square is a large 'H' and a smaller 'A' which symbolize the initials of Anne Hutchinson. The floral monogram pattern was chosen for its visual impact and simple lines. The contrasting color poms were selected for their texture, size, and shape. Each one was individually inserted in the oasis to clearly spell out the initials and perhaps attract some attention to this historic site." The sunny, windy, and dry conditions of Anne Hutchinson Square, along with the summer heat, make this a very challenging project.

Members of the Wollaston Garden Club have long been intrigued by the story of Anne Hutchinson and her family's farm in the Wollaston Hill area of Quincy in the 1600's. This summer would have been the 422nd birthday of Hutchinson. In 2006 the garden club created, and still maintains this garden dedicated to Hutchinson on the hillside, with the Roxbury puddingstone marker that commemorates "the place where she tarried..." in her exile from Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1638.

Wollaston Garden Club floral designer Ruth Griffin, captured the spirit of Anne Hutchinson in this monogram wreath design, using pink and chartreuse mums. Designing a wreath for this hillside site presents many challenges, including size and proportion. This summer, the heat and rain during July prevented Griffin from installing until August. Garden Club designers welcome challenges as a way to improve their floral design skills.

Two other civic groups from Portsmouth, Rhode Island and White Plains, New York, share with the garden club annually news and programs commemorating Hutchinson's life. Club president, Jan Clifford commented "Wollaston Garden Club members are inspired by this strong, determined colonial woman, who as a midwife gardener had a farm and a home, right here in Wollaston."

Family Favorite Easy Sandwiches

There is a program on the food network where they make all kinds of delicious sandwiches or Panini.

I've watched it once or twice, and although my family enjoys a Panini once in a while, the sandwiches that I and my family like are much more simple.

The first one is scrambled hamburger and egg that my mother used to make and we all still enjoy it. The amount you use depends on how many you have to make. If I make it for myself I use the equivalent of a patty and one egg.

HAMBURGER AND EGG

1/4 to 1/2 of ground beef or turkey
1 tablespoon of either olive or any favorite
1 egg slightly beaten
Salt and pepper to taste

In a small skillet and hot oil, sauté the meat until almost done. Add the egg and mix until cooked. We usually have it on toast if it's for breakfast or a roll, but however way it is served, it is such a great combo.

TOMATO SAUCE WITH EGG

3-4 tablespoons tomato sauce
1 egg

This is a real favorite also, simply heat the sauce in a frying pan and add the beaten egg, mixing until cooked. Sprinkle grated cheese if you prefer and serve it with any kind of roll or bread.

TUNA SALAD

1 can Italian tuna
1 can Bumble Bee tuna with olive oil
1 stalk celery (cut in small pieces)
Enough mayonnaise for a smooth mixture

Mix the two tuna fish cans together. Add the celery and the mayonnaise and mix until the mixture is the way you want it. I usually start with 2 tablespoons mayonnaise and then add more if needed. Because not everyone likes onion, I serve them on the side.

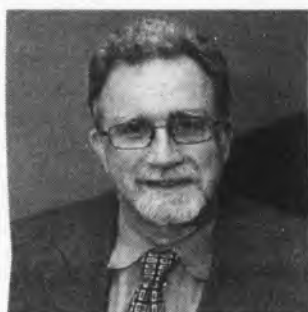

FRESH TOMATO AND MAYONNAISE SANDWICH

This is the easiest and it's only good with a fresh garden tomato. Simply slice the tomato and then add the mayonnaise. It seems to taste the best on white bread.

Granite Telecommunications Raises More Than $15,000 For Charities

Quincy-based Granite Telecommunications and its employees have had a long tradition of supporting worthy charities. Recently the telecom solutions provider reported it raised more than $15,000 in August for a handful of nonprofit organizations.

Through its weekly "Jeans Day" fundraising drive held on Fridays, Granite employees are allowed to wear jeans to work for a $3 donation to a selected charity. All the money raised is then matched by the company.

On Aug. 9, Granite raised $3,217.00 for the Bright Horizons Foundation for Children. Based in Brentwood, TN, the foundation provides aid to children in crisis.

On Aug. 16, Granite raised $3,250.00 for the Adaptive Sports Partners of the North Country, a Franconia, NH, nonprofit that provide year-round opportunities in sports and recreation for persons with physical or developmental disabilities.

On Aug. 23, Granite raised $3,200.00 for People Acting in Community Endeavors (PACE), a New Bedford-based organization

In addition to Jeans Day fundraising, Granite's newly open Florida office raised a combined $6,219.00 from two "dress down" days held in August. The money was donated to The Lord's Place, a charity that provides aid to homeless residents in West Palm Beach, Florida.

the impact a retail development at the Zero Penn site would have. According to Hall, the 2008 study found that the Lowe's and a retail development at the Zero Penn site would generate a total of 249 trips during the weekday a.m. peak hour, 614 trips during the p.m. peak hour, and 1,159 trips during the Saturday peak hour.

Hall then compared those projected numbers with actual numbers they observed at the Lowe's this summer and the number of vehicle trips the 180-unit apartment building would generate. According to Hall's new study, the Lowe's and the apartment building would generate a total of 201 trips during the weekday morning peak hour, 275 trips during the weekday p.m. peak hour, and 442 during the Saturday peak hour.

"The upshot of that is the mitigation design we did for the Lowe's was based on these much higher numbers — the lane arrangement you see out there, the double left turn lane going into the site, the improvements down at Burgin and Centre we're all designed for these higher numbers," Hall said, referring to the $2 million worth of mitigation work Lowe's was required to fund as a condition of receiving their permit.

"Now with Lowe's not generating as much and this project generating a lot less trips than a retail [development], there is adequate capacity in the corridor. This residential project will not change the level of service in the future ten years out."

Cabot, Cabot & Forbes did agree to undertake some mitigation work as part of the Zero Penn project. Most notably, they will install a new pedestrian crosswalk at the east side of the intersection of Burgin Parkway and Penn Street, where there currently isn't one. The crosswalk will have new handicap ramps leading into it, and the median dividing Burgin Parkway will be made into a pedestrian 'refuge' so slower walkers could stop there if needed. The crosswalk will also be designed to be highly visible to drivers, with improved signage and plantings.

Additional mitigation work will be undertaken at two Centre Street intersections. The intersection of Centre and Liberty Streets will have new crosswalks installed, and vandalized signs will be fixed. And the traffic signal at the intersection of Centre Street and Brooks Avenue will be upgraded. Also, a new gate will be installed at the end of the Lowe's property to prevent people from using Penn Street to bypass traffic on Burgin Parkway.

Palmucci said the $100,000 worth of mitigation work the developer will fund would go a long way to helping improve pedestrian safety along the Burgin Parkway corridor.

"Clearly there are problems down there. Clearly we need to do something to fix it, or a lot to fix it. I think that what you've proposed here and what your experts have seen and determined will go a long way towards making conditions in the area better," said Palmucci, who represents South Quincy on the council.

"I'm pleased with it. I'm very happy. I think the analysis and the recommendations for improvements down there will go a long way towards making the intersection of Burgin Parkway and Centre Street safer for pedestrians as well as hopefully improving traffic flow."

The council did make one amendment to the permit. Councillor Joe Finn proposed the amendment, which requires the developer to pay $1,000 per unit into the city's affordable housing fund once a building permit is issued and an additional $7,000 per unit once occupancy permits are issued. Since the building will have 180 units, the developer would have to pay $1.44 million into the fund.

Cabot, Cabot & Forbes is still in the process of finalizing the drawings for the building, according to project manager Caleb Manchester. Construction could start as early as the first quarter of 2014.

In June, the developer said the building would cost approximately $36 million to construct. Zero Penn's studio units could rent for $1,600 or $1,700 a month, one bedroom apartments would cost between $2,000 and $2,100 a month, and two bedroom units would cost somewhere in the mid-$2,000 range a month to rent.

PAVING THE WAY

One trend surging in popularity is the widespread use of pavé-set diamonds in diamond engagement rings. As the name implies, "pavé" (which is the past participle of the French verb "to pave") involves setting small diamonds so closely together that they visually meld together. As a result, much like cobblestones arranged on an old city street, there seems to be a continuous band of gemstones. In actuality, each diamond is separated by a small amount of metal, but the gemstones fit so closely together that the separation of metal appears invisible to the naked eye. Jewelers use this design to great effect by surrounding a diamond solitaire with pavé diamonds to make it appear larger.

When it comes to the symbol of love you'll wear for a lifetime, many brides-to-be choose antique-styled rings. Closely set diamonds in a pave setting reflects enduring quality and lasting elegance. Lyons Turning Mill Program Sept. 19 At Historical Society

Al Bina and Tom Bonomi of the Quincy Granite and Quarry Workers Museum will present the story of the Lyons Turning Mill at an afternoon Quincy Historical Society program, Thursday, Sept. 19, at 2 p.m. at the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

Built in 1893 by James Lyons, the mill—as its name suggests—used giant lathes to turn granite and other kinds of stone into columns, spheres, and various works of art. One of the largest facilities of its kind, the building was 200 feet long and 90 feet wide.

A railroad track ran through the building and a 20-ton overhead crane moved both raw stone and finished product. The stone fashioned there appeared in buildings throughout the country, including in the original Penn Station in New York City.

Today, the ruins of the mill's stone walls are among the last and most visible remains of a high point in Quincy's granite history.

Al Bina and Tom Bonomi will take the audience through an illustrated history of the mill and also detail their current efforts to preserve the Lyons Turning Mill remains. They'll also give an overview of the Granite and Quarry Workers Museum.

Everyone is welcome. There is no charge for admission.

Lynch 'Town Hall' On Syria Tonight

tion in Syria. Lynch, who represents Quincy in Congress as the U.S. representative from the 8th District, encouraged citizens to attend the forum and speak on the debate regarding the use of military force against Syria.

President Barack Obama was scheduled to speak from the Oval Office at the White House Tuesday evening to outline the administration's case for military force in Syria.

According to the Administration, the Assad regime has killed more than 1,400 people in attacks that have included the use of chemical weapons. The President is asking Congress to support a limited strike against Syria in response.

In a phone interview Tuesday from Washington, D.C., Lynch said he is "adamantly opposed" to military force in Syria. He said he will be listening intently as the President makes his case to the American people Tuesday night.

"I am adamantly opposed to the use of force on Syria. But I will let the President make his case. If the vote were held today (on a resolution for military intervention), I would vote no," Lynch said.

The congressman said it appears a majority constituents in his district do not support the use of military force against Syria.

He said he attended Sunday's Jamie Cochrane Memorial Road Race in Quincy and "people are very supportive" of his position of no force. "It was a wide-cross section of people and the sentiment was strongly anti-force," Lynch said.

Lynch said "surgical military strikes" would set a difficult precedent for the U.S.

"One reason I oppose these strikes is because of the precedent it would establish. The other nations around the world get to take a pass and it solely becomes the responsibility of the U.S. to intervene. It's a very difficult standard to uphold. We shouldn't allow the rest of the world to get off the hook and put their feet up," Lynch said.

Lynch, who has visited Syria, does not think military strikes would influence either party involved in that country's civil war.

"Neither of these parties will be influenced by a surgical strike. I don't think it accomplishes what we would hope for. They are more likely to act with great retaliation (if the U.S. strikes.)

"What we need is UN peacekeepers on the ground to stop this war," he added.

Police 'Molly' Drug Awareness

Following the spike in overdoses at the Marina Bay nightclub, the Police Department started an undercover investigation. During the last three weekends in August, police arrested eight individuals for allegedly selling MDMA, including one person who was arrested twice. Some of those arrested were also purported to be in possession of cocaine, Adderall, and marijuana. In addition to those already charged, Keenan said the department plans to summons three more individuals on similar charges.

In the wake of the arrests, the department plans on starting the awareness campaign to alert bar owners and staff to the dangers of MDMA and what to watch for if they suspect customers are selling or using the drug on site.

"We haven't seen it in other places yet, but I'm not naïve enough to think it's not out there," Keenan said.

Following the arrests Keenan and City Clerk Joseph Shea met with the operator of the Ocean Club and the club's landlord, Flagship Marina Bay. During the meeting they reached an agreement to cancel the club's two remaining events — a private event scheduled for tomorrow (Friday) and a concert by Dutch DJ Afrojack scheduled for Sept. 20.

"They were very cooperative and agreed to shut-down for the rest of the season out of concern for public safety," Keenan said.

It's unlikely that the club will open again next year, as Flagship Marina Bay is planning on converting the Ocean Club's site into a new residential and retail development. The city expects that construction to begin in the spring, before the nightclub opens for next summer's season.

"The city fully expects that construction on the new luxury housing complex at the site of the nightclub will be underway next year, meaning that the club has in all likelihood seen its final days," mayoral spokesman Chris Walker said. "In the event that the club does wish to open next year, the issue will be revisited by the city."

Keenan said he plans to meet with Ocean Club's manager, if the club does open in 2014, to review security and safety procedures.

Quincy Police are still investigating the incidents at the Ocean Club, Keenan said, but it does not appear club management was complicit in the illegal drug use alleged to have taken place.

The chief said he was prepared to bring the club's operators before the License Board, if needed.

According to Shea, who is chairman of the License Board, Ocean Club's owners will likely be brought before the board on either Nov. 26 or Dec. 10. Shea explained that in November of each year the state's Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC) sends out renewal forms to all establishments with liquor licenses. The License Board then has to approve each one.

Most of those renewals are done en masse, but Shea said the board does look into any licensee that had problems over the past year. He expects the Ocean Club to be among those called for additional review.

"We are going to look at the whole thing," Shea said.

Council Exchanges Land Parcels For $145K In Taxes

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city will take ownership of two parcels of land in Adams Shore after their owner failed to pay more than $145,000 in back taxes.

In a pair of 7-1 votes, the City Council authorized accepting the deeds for the lots at 4 and 19 Crane Rd., from the estate of the late Albert V. Calcagno. The estate owed a total of $145,751 in back property taxes for the two properties. The council vote forgave that debt in exchange for the properties.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest proposed accepting the two parcels, which contain more than 95,000 square feet of space, instead of taking the estate to court for the money or starting the tax foreclosure process. She said the estate would not be able to pay back the taxes, and called the site a blight on the neighborhood that could be improved through the use of Community Preservation Act money.

"The area has become so overgrown with Phragmites (the common reed) - this would become a potential community preservation application next year to address the overgrowth and reclaim that area. The private landowner had previous development plans," Laforest said. "It is a wetland, it's not developable. We've looked at segmenting out maybe a single family home and then open space. We've done some homework on the properties and open space is really the only option and maybe storm water management.

"With what the options are and seeing that we are not going to recoup this bad tax money the only other option was getting the land through the court process. With this I'd rather proceed and work with the Adams Shore Association to see what we can be doing to clean that area up for next season."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee voted against the move, calling it a bad deal for Quincy's taxpayers. He argued that the city should go after the estate for the money owed.

"I think the city has an obligation to collect the moneys owed on the property," McNamee said. "To give them debt forgiveness like this, forgiveness of these taxes due, and for the city to acquire it sounds to me like not a good deal for the taxpayers. I'm not in favor of it. I'm sorry, I hate to get involved in matters of someone else's territory but I still have to vote my conscience and use my best common sense."

City Solicitor Jim Timmins said that estate's only major assets were the two parcels on Crane Road and that the city would end up paying about $5,000 in legal fees if they went to court to foreclose on the property.

Councillor Doug Gutro argued that the city should acquire the property because of its potential for use in flood control.

"When you have an opportunity - especially in some of the low-lying coastal areas, some of the flood prone areas - to pick up a parcel and improve flood storage capacity, I think it's a good thing," Gutro said. "And I think it can be helpful to be strategic about identifying those smaller parcels across the city...and add those to the arsenal of flood control."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, the vice chairman of the city's Community Preservation Committee and a longtime member of that board, added that the city had previously focused on acquiring larger open space areas and not smaller ones like the Crane Road lots.

"We were in the business of acquiring larger sites throughout the city," Coughlin said. "These small sites that are integrated throughout neighborhoods were, as Councillor Gutro noted, not on the radar screen."

The Sept. 3 council meeting was dedicated to the late Stephen J. McGrath, the former city councillor, city solicitor, and most recently Quincy's human resources director, who died Aug. 9 at the age of 59.

"We lost a gem of a man," Council President Michael McFarland said. "Steve shared his skills and his love of city government as a city councillor, city solicitor, and director of human resources. He was the go to person for the councillors and he mentored many of us."

"He was an extraordinary public servant and we will miss him for his friendship, understanding of municipal law, and his kind demeanor and wit. He brought a great deal of common sense and humor to both the city which he loved and the law, which is an unusual trait. It was never personal with Steve. He worked tirelessly with the city's bargaining units to craft the current GIC (Group Insurance Commission) program, saving both the City of Quincy and employees millions of dollars."

"Thank you Steve for a job well done. Our condolences to your wife Jane, and to your brother David and to your sister Pat, and also your friends and colleagues here in government."

Councillor Doug Gutro filed a resolution seeking an update on plans to honor former U.S. Rep. William Delahunt. A lifelong Quincy resident, Delahunt served seven terms on Capitol Hill. He started his political career as Ward 5 city councillor, also serving as a state representative and Norfolk County district attorney.

City Council Briefs

In December 2010, as Delahunt prepared to leave office after not seeking reelection, the council passed a resolution calling for the city to install a plaque honoring him in the council chambers. Gutro sought the update because Weymouth recently dedicated a new road leading to the South-Field development to the former congressman.

"I felt we need to follow through on the commitment we made, which I think is a fitting tribute," Gutro said.

In response City Clerk Joseph Shea said he has contracted with the Hancock Monument Company to create the new plaque. A draft of the plaque for the council to review should be ready by early December at the latest, and the new plaque completed before the renovations to old City Hall are completed.

The council approved an appropriation $99,299.22 to the Fire Department. The money, to be paid from the city's reserve for appropriation/salary increase account, will pay for contractual increases in the new firefighter's contract.

The council accepted $21,200 worth of donations to the Police Department's DARE program. The Copeland Family Foundation and State Street Foundation both donated $10,000 each, Eastern Bank and Fast Food Restaurant d/b/a Dunkin Donuts each donated $500, and the remaining $200 was from various donors for the DARE Camp program.

Looking ahead the council will cover a variety of topics over the next several weeks. On Sept. 16, the public safety committee will meet at 6:30 p.m. to discuss several topics, including medical marijuana. Councillors Doug Gutro, Brad Croall, and Brian Palmucci introduced a resolution during the Sept. 3 meeting requesting that dispensaries wishing to open in Quincy reach a host agreement with the city.

A regular meeting of the council will be held the next week, on Sept. 23.

On Oct. 7, the council will receive a quarterly update on the downtown project during its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tentatively scheduled for 6:30 p.m. that same day is a finance committee meeting to discuss a $1.5 million bond to pay for landscaping the site where the now-demolished Quincy High School was located. The following week, on Oct. 15 or Oct. 16, the downtown committee will likely meet to receive an update resolutions filed by Gutro regarding Adams Green, the Quincy Center MBTA station, and the Quincy Farmers Market.

North Quincy Girls' Soccer Shuts Down Abington, 3-0

By BILL GRIFFIN

From one end of the pitch to the other, it was a strong start for North Quincy's girls soccer team.

Freshman goalie Shan-nan Kennedy was solid and alert in her varsity debut. The defense guided by senior sweeper Arianna Viscione turned aside all serious threats. The midfielders took control midway through the first half, and the forwards peppered the offensive end with consistent threats over the final 60 minutes of the match.

lift the Red Raiders to a 3-0 win over Abington in their non-league opener at Veterans Stadium last week.

"I thought we were a little nervous or sluggish for the first 20 minutes," said coach Paul Bregoli whose club went 14-3-3 and finished second to Scituate in the Patriot League a year ago. "Then we settled down and played a solid match. It was a good start for us."

Although Abington had a territorial edge in the first 20 minutes, there were no great chances because Viscione, a four-year starter and Patriot League All Star, and the defense didn't allow any. Viscione has exceptional anticipation, moves to the ball well and has a strong foot which booms it away from her net. Haley McKay, another four-year starter, and sophomore Julia O'Donnell were also excellent on the back line.

"Arianna runs the show. She accelerates to the ball so well that she stops threats before they get started," said Bregoli. "I also thought Molly Kate Cannon and Sidney Chang played well on defense."

Campo, a Patriot League All Star and two-year starter, and senior captain Abby Smith jump-started the Red Raiders midway through the first half with ball control and short crisp passes in the midfield which turned defense into offense and opened up a glut of chances for Forde and the forwards.

"Campo was very good today, but she'll play better games," said Bregoli. "She is a talent. She's being recruited by Division 1 schools as a junior. Alyx Patey played her first varsity game as a junior and she did a good job in the midfield as well."

Forde, who scored eight goals last year as a sophomore, put North up 1-0 off a fine passing play at the 22:30 mark of the first. Sophomore Marissa McGue made a good cross from the left wing into the middle. Campo settled it and found Forde open in close. Forde finished it with a shot along the ground into the far corner.

Forde upped it to 2-0 minutes later with another finish off a sharp passing combination. Sophomore Ali Coleman made a good

Presidents Open 2013 Campaign With 33-6 Victory

By BILL GRIFFIN

There is good news and there is better news.

Not only did Quincy put up 33 points in an impressive season-opening win, the Presidents put them up against what is traditionally a good defensive team from one of the toughest conferences in the state.

"We're young and I didn't know what to expect. The kids played well. We blocked well at the line of scrimmage and our downfield blocking was also excellent," said coach Bill Reardon about his team's 33-6 non-league decision over Malden Catholic at Veterans Stadium Friday night.

Malden Catholic plays out of the powerful Catholic Conference and the Lancers beat Quincy, 15-12 last year, holding the Presidents to their lowest point total in a game all season. They are usually a stingy group which makes Quincy's win impressive.

"They play good defense, and they had some big kids, but we were physical with them and we cleared good holes," said Reardon.

Tailback Alex Alexandre led the way for the Presidents with 130 yards on 16 carries and two touchdowns. Junior quarterback James Lam had 95 yards in six tries, including a 55-yard touchdown run in the first half. Junior Kenny Garcia scored on a 15-yard run and senior Matt Kozlowski returned an interception 43 yards for another score.

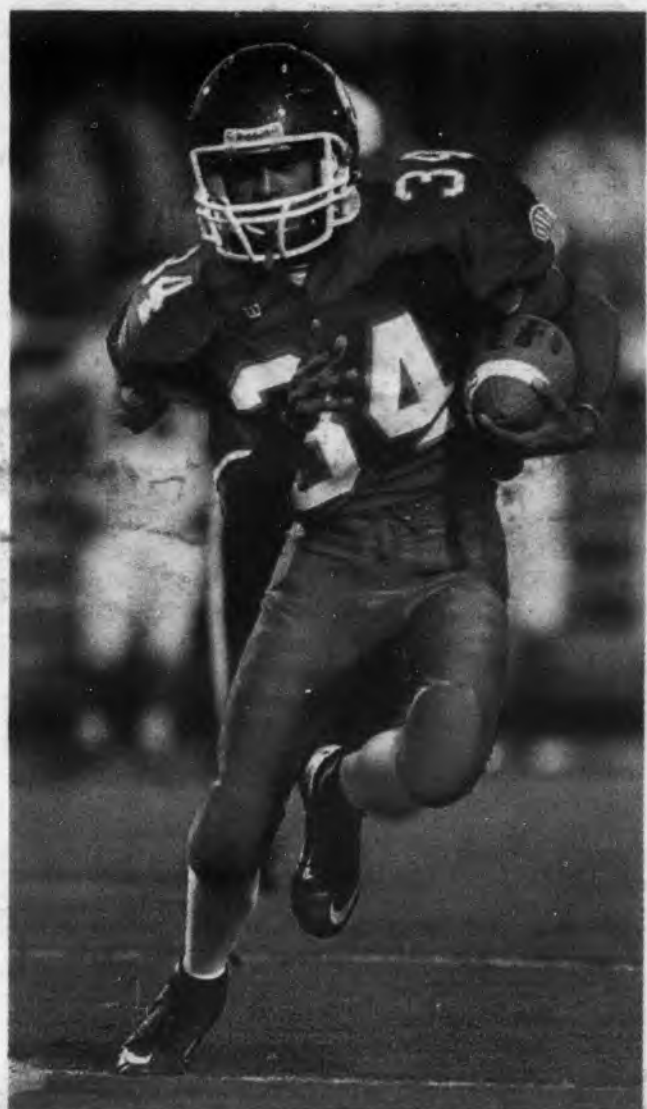

Sophomore Jahvae Handsome-Field ran for a conversion after the first touchdown and Tomaz Silva kicked the extra point after the second score for the Presidents who opened up a 21-6 halftime lead and were not seriously threatened.

"Alex ran the ball well," said Reardon. "He showed me a burst of speed I hadn't seen in the scrimmages, and he did a good job running through arm tackles."

Lam gained most of his yards on the option out of the pistol offense Reardon put in to take advantage of his multi-talented quarterback who can both run and throw. Lam also had a 20-yard completion to tight end Matt Hines in the second half.

Presidents Open 2013 Campaign With 33-6 Win

"James still needs to work a little on his reads. He did improve after the first half, and the offense utilizes his skills well," said Reardon.

The Presidents, who only return four starters from last year, did a good job running the new offense in the opener which can be a game of frequent mistakes.

"There are still some things to work out, but the kids ran it well," said Reardon.

Then Presidents put up nearly 300 yards in total offense, and the credit belongs to the offensive line which consistently opened holes for Lam and Alexandre. Kozlowski, William Young, Mike Munroe, Steve Scolaro, and Abraham Hoti did a fine job controlling the line of scrimmage.

"We didn't throw much because the run was working. If it isn't broke, don't fix it," smiled Reardon.

The downfield blocking was also there which turned small gains into big runs.

"Our wide receivers Robbie Munroe and J.T. Bain blocked well downfield, and that let us break some big plays," said Reardon.

The defense was also strong, limiting the Lancers to one first-half touchdown. Linebacker Dan Guarente, a transfer from Catholic Memorial, had a strong night for the Presidents.

"He's physical and he has a nose for the ball. You could hear some of his hits," said Reardon.

Junior linebacker Jake Bergonzi also played well and Young, who went both ways on the line, gave Quincy a strong game in its interior defense.

"One of the things we worked on in the pre-season was recognizing formations and making adjustments," said Reardon. "Malden Catholic kept its offense pretty basic, but I thought we did a good job recognizing what they were running."

Garcia started the scoring in the first quarter on a 15-yard run and Handsome Field rushed for the conversion and an 8-0 lead. Lam broke a 55-yard scoring run out of the option and Silva's kick upped it to 15-0.

After Malden Catholic scored to cut the lead to 15-6, Kozlowski picked off a tipped ball with a big assist to Bergonzi and returned it 43 yards for the touchdown and a 21-6 lead at intermission.

"They were running a screen pass," said Reardon. "Bergonzi hit the receiver, knocked the ball loose and Kozlowski was right there for the interception."

Quincy stayed on the ground and worked the clock in the second half. Alexandre did most of the heavy work. He scored on a 14-yard run, finishing a 61-yard drive on which he had four carries. Alexandre ended the scoring with a one-yard rush after carrying seven times for 53 yards on the drive.

"We were able to control the line of scrimmage," said Reardon.

Quincy travels to Braintree Thursday at 4:30. It is the first time in recent memory that the two neighboring schools have played in a football game against each other.

"I've been coaching 20 years and we haven't played Braintree in that time," said Reardon.

Braintree didn't play last weekend and will be opening its season against Quincy. Quincy will have a short week of practice to prepare. Braintree has had a chance to see the Presidents which should help the Wamps, but Quincy has the benefit of a game of varsity experience which means a lot for a young club.

"It could work both ways," said Reardon. "We might still be a little sore with the short week, but we also had a game to work out some the early kinks."

Braintree was 3-8 last year in the Bay State Conference. The Wamps return an outstanding tight end in 6'2", 225-pound Derek Anson. Braintree also has a deep corps of running backs led by J.P. Salisbury who rushed for 700 yards last season.

"I've heard great things about their tight end and they are excited about their skilled players," said Reardon. "The key for us is to keep playing fast and physical. If we do, it will cover up for any mistakes we might make."

through-feed along the right wing. Sophomore Haley Houlihan slipped it across to Forde on the open side and Forde tucked it into the left corner of the goal.

Forde came close to a hat trick before halftime. She rattled a shot off the post and had another testing drive stopped by Abington keeper Alyssa Devlin who played a strong game and kept the score respectable.

"Once we settled in I thought our passing improved and that set up the chances," said Bregoli.

McGue, who scored 10 goals as a freshman, notched the final goal of the match less than five minutes into the second half after the Red Raiders stormed the net for nearly a minute. Smith took a short feed from Molly Donahue on a corner kick and drove a hard shot which Devlin turned aside. Campo had two blasts from point-blank range which Devlin blocked. Finally, Delia Devane settled a rebound to the right of the net and made a perfect cross to McGue for the goal.

Donahue, Forde, Coleman, and Emily Anglehart kept pressing the net and had good scoring chances in the final minutes.

"We have good depth at forward," said Bregoli. "Our forwards are strong and they move the ball well. We don't have a lot of seniors, but we have sophomores and juniors with varsity experience."

Kennedy stepped in as keeper for junior Rachel O'Driscoll who injured her knee in practice. Kennedy handled the ball cleanly, cleared it quickly and positioned herself well for a good stop on a hard drive from Brianna Donovan on the left wing to preserve the shutout with less than three minutes left in the match.

"She was solid and made all the plays she should make," said Bregoli.

North showed its depth. Bregoli substituted freely, especially in the second half, and there was little drop-off in the quality of the play. He used his whole roster. Not only did everybody play, but everybody played a good share of minutes.

"I think everyone played at least 20 minutes. I like our depth," said Bregoli.

Kara Carchedi played a fine game in the midfield for North. Annie Doherty and Faith Whooley should also provide depth as the season progresses.

"As always, our goal is to make the tournament and I'd like to think we can contend in the Patriot League as well," said Bregoli.

North begins its league season at Middleboro Wednesday and at Silver Lake Friday.

BATTLING TENSION HEADACHES?

If you experience dull pain that runs across your forehead and/or the back and sides of your head, you are likely suffering from a tension headache. This type of headache, which often begins midday and gradually increases, is caused by stress that leads to muscle tightness. While many people deal with tension headaches by popping painkillers, chiropractic takes a non-drug approach to the problem, which involves breaking the cycle of stress and muscle tightness. The goal of treatment is to release energy in areas of the neck and back where the body is most prone to accumulate tension. Doing so enables the body to assume a more relaxed posture as well as distribute and disperse stresses more efficiently.

Nerve irritation is one of the leading causes of headache pain for many sufferers. In time, exercise, a healthy diet, and periodic visits to the chiropractor will help you stay healthy, pain free, and live your life to the fullest. Maybe it's time to visit us at FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC for safe and gentle chiropractic care. North Quincy Boys' Soccer Talented But Young

By BILL GRIFFIN

There is clearly talent there, and with time and varsity experience, North Quincy's boys soccer team will function well as a unit.

The Red Raiders showed flashes of fine play, but Abington took control of the match with three goals in the first half and dropped North, 4-1 in its non-league opener at Veterans Stadium Saturday afternoon.

"We're young and we need a little more time playing together," said coach Rich Hanlon whose club returns only five players from last year's 4-11-3 team. "I think we have good players, but we're not used to each other in game situations. That will come with experience."

North scored a beautiful goal in the first half which showcased its ability and potential. With Abington leading 1-0 with 17:25 left before intermission, sophomore Andrew Jayne made a hard, accurate cross from the left wing to freshman Steve Cobble who was open just to the right of the goal. Cobble drilled a shot off the crossbar, but Angelo Taho worked into perfect position to head home the rebound and tie the score at 1-1.

"I think that we will score goals. We definitely should have more scoring punch than we've had in past years," said Hanlon. North has scored five goals in two scrimmages (Archbishop Williams and Norwell) and the season opener.

Miguel Alfonso, Paolo Filippi, A.K. Nguyen, John Lopes, and Dennis Calero consistently moved the ball through the midfield into scoring position for the Red Raiders, but missed narrowly connecting on the final pass or shot for a goal. The issue is timing and teamwork which is something that is won at varsity speed in games against quality teams.

"We have to do a better job deciding when to pass and when to shoot. We have players with offensive skills and we need to play together more. Then the timing will come," said Hanlon who only has four seniors on the squad.

Late in the first half, Lopes lofted a corner kick to sophomore Thomas Murray, but Murray's shot sailed just high. Minutes later Lopes sent Nguyen in clear for looked like a breakaway, but the play was wiped out by an offside call.

In the second half, North's best chances came off two corner kicks with less than 16:00 left in the match. Filippi took them both. Thomas Henry narrowly missed a header on one and Lopes put a hard shot on net on the second but Abington goalie, Scott Gambon turned it aside.

In the final minutes, Lopes made an excellent move through the defense and drilled one towards the far corner which Gambon stopped. Calero found Lopes in the clear for a shot which just missed the corner. In time, the close misses should turn into goals.

"Nguyen and Alfonso are new to the program and they're both fine soccer players," said Hanlon.

North graduated its goalie and defense from last year. Captain Maoud Abibi, senior T. J. Marshall, Henry, Enea Milo, and Ivan Zeng all showed well on defense. Abington's four goals all started with long passes through the middle. This is something the Red Raiders will handle better as they gain seasoning and cohesion as a unit.

"We're completely new on defense," said Hanlon. "We're going to have to learn under game situations which is unfortunate, but we should get better."

The best story of the day was the work of senior Efthim Butka in goal. Butka joined the soccer team for the first time this season. He wanted to have fun and play striker. He worked less than 30 minutes in goal in practice in case North needed an emergency keeper. The emergency arrived when starting goalie Joey England went out with a leg injury in the first half.

"He told me in practice that he just wanted to enjoy himself and he'd play anywhere I needed him," said Hanlon.

In his first varsity soccer match, he stepped in and played a position he had never previously played. He did just fine. He had little or no chance on any of the goals. In the first half, he stopped a hard drive off a clear break and a header which was targeted for the corner. In the second half, he used his 6'4" height to tip a chip shot just over the crossbar. He handled the ball efficiently and cleared it well with his kicks.

"A half hour tops, that's all the time he had in goal in practice. He did a great job for us when we really needed him," said Hanlon.

Brian Macaluso scored twice and Rob McClaffery added another in the first half for Abington who led 3-1 at intermission. McClaffery finished the scoring with just less than ten minutes left in the match.

North is not a deep team. Hanlon started the match with 15 players. The last thing he wanted to see was injuries, but England, Milo, Nguyen, and Abibi all went off with leg injuries. By the end of the match, the Red Raiders had no substitutes.

"I was looking around the bench to see who was least injured," joked Hanlon. "I don't know how serious the injuries are. We'll have to wait and see. The JV's won, 8-4 against Abington, so we'll probably call up a couple of players."

It will not be an easy ride for the Red Raiders in the rugged Patriot League which includes powers like Duxbury, Hingham and Whitman-Hanson.

"We'll have to learn under the gun, but I think we'll hold our own as we get more experience," said Hanlon.

North hosted Middleboro Wednesday and Silver Lake Friday at Teal Field. Each match starts at 4 p.m.

North Quincy Girls' Volleyball Downs Fontbonne

By BILL GRIFFIN

The beginning was a bit uneven, but once North Quincy clicked its passing game into gear, the final three sets were graced by long, exciting rallies and clutch play in the big points by freshman Isabelle Flaherty.

Captain Carolyn Schwartz played a complete match of kills, digs and blocks and Flaherty made a memorable varsity debut by scoring the decisive points in the final three games to lead North to a 3-1 victory over Fontbonne in the non-league volleyball opener for the Red Raiders Monday afternoon.

"Carolyn played an excellent all-around game and I couldn't be happier with the way my freshman played," said coach Kerry Ginty who has 12 seniors back from last year's 14-6 team which lost to Newton North in second round of the state tournament.

Fontbonne rolled in the opening game, 25-17, but the Red Raiders passed well, dug for every ball and ran their offense to score 25-23, 25-23, 25-17 decisions in the final three games.

"The passing was the key," said Ginty. "Fontbonne played error-free volleyball in the first game. Give them credit. But we were standing around too much. Once we started to pass the ball, we got into our offense."

The offense produced crowd-pleasing rallies which seemed to last until the moon rose in the sky. Both teams flew, skittered and sprawled across the floor to keep points alive. Schwartz, Flaherty, Angela Kou, Natasha Sautter Abby Mayo, Lauren Magoon, Nancy Huang, Gabrielle Flaherty, Maya Umoren and Cindi Hazelton showcased a wide range of skills both keeping the ball in the air and putting points away.

"We have a deep bench and we should get contributions from a lot of different players as the season goes on," said Ginty.

Not only were the second and third games decided by identical 25-23 margins, but both were also tied at 23-23. In the second set, Isabelle Flaherty drilled a service winner and Hazelton placed a precise crosscourt drive into an unguarded spot for the winning points. In the third set, Isabelle had a kill and service winner for the winning two points. In the final set, she had a kill and three blocks for winners as North ran the final 10 points of the game to ensure the victory.

It was not a bad day to be a freshman. Not a bad at all.

"I'm glad she's on my team," said Ginty. "It's not easy to be a freshman in your first varsity match and stand up there serving the ball with the game on the line, but Isabelle came through with the big plays for us."

Ginty felt before the match that her middle and net play would be her team's strengths, and the stats from the win support her. Schwartz had 11 kills, 14 digs and three blocks while Isabelle Flaherty added seven kills, four blocks and nine digs. Umoren blended finesse and power at the net for seven kills while Gabrielle Flaherty and Lauren Magoon each had three aces. Huang had 13 digs and was a central figure keeping the ball alive in a match of fine, long rallies.

"I thought our middle people played well and Maya had a very good game at the net," said Ginty.

Magoon, Isabelle Flaherty, Schwartz, and Umoren all served well. Gabrielle Flaherty served out a flurry of points in the closing 10-point run which finished the match. Senior Jane Minton dug out the ball and set up kills over the final 10 points.

"Serving the ball should be one of our strengths this year. We have a number of players who have experience and serve well," said Ginty.

Simone Matthews, Annie Wong, Ivy Pham, Noelle Brady, and Camille Mullaney will provide depth for the Red Raiders. North hosts Hanover Friday at 5:30.

"We have the experience with 12 seniors and we have some new faces who should help us. We'll have to see how it all comes together," said Ginty.

North Quincy Looks To Rebound At Boston Latin Friday

By JOE REARDON

There's little doubt that North Quincy will be racing to get back on the practice field this week and be all business on both sides of the ball. Tough losses tend to have that reaction.

After watching a victory slip through their fingers with Friday night's excruciating 12-8 loss to Medford, the Red Raiders are itching to put a crooked number in the win column when they travel to Boston Latin for a 7 p.m. kick-off Friday at White Stadium.

After allowing a touch-down on the opening kick-off, North Quincy settled down and marched right back down the field. Sophomore quarterback Joe Fallon, who threw for 100 yards on the night, hit Brian Turner with a 60-yard pass and Eddie Guinto banged his way in from the 3-yard line for the score. Fallon, who has incredible poise at the quarterback position, proceeded to connect with Zach Dangora on the conversion play and the Red Raiders were up 8-6.

But it was Medford which scored in the final two minutes after a bad snap on a North Quincy punt gave them excellent field position at the Red Raiders' 15-yard line. Medford broke the goal line to leave the Red Raiders shaking their heads at a game that was all but in the bag.

"They were young the same way we were," said Mark Nutley, North Quincy's first-year coach after three years as an assistant. "There was some inexperience from both teams. Giving up that opening kickoff and coming right back and scoring was a good sign. Fallon played pretty well. Defensively we shut them down and played pretty well."

North Quincy's youth was apparent by several mental mistakes throughout the game. "We had a lot of dumb penalties," said Nutley. "They were simple mistakes, little things here and there. We get a drive going and get a block in the back* penalty. We seemed to shoot ourselves in the foot a little bit. We played well enough where we should have pulled out a victory."

The Red Raiders have to put the Medford loss in the rearview mirror with Friday night's game against Boston Latin on the immediate horizon. The Wolfpack has momentum on its side after trouncing Brookline 34-14 and will be looking to repeat its effort against the Red Raiders.

"We have a pretty good rivalry going with them, going back and forth," said Nutley. "They're coming off a big win against Brookline. They beat them pretty good. Obviously they're feeling pretty excited over there. Our kids are a little down because they thought they played pretty well."

Nutley believes North Quincy will rebound against the Wolfpack. "I hope so," he said. "Coming off a game where we felt we played better than the other team and still lost. They should be up for it. We've only seen bits and pieces of them (Boston Latin) on tape. We haven't really gotten a whole game yet. After the way we played offensively, we have to worry about everybody. As a coach you work on getting better every day at each practice."

By SEAN HALPIN

Quincy Youth Football & Cheerleading kicked off their 63rd Season this past weekend. This season, The QYFL has seen its participation level rise by 35%. Sunday afternoon's Varsity action kicked off with the North Quincy Apaches hosting the Storm in a Desmond Division battle for North Quincy bragging rights. The Storm took an early lead when DB Max Storch intercepted an Apaches pass and took it back 34 yards for a touchdown. Later in the second quarter, Storch scored again as he returned a punt for a TD only to have it call back on a penalty. It was defensive battle throughout most of the ballgame. The Storm was sparked by the play of Raphy Veras, Cullen Walsh, John-Paul Kelley, Storch, Tom Veasey, Tim Layden and Mark Monahan. The Apaches were led by the efforts of Jake Roos, Devin Ganno, Miles Easterling, Dylan Malcolm, Chris Donoghey, Liam Murphy and Nate Sleiman.

In the third and final game of the afternoon, the Hough Neck Manets hosted the defending QYFL Champion, West Quincy Elks. Late in the first quarter, Elks CB Davi Soares intercepted and took it down to the Manets 16 yard line. Adam Vu punched it in from 6 yards out as the Elks took the lead 6-0. On the next series, Soares took a 35 yard punt return down to the 14 yard line. Elks RB Shorn Hawthorne scored on a 6 yard TD run extending the lead 12-0. The Elks added another score late in the second quarter as QB Curtis Frasier hit WR Shorn Hawthorne on a 26 yard TD pass. Soares rushed for the conversion as the Elks extended their lead 19-0. On the ensuing kickoff, Manets returner Anthony Epps took the ball back 63 yard for a TD. The Manets entered the locker room at halftime trailing the Elks 19-6.

The Manets played some great defense in the second half. Christ Pham, Epps, Wilmer Duran, Nate Steinberg Patrick Deery, Tommy Feeney and Hunter Schofield led the Manets on defense. Adam Vu recovered a Manets Fumble on a punt that set up a 35 yard touchdown run by Davi Soares. The Elks now lead the Manets 25-6 at the end of the third quarter. The Elks added another score in the fourth quarter when QB Frazier again, found WR Hawthorne on a 56 yard TD pass. The Manets immediately fired back when QB Sonny Cugini threw an 82 yard TD pass to WR Anthony Epps. Time expired on this match-up and the West Quincy Elks took the victory 31-12 over the Houghs Neck Manets.

The Elks had some fine two way performances from Soares (TD, INT) Frazier (2 TD passes) Hawthorne (3 TDs) Adam Vu, Noah Herrera, Anthony Rizzatano, J.J. Camara, Connor Ainsley and Corey Shaw. Militia Fall To Taunton

By JOE REARDON

The Quincy Militia didn't do its job in controlling the ball Saturday in a huge game against the Taunton Gladiators and now Vaughn Driscoll's crew suddenly has its back against the wall.

Coming off a big 34-20 victory over the Randolph Oilers where the Militia scored early and often, Quincy had more than its share of mistakes in the 41-16 loss to Taunton. Quincy missed a whopping 13 tackles in the first half as the Gladiators took a 21-3 lead into the locker room. The Militia's lone first half points came on a 30-yard field goal by sure-footed Conor Flaherty.

The loss dropped Quincy to 4-3 and makes this Saturday's showdown against the Worcester Mass Fury at Veterans Stadium an absolute must-win game. Driscoll, though, is confident the Militia can bounce back and defeat the Worcester squad that dealt Quincy a 41-14 defeat in week four of the season.

The Gladiators got a strong performance from quarterback Matt Letorneau, who completed 14 of his 19 passes for 133 yards and backs Jeremy Chumack who rushed for 198 yards and Razzie Smith who picked up 77 ground yards.

"We have to come back from this, regroup, get focused and try to beat Worcester at home," said Driscoll. "It's a huge game. We can not lose two in a row. That would be very depleting to us. We have to beat Worcester. Every game is a must win for us. As long as we play error free and turnover free, we'll be in the game to beat them.

"We worked on what we thought would work in this game. We discussed their strong points and where their weaknesses should have been. We didn't exploit them. We still could have come back at the start of the second half, but we made some bad choices on both sides of the ball."

The two teams have been rivals for several years and Taunton coach John Doyle was very aware of the Militia's versatility on offense. "We've played them year in and year out," he said. "We know they're a very physical team and a very talented team. We had to play very disciplined if we were going to win this game. We played a pretty solid game, top to

Register Warns Residents Of Deed Scam Solicitations

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell is warning Norfolk County residents about ongoing direct-mail solicitations that homeowners across Massachusetts have been receiving offering them a copy of their "certified deeds" for $59.50 - $83 which is a service they could receive from the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds for only $2.

In an official looking letter that includes the homeowner's Norfolk Registry Book and Page deed citation, companies with names such as National Deed Service Inc. or National Record Service Inc. write: "The U.S. Government Federal Citizens Information Center website recommends that property owners should have an official or certified copy of their deed." Their letter offers homeowners one certified copy of their deed for $59.50, and then appears to offer a bargain by charging only $20 for a second certified copy.

Another operation calling themselves Record Transfer Services offers homeowners a copy of their deed for $83 in a direct mail document that at first glance appears to be a bill complete with a "Compliance Response Date" and includes specific information including the recent sale price of their property. Record Transfer Services also recommends that "...all MA homeowners obtain a copy of their current Grant Deed. This document provides evidence that the property was in fact transferred to the individual."

While direct mail operations such as these do disclose that they are not affiliated with a government agency this still doesn't sit well with Register O'Donnell.

"It may be legal, but I still think it's outrageous that these businesses are taking advantage of consumers, and we keep hearing about these mailings" O'Donnell said of the direct-mail solicitations. "We want to warn all the residents and businesses of Norfolk County that this practice preys on those who don't realize how easy and inexpensive it is to contact the Registry directly and for just $2 our Customer Service staff will process your request and mail you out a certified copy of your deed." O'Donnell added.

For more information, contact the Registry's Customer Service Center at 781-461-6101.

On Thursday, Aug. 29, Officers Matt Tobin and Greg Hartnett were assigned to the Anti-Crime Unit, working in plain clothes, on foot in downtown Quincy. At approximately 1:30 p.m., the Officers walked through McIntyre Mall at City Hall which is an area that is maintained for public use and enjoyment by the City of Quincy.

McIntyre Mall is a place where numerous people have congregated in the past to openly abuse alcoholic beverages, ingest legal and illegal substances, and distribute drugs. It is also the venue of many disorders and other nuisance problems such as people sleeping on the park benches and creating an unwelcome environment for law abiding citizens.

LT. DAN MINTON

The Officers observed a male and a female seated on a public park bench within McIntyre Mall. They appeared to be nervously watching all around the area and the female was slouched over into her lap with a hood pulled up over her head as if trying to conceal her face and lap.

As the Officers approached on foot, the male turned and said something to the female. The Officers then saw two blue oblong prescription pills resting on a piece of paper on the female's lap. She immediately put both pills into her mouth and swallowed. Believing that the female just destroyed drug evidence, the Officers immediately displayed their police badges and asked both suspects for identification. When asked what pills she just took, the female at first denied ingesting anything until Officer Tobin pointed out the specifics of his observations.

The female then claimed she had a prescription and produced a printed prescription that had yet to be filled. The prescription was in her name and it was for Zofran ODT 4mg in the amount of 10 pills. She claimed she had two left over from a previous prescription and had ingested them just as the Officers walked up to her. Finding this story highly unlikely, Officer Tobin utilized his cell phone to access Drugs.com and observed Zofran ODT 4mg to be a round white pill, not the blue pills that she ingested.

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

Behind the bench that the male and female were sitting on was a white plastic shopping bag with a 16-ounce bottle of Holland House cooking wine - 10% alcohol per volume. The male smelled of an alcoholic beverage which he claimed he dumped on the ground. A search of the female revealed a cut drinking straw with some type of white residue inside.

Straws are often cut and utilized by drug users to nasally ingest drugs. One of the straws had a blue oblong pill stuck inside that strongly resembled the pills the female swallowed. The stamp on the pill was worn and unreadable. At this time, the Officers ran warrants on both suspects.

The female had four open drug related cases and no warrants. The male suspect had 52 arraignments and no warrants. During this interaction, both suspects kept getting up off the bench to stand up, then sitting down after repeatedly being told to sit back down. The suspects were then separated by sitting on separate benches.

The female stood up again, this time to adjust her pants and shirts. She was wearing two pairs of pants and at least two tops. She kept claiming she was cold even though it was approximately 70 degrees and she had on a hooded sweatshirt and a fleece jacket. She was instructed at least 10 times to remain seated and to stop reaching into her garments. She again refused to follow simple direction and again stood up and began to lift her shirt and reach into her waist. It was at this time that Officer Tobin clearly observed a small knotted white plastic bag about the size of a golf ball attached to her inner pants or belt.

After seizing the bag, the Officers observed numerous prescription pills inside. Upon closer inspection of the pills it was discovered there were 58 blue oblong pills stamped g3721 and one round orange pill stamped dan 5554.

Drug Unit Detective Barkas arrived on scene and took control of the drugs and was able to identify them as (blue) Alprazolam, a class E substance and (orange) Propranolol, a non-classified substance which was then marked for destruction. The Officers then placed the female, a 49 year-old Quincy resident, under arrest for "Possession of a Class E Substance with the Intent to Distribute and a drug free park violation."

The male suspect, 43 years old and homeless, was also placed under arrest for violating the city ordinance of drinking from an open container of alcohol (cooking wine). Both were handcuffed (DL) advised of their respective charges and transported to QPD Headquarters for booking by marked patrol units. The bottle of cooking wine was emptied to prevent spoilage and logged into evidence.

Nice Work!

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IN THIS SCENARIO?

Due to recent events which occurred outside the City of Quincy, namely the kidnapping and murder of a young woman in South Boston and the recent assault in an elevator in Boston, I decided to add a scenario with my article for a few weeks. This column is aimed at addressing what citizens could do under a wide range of threatening circumstances.

Most Important - There is no perfect answer to each situation, since there are so many variables. Additionally, this is not a complete list - there are so many incidents that occur daily across the nation.

This is more to make readers think about what they might do if in one of these predicaments. Hopefully, family members, friends and co-workers will talk about this article, go over scenarios and come up with additional ideas. These recommendations are more to consider your options in the unlikely chance that this could happen to you. As a parent, I have reviewed these scenarios with my family. Although disconcerting, failure to educate children (of all ages) with options and actions would be something that no parent

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The changing season brings new experiences as well as challenges for the ever-adventurous Aries. Your social life expands, as do the opportunities at your workplace.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) That recent period of uncertainty has passed. You can now feel more confident about making decisions, especially those that relate to an important personal relationship.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Although you might be faced with a number of tasks on your to-do list, try to take time out to enjoy the arts. Music, especially, can be soothing to the sensitive soul of a Gemini.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A disagreement with a colleague or friend is best resolved with open and frank discussion. Trying to force the other party to see things your way is bound to backfire.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) That Leonine pride might be ruffled by a colleague's challenge to one of your pet ideas. But stop growling and listen. You could learn something that will work to your advantage.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Someone in authority might decide to select you as a candidate for a project that carries more responsibilities. Be prepared to show why you're the right choice for the job.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) That new workplace problem should be dealt with as soon as possible. Leaving it unresolved for too long could lead to an even more unsettling and time-consuming situation.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to do some fancy juggling to keep both your work responsibilities and personal obligations on track. But ultimately, you'll work it all out, as you always do.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might hear some upsetting things about a situation in your life. But don't be swayed by talk. Demand proof before making any decisions on the matter.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don't risk depleting those precious energy levels by taking on more tasks than you can realistically handle. Also, remember to ask for help when you need it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It might be difficult for the Aquarian who is used to giving advice to take counsel when offered. But it's a good idea to listen to what trusted friends feel you should know.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Things might be a little unsettled as you move through a period of reassessment. But once you get your priorities sorted out, you should be ready to tackle an important decision.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're able to achieve a happy balance in your productive life by never feeling overwhelmed or underappreciated.

OBITUARIES

Leona E. Douglas, 57 Occupational Therapist

A memorial service for Leona Elizabeth (Roccuzzo) Douglas, 57, of Quincy and formerly of Houston, TX was held yesterday (Wednesday) at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Hanover.

Mrs. Douglas died Sept. 5 at her home following a long illness.

Born in Quincy on June 14, 1956, she was the daughter of Virginia D. (DiSalvio) Roccuzzo of Quincy and the late Agrippino A. Roccuzzo. Mrs. Douglas was a graduate of Quincy High School, where she was student body president, and held a BS in occupational therapy from Tufts University and an MA in psychology from Houston Baptist University.

She was a registered licensed occupational therapist (OT), licensed specialist in school psychology, licensed professional counselor, and was certified in equine assisted psychotherapy and a member of the Equine Assisted Growth and Learning Association (EAGALA).

Mrs. Douglas had a 35-year career as an OT in hospital and school settings. In 1981 she established an OT program in the school system at the US Army post in Fort Campbell, Kentucky, that is still in existence today. She also worked at the Paul A. Dever State School and with the CHARMSS Collaborative in Holbrook. For many years Mrs. Douglas worked with the Harris County school system and Memorial Hermann Hospital in Houston. She found her work with infants in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit and with children with autism especially fulfilling. She had a gift for assessing and creating effective treatment programs for difficult cases.

Her involvement with EAGALA began at Red Dun

LEONA E. DOUGLAS

Ranch in Houston when she was working toward her master's degree. She described it as a "rewarding discovery of the power of horses to facilitate healing" when partnered with individuals facing mental health challenges. She felt honored to be accepted as "part of the herd" and shared her love of these animals with her oldest daughter and grandson. During her own recent illness, she said the horses "offered their peace and steadfastness and showed how powerfully they are connected to the Divine, to each other, and to me."

Mrs. Douglas was an accomplished West Coast swing dancer, a former member of the Southwest Whip Club and Houston Whip Club and leader of the St. John's folk group in Quincy, and a Black Belt in Tae Kwon Do.

Loving mother of Sarah Hogan of Quincy and Jonathan Douglas and Jessica Douglas, both of TX. Cherished grandmother of Jaxon Rocky Johnson of NH. Dear sister of Josephine Roccuzzo and brother-in-law Hartwell Hooper of RI. Also survived by her first husband, Peter Hogan of NY.

Funeral arrangements were made by Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Red Dun Ranch, 14304 Hooper Road, Houston, TX 77047.

Militia Fall To Taunton bottom. We have a very talented team, but I don't think we came together totally until tonight.

"We had to be more physical and more disciplined and we had to get our skill players more involved. And I think we did all that very effectively."

Quarterback James Yaitanes was effective in the second half, connecting with James Schuler three times for 91 yards and completing scoring passes of 26 yards to Chris Joyce and 12 yards to Joure Frazier. Yaitanes was also intercepted twice and finished with 179 yards through the air and 86 rushing yards.

The backbreaking turnover came at the start of the second when the Gladiators picked off a Yaitanes pass and returned it for a touchdown to make it a 28-3 contest. "All it takes is one turnover at a crucial time and it hurts your team," said Driscoll.

Moving forward, the Militia will be turning to its running backs, mainly Tyrone Holley, Jordan Moore and Dolan Reid, to re-establish the ground attack. "We have to run the ball," said Driscoll. "We're at our best when we control the ball and control the clock. If we don't control the ball and the clock, we run into a block. We're not the type of team that can come back easily from being down. It seem when we get into that double digit range, it starts to get into our heads."

"We're still a damn good team. We have a whole rest of the season to play. We're going to see this team again. We realized what we did wrong today."

A Job Well Done

would want to experience.

So the first point that I want to stress is that there are so many people today walking around with headphones on or with their head down continuously texting, never looking up - totally unaware of their surroundings and unable to recognize a threat. People need to use all their senses and their common sense to recognize a potential threat, even if it is based on a "bad feeling" or when the "hair goes up on the nape of your neck."

Here is the fourth scenario:

Scenario #4: As you enter your car, it's too late to realize that someone is inside with a gun to your head telling you to drive away inconspicuously. What do you do?

The first step is to determine what the suspect wants, but someone hiding in your car most likely wants more than money. If he wanted money, he could have mugged someone on the street, so again, he may want to harm you. The suspect has a plan to bring you to a remote area where there are no witnesses. Although he has an actual weapon, you also have a potential weapon - as the driver of a multi-ton vehicle.

You can take action to reduce his chances of hurting you first.

Important first step - put your seatbelt on if you can, most likely the suspect won't wear his. As you are directed further away from the public and realizing that you are not going to get away, you need to create a plan of escape. Look for a tree on the right side of the road, which is on his side of the car. Gradually increase your speed and veer into the tree, trying to hit on the right front where the suspect is sitting. The seatbelt and airbag will save you but the unknowing suspect will get the worst of it.

As soon as the car crashes, get out and run, yelling for help.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT was able to purchase the 2005 truck for $24,776 with a $25,000 Emergency Management Performance Grant. The materials in the truck were purchased, with the help of state Rep. Ronald Mariano, with a $50,000 Hazardous Materials Response Grant.

THE NEW HAZ-MAT truck will allow for more storage for equipment firefighters can use during a fire or a petroleum spill. New Haz-mat suits, spill clean up materials, absorbent pads, speedy dry, and decontamination equipment are just a few of the items that can be found on the new truck.

New Fire Dept. Haz-Mat Truck

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The Fire Department put a new Hazardous Material truck in service recently at the Quincy Point Fire Station, Engine 3, replacing the old truck the station once had.

"This is the only haz-mat truck in Quincy," said Captain Richard Bryan the hazardous material officer. "This is a big step for us to replace the vehicle and at no cost to the city. It is a big leap and has always been a part of the Fire Department's mission to be able to deal with hazardous materials. This truck will help us increase our ability to deal with hazardous materials."

The department was able to purchase the over $24,000 truck through a $25,000 EMPG (Emergency Management Performance Grant) and with the help of State Rep. Ronald Mariano the materials for the truck were purchased with a $50,000 Hazardous Materials Response Grant. The $50,000 helped stock the new truck with supplies to mainly deal with petroleum based spills, such as new haz-mat suits, spill clean up materials, absorbent pads, speedy dry, decontamination equipment, tanks of air supply, among many other haz-mat equipment. After the purchase of the used truck the Fire Departments mechanics replaced the brakes and rehabbed the entire front end of the truck. Bryan said that the truck, which is a 2005 International 4300, would last the department a long time now that it has been rehabbed by their mechanics.

"We are thrilled to have this in service. It was a combination of a lot of effort from people within the city such as Public Works, who did the lettering, and our mechanics who fixed the truck up, along with the help from state Rep. Mariano, but Captain Bryan is really the one who spearhead this," said Fire Chief Joe Barron. "There is a big homeland security concern with all of these hazardous materials that anyone could misuse, and if they do we will be prepared and be able to respond. This will be the front line defense."

There are different levels of training firefighters can go through to learn how to work with and clean up hazardous materials. Many of the firefighters in Quincy are trained at the hazardous materials operations level where they know the defense and offense of working with hazardous materials; those firefighters serve as the first line of defense. According to Bryan there are around 54 Quincy firefighters that attended haz-mat technician school. Firefighters who are at the technician level have a solid understanding of the basic chemical and toxicological behavior and are required to stop the spread of the hazardous substance.

A NEW ADVANTAGE firefighters have with the new truck is extra space to store more air cylinders; which can be used during fires as well as during Hazmat situations.

Bryan said that the truck, which has been in service for three weeks now, will most likely be used a couple of dozen times a year for its intended purpose, but they also will be able to use the truck during fires because of the extra air supply tanks it holds.

"Its primary job will be for hazardous material removal," said Bryan. "Not only will we be able to use the truck for its main job but it also allows us to carry a lot of extra spare air bottles to use in fire situations. The old truck didn't have the space for extra air cylinders, this new truck does, so we will be able to use it more frequently than before."

City, State Nearing QC Station Agreement

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy and the state are closing in on an agreement that would allow the city to construct a mixed-use development atop the Quincy Center MBTA station.

The station's 870-car garage has remained closed since July 2012, when the MBTA announced it would need to close because of structural concerns. At more than 40 years old, the Quincy Center garage is older than any other one the MBTA owns. The transit agency had hired an engineering firm to review possible repairs to the garage before closing it. Since it was closed last year, the city has been working with the transit agency on getting the garage replaced.

"There is urgency," Mayor Thomas Koch said. "The garage has been condemned and we're without parking at the station."

While replacing the garage is a key component of redeveloping the station, the city is hoping to create a new mixed-use development. Over the summer the city put out a request for qualifications (RFQ), seeking an engineering design firm to draft plans for a facility that would incorporate 100,000 square feet of office space – some of which could be allocated to the National Park Service – and a ground level retail complex, in addition to a new 863-car garage. The city is in the process of negotiating an agreement with the state that would allow the design of the development to move forward.

Koch: Central Decision Soon

By SCOTT JACKSON and EMILY ARMSTRONG

Officials could announce an opening date for the new Central Middle School as early as next week.

In a phone interview Monday, Mayor Thomas Koch said he planned to meet with School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro to discuss construction of the school. A decision on when to open the school could be reached at that meeting. The mayor couldn't give an exact date on when it would open, but said it should be open this fall.

"We'll be meeting again later this week to make a decision," Koch said. "It's going to be open this fall but I don't want to box myself in with a date."

During the Sept. 11 School Committee meeting, DeCristofaro said he had toured the school with Central Principal Jennifer Fay-Beers. Both were impressed by the progress that had been made on site.

"We were tremendously impressed at the progress. The classrooms are stunning – they are absolutely beautiful. The centerpiece, that library, is also something that people will drive by and never forget because it really is beautiful," DeCristofaro said.

"There has been significant progress – there is progress everywhere we look. We look forward to getting in there as soon as possible."

Austin Family Donates $10,000

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Lillian and John Austin, parents of fallen firefighter John T. Austin, donated $10,000 to the City on Tuesday, at the Engine 5 firehouse in West Quincy, in honor of their son and to help with improvements on all of the City's public safety buildings.

"John use to always talk about how the stations needed repairs and after he died I realized this might be a good time to do something," said Lillian Austin.

"So John and I talked it over and said let's give this donation to the city to get it going. Our infrastructure needs to be updated within public safety. These guys deal with us from the cradle to the grave and everybody has used them at one time or another. They shouldn't have to go home, to their home away from home, and live in these conditions.

"Let's give them the tools so they can do their job. The only

Majority Of Speakers Support Congressman's Position At Town Hall Forum At QHS

Lynch: 'Attacking Syria Is The Wrong Decision'

By KRIS KALABOKAS

U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch entertained questions and comments last Thursday at a town hall meeting held at Quincy High School on possible military intervention in Syria.

A crowd of roughly 100 people submitted written questions and lined up to ask Lynch his stance on diplomatic versus forceful intervention of the country, which recently experienced chemical attacks—allegedly at the hand of leader Bashar al-Assad—resulting in mass casualties.

"The number of calls, the intensity of calls, and the number of questions people have had regarding the situation led us to the conclusion that we should do at least a couple of these town hall forums," said Lynch, who added that "the situation does seem to change almost hourly."

An overwhelming majority of the public made it clear they didn't agree with the use of force proposed by President Obama during his Aug. 31 address to the nation, fearing such an intervention would further destabilize the area and lead to other troubled foreign nations looking to the U.S. in hopes of similar action during periods of instability.

Applause filled the auditorium after Lynch announced that he would be "extremely reluctant to vote in favor of authorizing the use of U.S.

military force in Syria."

He broke down his decision—which was based in part on his attendance of briefings and calls from families living in the region—into two concise arguments.

"One reason is based on my sense that there is a fundamental flaw in the United States' policy to unilaterally attack Syria without meaningful international support," he said. "The second argument comes from a more practical, pragmatic position. I really feel that the course of military action that has been chosen and described by Secretary Kerry has a very unlikely probability of success in terms of achieving what we would hope for in Syria."

Lynch also fears "the administration may be forced or compelled to up the ante" in the event that the current "no boots on the ground" policy fails to render a positive outcome.

"I love my president but based on my own reading of this...I think that [attacking Syria] is the wrong decision," he said when asked to play devil's advocate in defense of Obama's stance.

"I've seen many wars and I support your resolution not to go into Syria," said Jane Mudge, 80, a lifelong resident of Quincy. "Democracy has to be exported though example, not force."

Comment after comment echoed Mudge's sentiment, prompting Lynch to say that he was "encouraged" by recent proposals initiated by Kerry and the Russian government, mandating Syria to surrender its chemical weapons for removal and destruction. He noted that it was a viable, albeit, difficult task to undertake.

Heba Eid, 28, of Quincy, was one of a few people to vocalize their support for military intervention. "I do support some kind of action or limited strikes in Syria," she said.

"It's a shame for the world to just sit around and talk about all these different things when people are really dying on the ground, and if we don't take some kind of action I think Bashar al-Assad will get a clear message that nobody in this world is going to do anything to him if he keeps gassing people and killing people indiscriminately, and dropping barrel bombs on people's apartment buildings."

"Nobody is ever going to stop him," she said. "There's no negotiating with him unless there is pressure on him."

Eid, who said she felt "disgusted from the loss of life," listened as Lynch, who commended her courage for publicly stating her opinion, clarified that the options currently on the table were on opposite ends of the spectrum. "There are a lot of options in between nothing and bombing Syria," he said. "The idea here is to find that middle way."

Oct. 4th Seen For Chestnut Street Reopening

By

EMILY ARMSTRONG

Suffolk Construction Company representatives told downtown business owners at an update meeting Monday on the revitalization of Quincy Center that they hope to have Chestnut Street open to vehicular traffic on Oct. 4th.

Representatives said that the Oct. 4 reopening of Chestnut St. depends upon when the installation of the new duct bank, which wasn't originally in the plans, along with the delivery of manholes and the installation by National Grid Gas of the new gas lines are complete.

Once the new gas lines are in, the company will begin grading and paving the road, a finished coat will be done at the end of the project.

Around five 15-minute parking spaces will be made available once Chestnut St. is opened back up to vehicular traffic.

Once Chestnut St. is open Cottage Ave. will be blocked off and construction will start on all of the utilities on that street, which according to representatives, has more utilities and is in a tighter area than on Chestnut St.

Installation of fencing and jersey barriers is planned to begin on Oct. 7th with the installation of new sewer lines beginning on Oct. 10th.

The next abutter construction update meeting is scheduled for Oct. 11th at 9 a.m. on the third floor conference room of Suffolk Construction at 1400 Hancock St.

Austin Family Donates $10,000

John for this very generous donation. It's always a challenge to maintain these firehouses, all the help we can get with this issue is greatly appreciated," said Fire Chief Joseph Barron.

"We all know John Austin was an outstanding young man and an outstanding firefighter. It is very difficult to lose a loved one, but to lose a young firefighter dad is extremely traumatic and John is going to be in our thoughts and prayers for a long long time. We really appreciate this donation, we look forward to working with John and Lillian to make these improvements and carry on the legacy of their son John."

Along with the $10,000 donation, which will be used to update the Engine 5 firehouse in Austin's memory, the family also came up with the idea to create a committee to take on short-term and long-term goals to improve all of the City's public safety buildings.

"I think what the gift today was to get the discussion started and get us rolling," said Mayor Tom Koch. "Obviously that gift will be applied to Engine 5 where John Austin served, and we will do some improvements here with that money."

"I think it is the greater effort here by the family to put a light on the buildings, we have more than 50 buildings that we maintain, eight of which are firehouses, and there just is never enough money to go around to try and maintain all of these things."

"Lillian came in to my office and said that she thought it was time to take a look at our firehouses and the houses needs as they serve, so what we decided to do is put together a committee to do just that. The goal will be to have a short-term plan, have some meetings, have a long-term plan, and then identify what the costs are and then start to begin to identify the sources of revenue we'll need to do it."

"It's a bittersweet moment here, obviously we continue to grieve the loss of John, but out of a very difficult, bad situation some real good is coming out of it because of the motivation of John's parents," the Mayor added.

New Security Measures Installed In Public Schools

By
EMILY ARMSTRONG

Throughout the summer the Quincy Public Schools security team has been working to revamp security measures at all schools by installing new intercom systems, new classroom door locks, and increasing surveillance on the exterior and interior of schools.

Director of Security and Transportation Michael Draicchio updated the school committee during their meeting on Sept. 11th on the many projects his team took on during the summer months, including one of the bigger projects, installing new classroom door locks.

After the school shooting at Sandy Hook Elementary School last December parents voiced their concerns to the school committee about a number of classroom locks throughout school system that needed to be addressed.

"We had a very large project, when finished we will be at a total of over 1,600 locks that we have replaced and installed, which is a tremendous accomplishment," said Draicchio.

"The new locks for classrooms included several doors, that were originally not in the plans, but we ended up being able to do them as well. We had some classrooms that had more than one door, that lead into the classroom from the corridor as well as interconnecting doors, they connect between classrooms, and some of them actually leading to stairwells, so we provided all of those classrooms with all new locks."

New classroom door locks were installed in the elementary and middle schools along with North Quincy High School. Access control devices have been installed at specific doors throughout the school system and can only be accessed by the QPS staff through their proxy cards.

"This will be the first

More Flags Now, Lights Later?

The number of American flags decorating Flags for Veterans Island continues to climb.

Could patriotic red, white and blue lights illuminating the landmark around the holidays be far behind?

First, the flags.

As of this week, there are 218 flags that have been donated to the island that is located at the corner of School and Pleasant Streets. That's 40 more flags since July 5th when the 168 flags that were set up for the Memorial Day observance in May were removed.

Paul Moody, the commander of the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Cyril P. Morrisette Post and island coordinator, says he is pleased with the continued interest in the island. He says there's still time for those thinking about ordering a flag to do so in time for the SAL Veterans' Day observance in November.

"We're up about 40 flags (since July) and we're still taking orders for more flags. The best way to arrange a flag for the island is to contact me at 617-472-5952 or 617-590-4082," Moody says.

"The flags represent those who have served, continue to serve and for those who have paid the ultimate sacrifice so America remains free," Moody says. "Most of the flags are memorial flags but we have some that honor those who are still with us."

Those interested in ordering a flag are asked to contact Moody by Oct. 18. Those ordering flags by Oct. 18 will see those new names printed in the roster of all the flags in the Veterans' Day ceremony program.

Flags will decorate the Island on Monday, Oct. 14 and remain there for several weeks including the Veterans' Day observance.

The Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Cyril P. Morrisette Post will hold its Veterans' Day Observance at Flags for Veterans Island, intersection of School and Pleasant Streets, at 1 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 10.

If it rains, the ceremony will be held at the Morrisette Post.

The city's Veterans' Day observance including the annual parade will take place Monday, Nov. 11.

Moody says the interest in the island can be attributed to those who want to acknowledge the service their loved ones gave to this country's Armed Forces.

"I think the people who have seen the island and think of their loved ones and friends realize this is a way to acknowledge and respect those who have passed away," he says.

The 3-by-5-foot flags can be ordered for a one-time cost of $30. The money not only purchases a flag and a small pole but also helps maintain the island and supports veterans' causes and other charities. Recent donations were made to the American Legion Child Welfare Foundation and the Boston Children's Hospital Trust.

The success of the island and growing number of flags means organizers will be altering the logistics of this year's Veterans' Day ceremony and future ceremonies at the island.

In the past, attendees could stand amongst the flags as speakers addressed the gathering from a podium located near one of the corners at the island.

Going forward, there will be only flags on the island as spectators look on from the sidewalk.

"At our next ceremony - Veterans' Day - the island will be full of flags. The podium will be on the street in front of Fort Square Presbyterian Church. Those who attend will be standing on the sidewalk in front of the church," Moody says.

Prior ceremonies have drawn at least a 100 people and Moody believes there will be more as the number of flags continues to climb.

This year's Veterans' Day ceremony marks the third anniversary of Flags for Veterans Island. For that first ceremony in 2010, there were only 10 flags.

Three years later, Moody believes the number of flags will total about 225.

That's quite an increase in a very short time. If only our stock portfolios could match that kind of performance.

Kidding aside, Moody and others deserve a great deal of credit for how this traffic island has evolved into a city landmark. The fluttering sea of red, white and blue is an heart-warming expression of patriotism and love for those who have served this nation in the military. Many have visited the island and enjoy quiet moments of reflection while remembering the service and sacrifice of loved ones.

The island has far surpassed Moody's expectations.

"I didn't expect in three years to be as high up as we are. I figured we'd have 100, maybe a 150. I didn't expect go over 200 in three years."

He thinks the "max out" number is 300 flags for the Island.

"I stood at the island the other morning and I think we can place 218 flags without a problem and probably up to 250 without doing a little strategy. I think we can get to 300 - we'll just be under the large tree," he says.

Flags are placed around 4 feet apart but that distance may have to be shortened to accommodate additional flags.

As the number of flags continues to grow, Moody says a second island may be needed.

"We are definitely going to stay here. We'll have to talk to the mayor and the Park Department about possibly going for a second island. We wouldn't move unless we were offered quite a set-up to do it. It would have to be substantial."

"The present location we have is convenient for the Post and the exposure is fantastic. Everybody sees it. People rave about it. They can't believe it. We want to stay where we are."

Now, on to the lights.

After the flags are taken down sometime after Veterans' Day, they are not put up again until May of the following year.

But Moody has an idea to keep the spirit of the island going through the holiday months.

He'd like to see red, white and blue lights on the island's large Elm tree as a holiday illumination display. At one time, the tree was lit with some kind of lights but that was some time ago.

"It would be just the main tree on the corner of Pleasant and School Street. There is electricity on the (utility) poles. It can be done," Moody says.

"I don't think it would be a big cost to do the lights - maybe around $800. I think the city may have some extra lights that we could use. If it came down to it, I think the Post would help."

"We'd like to have a tree lighting ceremony every year, too," he added.

Other ideas for the island include a stone-dust or tar walkway to the main flag pole and flood lights to illuminate the main flag pole.

"We're looking for more flags and more donations to help us maintain it and upgrade it," Moody says.

Again, anyone interested in donating $30 for an American flag at Flags for Veterans Island can call Paul Moody at 617-472-5952 or 617-590-4082.

NOT SURE who is responsible for scheduling the Quincy-Braintree football game held Sept. 12 but he or she should be thanked.

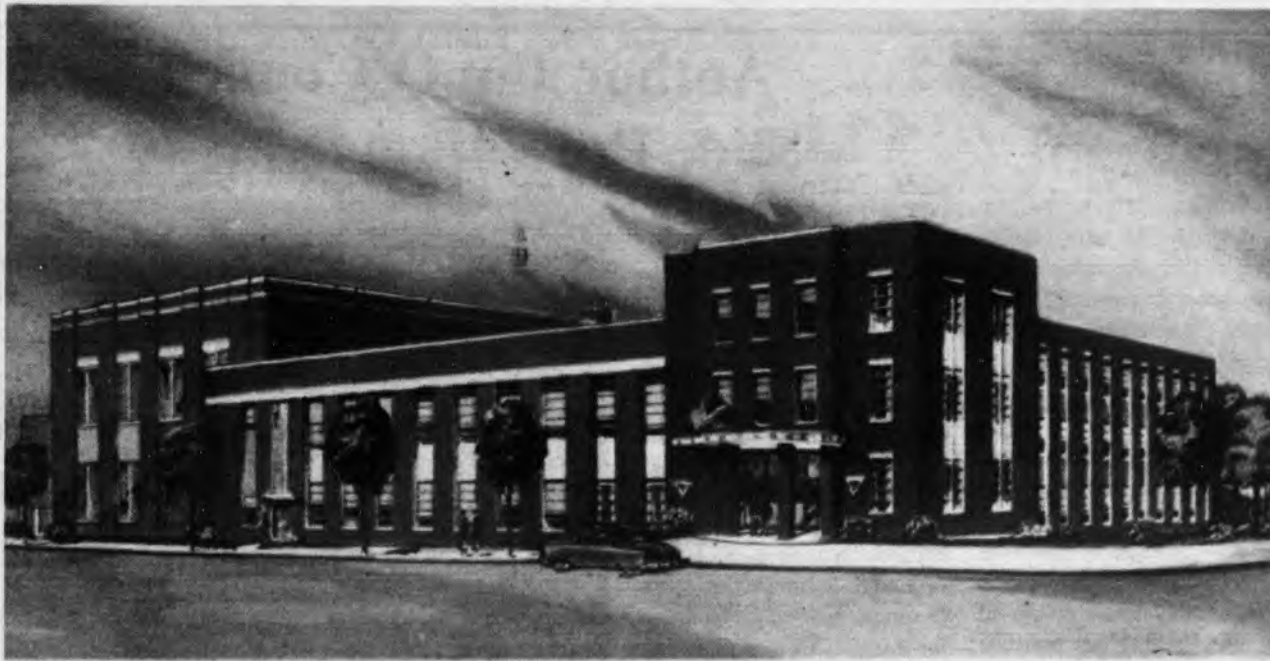

And hopefully a game against neighboring Braintree for Quincy or North Quincy can be scheduled more regularly going forward.

Last Thursday's game against the Presidents and Wamps at Braintree High was well attended and very entertaining, despite the 1-point loss for Quincy fans. It was a terrific atmosphere with both grand stands full of students and parents and other interested onlookers.

No one that we talked to seemed to know the last time Quincy (or North Quincy) played Braintree in football - or if ever. My guess is they probably have some time ago.

Would be nice to see some kind of home-and-home series played out between Quincy (or North Quincy) against Braintree on the gridiron.

Security for the Future of Our Youth

THIS IS A 1956 postcard showing the new South Shore Memorial YMCA building on the corner of Coddington and Newcomb Streets opposite Quincy High School in Quincy Square. It was dedicated on May 31, 1956. This modern building replaced the old Quincy Y that was on Washington Street from the library. It cost $1,125,000 to build and to help with the fundraising; five years earlier the Y opened and operated a Thrift Shop on this site in a war surplus Quonset hut. Today, the new building that will replace this one will cost $30 million. It is being built to the left of here on what was known for many years as Rotary Field. The Quincy Rotary Club built and donated the softball field which featured one of the earliest electronic scoreboards in this area. This building will be demolished to provide additional parking when the new YMCA opens. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quincy College Designated Military Friendly School

For the third consecutive year, Quincy College has been named a Military Friendly School by Victory Media, a media entity for military personnel transitioning into civilian life.

The 2014 Military Friendly Schools list honors the top 20 percent of colleges, universities and trade schools in the country that are doing the most to embrace America's military service members, veterans, and spouses as students and ensure their success on campus.

"This award is yet another positive step in our commitment to make Quincy College an institution where we value the sacrifices made by our veterans in serving our country and provide an environment which is both receptive and accommodating to what are often the distinct needs of veterans," Quincy College President Peter Tsaffaras said.

The Military Friendly Schools media and website, found at www.military-friendlyschools.com, feature the list, interactive tools and search functionality to help military students find the best school to suit their unique needs and preferences. The 1,868 colleges, universities and trade schools on this year's list exhibit leading practices in the recruitment and retention of students with military experience. These schools have world-class programs and policies for student support on campus, academic accreditation, credit policies, flexibility and other services to those who served.

"Inclusion on the 2014 list of Military Friendly Schools shows Quincy College's commitment to providing a supportive environment for military students," said Sean Collins, Vice President at Victory Media and a nine-year Navy veteran. "The need for education is growing and our mission is to provide the military community with transparent, world-class resources to assist in their search for schools." Complete survey methodology is available at militaryfriendlyschools.com/Article/methodology-press-kit.

The 2014 list of Military Friendly Schools was compiled through extensive research and a data-driven survey of more than 10,000 schools nationwide approved for VA tuition funding. The survey results that comprise the 2014 list were independently tested by Ernst & Young LLP based upon the weightings and methodology established by Victory Media. Each year schools taking the survey are held to a higher standard than the previous year via improved methodology, criteria and weightings developed with the assistance of an Academic Advisory Board (AAB) consisting of educators from schools across the country.

Through the Quincy College Veterans Discount Program, Veterans may enroll in either Liberal Arts or Professional Programs classes at a discounted rate. Veterans are eligible for this reduced rate regardless of the number of courses they take in a semester. The veteran discount program is not funded by the state or federal government; therefore veterans who are eligible for education benefits through the VA may also receive the Quincy College discounted rate.

In addition to being a Military Friendly School, Quincy College is a member of the Service Members Opportunity Colleges Consortium (SOC). Quincy College advisors review both military and college transcripts, as well as CLEP and DANTES exam scores, for transfer credit according to American Council of Education (ACE) recommendations.

Veterans, veteran dependents, and active duty service members are able to use their federal education benefits at Quincy College including: Post 9/11 GI Bill, Montgomery GI Bill, Vocational Rehabilitation, My CAA, VA Work Study and Tuition Assistance.

250 Expected At USS Quincy Reunion

By SCOTT JACKSON

A planned reunion of crewmembers who served aboard the U.S.S. Quincy (CA-71) was expected to draw 250 sailors and guests to the city.

The Elks Hall and the Carlton House Hotel would serve as bases of operation throughout for the three-day reunion.

The festivities would begin with a cocktail party in the Quincy Room of the Carlton House.

Some 200 seats for Saturday's North Quincy-Revere football game at Veterans' Memorial Stadium were reserved for the crew. At the game the Marine Corps Color Guard planned to raise the American flag and a U.S.S. Quincy flag, and the 35th Regimental Drill Team was expected to perform at halftime.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon was scheduled to take part in the halftime ceremonies, accepting a flag from the crewmembers presented by Capt. B.V. Ajamian of the First Naval District.

A dance at the Elks Hall was planned for Saturday evening. On Sunday, breakfast was scheduled for the reunion at the Fargo Building in Boston, followed by a visit to the U.S.S. Constitution in Charlestown. After that the reunion would adjourn.

Among the crewmembers who would be attending the reunion was Quincy Police Sgt. Daniel Lyons of Billings Road.

Throughout the weekend, the city planned to fly U.S.S. Quincy flags at the Quincy Point, West Quincy, and Atlantic fire stations.

The U.S.S. Quincy (CA-71) was built at the Fore River Shipyard during World War II, and named after another the U.S.S. Quincy (CA-39), another cruiser that was sunk off Savo Island on Aug. 8, 1942 by the Japanese.

Operating off of Utah Beach, CA-71 was the first ship to fire on German positions during the Normandy Invasion on June 6, 1944. The ship also transported President Franklin D. Roosevelt to Malta in February 1945 for his meeting with British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. The ship then took the president to a meeting at Yalta.

The U.S.S. Quincy was reassigned to the Pacific following the meeting, where she remained until being decommissioned in 1946. She was brought out of retirement during the Korean War in 1952, and decommissioned again in 1954.

In 2014, Friends of the Blue Hills will celebrate its 35th year and in honor of this milestone, the organization is launching a yearlong series of events commencing with their Annual Celebration on Thursday, Oct. 10, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Fuller Village in Milton.

Jack Murray, the newly appointed Commissioner of the Department of Conservation and Recreation, will be the keynote speaker.

Tickets for the event are $35 if purchased by Oct. 4 and $40 at the door. Tickets are available on the website www.FriendsoftheBlueHills.org/celebrate.

There will also be a special raffle as part of the festivities: a dinner for six at the top of the Blue Hills Observatory, the oldest continually operating weather observatory in the country. The winner will enjoy breathtaking views of the Boston skyline and the ocean while dining on an elegant meal catered by local chef Joyce White.

Tickets for the raffle are $15 each or 3/$35 and can also be purchased on the Friends of the Blue Hills website.

Since 1979, Friends of the Blue Hills has been working to preserve and protect the Blue Hills Reservation's natural beauty, diverse natural habitats, and many recreational opportunities.

Rev. Sheldon W. Bennett, Minister Emeritus of United First Parish Church, has been a frequent visitor to the Reservation since moving to Quincy 27 years ago.

"It is my favorite place, and it's right here," said Rev. Bennett. "Walking its woodland paths for me is meditation, savoring the quiet beauty, observing the changing seasons, delighting in the sounds of swollen brooks, songs of birds, or the chorus of peepers signaling spring, or contemplating distant vistas from a hilltop. I treasure those times with family and friends when our walks together lead to easy conversation, and sometimes important talks about deeper things."

Blue Hills Reservation has 22 hilltops and approximately half of the 7,000+ acres of the Blue Hills are in Quincy. Tax-deductible memberships start at $30, and all new members receive a welcome package with a Blue Hills trail map, suggested hikes, and mountain biking information.

Although the business is no longer located in Milton, Crane & Co. continues to produce fine paper products including the stock on which US currency is printed.

Crane Field is located at Belcher Circle off Granite Place in East Milton. East Congregational Church is one block away, on the corner of Adams Street and Granite Place.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Rita's Fresh Tomato Pie

With so many fresh tomatoes around either from the garden or the farmer's market, there is nothing like a fresh one.

Today's recipe for tomato pie comes from my daughter Rita, who made it with tomatoes from her garden.

It is so versatile, that when I made it, I could enjoy it days after heated either in the microwave or the oven. I even ended up freezing two helpings.

TOMATO PIE

2 medium onions (sliced thin)

4 medium tomatoes

2 tablespoons olive oil

Pie crust for the bottom

Pre heat oven to 350 degrees

Squeeze out the juice and seeds of each tomato, so there won't be any liquid in the pie. Dice the tomatoes. Place the pie crust on the bottom of a pie plate. Layer the sliced onion on the bottom. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and half of the olive oil. Place the diced tomatoes over the onion, salt and pepper, then the rest of the olive oil.

FOR THE TOPPING

1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese

½ cup sliced mozzarella cheese

3 tablespoons mayonnaise

1 cup grated Parmesan cheese

In a bowl mix the cup of shredded mozzarella cheese, the grated Parmesan cheese, and the mayonnaise. Mixture will be moist. Cover the pie with the topping and then finish it off with the sliced mozzarella. Bake for 45 minutes. Cool just a bit before slicing.

WikiLeaks Story Film Screening Sept. 23

On Monday, Sept. 23 at 6:30 p.m. the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center, is screening "We Steal Secrets: The story of WikiLeaks," the latest film from award-winning documentary director Alex Gibney. In this film Gibney turns his camera on WikiLeaks, its founder, Julian Assange, and the global debate over access to information and the controversial website which facilitated the largest security breach in U.S. history.

The Los Angeles Times called this film a "sprawling, ambitious, major work — a gripping exploration of power, personality, technology and the crushing weight that can come to bear on those who find themselves in its combined path." The Hollywood Reporter raved: "Unfolding like an espionage thriller but with a methodical journalistic skill at organizing a mountain of facts, the film raises stimulating questions about transparency and freedom of information in a world in which governments and corporations have plenty to hide."

We Steal Secrets was released in 2013 and is Rated R for some disturbing violent images, language and sexual material. It runs 127 minutes.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

DENTAL HYGIENISTS STRESS PREVENTION

Dental hygienists are licensed professionals who specialize in preventive oral care. By conducting regular, comprehensive tooth cleanings that involve removing calculus and plaque (hard and soft deposits), the hygienist helps patients avoid tooth decay and gum disease. Just as importantly, the dental hygienist can teach patients oral hygiene strategies that help them maintain oral health. This very important member of the dental team also screens for oral cancer and counsels about good nutrition that plays a big role in preserving tooth health. Dental charting, taking x-rays, and reviewing health history are but a few of the other valuable tasks that dental hygienists are trained to perform with the goal of furthering patient health and awareness.

Our dental hygienists are oral health care professionals who provide educational, clinical, and therapeutic services to our patients. Oral health is a long-term commitment we share with each patient and we encourage you to make us aware of any special needs you may have. We provide excellent clinical skills and state-of-the-art equipment. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where our goal is to help you preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

C. Vozzella doing business as Foreign Motor Works on 555 Southern Artery for a Garage Repair and Motor II Used Car License. The business is moving across the street to 678 Southern Artery.

"Because of the extensive cost, not only the purchase, but also the renovations that are taking place, Mr. Vozzella would like to be able to have four or five cars as a used car," asked Attorney Henry Levin. "That would not be his main business, he is primarily in the repair business. He has been there five years, I think he has a good record with the city as he does with his customers."

There are 12 spaces on the property and the board decided that they would allow for three cars to be for sale and a total of 010 cars, including the three for sale, on site overnight.

- A one-day special use permit for the Bethel Church of the Nazarene at 41 Empire St. to hold a Family Fun Day event on Sept. 21. This is the second year the event has been held; it will take place from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The board voted at the July 16th meeting that Elnar reduce the number of vehicles on site overnight, provide repairs and replacements of his fencing, install shrubbery and/or screening along with landscaping, and remove all illegal and non-permitted signs among other items.

Board members at the Sept. 10th meeting said that since the hearing on July 16 Elnar has not abided by the limitations of how many vehicles he can store on site overnight, or completed all of the items on the list they had given him.

The next license board meeting will be held on Sept. 24th at 4 p.m. in the City Council Chambers.

CPA Funds 21 Projects

Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday that 21 projects, ranging from park improvements to historic renovations, will be underway this year thanks to funding through the Community Preservation Act (CPA).

Financing a share of the historic renovations to the Coddington School and old City Hall are the largest projects using long-term CPA funding, and Mayor Koch also approved more than $1.3 million in smaller projects recommended after months of review work by the Community Preservation Committee, including major renovations to the Squantum Elementary School playground, Safford Park and LaBrecque Field.

The CPA, approved by Quincy voters in 2007, sets aside a 1 percent share of local property tax bills plus state matching funds to pay for preservation projects such as park improvements and the restoration of historic buildings as well as affordable housing projects.

"I am tremendously proud of, and grateful for, the work of the Community Preservation Committee, which together with our team and the City Council, will see these important projects become reality. We are moving forward with an unprecedented amount of work in our City today, and that's due in great part to so many people working together to get it done," said Mayor Koch.

The Quincy Community Preservation Committee reviewed applications between January and May of 2013 making recommendations to the Mayor which were agreed upon and approved by the Quincy City Council.

Approved projects include seven Historic Preservation efforts, one Open Space, 10 Recreation and three Affordable Housing projects.

Historic projects include preservation work for the Wollaston Congregational Church, the Lyons Turning Mill, Josiah Quincy House, Quincy Yacht Club historic artifacts, Mount Wollaston Cemetery and Souther Tide Mill. In addition, funds have been awarded for Maypole Hill Park to be added to the National Historic Registry.

Recreation projects under the guidance of the Quincy Park Department include the rehabilitation of the Squantum playground, Safford Park, LaBrecque Field and the playground and Snug Harbor.

The Park Department will also assist Squantum School in creating an outdoor classroom and creation of a recreational park at the Broad Meadows Marsh. The Neponset River Water Shed will construct a recreational walkway. The Quincy Police Department will renovate the Public Landing, and the Germantown Community Garden Club will develop a community garden.

The Squantum Day Lilly planting program is being awarded money to plant day lilies along E. Squantum Street.

Neighborhood Housing Services has been awarded funds to support the preservation of rental units at Kendrigan Place, and Quincy Housing Authority will make safety and capital improvements to Tobin Towers and Crowley Court.

Community Preservation Director Lisa Aimola said she is "thrilled to see such diverse projects coming out of the 2013 review process. We are able to help support everything from the preservation of 78 affordable housing rental units to the creation of a passive park in the Broad Meadows Marsh to improvements to five city playgrounds. The most unique of which is the creation of an outdoor classroom for students to have a new setting for learning opportunities. As a long time Quincy resident, it's inspiring to know the City is reinvesting resources into our historic preservation as well as in our education, recreation and beautification across our entire City."

Potential 2014 applicants can contact Aimola, at 617-376-1052, laimola@quincyma.gov or attend a C.P.C. public meeting held at 7 p.m. on the second Thursday of each month at City Hall in Council Chambers. Check the City of Quincy website cityofquincy.gov to confirm possible time and location changes.

time we'll have all our doors locked down for the whole day and they'll have to buzz in to the security staff at the high schools to be able to buzz in once the school is in session," said Draicchio. "Obviously the door locks were the biggest piece of this, it's a great project and a very successful one."

Draicchio and his team have also been able to equip staff with identification cards along with lanyards and keys.

"There is an enormous amount of identification badges out to all the schools. Any staff that we missed at the end of last school year, when we started the process, we will be going around within the next couple weeks to take their photos, and we've already done that with the new staff during their orientation," said Draicchio. "The lanyards and the keys are a part of this whole thing together that we have provided to staff. I think it has been an overwhelming success with staff wearing their lanyards, and their badges, and their keys."

Interior and exterior surveillance cameras and new intercom systems were installed and continue to be installed throughout the school district as a part of the new security features.

"Intercoms with cameras have all been installed with the exception of the two high schools because they didn't have an existing buzzer. Within the next couple weeks we'll get them in place," said Draicchio.

"It's been an ongoing process for the surveillance cameras ever since I took over the position. We put an enormous amount of security surveillance around the schools in the interior and exterior over the summer so that's going to be a great help for us to maintain the safety and security of our students, staff, and facilities."

NEON BLUE

Those born in October have a very pleasant decision to make. One of their birthstones, tourmaline, comes in a greater range of colors than any other gemstone. Just to confuse the issue a bit, each has a separate name, including rubellite (pink, red); dravite (brown); and siberite (violet). Watermelon tourmaline, as its name suggests, can be composed of two or three colors (green, white, and pink), which suggests the rind and inner colors of its namesake. However, perhaps the most popular color among jewelry designers is blue. Indicolite possesses a deep, rich blue that approaches neon in its intensity. Because the stone appears

Koch: Central Opening Decision Soon

ble. One thing is for certain that when we get in there it will be done right and ready for learning."

The superintendent added that the academic wing of the school was almost complete and the floor of the new gymnasium was installed but still needs to be lined. The auditorium will be the last part of the school to be completed before the new Central opens. Once the building is completed, staff will need to familiarize themselves with the new school and its technology, as will public safety personnel.

"We also need to do a lot of our training," DeCristofaro said. "We need to do our training of our professional staff; the student dining, the food service people; the custodians; the maintenance, our technicians need to make sure that everything is the way it should be. The Police and Fire Departments want to get in there just to walk through so they can get an idea of the evacuation plans. It's a very complex project, but we are looking forward to moving in as soon as we can, but we want it to be ready, and learning ready."

While construction of the new school continues to progress, School Committee member Anne Mahoney said it was important for parents to receive more frequent updates on the construction than they had been receiving.

"We're sitting here tonight, on the second week of school, and we still don't have a schedule," Mahoney said during the Sept. 11 meeting. "People are very eager to know when they are going to be moving in to the new Central. We had an open house last night at Central Middle School and there was no information for parents other than that we will have another open house for Central Middle School."

"I think it's important to remember that we want the whole building done and ready for us to move in," Mahoney added, "but a schedule will be enormously helpful."

Once open, the new three-story school will accommodate about 600 students in grades 6, 7, and 8. The school has a $50 million price tag, and the state will reimburse 80 percent of building costs, excluding certain items such as land acquisitions. The new Central Middle School is located on Hancock Street, across from Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The old Central, located just south on Hancock, will be sold off once the new building opens. That building opened 1894 and housed Quincy High School before it was a middle school.

'Songs From The Silver Screen' Sept. 25

1989. Their presentation will bring together classics from the great films of the 1930s and 1940s. They have appeared, among other places, at Emerson's Majestic Theater, the Wang Centre for the Performing Arts, the Mabel Mercer Foundation Cabaret Convention (Town Hall, New York City) and at colleges, concert series and other venues throughout the Northeast.

QC Station Agreement Near

the MBTA on a final version of a memorandum of agreement," Koch said. "It would allow the city to take the lead and come up with a program to replace the station and replace the parking and create perhaps some development in the air rights above the station, which would help make the whole project work economically."

The mayor added that the agreement could be finalized 'soon,' within a week or two. After that agreement is reached, the city could retain an engineering firm to start the design process. There is currently no timeline for the development.

In addition to retail and office components, the RFQ also asks the design firm to incorporate a 250,000 square foot courthouse facility into the design. The mayor said that Robert A. Mulligan, the now-retired chief justice of Massachusetts' trial courts, had asked the city to find room for a new courthouse in Quincy Center to replace the current one on the Dennis Ryan Parkway.

"What they have right now doesn't meet their demands," Koch said. "It's overcrowded."

While the state would have final say on relocating the courthouse, the mayor prefers moving them to the new facility at the MBTA station because putting them elsewhere in the downtown would cause the city to miss out on property taxes.

The new station would also be designed to reduce problems encountered at the Hancock Street side of the station. Currently cabs and MBTA buses enter the station from the Hancock Street entrance, as does a majority of drop-off/pick-up drivers. That leads to incredible overcrowding during peak hours. The mayor would prefer moving the busway to the Burgin Parkway to reduce that congestion.

"My idea is that the buses would be off of Burgin and the buses would be under cover - all of them making connections underneath - and then keep on the Hancock Street side the kiss and ride (drop-off/pick-up) side and the cabs," Koch said.

In addition to creating new office and retail space, and improving the functionality of the station, the redevelopment would make the station more welcoming for visitors to the redeveloped downtown Quincy and nearby historic sites.

"It only makes sense to make the station more aesthetically pleasing," Koch said. "When you step out of the station you're looking at the final resting place of two presidents and their wives."

Les Gosule Eyes State Senate Bid

By SCOTT JACKSON

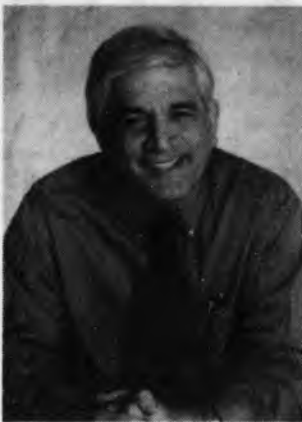

Les Gosule, a victims' advocate who championed the passage of a three-strikes law in Massachusetts, said he will decide by early next year whether or not to run against Sen. John Keenan.

Gosule, who would run as a Republican, established a campaign account to allow him to raise funds while contemplating the campaign. He plans to meet with constituents in the Norfolk-Plymouth Senate District, which includes Quincy, Abington, Rockland, Holbrook, and several precincts in Braintree, over the next several months as he weighs what would be his first run for public office.

"The plan is to find out if there's any support for my Senate candidacy," Gosule said in a phone interview. "I'm disappointed [with state government] and I want to know how people feel about it."

Gosule said he is mostly concerned over unemployment, taxes, victims' rights, and state spending.

A Quincy resident, certified public accountant, and licensed financial advisor, Gosule backed the passage of Melissa's Law, which mandates life imprisonment without the possibility of parole for anyone convicted three times for violent felonies. The law was named for Gosule's daughter Melissa, who was murdered in 1999 by a man who had more than two-dozen felony convictions but had served less than two years in prison. Melissa's Law was approved by the Legislature in 2012.

A graduate of Boston Technical High School, Gosule attended Bentley University, earning a bachelor's degree in accounting and finance and a then a master's degree in taxation from Northeastern. He is a founding partner of the Milton-based accounting firm Gosule, Butkus & Jesson.

Hundreds Enjoy Houghs Neck ChowdaFest

Lois Murphy New 'Mayor'

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Almost two dozen restaurants and four individuals came prepared to dish out samples of their chowder to hungry voters who flocked to the Houghs Neck Maritime Center last Saturday for the 9th annual Houghs Neck ChowdaFest.

For a $5 admission fee, chowder enthusiasts were free to indulge in as much of the New England specialty as they could eat. Hot dogs, hamburgers, and chips were also sold by local Boy Scouts Troop 6, adding variety to the day's menu.

Providing music for the event was Rock Island Sound who played today's hits while the crowd danced and mingled among other "Neckers."

After all the chowder was eaten, the ballots were collected and the results tallied. The first place winner in the individual category was Merideth Earnest, followed by Walter Hubley in second place, and Brian Keith in third.

Taking first place in the restaurant category was Wood Road Deli of Braintree. Second place went to the Adams Pub Best Western, and third went to Louis Restaurant of Hough's Neck.

In addition to voting on the best chowder, the crowd witnessed the crowning of "The Mayor of Hough's Neck," an honorary title given each year to the individual who succeeds in raising the most money for the Hough's Neck Community Council, a nonprofit organization which coordinates family events, provides scholarships, and assists needy families during the holiday season. The contest is currently in its seventh year.

Competing for the coveted position were Kim Fallon, Emily McCarthy, Tom Morrell, Mike Berry Jr., and Lois Murphy. Their combined efforts raised roughly $5,000 for the council; however, Murphy was handed the trophy, awarding her a one-year term as "Mayor."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, who called Murphy a "Necker legend," state Rep. Tackey Chan, and state Sen. John Keenan took to the microphone to read off commendations given to Murphy for her victory by Mayor Thomas Koch, the Massachusetts Senate, and the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

"I think it's fantastic," said Murphy on being the first female "Mayor."

"We had a fundraiser at Louis Restaurant one night...and I had a wonderful showing and we raised a lot of money there and then people just made donations in my name," she said. As for what she would do during her term, Murphy said she would "do anything to help Margaret [Laforest] for Hough's Neck."

"We live in the Neck and we just want to support the Hough's Neck Community Council," said 20 year Hough's Neck resident Rachel O'Donoghue, who attended the event with her husband, Todd. They were overwhelmed by the number of chowder options but both agreed on their favorite recipe: that of Wood Road Deli. "Their chowder is fantastic," she said.

They also brought friends from neighboring cities and towns along to participate in the fun, adding to the massive crowd of people which possibly topped last year's attendance record of roughly 1,800 soup lovers.

"A couple of people who live here locally never came out and they came out this year though," said Todd O'Donoghue, who remarked that he and his wife enjoyed the community spirit made evident by the large number of attendees.

Proceeds earned through the sales of admission and the cash bar will go directly to the Hough's Neck Community Council.

Fall Automotive Care

Fall Car Care Tips From AAA Southern New England

A Seasonal Maintenance Checklist For Motorists

With the change of seasons most people examine their wardrobes. Last season's coat is inspected for wear, and boots, sweaters and wool slacks come out of the closet for scrutiny. AAA reminds motorists that cars also need seasonal checkups.

AAA recommends that motorists use a simple checklist to determine their car's fall and winter maintenance needs. Most of the items on the checklist can be inspected by car owners in less than an hour, but several others should be performed by a certified technician.

One way to identify a reliable, high-quality repair facility with certified technicians is to look for one that is AAA Approved. AAA Approved Auto Repair facilities must meet and maintain high professional standards for customer service, technician training, service equipment, warranties and cleanliness. There are nearly 8000 AAA Approved Auto Repair facilities in the U.S., and nearby shops can be quickly located at AAA.com/repair.

John Paul, AAA's Southern New England's Car Doctor, suggests the following items should be on your winter car checklist:

Battery and Charging System – Have the battery and charging system tested by a trained technician. A fully charged battery in good condition is required to start an engine in cold weather. AAA members can request a visit from a AAA Mobile Battery Service technician who will test their battery and replace it on-site, if necessary. AAA Approved Auto Repair facilities can also test and replace weak batteries.

Battery Cables and Terminals – Check the condition of the battery cables and terminals. Make sure all connections are secure and remove any corrosion from the terminals and posts.

Drive Belts – Inspect belts for cracks or fraying.

ing. Don't just look at the smooth top surface of the belt, but turn it over and check the grooved underside where most belt wear occurs.

Engine Hoses – Visually inspect the cooling system hoses for leaks, cracks or loose clamps. Also, squeeze the hoses to check for any that may be brittle or excessively spongy feeling and in need of replacement.

Tire Type and Tread – In areas with heavy winter weather, changing to snow tires on all four wheels will provide the best winter traction. All-season tires will work well in light to moderate snow conditions, providing they have adequate tread depth. If any tire has less than 3/32-inches of tread, it should be replaced. Uneven wear on the tires can indicate alignment, suspension or wheel balance problems that should be addressed to prevent further damage to the tires. This is also a great time to check your car's spare tire and jack.

Tire Pressure – Check

tire pressure more frequently during winter months. As the temperature drops, so will the pressures in the tires — typically 1 PSI for every 10 degrees Fahrenheit. The proper tire pressure levels can be found on a sticker located on the driver's side door jamb. And, don't forget to check the air in the spare tire. Temporary spare tires will generally have much higher tire pressure.

Air Filter – Check the engine's air filter by holding it up to a 60-watt light bulb. If light can be seen through much of the filter, it is still clean enough to work effectively. However, if the light is blocked by most of the filter, replace it.

The engine air filter is not the only air filter in the car. Many cars today have cabin air filters. A blocked cabin air filter will reduce heater/defroster efficiency.

Coolant Levels – Check the coolant level when the engine is cold. If the coolant level is low, add a 50/50 solution of coolant and water to maintain the necessary antifreeze capability. The level of antifreeze protection can be checked with an inexpensive tester available at any auto parts store. Today car engines use many different types of engine coolant. Follow the car's owner's manual to use the proper type.

Lights – Check the operation of all headlights, tail-lights, emergency flashers, turn signals, brake lights and back-up lights. Replace any burnt out bulbs.

Wiper Blades – Blades should completely clear the glass with each swipe. Replace blades that leave streaks or miss spots. In areas with snowy conditions, consider installing winter wiper blades that wrap the blade in a rubber boot or use a beam style blade to prevent ice and snow buildup that can prevent good contact between the rubber blade and the glass.

Washer Fluid – Fill the windshield washer fluid reservoir with a cleaning solution that has antifreeze components for cold weather use.

Brakes – Have brakes inspected by a certified technician to ensure all components are in good working order.

Transmission, Brake and Power Steering Fluids – Check all fluids to ensure they are at or above the minimum safe levels.

Emergency Road Kit – Update the car's emergency kit for winter weather. The kit should include:

- Bag of abrasive material (sand, salt, cat litter) or traction mats
- Snow shovel
- Snow brush
- Flashlight with extra batteries
- Window washer solvent
- Ice scraper
- Cloth or roll of paper towels
- Jumper cables
- Gloves, hats and blankets
- Warning devices (flares or triangles)
- Drinking water
- Non-perishable snacks (energy or granola bars)
- Extra clothes
- First-aid kit
- Basic toolkit (screwdrivers, pliers, adjustable wrench)
- Mobile phone and car charger with important numbers programmed in it, including a roadside assistance provider.

One point.

When a team loses by four touchdowns, there is little to discuss. The other guys were better.

However, when a team loses by a point, memories of the game are played and re-played. Plays which missed by an instant or an inch are watched and re-watched on film. And in Quincy's case, there are thoughts of a strong south wind which carried home the winning field goal and floated long a pair of pass connections for the Presidents.

The result was a 17-16 loss to Braintree in which Quincy stormed the offensive end for the entire fourth quarter, but fell shy by a point Thursday at Alumni Field in Braintree. It was a non-league game, but an important one for Quincy (1-1) and Braintree (1-0) because both teams are in Division 2 South in the new MIAA playoff seedings.

"We played a half of good offense and three quarters of good defense," said coach Bill Reardon. "That's not enough. That's something that happens to a young team and we are young."

Before reviewing the what-ifs and could-havebeens, let's begin with Quincy's two scoring plays which featured flawless execution. The first was a 93-yard kickoff return for a touchdown by sophomore Jahvae Handsome-Fields to start the game which showed two things. It is impossible to block better on a kickoff, and when Handsome-Fields is in the open field, there are few who will catch him.

"We really sealed them off well on the play," said Reardon. "They had a contain guy in good position, but we blocked him, Jahvae hit the seam and he was gone."

Handsome-Fields raced clear up the left sideline. At the Braintree 40, there were three tacklers who were roughly even with him. Then Handsome-Fields simply vanished. He was gone. The tacklers were a distant memory. He was untouched on the play. Blocking and pure speed are a fine combination.

"He's one of our faster ones," said Reardon with a smile. Quarterback James Lam hit J.T. Bain in the corner of the end zone with a high, touch pass for the conversion and an 8-0 lead.

The second Quincy scoring play came in the fourth period after the Wamps led for most of the game. Braintree scored 17 points in the first quarter on a five-yard run by Matt Darling, a 30-yard pass from Mike Mahoney to Stephen Leary and a 39-yard field goal by Thiago Pinto for a 17-8 lead.

After the first quarter, Quincy gave nothing and the Presidents ruled the final 17 minutes. Midway through the period, Lam hit Robbie Munroe for nine and Bain for nine and ten-yard completions which moved the ball to the four. On fourth down from the four, senior tailback Alex Alexandre went in untouched for the score.

That's right. Untouched. On a simple, fourth-down dive play from inside the five, the blocking was so good nobody touched him. Matt Hines, Abraham Hoti, and Steve Scolaro pushed Braintree back into the end zone and all Alexandre had to do was follow them off the left side for the touchdown.

"Give credit to our full-back Jalen Chase and our guard William Young who pulled and got a big block," said Reardon. The same left side gave Alexandre a huge hole for the two-point conversion, and Quincy was within 17-16 with 3:49 left.

Now let's look at the moments and plays that Quincy remembered all too well on the bus ride home.

• The winning field goal. 39-yard field goals in high school football are as rare as a beach day in January. Pinto has a strong foot and he drilled the kick, but the gusty wind at his back clearly carried the ball through the final yards over the crossbar. It proved to be the winning points.

• Quincy was going with the wind at its back in the second period. Twice, Lam had Bain open deep cutting through the middle and the passes, boosted by the wind, sailed just long. The wind giveth and wind taketh away.

• Late in the second period, Lam hit Robbie Munroe streaking down the left sideline at the Braintree 15, but the catch was made barely out-of-bounds.

• After Quincy's defense dominated the game in the final period and gave the Presidents field position at the Braintree 27, 40, 30, and 48, the Presidents had two great chances. Lam scrambled on both and had Alexandre running free, but each pass missed by a step. If either pass is completed, Alexandre is still running. The second play came at the Braintree 20 with 0:19 left and ended Quincy's final threat.

"The Munroe play was a big one. It would have put us in great shape. We were in a position where we needed to make a big play on offense and we couldn't quite make it," said Reardon.

The most encouraging part of the game was the work of the defense which is big, fast and hits hard. They pitched a shutout after the first period. After the midway point of the third period, Quincy gave no first downs and 13 yards total offense.

"I think we might have been a little nervous, a little too pumped up at the beginning," said Reardon. "We knew the scheme we wanted to run against them, but we just didn't get into it in the first quarter. Instead of seeing and reacting, we were rushing and making mistakes. We made an adjustment, settled in and played good defense."

There were big plays on defense. Linebacker Dan Guarente stuffed a third-and-four play with a jarring hit in the backfield to give Quincy its final possession with 2:00 left. Young partially blocked a punt to set Quincy up at the Braintree 35. Tomaz Silva forced and recovered a fumble to stop a drive. Handsome-Fields made a tumbling one-handed interception of a tipped ball in the corner of the end zone to halt a Braintree threat.

By the end of the season, this could be quite a unit.

"This is an experience we can learn from and the lesson is you have to play four quarters of defense," said Reardon.

The offensive line did not get the same push it had in putting up nearly 300 yards of total offense in the opener against Malden Catholic. Alexandre had 58 yards in 13 carries and Handsome-Fields had a pair of nice runs for 15 yards in the first half. Lam looked more effective throwing out of the pocket rather than on the run. He is still growing accustomed to two new receivers in Munroe and Bain. Look for more of the junior QB dropping back and setting up and less scrambling.

"I think we want to get James in the pocket more making his reads and throwing the ball. That's where he looks most effective," said Reardon.

Quincy travels to Canton Friday night at 6:00. Canton is 0-1 with a 33-14 loss to powerful Abington in its opener. Last year, Canton defeated the Presidents, 21-12.

Red Raiders Seek First Win Against Dedham Friday Night

By JOE REARDON

Will the real North Quincy High football team please stand up because fans are wondering what the true face is of this fall's Red Raiders.

North Quincy has shown it has ample talent on both sides of the ball, but still has to put together four solid quarters to put up a crooked number in the win column.

The Red Raiders stood strong on defense and was very much in the game in a 12-8 season-opening loss against Medford. Friday night's contest against Boston Latin was the polar opposite as North Quincy put up gaudy scoring numbers, but had two botched punting snaps that resulted in Wolfpack scores in its 44-30 loss.

Now, head coach Mark Nutley has put the challenge to his 0-2 squad to play strong on both sides of the ball. The Red Raiders will get their chance on Friday night when they play host to Dedham at Veterans Memorial Stadium beginning at 7 p.m. The Marauders' offense was almost non-existent in its 26-6 loss against Medfield and, like the Red Raiders, desperately want to garner their first win of the season.

Nutley believes his squad has the talent for a successful season, but that will only come if the Red Raiders cut down on the mistakes that result in opponents winding up in the end zone.

"We had a four touch-down night and scored thirty points, so I was pretty happy with that," said Nutley. "Are they (Dedham) beatable? It depends on which team shows up. We played great defense in one game, but couldn't put the ball in the end zone. One of these days if we put both together, we'll have a lot of success."

Nutley is hoping that success begins Friday against the Bay State League opponent and you can bet the Marauders will be busy this week coming up with a plan to neutralize North Quincy back Antoine Allen. The speedster was practically unstoppable as he torched Boston Latin for three touchdowns on 220 yards of rushing and also pulled in a 55-yard pass from quarterback Joe Fallon for another Red Raider score. Allen had scoring runs of 4, 65 and 5 yards and was dazzling as he found the holes in the Wolfpack defense.

Nutley wants his Red Raiders to force turnovers and catch the Marauders on their heels.

"We lost two games that were very winable," said Nutley. "We have to force teams into making mistakes instead of us making mistakes. That (30 points) was definitely nice and we had a big drive that ate up most of the second quarter."

Boston Latin quarterback

Roy Bahnam exploited the North Quincy secondary with four touchdown passes and ran for another. Bahnam finished with 180 yards through the air on an 13-for-18 night.

Quincy Bows To W-H

By BILL GRIFFIN

For over 50 minutes, excellent goaltending, a sturdy back line and diligent marking on defense kept Quincy's girls soccer team even with a talented Whitman-Hanson club in the Patriot League opener for the Presidents last week at Veterans Stadium.

However, the Panthers broke the spell by scoring three goals in less than 10 minutes midway through the second half for a 3-0 victory over Quincy who featured excellent performances by senior fullback Kayla McArdle and senior goalie Natalie O'Donovan.

"Whitman-Hanson is a great team and I thought we played a hard-fought match," said coach Courtney Harnais who welcomes back seven seniors from last year's 2-15-1 club. "It was just that one lapse of maybe 10 or 20 minutes. Other than that, I thought we played well against a very good team."

In recent non-league action, Quincy blanked Fontbonne, 3-0 and rolled past Randolph, 9-0.

McArdle was terrific. She won countless one-on-one battles, kept the scoring area clear of rebounds, played spotless positional soccer, roamed from sideline to sideline protecting her goal, and also managed several offensive runs along the sidelines deep into Panthers' territory. She blocked shots turned aside passes, and cleared the zone with strong kicks. She played every second of the 80-minute match.

"Kayla is a rock," said Harnais. "She'll play the entire game in most of our matches. She has all the skills you want in a full-back. She's fast and has a strong foot, but her biggest asset is that she plays hard every minute."

O'Donovan, who had two shutouts in her first three matches, handled 16 shots on goal and several of her saves in the second half were exceptional. She stood her spot and took away the angles to turn hard saves into easy ones in the first half. She was at her best late in the half when she handled a hard drive from just to the right of the net from Kelsey Gilbert.

She was even sharper early in the second half, handling a blast through a screen, a deflection at the corner of the goal which changed the direction of the shot, and a clear, low blast from the top of the penalty area. She played so well the Panthers were trying for the perfect shot rather solid drives to finish good chances.

"Natalie is a player you can always depend on," said Harnais. "She is a smart goalie. She plays her line well, but she knows when to come out and go for the ball. She stopped a lot of threats because she came out and beat an attacker to a loose ball. That is something she has worked hard on, making her decision and then going out at full speed."

Quincy also marked well Whitman-Hanson's attackers. The Presidents didn't chase the ball. They stayed with their assigned players and frustrated the Panthers for most of the match. They were disciplined and they were tough. Gabby Jerhian, Kerry Phelan, Nina McDonald, Stacey Gallagher, Lauren Matthies, Emily Hatfield, and Brienne Dane all checked well throughout the match. Junior Colleen Madden also played an excellent match alongside McArdle on the backline.

"Marking is one thing we've worked hard on," said Harnais. "The ball never stops moving. You can't chase it. We've worked on staying with our marks and contesting every ball. I thought, with the exception of that one lapse, we did that against Whitman."

With 28:41 left in the match, it was tied 0-0. With 19:00 left, Whitman was up, 3-0. It was that quick. Gilbert, Melissa Murlburt and Lily Higgins scored in a 10-minute flurry for a 3-0 lead, but it was what happened over the final 19 minutes after the scoring burst which made Harnais proud of her team.

"The last 19 minutes made me the happiest," said Harnais. "It was a good measure of how far we've come from last year. Last year it would have ended up, 8-0. We bounced back and kept playing hard until the end of the match."

Not only did Quincy stay with their checks, the Presidents produced their best chance of the match over the closing minutes.

Junior Emma Papile, Michelle Lang, and Dominique Lucier kept consistent pressure on the Panthers' end. After one rush, McArdle found Papile clear on the right side near the top of the penalty area. Papile left-footed a scorcher which was ticketed for the far corner, but the Panthers' goalie Lindsay Anderson made a diving stop to preserve her shutout.

"I think our offense will be the most improved part of our game," said Harnais whose club scored 12 goals in the non-league wins over Fontbonne and Randolph. "Emma, Dominique and Michelle had good runs in the first half. Emma is a threat with either foot. Last year, we had trouble creating chances once we got to midfield. This year, I think we'll do much better with our attack."

Tayla Tervakoski, Haley White, Olivia Wallace, Isabelle Falco, and Ali MacPherson will all provide valuable depth for the Presidents.

Freshman Joelle Robinson, Lang and Lucier scored in the win over Fontbonne.

Against Randolph, Robinson and Lam each scored twice. Lucier, Papile, Julia Donovan, Annie Silveira, and Jillian O'Leary each had single goals.

Quincy travels to Hanover Thursday for a 4:00 match.

GIRLS' SOCCER

Presidents Tie Scituate

By BILL GRIFFIN

Quincy came within less than six minutes of a signature soccer victory, but the Presidents still walked proudly off the field with a rewarding tie against one of the traditional powers in the Patriot League.

Senior midfielder James O'Shea highlighted a brilliant all-around performance with a beautiful first-half goal and Quincy controlled the play for most of the match, but Scituate converted a corner kick with 5:41 left in the second half to earn a 1-1 tie Friday at Veterans Stadium.

It marked the end of a successful week for the Presidents who edged Whitman-Hanson, 3-2 and stopped Randolph, 4-1. Quincy finished the week at 2-1-1 overall and 1-0-1 in the league. Scituate is 3-0-1.

"It would have been our first win over Scituate in the five years I've been here," said Quincy coach Mark Spendlove. "The kids played a fantastic game. It was our best performance of the year."

The Presidents played terrific soccer from the keeper, to the stout fullback line, through a gifted group of midfielders, to the quick, opportunistic forwards who had a clear edge over Scituate in quality of scoring chances.

"Everybody stayed with their roles and played disciplined soccer. There was a flow to our game. I couldn't be prouder of them," said Spendlove.

Senior keeper Connor Dane played sound position on his line, flew out to grab loose balls and stop threats before they started, boomed boots which covered two-thirds of the field, and made several fine saves. The full-back line of Aidan Smyth, Ben Morse, and Connor Porter played smart soccer and used strong legs to control the ball and clear away threats.

O'Shea, Roy Bander, Bjorn Armiri, Cian Moriarty, and Liam Mahoney were magicians in the midfield with passing which turned defense into offense and opened up multiple rushes at the Scituate goal.

"Dane does everything you want from a keeper. He was excellent beating the Scituate forwards to the ball," said Spendlove. "Our fullback line was strong. Morse and Porter have strong legs and they did a good job moving the ball out of our zone. Our midfielders are the strength of our team. We get a lot of our scoring chances from them."

O'Shea was a treat to watch. There is a full range of soccer skills on display. He controls and dribbles the ball in heavy traffic. His passes are short and crisp, and he moves quickly to the open spot to receive the return pass. He has subtle moves and changes of direction which dictate the flow of the match. He has a booming shot and a soft touch around the net which produced Quincy's goal. It was no coincidence that Scituate scored when O'Shea was off the field receiving treatment for a minor leg injury. If you want to have a look at a complete soccer player, look at O'Shea.

"He has it all. He's a special player for us," said Spendlove.

Quincy scored at the 31:30 mark of the first half. Armiri took a short corner kick which reached the near post along the goal-line. O'Shea won a one-on-one battle in front of the net, gained position, turned with his back to the goal, and back-footed in a touch shot which found the near corner for a 1-0 lead.

"He has the weapons of a scorer. He has a great feel for the game and he can also blast a shot," said Spendlove.

Dane had the save of the half, stopping Kyle Medici on a clean break-in. Quincy dominated the match from the midway point of the first half to the midway point of the second half. Hashim Hamdi had a bicycle kick which just missed in the first half and Morse had a direct kick early in the second half which barely sailed high.

However, as the clock ticked into the final minutes, the flow and the chances went to Scituate.

"It was depth. We just ran out of gas," said Spendlove. "We don't have deep bench at certain positions and I think we wore down a little."

The Sailors scored off a corner kick. Sean McKinnon took it. The original kick was blocked, but the deflection went to Zach O'Neill who buried it in the far corner from close range for the 1-1 tie.

Each side had one excellent chance to win it. Dane blasted a goal kick which sailed past midfield. O'Shea controlled it, out-maneuvered three defenders and left-footed a blast from the top of the penalty area which was turned back on a diving save.

In the final minute, Dane stopped a high chip shot and Bander cleared the rebound to preserve the tie.

Quincy has seven starters back from last year's 9-7-4 team. Spendlove feels his club is capable of making the tournament and playing sound soccer with the best of the Patriot League.

"If we play smart and stay healthy, we have a good chance to make the tournament," he said. "Our strength is our keeper and our play in the midfield. We also have a core of excellent players who turned around our program."

Spendlove was talking about Armiri, Bander, Dane, O'Shea, Moriarty, and Smyth who have a great love for the game they play.

"Their love of soccer completely changed the mentality at Quincy," he said. "Let's just say I'm not looking forward to seeing them leave."

Antonio Barbosa, Pedro Calari, Rene Carbajal, Enrique Figueiredo, Ahmad Hamdi, Ciaran McDevitt, Ronoldi Molina, Frankly Pani, Eduardo Paulino, Steve Simons, and Robert Smith will all play roles for the Presidents this season.

In the Whitman-Hanson game, Quincy rallied from a two-goal deficit in the second half on goals from Moriarty, O'Shea and Armiri.

Against Randolph, O'Shea, Moriarty, Armiri and Figueiredo scored for the Presidents.

DOING THE HEAVY LIFTING

People who lift weights and deliver heavy packages are often seen wearing wide leather belts that support their midsections and are supposed to help them avert strains. Do these belts really work? The fact is that those relying on the belts may have a misplaced sense of confidence that puts them at greater risk for injury because they feel unduly protected. On the other hand, those without the supportive belts may be more cautious in their approach to lifting, which helps avoid injury. Some research suggests that not only do those wearing belts have a similar number of injuries as those without belts, but men who lifted without the belts had stronger abdominals and lower backs than the belted group.

Do you wear a belt to support your midsection? Many people experience relief with chiropractic care. Not only can

Quincy Youth Football

Week 2 Highlights

By SEAN HALPIN

The Quincy Youth Football League kicked off Week 2 with an old-fashioned, grudge match between the Quincy Point Panthers and the West Quincy Elks at Veterans Stadium. The game was a rematch of the 2012 QYFL Championship game in which the Elks prevailed 27-20, capturing the coveted Founders Cup Trophy.

The Elks scored on the opening series when QB Curtis Frazier connected with Davi Soares for a 36 yard TD pass. The conversion attempt failed and the Elks went ahead 6-0. On the ensuing series, Elks DE Adam Vu recovered a Panther fumble on their first play from scrimmage. The Elks failed to convert and punted. The Panthers again turned the ball over. This time, the Elks capitalized when RB Davi Soares rushed for a 25 yard TD run to take a 12-0 lead. The Panthers clawed back on the next series when WR Jayo DaRosa scored on a 31 yard TD run. The Panthers entered the locker room trailing the Elks 12-6.

The Quincy Point Panthers took the ball to open the second half. The Panthers drove the ball deep into Elks territory and Joey Spano capped off the drive with a 7 yard TD run. The conversion attempt failed and the Panthers tied the ballgame at 12-12. Both defenses stifled each other through most of the second half. Late in the 4th quarter, the Panthers faced a 4th down and 8 on their own 48 yard line. Jayo DaRosa carried the ball and looked to be stopped in the backfield by Elks defenders when he pitched the ball back to QB Nick Mayberry whom rushed the ball 42 yards inside the Elks' 10 yard line. Three plays later, with the ball game tied and facing a 3rd and goal from the 22, Panthers QB Nick Mayberry hit Jason Fratus on a 22 yard TD pass to take the lead 18-12. The Elk took possession of the ball with 1 minute left to go. Panthers DB Jason Fratus intercepted an Elks pass to seal the victory.

Both teams played very well in this match-up. Elks Coach Justin Thorley got some great efforts from Jamal Williams, James Crump (8 tackles) Soares (2 TDs), Frazier (3 for 5, 56yard 1 TD pass), Michael Toldness (4 tackles 1 sack), Connor Ainsley, Shorn Hawthorne, Brian Nguyen, Noah Herrera and Adam Vu. Coach Noel Dibona's Panthers were led by Bryan Hanly (9 Tackles), Robert Wilson (7 tackles 1 sack), Fratus, Mayberry (5 for 6, 45 yards, 1 TD pass), Cullen O'Connell, Jayo Darosa (8 carries 70 yards) Joey Spano (1 TD) Domenic Laptiste, Jackson Quinn and Ronin Contreras.

The West Quincy Elks (1-1) host The Storm (2-0) next Sunday at 1 p.m. and The Quincy Point Panthers (2-0) kickoff against the Apaches (1-1) at 4:20 p.m. The Point Panthers sit atop the QYFL-Myers Division in first place.

The next game of the afternoon featured the Houghs Neck Manets playing host to the North Quincy Apaches.

Both the Apaches and Manets defense were stifling throughout this entire ball game. The Apaches got on the board for their only score when RB Devin Ganno pounded it in for a 4 yard TD run. The conversion rush failed but the Apaches lead the mustangs 6-0. The second half of the game continued to be all defense as Manets defenders Nate Steinberg and Patrick Deery Both intercepted Apache passes. The Apaches took the victory in this match-up 6-0 over the Manets.

Coach Mark Giordani's Manets were lead by the efforts of Wilmer Duran, Sonny Cugini, Hunter Schofield, Tommy Feeney (5 Tackles), Deery, Steinberg (6 tackles), Anthony Epps, Christ Pham and Jason Lam and Jake Zisk. Apaches coach Ted Arnott got his first win as the Varsity Head Coach with some fine performances from Devin Ganno, QB Dylan Malcolm (3 for 5, 37 yards passing and 38 rushing yards), Chris Donoghey, Nathan Sleiman, Connor Donoghey, Liam Murphy, Jake Roos (6 tackles, 2 rec. for 25 yards) Miles East-erling, Josh Moore, Joe Stafford and Bobby Stevenson. The Manets battle the Milton Mustangs next Sunday at 2:40 p.m. and the Apaches (1-1) face the Panthers (2-0) at 4:20 p.m.

The final game of the afternoon featured the Milton Mustangs battling The Storm. The Storm scored on their second offensive play from scrimmage. RB Max Storch rushed down the sideline for a 30 yard TD run. Tom Veasey rushed in for the conversion and the Storm took the lead 7-0. Storch, scored again on the Storm's next offensive series when he sprinted for a 57 yard TD to extend their lead 13-0. Late in the second quarter the Mustangs punted and pinned the Storm deep on their own 9 yard line. Storch took the handoff and raced 91 yards for his 3rd TD of the afternoon and the Storm lead Milton 19-0 at the half.

On the first play of the second half, Storm RB Max Storch scored his 4th TD on a 64 yard run. Mike Adamson rushed in for the conversion and the Storm lead 26-0. Cullen Walsh and Adamson controlled the clock through the rest of the second half. The Milton Mustangs got on the board late in the game when QB Rich Laine hit TE Terrence Driscoll on 66 yard TD pass. The Storm took the victory of the Mustangs 26-6. Storm Coach Mike Killilea got some fine performances from his squad; Storch (252 yard 4 TD) Cullen Walsh, Tom Veasey (9 tackles), Raphy Veras, Mark Monahan, Andrew Airo-nus and Ty Finn. Quincy Volleyball Wins Season Opener

By BILL GRIFFIN

If the opening act was any indication, Quincy has a deep, balanced, team which looks primed for a long, successful run through the Patriot League.

Quincy's serving was overpowering. The Presidents showed experience, power and finesse along the front line. They returned service well, were quick to the ball and with junior setter Emma Kelly directing the defense and quarterbacking the offense, played the fast, up-tempo volleyball coach Jacqui Niosi wants from her club.

It all added up to a 3-0 win over a quality Silver Lake club by scores of 25-13, 25-16, 25-18 in the Patriot League opener for the Presidents last week.

"I thought we played well especially considering that Silver Lake is a good team. They attack you," said Niosi whose team went 18-5 last year before falling to King Philip in the semifinals of the sectionals. "We want to play faster, quicker and still take care of the ball. We did that today."

Quincy's serving dominated the match. Junior Emma Kimmell had four aces and senior Rachel Papille added three, but aces were only part of the story. There were multiple service winners and consistent, hard, accurate serves which forced the Lakers to scramble to keep the ball in play and left them little opportunity to set up an organized offense.

"Serving is a huge part of the game. We work hard on it every day and we served well today," said Niosi.

And it was not just Kimmell and Papille. Everyone served well. Courtney Ryan, Taylor Parry, Kathryn McGroarty, Nicole Jorgensen, and Kelly all served effectively. Niosi has enviable depth and substituted freely throughout the match. Nowhere was the depth more evident than in the serving which ended and controlled points.

"We're fortunate to have experienced players. I thought, with the exception of early in the third game, the whole team served well," said Niosi.

The front line, led by Papille and Jorgensen, is strong. Papille had nine kills and Jorgensen had five. Jorgensen hits the ball so hard she may one day drive a kill through the floor. However, there is more than power here. Both players showed the judgment about when to go for the slam and when to use a soft, touch shot into an open space. There is also depth up front. Caroline McBride, Gabby Zorkers (two kills), Maggie Parker, and Jessie Lei all played well at the net.

"We want play smart. We want to know when to swing hard and when to go for the touch shot," said Niosi. "For our first match, we did well. We needed a match. We'd been practicing so long, they were getting tired of listening to me."

Quincy, and Kelly in particular, received serve well. Not only did Kelly (five digs) get to the ball, she controlled it with soft, high, easy sets which put the offense in motion immediately. Her sets left Quincy one pass away from an excellent chance for the powerful front line. Ryan had 12 assists, Papille helped with three and Parry also set well, but it all began with Kelly who is a talented junior with two years of varsity experience.

"Emma is a quiet girl, but we want to step up and take charge," said Niosi. "The setter is the quarterback of the team and that's what we want Emma to do. She's smart volleyball player."

After rolling in the first two games, Quincy was tested in the third. The Lakers led, 14-11 when Kimmell took control with a serve and Kelly had perfect placement to push Quincy up, 16-14. Silver Lake was still within 19-18 when Papille took control with her serve as Quincy ran the final six points to close out the match.

"We had mistakes on serve in the third set which hurt us, but give Silver Lake credit. They are a solid team and they kept coming after us," said Niosi.

Joanne Ruan, Angela McDonald, Taylor Pecoraro, and Noreen Plabutong will supply depth for the Presidents.

In other action last week, Quincy fell to Duxbury, 3-0 by scores of 27-25, 25-23, and 25-15.

Quincy hosts Brockton Wednesday (5:15) and Hingham Friday (5:30).

Pipes And Joists And Squeaks, Oh My!

Q: I've got a squeaky-floor problem, but it's a little bit weird. When people walk along the ground floor I can hear wood squeaking against the pipes that are down in the crawlspace. Is this a risk to the pipes? How can I fix the squeaking noise? — Jim in Bedford, Ga.

A: You won't know for sure without getting into the crawlspace and visually inspecting the pipes and the underside of the floor, including the joists. The pipes running along the crawlspace are likely suspended from the floor joists. If they're in contact with the joists, then you might hear the faint screech of wood across metal as the joists rub against the pipes.

How serious is the problem? It depends. If the floor and joists are in good condition, then you can reposition the pipe very slightly so it doesn't contact the wood. Do this by lowering or loosening the existing pipe hanger slightly, or replacing it with another pipe hanger or a plastic pipe strap.

You must support the pipe in place as you do any loosening or replacing of the hangers. It should not move more than a few centimeters in any direction, and it shouldn't hang unsupported even during a quick rehanging job. Doing so could cause it to work loose at a pipe joint, and you'll have a much bigger problem than a squeaky floor.

To avoid this you can either rig up a substitute — a sturdy rope or cloth tacked to the joist and wrapped underneath the pipe, for example — or keep the old pipe hanger in place as you attach a new pipe hanger just a little lower. Once you've hammered the ends of the new hanger into the side of the joist, carefully work the old hanger loose as a helper holds the pipe in place. Gently lower the pipe into the new hanger. Repeat at other hanger locations along the run where the pipe contacts the joist.

If, on inspection, you see that the joist is not in good condition — it's sagging, or you detect wood rot or water damage — contact a flooring or foundation specialist. Damaged joists can cause problems throughout the house, so you'll want that problem addressed immediately.

HOME TIP: Talcum powder can serve as a quick, if temporary, way to stop squeaks between floorboards.

On Monday, September 9, 2013, at approximately 10:09 P.M., Officers William O'Neill and Dave Zupkofska responded to the Bridgewater Credit Union parking lot on Independence Avenue to meet a caller, who told the Quincy Police Dispatcher that he had just been assaulted with a gun at a local address and was robbed of his money. Upon arrival, the Officers spoke with the victim, who said that he had dropped his car off at a friend's house to get it fixed and when he went to pick up the car, he was robbed at gunpoint. The victim said that he also saw drugs in the house. He was very excited as he told the story. The victim said that he met the main suspect at a party 3 weeks ago and only knew his nickname. While at the party, the victim and the suspect discussed repairing the transmission on the victim's car.

The suspect offered to fix the transmission at a much cheaper price than other estimates at a price of $3,500.00. The victim brought the car to the suspect's address about 3 weeks ago and received a call from the suspect that the car was ready. The victim said a friend drove him to the suspect's address. When the victim went to the rear basement door and knocked, the suspect opened the door and asked for the money. The victim said that he wanted to see the car first, since he didn't see it anywhere in the area. The suspect told the victim to come inside, which he did. The suspect said, "Let me see the money." The victim said, all of a sudden, "4 or 5 guys surrounded me" and one pointed a shotgun at him and racked a round in the chamber. The victim gave the suspect the money. The victim gave descriptions of the suspects, especially the one with the shotgun.

The suspect was forced to the floor. The suspect then told the victim that "We sold your car n#$$$" and then threw the victim a bag of "weed." The victim dropped the bag of weed and told the suspect that he didn't want it and asked to leave. The victim was allowed to leave and as soon as he did, he called "911." The victim said that the entire incident lasted 5 minutes. The victim added that one of the other suspects put the stolen money in a money counting machine. At this time, Lieutenant Richard McCusker and Sergeant James McNeil arrived on scene. Based on the number of suspects, the weapon(s), drugs and the violent crime committed, additional Officers were deployed. Officer Mark Millane first took the victim by the house to verify the address where the incident occurred and where the basement door was located. Sergeant Mark Foley, Officer Matt Patten and K-9 Officer Paul Foley also assisted. Officer O'Neill and Sergeant McNeil proceeded to the rear basement door while the other Officers covered the perimeter. No one answered the door however, Sergeant McNeil was able to contact a female on the first floor who said she was the landlord. She stated that a couple with young children live on the second floor and another male stays in the basement. She indicated that this male may be related to the people on the second floor. After explaining the situation to the landlord, she provided access to the basement. A sweep of the basement, which consisted of 3 rooms, was unoccupied. It was as the victim described, with a little furniture and several bottles of Heineken beer strewn about. Sergeant Foley observed a firearm on the floor of the basement, which turned out to be an automatic BB gun resembling a sub machine gun. It was loaded with copper BB's. The basement also smelled of Marijuana, but none was seen in plain view. The landlord gave the name and a description of the male who lives in the basement as well as the car he drives. She added that the tenant often has friends stay over. Officer Zupkofska then radioed that he had a male suspect on the front second floor balcony in darkness. Since no one had answered the door for the second floor and there was now an Asian male there, Officers proceeded to attempt and gain entry. Sergeants Foley and McNeil, Lieutenant McCusker and Officer Millane gained entry and detained the suspect. He denied having any idea what was going on. He was then brought outside by Officer Millane. Sergeant McNeil brought the victim over and he confirmed that this suspect was the "ringleader - the guy I gave the money to." After waiving his Miranda rights, this suspect said that he knew nothing about any car and was in his apartment with his family. Officer Zupkofska then found steps leading to a third floor. The landlord said that no one should be up there. The door was locked from the inside, indicating that someone was inside. After banging on the door repeatedly, a male opened the door and Officers Zupkofska and Millane immediately detained him. Two more males were located in the room. All of the suspects were young and matched the description given by the victim, especially one male who pointed the shotgun at the victim. Meanwhile, Sergeant Foley, on the second floor, moved a box and found a quart sized baggie containing marijuana. This floor also smelled of marijuana. There were also several swords in plain view. Once outside, the victim identified not only the original suspect, but also the male who pointed the shotgun and the male who took the money. It was also noted that the suspect's apartment has surveillance cameras set up and the doors had steel brackets on the inside to hold a 2x4 piece of lumber for security. The apartment was secured pending a search warrant. The victim was shown the BB gun that was found in the basement and he said that it was not the firearm that was pointed at him. He insisted that it was a shotgun, describing it as looking like the one Sergeant McNeil had at the scene, including having rounds attached to the stock.

The victim's friend, who drove the victim to the location, said he waited outside and when the victim returned to the car, he was panicking, about to cry, and told him that he was just on his knees with a shotgun to his head.

All four suspects, ages 19 to 28 and from Quincy, Dorchester and Mattapan, were charged with "Armed Robbery and Assault with a Dangerous Weapon, a shotgun. While being searched by Sergeant Foley, one suspect possessed a switchblade (spring loaded) knife in the front waistband of his pants and was subsequently charged with "Carrying a Dangerous Weapon." Soon after, Detective Pacino obtained a search warrant and the following was recovered:

1. Black Mossberg 12 Gauge shotgun
2. 148 S&W 40 caliber rounds
3. 35 Bull's-eye Ammunition 380 rounds
4. 3 Luger WIN 9 mm rounds
5. 3 Luger SPEER 9 mm rounds

Nice Work!

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IN THIS SCENARIO?

Due to recent events which occurred outside the City of Quincy, namely the kidnapping and murder of a young woman in South Boston and the recent assault in an elevator in Boston, I decided to add a scenario with my article for a few weeks. This column is aimed at addressing what citizens could do under a wide range of threatening circumstances. Most Important - There is no perfect answer to each situation, since there are so many variables. Additionally, this is not a complete list - there are so many incidents that occur daily across the nation. This is more to make readers think about what they might do if in one of these predicaments. Hopefully, family members, friends and co-workers will talk about this article, go over scenarios and come up with additional ideas. These recommendations are more to consider your options in the unlikely chance that this could happen to you. As a parent, I have reviewed these scenarios with my family. Although disconcerting, failure to educate children (of all ages) with options and actions would be something that no parent would want to experience. So the first point that I want to stress is that there are so many people today walking around with headphones on or with their head down continuously texting, never looking up - totally unaware of their surroundings and unable to recognize a threat. People need to use all their senses and their common sense to recognize a potential threat, even if it is based on a "bad feeling" or when the "hair goes up on the nape of your neck." Here is the fifth and last scenario:

Scenario #5: It is a dark winter night and you are walking home in a residential area. As you look down the street a few blocks away, you see a man coming towards you. You don't feel comfortable about this, so to avert any contact you decide to cross the street. As you do this, you notice that this man, now much closer, crosses too. Your initial plan of action to help assess if your "hunch" for your safety is valid has now increased and there should be reason to believe that there is potential danger. There are numerous options. One is to re-cross the street to see if the man does the same, which would clearly show that he is interested in you, but be cautious because the distance is closing in. Another option is to call, "911" from a cell phone, to ask for a Police Officer to respond, but be sure you know where you are. Even with the call to "911", it will take a minute or two for Officers to respond. When calling "911", it will be the State Police who are answering the call. Tell the Officer you want "Quincy Police." The best action is to call, make a simple statement such as, "I'm being followed by a man" rather than go through the chain of events. Stay on the line with the Dispatcher and then go to the front door of the closest house with lights on. Ring the bell constantly and when someone comes to the door, tell them that you are waiting for the Police to arrive and tell them why. Some people believe that you shouldn't go to a stranger's door, since this has been taught since we were children, but this is different. The imminent threat is the suspect walking at you - not a resident in a home who opened a door for you. Remember, you don't have to go inside the home, just continue to talk to the Police Dispatcher! There are times when being on the cell phone is good. If you feel uncomfortable about a situation, like walking home at night, consider talking to someone (not texting) during the walk home so that you could alert them if something was wrong. If there is a threat, don't wait too long to call "911". It is recommended that you have the person whom you just hung up with call "911" too. Just be sure to know where you are. When in doubt, if you feel your personal safety is being threatened, call, "911" and we will respond and make sure that you get home safely.

In summary, these are just a few situations that citizens may encounter. There are no set guidelines in encounters such as these. As a reader, you may question, "yes but what if this happens" or "I would rather do this." This article has then done its job by already making you think of what you would do!

EMILY ARMSTRONG

Officials announced Tuesday afternoon that the new $50 million Central Middle School will open its doors and welcome its first students on Oct. 21st, nearly two months after the start of the school year.

"I am really incredibly pleased with the way the building has progressed. More and more I see it developing into a tremendous learning environment for students and staff," said Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro. "We will be exploring different ideas for saying an appropriate goodbye to the old Central as we walk together to the new Central."

A ribbon cutting ceremony and celebration is planned for Oct. 20th with more details on the ceremony to come in the next few weeks.

'Sad Day' As Star Of The Sea Statues Removed

By SCOTT JACKSON

The removal of two statues from the grounds of the now-closed Star of the Sea Parish was a 'sad day' for a group of parishioners who have fought the Archdiocese of Boston's attempt to shutter the Bellevue Road church.

A monument company recently removed the two statues of St. Mary – a blue and white one that stood in front of the church and an all-white statue located behind the rectory. Maureen Mazrimas, a leader of the parishioner group known as the Friends of the Star of the Sea, said many community members have taken solace in those statues since the archdiocese closed the church.

"I think it's a very sad day because a lot of people from Squantum took great solace in those statues," she said in a phone interview Tuesday.

In addition, the Friends of the Star of the Sea said the monument company broke the granite kneeler "Ave Maris Stella" – Latin for Hail Star of the Sea – located behind the rectory.

"It's symbolic of the broken faith in Squantum many are feeling," Mazrimas said. "It was probably purchased by some family or through some fundraising. It's very disturbing and very symbolic."

In an email to The Quincy Sun, archdiocese spokesman Terrence Donilon said the removal of the statues was part of the process of selling the property.

"The statues were removed because the property is on the market for sale. The property has not been sold yet but the removal of statues and other items is part of a normal process we undertake in anticipation of an eventual sale," Donilon said.

"If there is another Catholic church or Catholic entity that would like the statues, we can look to accommodate such a request."

The archdiocese announced plans to close Star of the Sea, along with dozens of others throughout Greater Boston, in 2004. In 2011, the church was relegated to profane use, meaning that worship services could no longer be held there. The Friends of the Star of the Sea appealed the archdiocese's move to close the church, but earlier this year a top Vatican rejected the appeal, allowing the archdiocese to sell the property.

The parishioners group is still considering legal options to prevent a sale from happening.

"We have been meeting with attorneys and have a legal team in place," Mazrimas said. "We are determining what our options are."

The group would prefer the archdiocese keep the church itself, while selling the rectory. That would allow Star of the Sea to reopen for worship as the archdiocese tries to boost attendance.

"In the archdiocese this is called the year of faith – they're making a huge push for evangelization," Mazrimas said. "We've been saying if you're successful, why close churches?"

McFarland Objects to Gutro's QMC Resolution

By SCOTT JACKSON

City Council President Michael McFarland objected to a resolution filed by Councilor Doug Gutro asking officials from Quincy Medical Center and its parent company, Steward Health Care, to appear before the council to discuss hospital finances.

McFarland's objection ended any discussion of the resolution Monday night, putting it off until the council meets again on Oct. 7.

"It's lying on the table until the next meeting. We will discuss it then," McFarland said following the meeting, though he declined to say why he objected.

Gutro said he will refer the matter to committee on Oct. 7, and invite officials from Steward and Quincy Medical Center to appear before the council at a later date.

"My intent is to refer the matter to committee, to extend the invitation, whether it be before the full council or a committee and just give the leadership of Quincy Medical Center an opportunity to speak to the people of Quincy to reaffirm their investment in Quincy Medical Center, to talk about their short and long term commitment, to let us know their plans," he said after the meeting, noting that leadership teams from the hospital's previous owners had appeared before the council.

Gutro filed his resolution after a report by the Massachusetts Center for Health Information and Analysis showed QMC lost $5.6 million in the first three months of 2013. He said residents have a vested interest in the hospital, likening it to the Quincy Center redevelopment project.

"In some respects the hospital is as important to the city as the downtown is and a public discussion about our community hospital – about our downtown redevelopment – is healthy," Gutro said. "I get questions everywhere I go about the downtown and you get questions as well about an important community asset like the hospital."

"The City Council, I think, is an important vehicle for residents to get access to information in an unfiltered way on some of the most significant issues taking place in the city."

Steward, a for-profit hospital chain owned by Cerberus Capital Management, purchased Quincy Medical Center in October 2011. Gutro said having QMC and Steward officials appear before the council would provide them an opportunity to update the council on plans for the hospital.

"Many of us in city government, as well as many Quincy residents, supported the sale and expressed confidence in Steward at the time, myself included," Gutro said. "We're two years out and this was just one of those episodic invitations for CEOs of our community hospital to come back before us and provide an update."

Christopher Murphy, a spokesman for Steward, did not return a message left Tuesday morning.

Reward Offered in 'Puppy Doe' Case

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The Animal Rescue League of Boston (ARL) in conjunction with PETA is offering up to a $10,000 reward for help in finding the torturer or torturers in the 'Puppy Doe' case that has captured the attention of Quincy and the region.

On Friday, Sept. 20th, the ARL offered a $5,000 reward to anyone with information that would help in finding those responsible for the abuse and unfortunate death of the puppy.

"We wanted to keep the momentum going and to get people to continue to call in with any information," said Ami Bowen, the Director of Marketing and Communications for the ARL. "Without the public's support in this we couldn't be doing this. So much of the public has expressed their concern for this case and have called into the Quincy Police Department and here at the ARL, which is great news because any call could be relevant to the case."

On Monday PETA announced that they would be offering up to a $5,000 reward in addition to the $5,000 reward the ARL had offered.

"Someone out there sadistically tortured this puppy over an extended period of time, and that person is dangerous," PETA Director Martin Mersereau said. "Studies show that people who commit sadistic acts against animals are often repeat offenders who move on to human victims—so PETA urges anyone with information about this case to come forward now, before this torture hurts someone else."

The ARL is working with the Quincy Police Department and Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey on the case.

"District Attorney Morrissey has assigned a prosecutor to assist in the investigation who has received national training on the prosecution of animal abuse cases and has won awards in the past for her animal protection work," said Director of Communications and Press Officer for District Attorneys office David Traub.

"The Quincy Police Department is also treating this with the gravity it deserves. Detectives are currently following up on leads, and we are hopeful at this time but are not disclosing detail on those leads."

QHA Ferris Says 'I Do Not Overspend'

By KRIS KALABOKAS

"I do not overspend. I've never been shut down because of overspending," said Quincy Housing Authority Maintenance Director David Ferris after alleged computing errors revealed a $277,000 discrepancy in maintenance spending.

At last Wednesday's monthly meeting, QHA Executive Director Jim Lydon informed commissioners of the situation, stating that a senior official no longer employed by the authority had knowledge of the issue for at least one year, yet refrained from informing his superiors.

"This was news to me last week, and I am very, very upset about this," said Lydon.

"We think that the issue is perhaps not the fact that we have too many maintenance guys. We think that the issue with us is that the maintenance people are not recording their time in an effective fashion, so they're not effectively getting billed against the project that they should be getting billed."

Lydon said it was unlikely that any overspending took place, however he felt the maintenance department had not been billed accurately, giving the illusion that too much money was being spent or that there were too many people working for the department.

"We don't think we've overspent. We think that what we have done is we have not billed the maintenance department effectively," he said.

Ferris will be meeting weekly with a fee accountant to sort out the mess, which he said could be attributed to "more than just one little thing."

"There's been a lot of glitches that we have to work out and work out how the information is extracted out of the system," he said. "The system, when you start breaking it down, is very complicated."

He said he also hoped that

Margaret Laforest Focused On Boosting City's Tourism

New Chamber Of Commerce Marketing Director

By SCOTT JACKSON

Margaret Laforest has long had an interest in Quincy's proud past.

Laforest, named the Quincy Chamber of Commerce's director of tourism and marketing in July, was in middle school at Broad Meadows when the Fore River Shipyard was slated for closing. Her teacher, Ron Adams, asked Laforest's class to complete an assignment on what the shipyard's closing would mean to them.

"I went home, found out all about it – found out I had family members who worked at the yard, what an industry it was, how much Quincy contributed to winning World War II," Laforest recalled in a recent interview. "I just felt we should honor this going forward so future generations know about our proud shipbuilding past."

That assignment prompted Laforest to launch a campaign aimed at bringing one of the many ships built at the Fore River Shipyard back to Quincy to serve as a floating museum.

Her first target was the USS Lexington, an aircraft carrier built at the shipyard and commissioned in 1943. The Lexington played a key role in the World War II Battles of the Philippine Sea and Leyte Gulf – two of the largest naval battles in history – and was set to be decommissioned. Still a student at the time, Laforest met with Mayor James Sheets and others about bringing the Lexington home.

Ultimately the Lexington was sent to Corpus Christi, Texas, after it was decommissioned in 1991. Laforest's campaign, however, did set in place a series of events that led to the cruiser USS Salem returning to Fore River. After it returned, Laforest began volunteering on the Salem, assisting with fundraising and special events, among other items.

"We campaigned for the USS Lexington, lost that, and by the time I was a sophomore in college I flew home for the arrival of the USS Salem," Laforest explained. "I volunteered there – did a lot of their development, a lot of their fundraising, a lot of their special events and was just really giving of my time to them because I believe strongly in its contribution to Quincy history."

Prior to joining the chamber as their tourism and marketing director, Laforest worked with Historic New England – the owner and operator of 36 historic sites throughout the region, including the Josiah Quincy House in Wollaston – as an events manager.

Some of the events she ran included an antique auto show in Lincoln, Mass., and fine arts and crafts festivals, including one in Connecticut that draws more than 10,000 visitors each year. Those events helped draw attention to Historic New England properties.

"The mission of a lot of these public events is to draw an audience to these historic house museums," Laforest said.

Laforest, a Houghs Neck resident who also serves as Ward 1's city councillor, was initially hesitant about applying for her new position at the chamber because of her role on the council. She eventually asked City Solicitor Jim Timmins for an advisory opinion. He referred the question to the state ethics panel, and both the panel and Timmins agreed she could accept the chamber job.

Since accepting her new job Laforest has been busy.

As the chamber's marketing director, she is already helping member businesses boost their online footprint, paying special attention to social media.

"One of the things for the chamber businesses that I'll be doing is a lot of connecting their online presence with our online presence," Laforest said. "We have a membership directory and you can get information about member businesses through the chamber website. What we're going to be doing is going through and adding the social media piece."

Laforest provided two examples of how businesses could partner with the chamber on social media. One would be for a business to link their Facebook page with the chamber's, and the other would be for businesses to tag the chamber in tweets – by tagging Taste Quincy, the chamber's restaurant-focused group, a restaurant would enable Twitter users searching Taste Quincy to find the restaurant's tweet.

"I think the chamber has a lot of opportunity for social media outreach into this community," Laforest said. "I find a lot of residents really appreciate information – they want to know what's going on."

On the tourism side, Laforest also wants historic sites to improve their online presence, including making sure the information on each site's website is up to date and accurate, to help their marketing. In addition, she's begun reaching out to both the privately run Greater Boston Convention and Visitors Bureau and the state-run Massachusetts Office of Tourism and Travel to get them to list Quincy and the city's historic sites on their respective websites.

"When you look at their websites we're not on their maps," Laforest said. "I'm looking at the online presence – the places we're missing – and trying to get us brought into those folds."

In addition to those groups, Laforest also wants to work with hotels. She said the Adams Inn has already been a great partner for Discover Quincy, the chamber's tourism arm, by placing flyers with information on Quincy's historic sites in the lobby and each hotel room. Laforest plans to reach out to hotels throughout the Boston area, and plan tours of Quincy sites for their concierges who could then suggest Quincy as a destination for guests staying at a hotel.

The Discover Quincy board has also begun planning for the 2014 tourist season. The past two years they have run Discover Quincy Days – an event where visitors pay $5 for access and shuttle service to the Adams National Historical Park, the United First Parish Church, the Quincy Historical Society, the Josiah Quincy House, and the Dorothy Quincy Homestead.

The success of the Discover Quincy Days has led the board to consider creating a similar program that would run all summer long.

"A lot of our attractions are free for kids, so hypothetically it could be a $15 or $20 adult ticket," Laforest said. "With kids free that's great for $40 bucks – what would the equivalent be in Boston? Some things like that we're starting to talk about because we're now planning for the next year."

The goal behind that would be to keep visitors in the city longer, which would pump more money into the local economy.

"You want to capture them for the entire day. For every tourism dollar invested [in marketing], you get a $6 rate of return from what they're spending in the community," Laforest said. "That's why we're lucky we have so many attractions to draw people to the community."

Those attractions aren't limited to the city's historic sites. Laforest said Quincy has great recreational opportunities it can tout to visitors, including the Blue Hills and nearby rock climbing in the quarries in West Quincy and the Wollaston Beach and Marina Bay area.

"The majority of the Blue Hills are in Quincy. But people think the ski area is in Canton, the trailside museum is in Milton – people don't equate it with Quincy. That's right here in our backyard," Laforest said.

"Wollaston Beach – why are people driving to Nantasket and paying for parking? The water is clean and beautiful. You've got great restaurants – Tony's Clam Shop, the Clam Box, Matilda's, the Beachcomber, Marina Bay. You've got a really great opportunity to spend a day"

Community Preservation Question On Nov. Ballot

By SCOTT JACKSON

Voters in November's election will decide whether additional revenue streams will be put into Quincy's Community Preservation Act fund.

Currently, the city's CPA fund is financed through a one percent surcharge on property taxes. The first $100,000 in assessed value for each residential property is exempt from the surcharge, as are residential properties owned by some seniors and those who qualify for low-income housing. The state also matches a portion of CPA funds in each community that has adopted the act.

Quincy voters initially approved adopting the CPA in 2008.

This year's referendum, which the Councillors Kevin Coughlin and Doug Gutro proposed and the council authorized placing on the ballot, would adopt an amendment the Legislature made in 2012 to the Community Preservation Act. Under that amendment, additional city revenue sources – such as hotel/motel tax receipts – could be included in the CPA fund and made eligible for matching money from the state.

CPA money can be used for a number of projects such as purchasing opening space, renovating historic sites, and affordable housing projects. Coughlin said adopting the amendment, and making more funds eligible for a state match, should be a no-brainer for voters in November.

"We've done a lot of good things, I believe, through the use of community preservation funds," Coughlin said. "Whether it's been historic preservation. Whether it's been land acquisition – I understand there is a difference of opinion on the value of that – a lot of good things have happened here in the city and continue to happen. I think there is a certainly a benefit to the fact that we did adopt act to begin with."

"The fact that by putting this ballot question in front of the voters – and they will hopefully vote to approve – that we can ramp up our share of statewide funding to me is the definition of a no-brainer."

If voters do approve the binding referendum, the one percent surcharge already assessed would not increase, nor would the exemptions be taken away.

The CPA referendum is one of three questions on the Nov. 5 ballot.

In another binding referendum, voters will have a chance to make the mayoral term four years instead of two. The third question is a non-binding referendum, asking voters if they would favor merging the two high schools into one school with two campuses. Under that plan, the current North Quincy High would host students in grades 9 and 10 while students in grades 11 and 12 would go to the current Quincy High.

Unlike the CPA question, the other two are on the ballot as the result of petition drives.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1947 postcard view of the Conservatory Building at 7 Foster St. in Quincy Center just after it was built. John Lyons, owner of the building, started a music business in 1932 in a small studio in the Adams Building on Hancock Street. The business grew as he added instruction in a wide range of voice, piano, musical instruments and all types of dancing, elocution and baton twirling. The noise bothered other Adams Building tenants so he built this new shop offering instruments for sale, rental and repair. He also sold dancing shoes, costumes and makeup services. And he offered classes in radio announcing, makeup and charm courses. For almost 40 years hundreds of students and customers learned or enhanced a variety of talents thanks to this business which closed in the late 1960's. Today, this building is home to a number of law offices for local attorneys. The Quincy Market parking lot later became the Elm Farm parking lot. It's now owned by Quincy Mutual. The market was on Chestnut Street next to the Strand Theater. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Major MBTA Delay Averted

By SCOTT JACKSON

A potential 18-month delay in construction for the MBTA's Quincy extension project was averted, and 22 homes spared from demolition, after the transit agency agreed to move the planned North Quincy station.

The original plan was for the North Quincy station to be located under a new bridge West Squantum Street. That station would have extended 300 feet north and south of the bridge.

The location was chosen as a result of hearings that took place in 1965 and 1966. Mayor James R. McIntyre, however, urged the MBTA to consider a different location because the initial site would have required demolishing 22 homes near Holmes and Moscow Streets.

"When we saw the preliminary plans for the station under the bridge would require the taking of 22 homes in the Holmes Street and Moscow Street area, I sought a meeting with MBTA and the North Quincy merchants to stop this taking of homes," the mayor said.

A new location, 350 feet north of the West Squantum Street bridge, was chosen for the station. Because the sides were able to reach an agreement on the relocation, a potential year-and-a-half delay in construction was avoided.

"There would have been a substantial delay in construction of the line if we and the MBTA could not have ironed this out," McIntyre said. "It would have been a long term delay."

The extension was expected to be finished in 1970. A bridge to carry the tracks over the Neponset River from Dorchester had been completed, and work on overpasses in Dorchester was ongoing.

In Quincy, the Dimmock Street bridge was nearly completed. But work had yet to begin on the Adams or Beale Street bridges or on the Granite Street overpass.

COUNCIL TO DISCUSS INCINERATOR PLAN

The City Council's special committee on dumping and refuse problems planned to hold a Saturday meeting to review a potential $2 million incinerator plan.

At the meeting, North American Incinerator Corp. President John Forrest planned to present the council with his firm's plan to build a municipally owned or privately owned incinerator.

Councillor George B. McDonald, chairman of the special committee, said committee members, Mayor James R. McIntyre, and other city officials planned to tour a municipal incinerator the firm built in Greenwich, Conn., within a week of the meeting.

The committee also planned to hear about other forms of disposal, including compacting, before making its final decision.

"Our quarries are rapidly being filled," McDonald said. "We are fast approaching a crucial stage in which a long-range refuse disposal system must be agreed upon and thoroughly planned. We can't fool around with this any longer."

Please Watch Out For Pedestrians

This has been an unusual hurricane season this year in that there have been no hurricanes. New England has been fortunate to escape the extreme heat and drought plaguing the Midwest.

I applaud the Public Works Department for proactively cleaning out the watercourses and drainage systems. Though it could be, for the time being, generals fighting the last war. We may be in for a very warm, precipitation free winter this year.

If so, one could expect that pedestrian accidents will rise as more folks are out and about. The authorities should keep a careful watch for this phenomena and respond robustly.

1788 Militia Day Re-enactment At Peacefield Oct. 5

John and Abigail Adams' "Peacefield" in Quincy will be the setting of a re-created 1788 Militia Day on Saturday, Oct. 5.

Peacefield is part of the Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

Living history interpreters, in period dress, will stroll the grounds discussing events of the day: the recent Shays's Rebellion in western Massachusetts; the pros and cons of the new American Constitution; and, the nation's first Presidential election, coming up in December 1788.

Three local Revolutionary War militias, Gardner's Regiment, 2nd Massachusetts, and 10th Massachusetts, will drill and fire their muskets, and interpreters portraying John Adams (Michael LePage of Foxborough), John Hancock (Frank Chamberlain of Holliston), and Gen. Benjamin Lincoln (Bill Rose of Bolton) will review the troops. Abigail Adams (Patricia Bridgman of Gloucester) will be on hand, too, discussing the latest news and fashions from abroad with her friends and neighbors.

The free, day-long event, under the auspices of Adams National Historical Park, will include such hands-on activities as drill instruction for visitors, lessons in 18th century manners, and colonial games.

The program, Fashioning a New Republic, will recreate an event that happened on these very grounds in 1788. The Adamses had just returned from Europe and moved into their new house. By way of welcome, the local militia staged a mock battle for them and two illustrious guests, Governor John Hancock and General Benjamin Lincoln. It may have seemed like a good idea at the time, but as John Adams later reported, the battle "threw down all my fences."

A lecture by Pulitzer-Prize winning historian Joseph Ellis on the "Revolutionary Summer" of 1776 will be a highlight of the day.

"Fashioning a New Republic provides a wonderful opportunity for the public to engage in exciting activities and events throughout the day," says Caroline Keinath, Deputy Superintendent, Adams National Historical Park, "celebrating John and Abigail's return to the United States from Europe, their arrival at the Old House at Peacefield, and the birth of the new Republic."

Historical background on the militia event:

In the autumn of 1788, two old friends rode from Boston to Quincy to see John Adams, who had just returned to the United States after a stint as the country's first ambassador to the court of its former monarch, George III.

John Hancock was Governor of Massachusetts. Revolutionary War hero Benjamin Lincoln was Lieutenant Governor. Both had political aspirations, and with the first presidential election only months away and Adams back on the scene, their trip to Quincy may have been more of a reconnaissance mission than a social call. When the slate of contenders for President and Vice President was drawn up, Hancock, Lincoln and Adams were among them. George Washington won the presidency with 69 votes; Adams became vice president with 34. Hancock got four votes, Lincoln only one. But on that day in 1788, nobody quite knew what anybody else was up to.

To entertain the party on that fine fall day, the local militia drilled and put on a mock battle. According to Adams, the battle "threw down all my fences." Abigail was probably as irritated about this as John. They had moved into the house that summer and had had their fill of repairs and renovations.

How John Adams described the event to his son-in-law:

"We had a review of the militia, upon my farm; and a battle that threw down all my fences. I wish, however, that Governor Hancock and General Lincoln would not erect their military reputations upon the ruins of my stone walls. Methinks I hear you whisper, it won't be long ere they erect their civil and political characters upon some other of your ruins. If they do, I shall acquiesce, for the public good: Lincoln I esteem very much: the other, I respect as my governor."

The Old House at Peacefield, built in 1731, became the residence of the Adams family for four generations from 1788 to 1927. It was home to Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams; First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams; Civil War Minister to Great Britain Charles Fran-

Sean Galvin New President Of Quincy Neighborhood Club

The Neighborhood Club of Quincy recently held its Inauguration for its 56th President.

Sean W. Galvin, Quincy real estate developer and businessman, accepted the Club's lead position in a Gala event held at the Club's main ballroom.

Galvin recognized and thanked the outgoing President C. Robert Foy for his years of service and dedication to the Club. "I am excited to accept this position at this time as we ramp up preparation for the celebration of the Club's 100th anniversary coming in 2017," Galvin said.

Also recognized were the Club's incoming Vice President, Richard Meade and Secretary Carol McClintock. Special guest was Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti who wished Galvin well in his two-year term.

The Neighborhood Club, established in 1917, is a private diner and social club with function facilities open to the public. For years the Club has hosted the City's milestone events. Everything from Ship Christenings and Mayoral inaugurations to social events for Quincy's who's who in business and politics.

Galvin spoke of a new initiative he expects to announce after the first of the year. The club, for the first time, is going to announce an open membership enrollment. In anticipation of its 100th anniversary, the Club will be accepting 100 new members.

The Club looks to time its enrollment with the expected jump in the population of Quincy's new downtown. "We hope to offer the new residents the chance to truly be part of the history and fabric of Quincy which is the Neighborhood Club," said Galvin.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Chicken With Wine, Vegetables

Sometimes when I go into the kitchen and start to cook something, I never know what it is going to turn out to be. And that's the way it was recently when I had three boneless, skinless chicken thighs almost thawed.

It ended up to be a different combination of chicken and vegetables, but everyone who tasted it enjoyed it, plus it didn't take a lot of time which is always a good thing especially in the summer.

CHICKEN WITH WINE AND VEGETABLES

3-4 chicken thighs either with the bone or not

3 tablespoons olive oil

2 cloves garlic (minced)

1 tablespoon basil

1/3 cup Merlot

1 cup frozen string beans

1 medium white potato (cut in small pieces)

1 medium sweet potato (cut in small pieces)

3-4 cups chicken stock

1 small head of Romaine lettuce (cut in small pieces)

You're probably surprised at the use of Romaine lettuce, but not only is it flavorful, but gets very tender when cooked. According to Jacques Pepin, the French chef who said the French use Romaine all the time in their cooking.

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic, and add the chicken. Cook for a couple of minutes until the chicken is lightly browned. Add the Merlot, then the chicken stock. If you are using water, season it with bouillon. (I used Better Than Bouillon.)

Now add the rest of the ingredients stirring frequently until all is blended. Cook covered for about 45 minutes and then uncovered for 10 minutes.

City Bike Survey Completed

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincycles – an organization aimed at promoting bicycling in the city – and Quincy's Planning Department have completed the first-ever survey of bike ridership in Quincy.

The survey, which took place during a.m. and p.m. peak hours on Wednesday, Sept. 11, and during the mid-day peak hours on Saturday, Sept. 14, looked at ridership at four locations in the city – the Neponset Bridge, Wollaston Beach, the intersection of Hancock and Beale Streets, and the intersection of Hancock and Washington Streets.

The survey found that 15 bicyclists used the Neponset Bridge during the morning peak hours, 7 to 9 a.m. During the afternoon peak hours, 4 to 6 p.m., 27 bicyclists were observed crossing the bridge. During the Saturday survey, taken between noon and 2 p.m., 22 bicyclists were seen.

The Wollaston Beach count found 12 riders during the morning peak hours, 29 during the afternoon peak hours, and 29 during the Saturday peak hours.

The two intersections were only sampled on Sept. 11. The Hancock and Beale intersection had 20 riders during the two-hour span in the morning, and 13 in the afternoon. At Hancock and Washington, there were also 20 riders in the morning, and then 25 during the afternoon.

The Rev. Nathan Pipo, one of Quincycle's founders and the organizations newly-elected president, said the survey was intended to give a snapshot of ridership. A second survey will be conducted in the spring.

"It's just about giving us a quick snapshot of bike usage in the city," Pipo said. "We wanted to get a look at the numbers."

The survey also looked at the riding habits of bicyclists. Pipo said most observed were riding correctly, following the rules of the road, though not as many cyclists were helmets as he would like. Ten of the 22 cyclists who crossed the Neponset Bridge on Saturday, for example, were not wearing helmets.

The survey was taken in advance of new bike lanes, which will be created throughout the city. Pipo said Adams Street will have new bike lanes once repaved later this fall, making it the first major artery in Quincy to get bike lanes. Bike lanes will also be added in Quincy Center as part of the Adams Green project.

Pipo, who is the pastor at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, was elected president of Quincycles during their meeting last Thursday. Joe Hern was elected as the organization's clerk, and Mike Smeglin was elected treasurer. Tim Lanham, Irene Lutz, and Maura O'Gara were also named to the organization's board.

The organization is in the process of incorporating, expanding its membership, and raising funds through dues and donations to help promote bicycle awareness. Increasing bike ridership, Pipo said, will improve health in the community and help wear and tear on city streets.

"Part of what we're trying to do is reach all people in the city, regardless of how often they ride," Pipo said.

Anyone interested in joining can reach Quincycles via email at quincycles@gmail.com or by calling Pipo at 617-471-0258.

'Puppy Doe' Vigil Sept. 28

ter. According to Quincy Police Lt. John Steele the puppy, who due to her injuries could not be saved by veterinarians, had a number of severe injuries consistent with abuse.

"We received a call on Aug. 31st at 10:25 a.m. about an injured animal," said Steele. "Her injuries were quite severe and consistent with abuse. She was starved, dehydrated, emaciated, had numerous broken bones, her tongue was split down the middle like a serpent, and she had been stabbed in the eye. She suffered horrendous abuse."

According to Bowen the ARL received a call from the original veterinarian who examined 'Puppy Doe' asking for the ARL's doctors to take a look at her.

"They asked us to take a look at her and felt concerned enough to want to further the investigation," said Bowen. "Dr. Martha Smith-Blackmore performed the necropsy and said over her 15 years this is by far the worst she has seen."

Steele said that there were no witnesses and no surveillance cameras around where the dog was found but they don't believe the dog was specific to anyone in that area.

"Since there were no witnesses or cameras in the area that the dog was found we decided to ask the public for help," said Steele. "We have received numerous tips, some local, some from the western part of the state, and some even from out of state. Most of the local tips have checked out. This is still an active case and we are still asking for any information or tips from the public."

State Rep. Bruce Ayers has been advocating for House Bill 1182 which seeks to punish an individual who has custody of an animal, and is found to have willfully or maliciously kill, maim, mutilate, torture or disfigure the animal through imprisonment in the state prison for not more than five years and by a fine of not more than $5,000.

"This tragic case of animal abuse just emphasizes the need for harsher penalties for animal abusers in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," Ayers said.

"Animals are like children, they are defenseless, helpless, and harmless. Animal abuse is inhumane and it is an issue that needs to be taken more seriously. By raising the fines, my hope as a legislator is to show animal abusers who commit these heinous crimes that these felonies will not be tolerated."

A candlelight vigil will be held Saturday, Sept. 28 at 5 p.m. at the Whitwell St. Playground where the puppy was found.

A memorial of dog toys, dog bones, flowers, balloons and messages have been left at the site by supporters. One item left at the memorial, a tee shirt with a bold headline that says 'A Prayer of a Pitbull,' reads: "Spirit in the sky who watch's over all animals: It is my prayer and my request that you grant greater understanding, and acceptance to humans; those who love us, and those who hate us."

QHA Ferris Says 'I Do Not Overspend'

he would be included in the financial aspects of maintenance, as he had never been given budgets to work with in the past.

"If I was told about this when it was happening or when it had started we could have put stuff in place to correct it," he said. "I spend what is necessary to spend on the programs that we have."

Additional motions on the table that evening included the contract entered with Jupiter Electric, Inc. in the amount of $1,099,969 for fire alarm upgrades at 667-3 Sawyer Towers and 667-4 Tobin Towers.

Jupiter Electric, Inc. offered the most reasonable quote for their services—half of what other companies had presented—according to Modernization Director Deborah Williamson.

"The system today is not addressable to the device; it's addressable to the floor so when we have a problem...we have to go to the wing where it's directing us to and knock on every door, pull down every heat detector...so it stops the alarm," said Ferris, who noted the upgrades would eliminate this inconvenience.

"Today's system that we're putting in, every single device is addressable no matter where it is...so you can go right to that unit."

Ferris said the new systems will be "good for a real long time."

In addition to modernizing their fire detection equipments, the QHA will also be acquiring mass quantities of new kitchen appliances to be distributed throughout authority owned properties. In total, 438 refrigerators, 325 electric, and 715 gas stoves will be purchased for $48,105.

GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

HOW GEMSTONES GET THEIR COLOR

The color that a gemstone displays is largely determined by the unique way that its individual crystalline structure interacts with light. White light is made up of the spectral colors of the rainbow, some of which are "preferentially absorbed" as they enter the gem. Those that are not absorbed either pass through or are reflected back to give the gem its color. Each gem has a unique color fingerprint (known as its "absorption spectrum") that is visible only when viewed through an instrument known as a spectroscope. While many gems appear to be the same color to the naked eye, jewelers can distinguish between similar-looking gems by using the spectroscope to reveal their absorption spectrums.

Desirable color overflows in our gallery of gemstone jewelry. Come into our store located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center and shop for hues that are right for you. Candlelight Vigil Remembers, Honors Those Lost To Substance Abuse

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

It's no secret that the abuse of drugs is on the rise. And the misuse or abuse of prescription drugs, including opioid analgesic pain relievers, is responsible for much of the increase in drug poisoning deaths.

Among our nation's youth, alcohol and other drug use remains a major public health problem, as the fallout from substance use and abuse can increase the risk for injuries, violence, HIV infection, and other diseases.

Shockingly, poisoning is now the leading cause of death from injuries in the United States and nearly 9 out of 10 poisoning deaths are caused by drugs. Between 1999 and 2010, the number of U.S. drug poisoning deaths involving opioids (like oxycodone, methadone, or hydrocodone) more than quadrupled, amounting to 39% of the nearly 43,000 total poisoning deaths in 2010.

These statistics have not escaped Quincy's Substance Abuse Task Force, nor Impact Quincy, which is a program offered by Bay State Community Services. Last week these two worthy organizations supported a candlelight vigil to remember and honor loved ones who had been lost to substance abuse overdose.

A group of more than 100 people gathered on City Hall Plaza to talk about the pain of abuse and how much it impacts the family members and friends of the user. Quincy Police Lieutenant Detective Patrick Glynn, who was one of the guests who read the names of deceased, talked of the QPD's Narcan program.

Since establishing the administering of naloxone (Narcan) when arriving upon the scene of overdose incidents, Glynn reports QPD has successfully reversed the death by overdose incident in 188 cases.

Jon Mercer, who described himself as a 'sober drug addict and alcoholic since 2002' adressed the vigil participants and encouraged all "to band together as a community and start to make a difference so that there are not more families here next here who have lost someone."

Mercer told a moving story about becoming addicted to drugs at age 13, and described being homeless by the time he was 19, sleeping on a park bench which abutted a field where he once played Little League baseball, "all alone, with not one friend or family member to talk to, wanting to die every night."

It was Mercer's mother who turned his life around in 2002 with a phone call to him while he was living in a crack house in Braintree. She described her desperation about his welfare to him and told him she would rather be dead herself than wait every day of her life for a call that her 21 year-old son was dead.

"I got sober because of that call from my mother... and in the last 11 years I have built my life back. My mother called me five times today on how to use her iPhone, she's my best friend today."

For these last 11 years, Mercer has dedicated his life to paying forward the help which he received from others, pulling him out of the loneliness and despair he experienced, even in sobriety. He said, "I dedicate myself to helping another alcoholic, one at a time, so that there doesn't have to be more families here."

Committee-member Kathy Deady, whose soon-to-be-married son is a recovering addict, told the crowd that she never thought she would be picking out engagement rings with her son... she thought, instead, that he would be dead.

"Recovery is a gift, don't ever give up hope for somebody that you love. Addicts don't want to be addicts, they just can't find a way out of it, and we need to educate ourselves, educate our families and educate our children so that we don't have to have vigils like this, and obits in the paper that say 'died unexpectedly.'"

Former addict Lee McDonald, 13 years sober, acknowledged the 12-Step Program as that which saved her from her addiction. "It doesn't matter whether you drink it, you shoot it or you swallow it, it's about the feelings inside that the person is either trying to alleviate or run from."

"Addicts hurt people... we hurt the ones we love. I once was a person who was storming through the lives of my family, stealing from my mother, lying, cheating, I couldn't be trusted."

McDonald recalled a statistic which was quoted while she was in detox: "I remember when I went in, they said that 'one in 35 would survive.' I don't know whether that's true today, but something hit me deep in my heart and I am a miracle. I stand here overwhelmed with pain and gratitude that I am the one out of 35; we never know who may make it."

The event concluded with the reading of the names of the deceased overdose victims, read by Quincy's local politicians. Among those in attendance were Councillors Doug Gutro, Kevin Coughlin, and Brad Croall.

State Representatives Bruce Ayers and Tackey Chan, State Senator John Keenan, Mayor Tom Koch, Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey, and representatives of Quincy Police Dept. also participated in the event.

A candle was lit and burned for each of the victims, held by family-members during the reading of each name, followed by a community reading of The Serenity Prayer.

For more information regarding addiction contact Bay State Community Services, www.baystatecs.org or call 617-471-8400, or the Massachusetts Organization for Addiction Recovery, www.moar-recovery.org, phone 877-423-6627.

AMONG THOSE WHO attended the vigil were Mayor Thomas Koch and School Committee vice Chair Barbara Isola.

FORMER ADDICTS, Lee McDonald (left) and Stephen Noltemy (right) offered help and guidance to any person or family coping with drug addiction.

Youngsters Take Part In Pepsi Hot Shot Competition

The best young shooters in the city recently gathered at the Fenno Street basketball courts to compete for the title of Pepsi Hot Shots Champion.

Contestants represented their respective district in the finals, and the large number of talented shooters created a tough competition for everyone involved. The field is broken up into three age divisions – Midgets, Juniors, and Seniors – meaning that all participants compete against those who are alike in age and skill level. Every year this competition is close, and this year provided more of the same.

Pepsi Hot Shots is a basketball game that calls for the participants to shoot, one person at a time, from multiple designated spots around the hoop, each of which has a different point value. The shooter is given a minute to compete the task of accumulating as many points as they can, and after two rounds of shooting whoever has the highest combined two round score is announced the winner. It's a game that requires both a great deal of shooting proficiency and stamina, not to mention the ability to perform under pressure in a crunch time situation.

The action all started with the Midget competition where several players put up very high scores, but at the end of the day it was Drew Boriotti who would come away victorious for the boys, with Dean Schaaf taking second place. It was a close battle and both shooters performed extremely well in both rounds.

For the girls, it was another close round with Fallon Hobin narrowly beating Melissa Ainsley in what was a very exciting competition. The Junior Boy's played great as well, and after a couple of fantastic shooting rounds, John Bosquet took home first place while Glayston Barbosa claimed second.

For the Junior girls, Sarah Ainsley was not going to be denied after a stellar first round which was enough to give herself a comfortable lead and maintain it throughout the whole tournament.

In the Senior division, Albi Biba put on one of the best shooting displays in recent memory, highlighted by four three pointers in the first round. He set a high bar for the rest of the contestants but Aidan Golden stood tall and battled all the way to the last shot, losing by a narrow margin of only six points.

In the girls Senior division, Nicole Jorgensen ran away with the competition, winning for the second straight year.

All of the contestants proved themselves as the best shooters in the city and every competitor should be proud of their accomplishments. Every year the Pepsi hot shots provide excitement for all.

Nine Recreation Dept. Sailors Participate In Race Week

Nine sailors from the Quincy Recreation Department's William F. Ryan Boating and Sailing facility at Blacks Creek recently participated in the 76th annual Quincy Bay Race Week.

The sailors, from the advanced sailing class, competed in the Widgeon fleet races hosted by Squantum Yacht Club.

Skipper Ciaran O'Connor with crew Emily Anglehart and Sarah McGowan competed with Town River Yacht Club to claim second place. Finishing in third place overall was skipper Ethan Sit with his crew of Nicole Farrell and Grace Mazza in an impressive performance. First year skipper Connor Kulig also competed accompanied by his crew of Maddie Hutchinson and Smriti Kumar.

The sailors were chosen from the advanced class of the department's summer program, and were accompanied by program supervisor Nathaniel Schow as well as instructors David Daggett and Kathleen Tansey.

Recreation Director Barry J. Welch expressed gratitude to the Quincy Bay Race Week Association for continuing to provide the opportunity for our city's youngsters to be involved in an event "they will never forget."

Recreation Department Wiffleball Tournament

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its annual Citywide Wiffleball Tournament at Bishops' tennis courts.

The weather was perfect, a slight breeze, the sun not too bright, and the air quality just right. The wiffleball tournament is co-ed, each team can consist of 3-5 players, teams play with one pitcher and two fielders, instead of running bases scoring bases are automatics, and games are umpired by park leaders. This tournament was a success with many teams competing. Each district held a district wiffleball event and the top three teams from each age group, midgets (8-10), juniors (11-12) and seniors (13-16), qualified to compete in the citywide event.

The Midget champions from Perkins are Owen Coppola, Coleman Ross, Timmy Kelly, Joseph Smiddy and Dean Schaaf. This team was hitting everything thrown their way. The runners-up from Squantum are Sean Toland, Gavin Toland, and Ronin Kelly. Squantum had a good arms and the fielding was solid. The Junior champions from Forbes Hill are Colin Keaveny, Brendan Keaveny, and Colby St. Marie. This was a solid team that was undefeated through tournament play. The runners-up from O'Rourke are Ethan McDevitt, David Ryan, Owen Gormley, and Zach Hatfield. Strong pitching from Ethan McDevitt, and timely hitting from David Ryan carried this team. The Senior champions from Montclair are Frank Wahlberg, Ryan Cox, Matt Eagles, and Kevin McDonald. This team knew what pitch they wanted. They were patient at the plate and had timely hitting. The runners-up from Forbes Hill are Connor Donaghey, Devlin St. Marie, and Chris Donaghey. Pitching was outstanding for this team. The pitcher had tricks in his bag and really threw the batters off.

This tournament was exciting to watch. Teams had the fundamentals down. Players and youngsters watching the games were very enthusiastic and cheered on the teams. Each player on the champion teams received a gold wiffleball trophy and each player on the runners-up teams received a silver wiffleball trophy.

'Special' Victory For NQ Football

By BILL GRIFFIN

When it was over, North Quincy's football team circled around Antoine Allen in the end zone at the closed end of Veterans Stadium. They raised their helmets to the black sky lit by a full, white moon in celebration of a victory they will not soon forget.

The reason for all the happiness is that great players make great plays. Allen made two of them in the second half against Dedham. He returned an interception 74 yards for a touchdown and broke a 63-yard scoring run from scrimmage to lead the Red Raiders to a 16-3 non-league win and give Mark Nutley his first victory as a varsity head coach Friday night.

"Special," was Nutley's one word description of his senior tailback who scored twice because of power, speed and his absolute refusal to be tackled despite looking more likely to hit the ground on both plays than a rock being dropped off a cliff.

"It is satisfying to get my first one, but I'm more pleased for the kids," said Nutley after his club improved to 1-2 on the season. "They lost two tough, close games. They worked hard for this and a win like this can fire up a team."

North's defense was a crucial partner in the victory. In the first half the Red Raiders only gave three points on a 23-yard field goal by Liam Madden after marathon, 19-play Dedham march which consumed nearly 11 minutes — one-quarter of the game — off the clock. In the second half, led by their front four of Vinny Tran, Don Sharp, Nick Manning and Alex Chen, they out-hit the Marauders and dominated the game.

"Only giving three points after that drive was huge," said Nutley. "We told them at halftime there were no secrets. They had to get tougher. The front four was great, especially Vinny. He has a motor that never stops."

Mr. Allen entered early in the third. Dedham led 3-0 and the Marauders were driving towards another score at the North 30. On fourth down, Allen read perfectly a short pass in the right flat. He jumped the route at just the right instant at his 26 and started his long journey home up the sideline.

"I read the quarterback from the beginning of the play," said Allen.

He had a free run for a bit along the left wing, but when he cut into the middle he was trapped at least twice by multiple tacklers. They bounced off his pads, drilled him in the hip, clawed at his ankles. The legs kept pumping. The whistle never blew. Allen kept moving. Finally, he lurched free at the 40 and once it became a footrace, it was finished. Allen scored and North had a 6-3 lead.

"My arm was on the ground a couple of times," he said. "My knees never touched. I used my arm to balance my self and keep from going down. All I could think was to keep pumping my legs."

"I couldn't believe he didn't go down," said Nutley.

On the conversion, Allen broke three tackles at the goal line for the two points and a 8-3 lead. Three tackles? Only three?

Allen's second offering came in the final minute of the third. North ran a simple dive from its 37. There was nothing there. Not a thing. Once again the legs kept pumping. Once again tacklers fell to the ground like leaves falling from trees. The pile kept moving. This time, Allen got a little help from his friends as North's linemen pushed and pulled him yard by yard toward midfield.

He blasted free just as he reached Dedham territory and the rest is easy to guess. Footrace. It's over. Allen wins. North scores. One more great play.

"I know I got some help. Someone was pushing and pulling me along, but I don't know who. When I run, it's a blackout. I just try to keep those legs pumping," said Allen.

"When he hit the pile, I thought the play was over. I turned to find the quarterback for the next play. One of my assistants tapped me on the shoulder and said: Coach, he's still running," said Nutley.

Quarterback Andrew Kiley rushed for the points and a 16-3 edge with 0:29 left in the third. With the lead, the defense gave nothing. Tran tormented Dedham QB Kyle Winn. Eric Cohane-Jones stopped a threat at his 25 with an interception with 4:36 left in the game. Zach Dangora, Bryan Turner, Aidan Brown, Dayvon Jones, Cohane-Jones, and Allen supported the front four by swarming to the ball with hard hits.

"We wanted to keep the play in front of us and not give up the big one," said Nutley. "We wanted 11 players going to the ball and making the play. That's what we had in the second half. Credit my defensive coordinator Ed DeWitt. His schemes were great and the kids ran them well."

After going for 220 yards and four touchdowns against Latin, Allen had 150 yards in 19 tries against Dedham despite being the focus of the Marauders' defense for the whole game. In two weeks, he had 370 yards rushing and six touchdowns.

"He's going to make some college very happy next year," said Nutley.

Allen was not finished after his two big plays. On North's final possession, the Red Raiders worked the clock, kept the ball on the ground and fed Allen who had seven carries for 37 yards on the march which moved to the Dedham 16. It seemed destined for a score until a

Quincy Shut Down Hanover 2-0

By BILL GRIFFIN

For long stretches of matches, he plays a different game on a different level.

Quincy senior forward James O'Shea is the complete package of speed, skills and soccer knowledge. He is a threat to score or create an opening every time he touches the ball. He has a feel for the game that can't be taught, and he seems marked to play soccer at a level well beyond high school.

O'Shea had a goal and assist and keeper Connor Dane backboned a complete-team effort which shut down Hanover, 2-0 in a Patriot League match at Veterans Stadium last week.

"I thought we dominated the match. It would have been good to finish off a few more chances, but we played well," said coach Mark Spendlove. "O'Shea is a weapon. He has great all-around ability."

Quincy went 2-1 last week, defeating Hanover and Plymouth North (1-0) while falling to Hingham (4-2). Quincy finished the week at 4-2-1.

"I like the way we are playing. We want to work on taking advantage of our chances and finishing off teams," said Spendlove.

O'Shea, who scored in six of Quincy's first seven matches, showcased well his skills on his goal and his assist.

With just over 12 minutes gone in the first half, he took control at the 40-yard marker. He faked and stepped free from a defender with a quick, change-of-pace dribble. He flew down the left side, simply outracing the entire defense. It was pure speed. He drilled a hard shot which Hanover goalie Jonny Ferrarini stopped, but O'Shea picked the rebound out of midair and flicked it home for a 1-0 lead.

"He has the kind of speed you can't touch," said Spendlove.

Less than eight minutes into the second half, O'Shea had a free run down the left wing. He dribbled clear of a defender at the corner and chipped a precise, soft pass in front. Bjorn Armiri buried the pass for a 2-0 lead which would hold up for the rest of the match.

"That was a great interchange. That's the kind of passing that we're looking for," said Spendlove.

Dane earned his second shutout of the week. He moved to the ball well and communicated effectively with his defense. He had three tough chances. Late in the first half, he dove to stop a high drive from Hanover's Billy Taylor. Midway through the second half, he turned back a low drive through a screen from Taylor. He saved his best for last, moving well to stop Joe Maguire who broke in on a clean breakaway with 3:00 left.

"He's probably the most vocal captain I've had in five years and it helps because he is always talking to the fullbacks and making sure they are on the same page," said Spendlove.

Quincy completely controlled the first half and could have easily scored five goals. The big reason was the play of midfielders Cian Moriarty, Ciaran McDevitt and Armiri supported by center-backer Roy Bander. The group controlled the middle of the field and produced a fistful of chances for the offense.

"The midfielders all played well, and I thought Cian Moriarty was outstanding," said Spendlove. "The forwards had good chances, but they don't get them without the midfielders feeding them."

O'Shea, Enrique Figueiredo, Hashim Hamdi, and Tristan McCormack turned the chances into threats. Armiri rattled one off the post with six minutes left in the half. O'Shea had a parade of shots which sailed just high or just wide.

"James could have had five or six himself in the first half," said Spendlove.

The defense took control when Quincy gained a two-goal lead. The fullback line of Bander, Aidan Smyth, and Connor Porter patrolled the scoring area in front of Dane and cleared away threats with ball control and strong kicks.

"With the two-goal lead, we concentrated on our defense," said Spendlove.

O'Shea moved from forward to midfield to bolster the defense. He was involved in a scary collision which drew a yellow-card warning for Hanover with 39 seconds left in the match. O'Shea walked off the field and said he was OK after the match.

O'Shea had the winning goal against Plymouth North, converting a through-pass from Moriarty. Dane saved the one-goal lead tipping away a threat off the crossbar late in the match. Bander cleared the rebound to end the threat.

O'Shea and Moriarty scored in the Hingham game. Smyth and Bander had strong games on the fullback line.

Quincy is at Pembroke Thursday (4:00) and faces crosstown rival North Quincy at Veterans Stadium Saturday at 7:00 p.m. destined for a score until a bobble on the snap halted the drive.

On the final play of the game, Allen intercepted a pass at his four and raced inside the Dedham 10 where he stopped by a desperation tackle. He was a bobble and a tackle away from going for four touchdowns in a game for the second straight week.

After the game, a North assistant raised the game ball and asked the players to go into the locker room and sign it to celebrate Nutley's first victory. Before the head coach joined his team, he had a few more words about Allen.

"I'm lucky in my first year of coaching to have him," he said. "I can give him the ball 35 times a game. There's nobody I'd rather see with the ball in his hands."

North has a bye next week. The Red Raiders will be without fullback Eddie Guinto for the rest of the season. Guinto suffered a knee injury against Latin. North begins Patriot League play at Hanover Oct. 4 at 7:00 p.m.

It is interesting to note that the most promising news in cancer treatment now revolves around stimulating the body's immune system to effectively fight the disease. This approach involving the use of the body's own defenses to pinpoint and eliminate cancer cells stands in stark contrast to the blanket approach of poisoning healthy and cancerous cells alike with toxic medications. It also provides testimony to the fact that the body's innate healing powers can often trump medication. This is not to suggest that chiropractic treatment can cure cancer, but it does support chiropractic's longstanding credo that the best way to prevent or cure disease is to remove any obstacles that stand in the way of the body's healing abilities.

RAIDERS SPORTS ROUNDUP

By BILL GRIFFIN

How good has North Quincy's volleyball team been in its first five matches?

The Red Raiders swept to straight set wins over Pembroke and Hanover in Patriot League action last week to up their record to 5-0. In five matches, North has lost one game. That is a fast start.

"In our first couple of matches I saw things like lack of energy and mental mistakes, but we corrected them and we're playing well," said coach Kerry Ginty. "I credit our senior leadership. We have experience and that has helped early in the season."

Senior captain Carolyn Schwartz served well in North's 25-15, 25-13, 25-15 decision over Pembroke. Schwartz had six aces, 18 points off her serve, four kills, nine digs and two blocks in a terrific all-around performance.

Maya Umoren added three aces and eight kills while Natasha Sautter had four aces, 12 points off serve and two kills for the Red Raiders.

Nancy Huang led a strong defensive effort with 19 digs in a 25-13, 25-17, 25-23 win over Hingham.

In other recent action, freshman Isabelle Flaherty had four solo blocks and six kills in a 3-0 sweep of Middleboro. Schwartz had another strong match with five kills and one block.

North has served extremely well in its first five matches and it showed in a 3-0 decision over Hanover. The Red Raiders had 27 aces led by senior Abby Mayo who had 11 aces, 25 points off her serve and served out the the final game. Flaherty helped out with seven blocks.

"Abby was unbelievable. We have been serving well for this early in the season," said Ginty whose team has not lost a set in its last four matches. "We're not only getting winners, we're avoiding errors and we're not hitting the ball out of bounds."

North is at Silver Lake Friday (5:30) and hosts Quincy Monday (5:30).

North Quincy's girls soccer team played well earning a pair of ties in Patriot League action last week to raise its record to 3-1-2.

Freshman keeper Shanahan Kennedy earned her fourth shutout in six games as the Red Raiders tied Hanover, 0-0.

Sydney Chang scored her first varsity goal and junior Courtney Campo added another as North and Pembroke battled to a 2-2 deadlock.

In the Hanover game, junior sweeper Julia Donovan did an excellent job directing the defense. Senior Haley McKay and sophomore Molly Kate Cannon also played well on the fullback line for North.

Sophomore Molly Donahue delivered a strong defensive effort on Hanover's star midfielder Alex Ward. Chang and Alyx Patey also played well on defense.

North's best offensive chance came after a good run by Campo. She set up Marissa McGue in front, but McGue's header deflected off the crossbar.

Pembroke took an early 1-0 lead, but Chang tied it with her goal. Chang took a corner kick which was not cleared. Chang followed her kick and one-timed it into the goal to tie the match at 1-1.

Campo put North up, 2-1. Haley Houlihan found Campo, who was streaking through the defense, and Campo tucked it home for her second goal of the year.

Captain Abby Smith played her best game of the year. Ciara Forde had a good match on the forward line. Chang, McKay and Arianna Viscione also chipped in with good performances for the Red Raiders.

North is at Duxbury Thursday (4:00) and faces Quincy at Veterans Stadium Saturday (5:00).

Raiders Defeated By Milton, 7-1

By BILL GRIFFIN

At first glance, the two statements make little sense. A. K. Nguyen played an excellent game as keeper for North Quincy against Milton. North Quincy coach Rich Hanlon doesn't want Nguyen to play any more matches in goal. What?

Milton scored three goals in the first 15 minutes and went on to defeat the Red Raiders, 7-1 in a non-league match at Veterans Stadium despite the acrobatic work of Nguyen, but Hanlon hopes that is the last he has seen of Nguyen in goal.

Hanlon is thrilled with Nguyen's work in net, but Nguyen is a gifted player who could serve North well at striker. Nguyen has filled in admirably for starting keeper Joey England who has been sidelined with a leg injury since the opening match against Abington, but Hanlon hopes to see Nguyen taking shots rather than stopping them this week.

"He's one of our best players and he's our best scorer," said Hanlon whose club fell to 1-5 with the loss. "We should get Joey back this week which will let us move A.K. to striker. Up front, and that should lift our offense."

Nguyen was exceptional against Milton. Name a shot and he stopped it. He dove to get low drives headed for the corner and sailed to tip away high shots over the crossbar. He punched away corner kicks and centering passes. He moved off his mark, outraced and outfought Wildcat attackers for the ball. He stopped shots through screens and clean, straight-on attempts from close range. He turned back breakaways and deflected away rebounds. He had 17 saves, most were difficult challenges.

"He was fooling around in goal in practice before the Middleboro game," said Hanlon. "I told him I might use him for a half in goal in the next game. He said: Coach I trained as a goalie in Vietnam. I asked him why it took him so long to tell me."

North had its best flurry of the match after Milton scored the first three goals. Hanlon called timeout, and his team responded with a good stretch of soccer. Angelo Taho scored shortly after the timeout, finishing a nice combination play with Andrew Jayne and Thomas Murray.

Murray sent Jayne in with a crisp through-pass. Jayne fired a hard drive on goal and Taho was in perfect position to slip home the rebound and cut the lead to 3-1 with 17:25 left in the half.

The Red Raiders narrowly missed connecting for two more goals minutes later. John Lopes had a clear shot which sailed just high on a nice feed from Ivan Zeng. Mouad Abibi had a clean break off a fine pass from Jayne which was turned aside. Milton scored twice more before intermission for a 5-1 lead.

"After the timeout, we played well. The passing on our goal was excellent," said Hanlon.

The Wildcats added two goals in the second half, but North played solid positional soccer over the final 40 minutes. Abibi and Dennis Calero were terrific on the fullback line. Abibi shook off a gimpy ankle and was strong a center fullback, controlling the ball and moving away threats. Calero was quick and aggressive on the left side, tackling, battling for every possession and keeping his lane clear of attackers.

"We had to move Mao-ud back from midfield to strengthen the defense," said Hanlon. "Denis played super soccer. He was aggressive to the ball and played good, tough defense."

Injuries continue to haunt North. Along with England, midfielder Miguel Alfonso missed the match with an injured hamstring. Zeng and T.J. Marshall left the match with injuries and Abibi was not at full speed for the second half. North has a talent, but the Red Raiders lack depth.

"We can't afford key people getting hurt," said Hanlon. "We just don't have the numbers to make up for a lot of injuries. Miguel is a big loss at midfield. Getting England back will make us stronger, but going forward, we need to stay healthy."

Earlier last week, North lost to Hanover, 4-0. Nguyen, Abibi and Zeng all played well for North. Pembroke defeated the Red Raiders, 3-0. Thomas Henry, Paolo Filippi, and Jayne had strong matches for North.

North hosts Duxbury at Teal Field Thursday at 4:00 p.m., and meets crosstown rival Quincy at Veterans Stadium Saturday at 7:00 p.m.

New Central Middle School to Open Oct. 21

"It's going to open on Oct. 21" and we will have some kind of community celebration on Oct. 20," said School Committee Vice chairwomen Barbara Isola. "Obviously we are thrilled to move the students and staff into this beautiful new building."

Technology equipment, including the interactive smart boards, and classroom furniture has been set up and teachers and staff will have ample time to learn the ins and outs of the new building in the next few weeks prior to the opening.

"Within the next three to four weeks I will be planning with the staff an appropriate timetable for them to get accustomed to their new classrooms," said DeCristofaro.

"We will also be training all of our food service staff, our tech staff, custodians, nurses, administrative staff, guidance counselors as well as all the academic program staff. We will also be working with the Quincy Police Department, the Mayor's Office, and the DPW to plan the pick up and drop off pattern for parents, as well as making sure all parents are aware of those procedures."

Eighty percent of the schools costs will be reimbursed by the Massachusetts School Building Authority, the highest state reimbursement rate possible after the Koch administration worked with the MSBA to involve the project in the state's Model School Program. Central is the first middle school in the state to be built under the model school program. The new three-story school, which is located on Hancock Street across from Veterans' Memorial Stadium, will accommodate 600 students in grades 6, 7, and 8.

"This is a moment a long time coming, and a great testament to what can be accomplished when we come together as a community for a common goal," said Mayor Tom Koch. "I am profoundly grateful and proud of the work our City Council, our School Committee and Dr. DeCristofaro's team, our Building Committee and the construction team, and our State leadership, past and present, whose commitment to our future and our young people has made this first-class school possible."

The old Central, located just south on Hancock St., will be sold off once the new building opens. That building opened in 1894 and housed Quincy High School before it became a middle school in the 1920s when the new Quincy High opened. The building has been discussed for replacement since the early 1970s.

"The teachers and staff are thrilled to be getting into the new building and getting it fully ready for the students," said DeCristofaro. "The great progress being made every day is now revealing a truly exceptional school building and a truly exceptional learning environment for our students for many years to come."

First-Time Homebuyers Workshop Oct. 7, 9

NeighborWorks Southern Mass. will offer a two-part workshop for first-time homebuyers to be held from 5 to 9 p.m. Monday, Oct. 7 and Wednesday, Oct. 9 at the Winter Gardens apartment complex, 45 Winter St., Quincy.

The workshop will give participants an opportunity to meet and hear from real estate brokers, insurance agents, attorneys and loan originators. Attendees also will have an opportunity to learn about grant programs and speak to a lender about different mortgage options.

The registration fee for the workshop is $20 per person. Seating is limited; to register online, visit www.nwsoma.org or call 617-770-2227 for more information.

Chamber Leadership Program Begins Today

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce's Leadership Launch Program will hold its first session today (Thursday) at 8 a.m. at the Chamber's new location at 180 Old Colony Ave., Wollaston.

The program was established to guide individuals with an interest and desire to become more involved in the community. It is a program that meets weekly for eight weeks; a certificate of completion will be awarded at the closing session.

Through these sessions participants will become aware of the current community issues as well as local business challenges in presentations from prominent speakers from civic, political, historic, and economic arenas. Q&A sessions after each presentation will offer an opportunity for creative thinking and a further awareness of how participants can become part of Quincy's progress. With a focus of civic engagement, the program will cover a variety of topics designed to inform participants about the past, present and future of Quincy.

The program is tuition based and may be paid by the employer or the employee. For further information of enrollment forms, contact Marilyn Manning at the Quincy Chamber via email at mmanning@thequincychamber.com or via phone at 617-471-1700 ext. 204.

On Friday, September 13, 2013 at approximately 7: 55 P.M., Officers' Mark Smith and John McGowan were dispatched to the area of Sachem Street in Quincy, to look for a vehicle involved in a crime in Weymouth. While the Officers searched for the suspect's vehicle, the Quincy Police Dispatcher pinpointed the exact address to check. As the Officers approached the front door, they observed an adult male and a juvenile female walk out. Upon request, the male identified himself as the suspect, who said that the young girl was his daughter. The Officers asked the suspect to have his daughter go back inside because they needed to talk to him. The daughter went back inside. The Officers then advised the suspect that they were there because the Weymouth Police wanted him placed under arrest for a 209A domestic violence violation. The Officers told the suspect that they had his daughter go inside so that he (the suspect) would not be humiliated in front of her. The Officers then asked the suspect to walk with them down the street out of sight of their home in the event his daughter was looking out the window. As they walked away, the suspect blurted out, "You're not doing this in front of my daughter" and then turned and ran for the house. The Officers gave chase up the steps of the house to the porch door, where the suspect went inside, then slammed the front door on Officer Smith, striking him on the shoulder. This caused Officer Smith to fall back several steps before catching himself.

Officer McGowan continued inside the house and attempted to grab hold of the suspect, who was fighting and struggling to get free. Officer Smith ran inside to see the suspect swinging his arms wildly in an attempt to get away. During this struggle, both Officers were struck in the chest and arm area by the suspect. Unable to handcuff the suspect, Officer Smith took out his mace and sprayed the suspect however he was able to break free and started swinging wildly again. A second blast of the mace slowed the suspect down and after a brief struggle, the suspect was handcuffed and placed into the back of the cruiser. During this altercation, the suspect's daughter was present and visibly upset. The Officers went inside to console her and learned that she also inhaled some of the mace fumes, complaining of a burning throat. Fallon Ambulance EMTs arrived on scene and after providing care for the suspect's daughter, treated the suspect and Officers for mace exposure. With the permission of the daughter's mother, she was placed in the custody of a family friend. The suspect, a 43 year old Weymouth resident, was booked at the Quincy Police station on the charges of "Assault and Battery on a Police Officer, Resisting Arrest and Assault and Battery with a Dangerous Weapon (door). The suspect was then turned over to the Weymouth Police Department for booking of additional charges. In this case, the Officers showed considerable compassion for the family. They made every effort to avoid humiliation to the father and trauma to the child, but in the end it was the father that forced the unfortunate outcome. Nice Work!

SCAMS: The Federal Trade Commission is concerned about possible scams related to the Affordable Care Act as it relates to Medicare. Here are some issues:

* Scammers are calling stating that you will lose your Medicare coverage (or access to your Doctors) unless you get a new get a new Medicare card, or sign up for a certain Medicare Advantage Plan. None of this is true. The Affordable Care Act doesn't say that people with Medicare need a new Medicare card or any new health insurance.

* Some citizens are getting calls with offers for discounts on health services or products. These offers sound like insurance, but they're not. Instead, some of these discount plans are scams that don't deliver what they promise.

* Some citizens have received calls from a person who claims to be with the government. The Federal Trade Commission makes it clear: no one from the government is going to call you and ask for money or your Social Security number.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your Aries charm helps persuade others to listen to your proposal. But it's still a long way from acceptance, unless you can stand up to the tough questions that are set to follow.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Plan to share a weekend getaway from all the pressures of your hectic workday world with a very special someone. You could be pleasantly surprised at what develops.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your keen insight once again helps you handle a challenging situation with a clearer perception of what it's really all about. What you learn helps you make a difficult decision.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) If you want to steer clear of getting involved in a new family dispute, say so. Your stand might cause hurt feelings for some, but overall, you'll be respected for your honesty.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Expect recognition for your efforts in getting a project into operation. Besides the more practical rewards, your Lion's heart will be warmed by the admiration of your colleagues.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Set aside time to rid yourself of clutter that might well be drawing down your creative energies. Consider asking someone to help you decide what stays and what goes.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A colleague could make a request that might place you in an awkward position with co-workers.

Best advice: Share your concerns with an associate you can trust.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your energy levels are way up, allowing you to take on the added challenge of a task you've been hoping to secure. Expect this move to lead to an important opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your continuing sense of confidence in what you've set out to do gives encouragement to others. Expect to see more people asking to add their efforts to yours.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You might think it would be best to reject a suggestion others insist would be unworkable. But you might be surprised by what you find if you give it a chance.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Changing a decision might disappoint some people, but the important thing is that you be honest with yourself. Don't go ahead with anything you have doubts about.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) There could be some fallout from an emotional confrontation that you really should deal with before moving on. Best to start fresh with a clean, clear slate.

Firefighters Conduct Ice Rescue Training

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

By the middle of October every firefighter in Quincy will be trained to conduct water and ice rescues after attending on site and classroom training throughout the past month.

"We did a quick refresher in the classroom and wanted to throw someone in the water and have them actually conduct a rescue. It's a little different to use the equipment than to just learn about it in the classroom," said Captain Richard Bryan Quincy Fire/Emergency Management. "We wanted to make sure everyone knew the equipment was available and knew how to use it if they are ever working in the two stations that carry the equipment."

Over 150 firefighters attended a class back in January and February where they learned how to safely rescue a victim in the water or ice and now this past month they have been learning first hand how to make the rescue.

"The whole department will go through ice rescue training," said Lt. Tim Marks. "They are mainly learning ice rescue but this training can also be used for water rescues."

4-Alarm Fire Guts Historic Quincy Masonic Temple

'Sad Day For Architectural Jewel'

By SCOTT JACKSON

Fire officials hope that the limestone façade of Quincy Center's Masonic Temple can be preserved after the building was gutted by a four-alarm fire Monday afternoon.

The fire, which started in the basement, was called in around noon, Fire Chief Joseph Barron said. Firefighters initially entered the building to attack the fire from the interior, but the chief said Deputy Fire Chief Jeffrey Starr ordered the firefighters out of the building within 10 minutes because the fire was too advanced, and called in a second alarm. Barron arrived when the second alarm was called, and he called a third alarm at the time. The fourth alarm was called in about a half hour after that.

Each of the Fire Department's trucks - eight engines, three ladders, and the rescue truck - were on scene to battle the blaze. Also on scene were two engines and two ladders - including a tower ladder with a basket at the end to allow officials to check the scene from above

Finalists Chosen For Adams Green Sculpture Design

By SCOTT JACKSON

The committee reviewing designs for the new sculptures of John Adams and John Hancock that will be installed in Adams Green has chosen five finalists.

More than 50 artists submitted bids to design and build the new sculptures. The selection committee identified seven semi-finalists from all those who submitted bids, and met with each artist, or team of artists, in August. Of those seven, five were named finalists.

The finalists include:

Toby Mendez of Knoxville, MD. Mendez crafted the "Teammates" statue that sits outside of Boston's Fenway Park. The statue depicts Red Sox greats Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr, Johnny Pesky, and Dom DiMaggio. He also designed statues of Baltimore Orioles legends, including Frank and Brooks Robinson, Earl Weaver, Jim Palmer, Cal Ripken Jr., and Eddie Murray, all located outside of Camden Yards, the Orioles home field, and a statue of former Miami Dolphins head coach Don Shula celebrating the team's perfect 1972 season outside Sun Life Stadium in Miami.

Charles Fagan of Charlotte, NC. Fagan designed a seven-foot statue of former President Ronald Reagan, which stands in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol in Washington. He also designed a monument to former Presi-

Vigil For Pitbull Mix Found Brutally Abused

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Purple ribbons, tee shirts, signs, and pictures decorated the crowd of nearly 1,000 animal lovers and their pets as they gathered together at Pageant Field last Saturday for an emotional vigil that honored and remembered Puppy Doe, the pitbull mix who was found brutally abused in Quincy on Aug. 31.

"We are so grateful to the community that has come together to remember the puppy in what is one of the most horrific cases the ARL has seen. We are all shaken to the core by the details of what happened to this poor dog," said President of the Animal Rescue League of Boston Mary Nee.

"This kind of cruelty is unacceptable. Puppy Doe's case is extreme and so horrible. We want the person or persons responsible for this to be found and brought — from the Boston Fire Department. None of the firefighters were hurt.

"We have no injuries yet, but sometimes you end up with a sprain or a strain," Barron said Tuesday morning.

It took nearly four hours to contain the fire. Firefighters were focused on making sure embers from the Masonic Temple didn't start a fire in any of the surrounding buildings. They sprayed the Sovereign Bank building next door to the temple, and Barron had an engine company check the roof of a building on the opposite side of Hancock Street.

"We worked to keep it from spreading to other buildings. There were a lot of embers spraying," Barron said.

The fire also sent plumes of thick, dark smoke into the sky. The smoke was so heavy, in fact, that National Weather Service radar was able to detect it. Barron said the heavy smoke was caused by burning roofing materials.

"A lot of the roofing materials start burning, they're petroleum based," he said.

Officials did not evacuate any surrounding building because of the fire.

"We had no evacuations throughout the area. We had heavy smoke but there was no need to evacuate," Police Chief Paul Keenan said.

As firefighters battled the blaze, Quincy Police closed off portions of Hancock and Adams Streets as well as other neighboring roads. One lane of Hancock Street remained closed overnight, but reopened in time for Tuesday morning's commute. Three fire engines and a ladder remained on scene overnight Monday, as the fire continued to smolder.

The Masonic Temple, located at 1170 Hancock St., was built in 1926 and added to the National Registry of Historic Places in 1989. It had an assessed value of $3

Sheriff's 'File Of Life' Program For Seniors

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti wants senior citizens throughout the county to take advantage of his File of Life program, which provides potentially life-saving information to medical personnel in the event of an emergency.

The "File of Life" folders are available free-of-charge by calling the Norfolk Sheriff's Office at 781-751-3516.

"If a person is ill or hurt and is unable to communicate with an ambulance crew, the File of Life folder can save his or her life by providing important information about medical conditions and which prescription medications a person takes," Sheriff Bellotti said.

Sheriff Bellotti added that local emergency medical personnel have repeatedly said that the File of Life folders are extremely helpful, allowing them to treat a patient more quickly and with more certainty.

"We have distributed tens of thousands of the Files of Life to the public since I took office, and we want to make sure that anyone who wants one is able to obtain it."

Recipients fill out the File of Life card with all the pertinent medical information and then place it inside its bright red vinyl folder. The magnetized folder is then hung on a refrigerator or some other highly visible place so that medical workers can easily notice it when they come in to a home to attend to a person during an emergency.

A much smaller version, designed to fit inside a wallet, is also available so that senior citizens may feel the same protection when they are outside their homes.

Sheriff Bellotti distributes the "File of Life" folders through his Triad program, which links seniors with their local police and fire departments and councils on aging in order to keep them aware of important issues and programs available to them. People wishing to learn more about Triad may also call 781-751-3516.

'Discover Quincy Day' Still On For Saturday Government Shutdown Closes Adams Park

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Adams National Historical Park shutdown Tuesday after Democrats and Republicans in Washington couldn't come to an agreement on a new spending measure, and the park will remain closed until a new one is approved.

The federal government's previous spending bill, known as a continuing resolution, expired at midnight Tuesday. The Republican-controlled House of Representatives passed new spending measures that would either delay or defund the Affordable Care Act, also known as Obamacare. Those bills, however, were rejected by the Democratic-controlled Senate.

Without a spending bill in place, federal agencies deemed "non-essential" are required to close. Among those agencies that are forced to close is the National Park Service, the operator of the Adams National Historical Park, a site that includes the birthplaces of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams and the Old House at Peace field, also known as the Adams Mansion.

"We are preparing for a shutdown," Caroline Keinath, the park's deputy superintendent, said Monday. "If there were a shutdown we would have to furlough 36 people including our historic interpreters and our maintenance and museum staff."

The National Park Service will remain closed until a new spending measure is passed by Congress and signed by President Barack Obama. Until that time visitors will be turned away. That includes a group of 80 that had reserved a tour for Tuesday, in addition to the park's regular visitors. Special events, such as a planned re-enactment Saturday at Peace field, will also be canceled unless new spending is approved in time.

"This is our busiest time of year," Keinath said. "There are a lot of people in the fall who travel. It's very disappointing for the public and for us as well."

The Adams National Historical Park is one of the sites scheduled to take part in Discover Quincy Day Saturday, but the park will remain closed unless a new budget measure is approved. Other sites in the city, including the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Hancock Cemetery, Josiah Quincy House, Quincy History Museum at the Quincy Historical Society, and United First Parish Church, will be open Saturday for the event, regardless of whether or not the Adams Park is open. Visitors participating in the Discover Quincy Day can purchase a wristband for $5 at any participating attraction, granting access to all those sites. If the federal shutdown isn't resolved, participants will receive a voucher to visit Adams Park for free at another time. The event, organized by the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, lasts from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"All of our other sites are still open," said Margaret Laforest, the chamber's tourism director. "It's still a real bargain."

Keinath said the park will be ready to re-open immediately once the budget impasse is resolved.

The federal government last shutdown 17 years ago, from Nov. 14 to Nov. 19, 1995, and again from Dec. 16, 1995 to Jan. 6, 1996.

to justice. We must be the voice for animals. No animal shall pass person to person through the internet without concern for its well being."

Puppy Doe was found alive Aug. 31st at the Whitwell Street Playground with severe injuries consistent with abuse. Veterinarians were unable to save the puppy due to the extent of her injuries. She was starved, dehydrated, and emaciated, and had numerous broken bones, her tongue split down the middle like a serpent, and she was stabbed in the eye.

There were no witnesses and no surveillance cameras in the area where she was found making the search for her abuser a difficult task. Quincy Police have received numerous tips and leads, some local, some from the western part of the state, and even some from out-of-state, and as of Monday police were still following those leads.

"We are still following leads," said Quincy Police Lt. John Steele. "It is a very fluid and active investigation."

The ARL is offering a $5,000 reward for information that would help in finding those responsible, and PETA has added to the reward offering up to $5,000.

Dogs of all shapes and sizes and their owners traveled from all over the state and beyond to attend Saturday's vigil.

"When I started organizing this vigil I could never have imagined it to become this big. I am so overwhelmed that there are so many people here," said Ally Baker, one of the event organizers. "I truly believe it was Puppy Doe who brought us all together here today. She was a sweet gentle soul and I can't bear the thought of knowing what this precious baby went through. I cry before work and coming home just knowing what some monster inflicted on a puppy that just wanted to be loved."

Many in the crowd were visibly upset by the incident. Some wept openly as speakers one-by-one approached the microphone demanding justice be brought against the puppy's abuser.

"It is highly unlikely that this level of sadistic cruelty, which I referred to as torture, could be shown to one living creature and not to others," said Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey. "It is important we stand together and show that this is not who we are as a community. It is who we are as a people and we won't tolerate this kind of behavior."

Morrissey also noted that in a number of different studies, one in 2008 by the Chicago Police Department and one in 1997 by Northeastern University showed that 70 percent of animal abusers were arrested for other crimes. The Northeastern study found that 38 percent of those abusers were arrested for other violent crimes.

State Rep. Bruce Ayers received loud cheers and support from the crowd for his work in advocating for House Bill 1182, which seeks to punish an individual who has custody of an animal, and is found to have willfully or maliciously kill, maim, mutilate, torture or disfigure the animal through imprisonment in the state prison for not more than five years and by a fine of not more than $5,000.

"As we stand here tonight as the voice for the voiceless we have an obligation to protect the defenseless,"

NEARLY 1,000 PEOPLE and their pets gathered at Pageant Field this past Saturday to remember and honor Puppy Doe. Attendees brought signs, wore tee shirts, and pictures of the young pitbull puppy that was brutally abused and abandoned at the Whitwell Street Playground on Aug. 31.

said Ayers.

"We cannot allow these heinous crimes to become a state-wide epidemic, they will not be tolerated. Our pets inspire us and we have to protect and support them. The fact of the matter is the current laws here in Massachusetts are not tough enough to protect our animals. My intent with House Bill 1182 is to create harsher fines and penalties for these cruel acts. Working together we can set a precedent that animal cruelty will not be tolerated and I am confident that we will find the person who committed this vicious crime."

Pitbull Poet Jeffrey Brandt wrote a poem, "A tail of woe," for Puppy Doe that brought many in the crowd to tears, as he rhymed about the dog's short life and what she had to endure.

"Bounced around from home to home. Her life tossed to and fro. So was the world of this poor girl, whom we know as Puppy Doe," Brandt read.

"She didn't know the feeling or the meaning of forever and certainly she didn't know her path in life's endeavor. The path led to a person whom should never have existed, a psychopathic lunatic whose thoughts are sick and twisted. A lesson that is learned is one so clear it can't be missed, you should never put a puppy up for free on any list."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Oct. 17, 1906, Wilhelm Voigt, a German shoemaker, impersonates an army officer and leads an entire squad of soldiers to help him steal 4,000 marks. Voigt humiliated the German army by exploiting their blind obedience to authority and getting them to assist in his audacious robbery.

• On Oct. 15, 1917, Mata Hari is executed for espionage by a French firing squad. Her military trial was riddled with bias and circumstantial evidence, and it is probable that French authorities trumped her up as "the greatest woman spy of the century" as a distraction for the huge losses the French army was suffering.

• On Oct. 14, 1947, U.S. Air Force Capt. Chuck Yeager becomes the first person to fly faster than the speed of sound. Yeager's X-1 rocket plane was lifted to an altitude of 25,000 feet by a B-29 aircraft and then released through the bomb bay.

• On Oct. 16, 1958, Chevrolet begins to sell the El Camino, a combination sedan-pickup truck. In 1964, the company introduced a version built on the brawnier Chev-elle platform. Today, the car is a cult classic.

• On Oct. 20, 1962, the White House press corps is told that President John F. Kennedy has a cold; in reality, he is holding secret meetings with advisers on the eve of ordering a blockade of Cuba. Kennedy had seen photographic proof that the Soviets were building ballistic missile sites on the island of Cuba.

• On Oct. 18, 1974, soul singer Al Green is attacked in his own bathtub when an ex-girlfriend pours a pot of scalding-hot grits on his back. Her actions left Green with severe injuries but also shaken emotionally and spiritually. By 1976, Green had become an ordained Baptist minister and purchased a Memphis church, where he still preaches today.

• On Oct. 19, 1982, maverick automobile executive John DeLorean is arrested in a Los Angeles motel with a briefcase containing $24 million worth of cocaine. According to authorities, DeLorean was attempting to make a drug deal in order to rescue his financially ailing DeLorean Motor Company.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1909 POSTCARD view of Wollaston shows a train passing under the Beale Street bridge on its way to Quincy Center. The Wollaston depot on the left was built in 1870 to support the development of the Wollaston Heights subdivision on the three hills west of the tracks. Its Victorian style made it one of the handsomest depots in the entire Old Colony Railroad system. On the right is Newport Avenue. The tall building at the top of the hill was the Wollaston Hill on the corner of Beale Street. Railroad tracks were first laid in this right of way over 150 years ago in 1845 when the Old Colony Railroad began operating between Boston and Plymouth. Poll: Nonvoters Say 'It Makes No Difference'

By SCOTT JACKSON

A poll of Quincy's unregistered voters found many chose not to cast ballots because many felt 'it makes no difference' while others said they were unregistered because they thought the poll tax was still in effect.

Those discoveries came to light during two voter registration drives focused on three low-turnout precincts - Ward 1, Precinct 9; Ward 3, Precinct 3; and Ward 4, Precinct 2 - conducted by the League of Women voters.

Central Junior High and North Quincy High students compiled a list of 1,100 unregistered voters in those precincts leading up to the registration drive, and students from Quincy Junior College conducted those unregistered voters.

Russell O'Connell of the Quincy Community Action Organization said many of the unregistered voters told the students "registering to vote was not worth the effort since they felt voting made no difference."

The students also discovered that many of the unregistered voters were dropped from the voting list for not paying the poll tax, and were unaware that the poll tax was repealed in 1963.

Of all the unregistered voters contacted by the students, only 74 wound up registering to vote in the special registration drives, which were coordinated by City Clerk John M. Gillis and his staff.

QUINCY, NORTH FOOTBALL TEAMS ROLLING

The football teams at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools opened the season with an impressive record of 4-0-1.

The Presidents, coached by Hank Conroy, racked up 121 points in the team's first two games. The team easily won its opener on the road against Weymouth South, 66-14, and followed that up with a 55-15 victory over Revere.

Steve McCarthy and Wayne Richards each scored twice for the Presidents against Revere, and quarterback Steve Sullivan passed for two touchdowns. Richards, Bobby Malvesti, and Jim Walker all intercepted Revere on defense. Walker brought back his interception for a touchdown.

The Red Raiders, under the direction of coach Ralph Frazier, also opened their season against Weymouth South, taking that contest in a shutout, 20-0. NQ tied Revere, 6-6, in the team's next contest, before defeating Weymouth North, 14-6.

John Panarelli and Tony Kelly each had rushing touchdowns for the Red Raiders against Weymouth North. Panarelli also recovered a fumble defensively on NQ's three-yard line to end Weymouth North's attempt to tie the game.

READERS FORUM

The New Quincy Is Here

Recently, when I travel back to Quincy, I see all the life coming forth thanks in part to the leadership and vision of Mayor Tom Koch. The new Central Middle School is getting closer and closer to fruition. I love the new Quincy Track down next to the new Quincy High School and use it up to three and four days a week to keep in shape.

The new Downtown Quincy is starting to rise up and soon will be a gem on the South Shore. Even neighborhood retail districts like Wollaston Center and Norfolk Downs are looking better as people start believing in the best that Quincy offers.

It took Quincy decades to find its future. It no longer lives in the past. The old Shopperstown USA sign has been replaced with a pleasant "Welcome to Quincy" hello. As I drive down Hancock Street, I can feel the renewed pride in the faces of people on the sidewalks.

Downtown will soon be a mix of retail and residential opportunities. This is Smart-Growth at its best. The Koch Administration is picking up where the McIntyre Administration left off. It all started over 40 years ago with the MBTA Red Line roaring across the Neponset Bridge and the construction of the State Street South concept. Today, it is the all-new Downtown Quincy a 21st century area filled with opportunities for all.

Good schools, good shopping, good restaurants and a good future awaits those finding Quincy for either the first time or a lifetime. The changes are all positive and as Quincy grows so too the attitude of those proud to call Quincy not just a City of Presidents but a City of Endless Opportunities.

The City of Quincy will no longer be a place to pass by on the way home, it will be a destination to raise families and hopes once again.

Thank you Mayor Tom Koch, the Quincy City Council and all those unsung heroes in the city's neighborhoods who never gave up on their city or their city's future.

The new Quincy is here.

QCAP Best Chef Fundraiser Oct. 10

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) invites guests to cook up some fun at its Second Annual Best Chef fundraising event Thursday, Oct. 10 at 6 p.m. at Granite Links Golf Club in Quincy.

The competition pits some of the area's most celebrated chefs against each other in a battle of culinary skills. The event, hosted by Jenny Johnson, co-host of NECN's TV Diner, features the talents of Chef Robert Caparella of La Scala Restaurant in Randolph; Chef Joel Hathaway of the Neighborhood Club of Quincy; Chef David Todisco of the Tavern at Quarry Hills/Granite Links; Chef Paul Wahlberg of Alma Nove and Wahlburg-ers in Hingham; and Quincy School Committee member Barbara Isola, host of QATV's "Into the Frying Pan."

The chefs will use portable cooking stations at the event as they vie for the title of "Best Chef." The challenge: The chefs will not know their cooking ingredients until the competition begins that night. Styled after the popular television show, "Chopped," they will open up baskets to reveal secret ingredients and will have 45 minutes to create their dish. They will serve up their creations for a panel of judges. Chefs will be judged on several criteria including taste, originality, and plating. The chef with the most points will be crowned "Best Chef," won last year by Chef Paul Wahlberg.

The chefs will be assisted by a sous chef and one of the participating celebrity chefs: Paul F. Connors, Jr., member of the Norfolk County Retirement Board and former selectman and retired town administrator from the town of Randolph; Quincy Mayor Thomas P. Koch; Patrick McDermott, Register of Probate/Clerk Magistrate at Norfolk County Probate & Family Court; Quincy City Council President Michael E. McFarland; and longtime Quincy resident and community action activist Archie Wahlberg.

As an added twist: The secret ingredients will typify food given out at QCAP's own Emergency Food Center, which provides food and other items to thousands of low-income residents and families each year. QCAP provides clients with monthly food orders, comprised of food and other household items from the Greater Boston Food Bank, local grocers, and private donors. After the event, all of the chefs' recipes will be shared with the Food Center clients and the public. Last year's secret ingredients included chicken, potato bud flakes, canned green beans, peanut butter, and carrots.

The judges won't be the only culinary connoisseurs that night. Guests can weigh in on their favorite chef in the "People's Choice" competition. The participating chefs will be providing dishes that reflect the flavors and styles of their own restaurants. Guests can sample their dishes and vote for their favorite chef. Chef David Todisco was voted the "People's Choice" winner in 2012.

The night will also feature raffles and live and silent auctions, including a destination package to Foxwoods with a suite at the MGM, dinner at the Red Parrot, bowling at High Rollers, and a night at the casino; an in-studio experience with Jenny Johnson and Billy Costa for a taping of TV Diner; Putnam Club seats to the New England Patriots; other sporting event tickets and signed memorabilia, golf outings, restaurant and spa gift certificates, jewelry, one-of-a-kind art, and cookware.

Tickets are $100 per person and $175 per couple. Event proceeds will benefit QCAP programs, which serves more than 17,000 people annually in Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Milton, Hull, and surrounding Norfolk County, South Shore, and Metro Boston communities. In addition to the Emergency Food Center, services include adult education and workforce development, financial literacy education, early education and care, family engagement activities, heating assistance, affordable housing, homelessness prevention, mortgage foreclosure counseling, and housing services.

Historical Society Fall Foliage Trip Oct. 8

Quincy Historical Society is offering a group bus trip on Oct. 8 that provides a chance to see New England's fall colors, enjoy a behind-the-scenes look at a Disney classic, and dine at one of the Berkshires' hidden gems.

The bus will depart the Adams Academy at 7:30 a.m. and proceed to the Norman Rockwell Museum and its spectacular visiting exhibit, "Snow White: The Creation of a Classic." The exhibit celebrates the 75th anniversary of the Disney film, the first feature-length cartoon. It includes 200 rarely seen works of original art—from early design and character sketches to finished animation cells—that show how the Disney studio created a new art form.

The museum is also showing, in addition to its permanent exhibit, a special exhibit of Rockwell's work, "Happily Ever After," featuring paintings not always on display.

Lunch will be at Michael's restaurant in Stockbridge center. The entrée is a choice of herb-crusted, oven-roasted roast beef with brown gravy or baked stuffed chicken with bread stuffing and supreme sauce, with ice cream for dessert. After lunch there will be a chance to explore Stockbridge's shops. On the ride home, there will be a stop at a farm stand. The bus will return to the Adams Academy at approximately 5:30 p.m.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Kale Quiche, Yogurt Coated Chicken

Recently I was asked to bring something for my son Dom's birthday, and decided to make a crustless quiche and some baked chicken. I've made dozens of quiche in the past, but never with kale, which is becoming very popular these days.

I had a frozen package in the freezer so it was an easy decision as to what kind it would be. We all thought it was the best ever and so easy to make.

KALE QUICHE

- 1 package of frozen cut up kale
- 4 eggs
- 3 tablespoons cream cheese
- 1/4 cup Parmesan cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- A couple of cheese slices for top

Preheat oven to 325 degrees

Defrost the kale according to directions. In bowl beat the egg, and add the cream cheese,

Parmesan cheese and salt and pepper. Place the kale in a bowl, and season with salt and pepper and the olive oil,

In a slightly greased pie plate, place half of the egg mixture, then the kale, and finish with the egg mixture. Top it with some sliced favorite cheese. Bake for 30-35 minutes or until a toothpick comes out clean from the center.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

YOGURT COATED CHICKEN

- 6-8 Chicken thighs
- 1- cup plain Greek yogurt
- 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1- teaspoon garlic powder

Mix all the ingredients together. Coat each piece of chicken thoroughly, and place in a slightly greased baking pan. Bake for about 35-40 minutes turning once until done.

Finalists Chosen For Adams Green Sculpture Design

dent George H.W. Bush in Houston, and a statue of astronaut Neil Young – the first man to walk on the moon – for Purdue University, Young's alma mater.

Pablo Eduardo of Gloucester. Eduardo's works include a statue of late Boston Mayor Kevin White in Boston's Quincy Market. His other works include statues of St. Thomas More and St. Ignacio de Loyola for Boston College's campus and a statue of Cesar Chavez for the University of Texas at Austin.

Sergey Eylanbekov and Penelope Jencks, of New York and Wellfleet. Eylanbekov designed a statue of abolitionist leaders Harriet Tubman and Thomas Garrett in Wilmington, DE. Jencks' works include a statue of former First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt located in Manhattan's Riverside Park.

Giancarlo Biagi and Jill Burkee of New York City. The two have collaborated before, working on such projects as a new "Angel of Music" statue for the tomb of pianist Louis Moreau Gottschalk in Brooklyn's Green-Wood Cemetery.

The selection committee – which includes Quincy Historical Society President James Edwards and Executive Director Dr. Ed Fitzgerald; Park Department Executive Director Chris Cassani; Bob Uhlig and Craig Halvorson, the president and founder, respectively, of Halvorson Design, the firm designing the park; Quincy Art Association President Karen L. Giovanniello; Mary Smith from the Planning Department; and Diom O'Connell, Ricardo Barreto, and Susan Larkin – met with the five finalists Monday.

The presentations, which lasted approximately 40 minutes a piece, included reviews of sketches for the statues and the site and reviews of each artist's or team's work. The selection committee will meet with the artists again, in November, for an additional presentation that could include maquettes or mock-ups of the sculptures. Following that, the committee will recommend an artist for each sculpture. Mayor Thomas Koch will have the final say on which artists are hired.

"The committee will make a recommendation to the mayor, and then the mayor will make his selection," mayoral spokesman Chris Walker said.

Once completed Adams Green will include four new sculptures, depicting John Hancock, John Adams, John Quincy Adams, and Abigail Adams. Contracts for artists to design and craft the sculptures of the John Quincy and Abigail Adams will be awarded through a similar process in the future.

"The immediate focus is on John Adams and John Hancock, but all four will be included," Walker said.

The budget for each sculpture is $250,000 to $300,000, which will cover all expenses including artist fees, fabrication costs, and installation. That money would likely come from the state's Innovative Infrastructure Investment (I-Cubed) program.

In addition to the new sculptures planned for the park, two existing ones – the sculpture of Abigail Adams and a young John Quincy Adams outside the United First Parish Church and the sculpture of John Adams on the McIntyre Mall – will also be incorporated into its design, Walker said. The sculpture of Abigail and John Quincy Adams was installed in 1997 and the sculpture of John Adams was added five years later. Both were commissioned by the Quincy Partnership.

FIRE AND WATER

Opal is a very unusual gemstone that appears to hold two opposing forces in a state of dynamic tension as fire seemingly emerges from water. Opal owes its fiery mix of colors to its unique combination of hydrated silica, a hardened gel of silica (a form of quartz), and water. As light penetrates the tightly packed silica spheres, it refracts into a remarkable play of color, or "fire." So impressive is this play of light that the ancient Greeks used to prize opals as much as diamonds. Perhaps the most dramatic form of opal is the "fire opal," which is a variety that displays intense flashes of red and yellow colors. As the gemstone is turned, it produces flame-like reflections.

The opal - October's official birthstone - is a gorgeous multicolored gem full of shimmering color. It comes in a wide range of colors and its beauty is often found in the contrast between colors. Come into our store located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center where you will find an amazing selection of unique jewelry. For a sophisticated look, consider adding opal jewelry. Whether it is a subtle pair of gold opal stud earrings, or an opal pendant, the opal is a beautiful option. This bright gemstone catches the eye, the light, and adds a bit of shimmer to any outfit. Manet Community Health Partners With Mass Health Connector

By EMILY ARMSTRONG
Manet Community Health Center has partnered with the Massachusetts Health Connector to provide information and assistance to Quincy and South Shore residents seeking health insurance with the new Navigator Program.

"Partnering is one of our strengths here at Manet Community Health. Partnering to provide health care and social service leadership in changing times. One of our newest partners is the Massachusetts Health Connector Navigation Program," said Henry Tuttle, Chief Executive Officer of Manet Community Health Center.

"Our new partnership will help local residents navigate and find the right healthcare plans for themselves and their families during the open enrollment period starting Oct. 1st leading up to the roll out of the Affordable Care Act on Jan. 1st. We've entered into this new partnership because at Manet Community Health we exist to be your partner for a healthier life."

In July, the Health Connector named Manet as one of the 10 navigators across Massachusetts. As a navigator Manet will help consumers understand the new coverage options available through the ACA and find the most affordable coverage that meets their needs. Navigators, who have been certified, will assist consumers from application through enrollment.

"This is about the Affordable Care Act, at the big picture level, and it is about getting people insured and keeping people insured, that is something Massachusetts has already done very well," said Executive Director of the Massachusetts Health Connector, Jean Yang.

"Massachusetts successfully covered 97 percent of its residents, it's by far the highest in the nation, 97 percent of the residents including about 100 percent of the children in the state have insurance coverage. If we do things well, the Affordable Care Act is actually going to push us further in that direction, that will make coverage even stronger and more expansive in this state."

With new enrollment in new health insurance programs under the federal Affordable Care Act set to begin this week, Manet added new staff, with the help of $193,871 in state and national grant funding, to help consumers with their insurance questions.

"Navigators will be portable within Manet's five practice sites in Quincy and Hull and across the greater Quincy and South Shore community," said Tuttle.

"They will utilize this technology to expand their outreach and help individuals and families apply for coverage. Navigators will be active and available six days a week and evenings. Navigators will provide one on one counseling and provide expert follow up and maintain a calendar of monthly activities for the connector programs state wide publication.

"Through culturally and linguistically appropriate methods navigators will assist consumers from the beginning of the applications process through enrollment. Manet's navigators are available to serve individuals and families who speak Chinese, Cantonese and Mandarin, Vietnamese, Thai, Spanish, Portuguese, Arabic, and English."

Navigators will be helping consumers during the open enrollment period, which will be from Oct. 1 through March 31, 2014.

Two-thirds of the 15,000 patients at Manet Community Health Center will see changes in their health insurance as a result of the shift to the federal program. Navigators can be reached via email at healthinsurancehelp@manetchc.org or by telephone at (617) 376-3000.

Father Bill's, Interfaith Social Services Receive $50,000 Grants From Arbella

The Arbella Insurance Foundation recently awarded a grant of $50,000 each to Father Bill's & MainSpring (FBMS) and Interfaith Social Services as part of its "50 to 25" program, which presented one-time grants of $50,000 to 25 local charities throughout Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut.

The Foundation's Selection Committee chose the 25 recipient charities from proposals thoughtfully submitted by Arbella employees, independent insurance agents and longtime charitable partners. Checks were presented to the selected charities at a recent celebratory luncheon in Quincy. The awardees are all organizations that focus on social services, health and/or education.

"We're proud to be celebrating Arbella's 25th anniversary this year," said John Donohue, chairman, president and CEO of the Arbella Insurance Group and chairman and president of the Arbella Insurance Foundation. "In recognition of that milestone and the important role Arbella's Foundation plays in supporting our communities, we wanted to do something that would have a real impact in our communities. I can't imagine a better way to celebrate Arbella's 25 years of serving New England than to recognize the charities that are helping to make this region thrive."

FBMS is dedicated to ending, not just managing homelessness, and will use its 50 to 25 grant to support the programs and services offered to people in the South Shore area struggling with or facing homelessness.

"Arbella has been a true partner in our mission to end homelessness for many years," said John Yazwinski, President & CEO of FBMS. "Their employees regularly volunteer to serve meals in our shelters and they have always been there to support innovative programs like our social enterprise, WorkExpress. This grant will allow us to take this program to the next level."

"This grant personifies Arbella's culture of corporate responsibility and volunteerism," said Rick Doane Executive Director of Interfaith Social Services. "These funds will allow us to make some much needed repairs to our facilities here in Quincy. We are honored to have been selected for this grant and to work beside Arbella as partners in our community."

'The Barbary Pirates & Somali Pirates'

The Quincy Historical Society will present "The Barbary Pirates & The Somali Pirates" with speaker Bob Begin tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St.

The similarities and contrasts between one of the United States' earliest crises in naval warfare and one of its most recent will be the focus of a Quincy Historical Society program. Bob Begin, who has previously presented the stories of the first USS Quincy and of John Paul Jones, will give an illustrated talk comparing the Barbary pirates and the Somali pirates

The Barbary pirates long posed a danger to life and property in the crucial shipping lanes of the Mediterranean in the 18th century. As the United States sought to establish itself in world trade, the pirates presented an ongoing problem for Presidents Washington and John Adams. And under President Jefferson in the early 1800s they brought the United States into its first overseas military involvement. The similarities to today's Somali pirates also threatening life and property in a vital shipping lane are striking. But so are the differences: in the scale of the pirates' actions and in their intentions; in the respective roles played by the failed state of Somalia and the 18th-century North African nations; and in the responses of the United States as a fledgling nation and as the established world leader.

Begin will take the audience through both fascinating stories and will explore how the earlier crisis sheds light on the contemporary situation.

Everyone is welcome to attend. There is no charge for admission.

By JULIE RINES

The following children's and family programs are scheduled at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Fall Storytimes

Weekday morning storytimes for children ages 4 months through 5 years old began on Sept. 27th. The library offers several programs by age. Stop by the library or check the library's website thomascranepubliclibrary.org for details.

Mad Science Preschool for ages 3-5

Animal Friends

Kids ages 3-5 will have fun with this Mad Science of Greater Boston workshop all about animals. The children will be treated to interactive demonstrations and hands-on activities as they learn about animal bies and parents. They'll also explore the different sounds and noises that animals make, and the different types of covering animals have such as fur, scales and feathers. Kids take home their own animal masks they decorated using what they learned about animals. This 45-minute workshop for ages 3-5 will be held Oct. 19th at 9:30 a.m. at the Main Library. Registration is required. Beginning Monday, Oct. 7th, register online, in person or by calling (617) 376-2411.

Mad Science Workshops for ages 6-10

Under Pressure

This Mad Science of Greater Boston workshop introduces children ages 6-10 to the exciting science of aerodynamics and a host of associated scientific concepts, including air pressure, the science of flight, Bernoulli's Principle, and Newton's laws of motion, through an exciting collection of demonstrations and hands-on activities.

The children will be challenged to stop and consider air, its effects on our surroundings, and its significance to us and to life on earth. The focus will then turn to air pressure beginning with a fun demonstration that illustrated the concept of imbalanced pressures.

The children will enjoy an enthralling story of the Viking ship, and witness and reproduce the phenomenon of the amazing leaping Ping-Pong ball. They'll also enjoy an exciting series of hands-on activities using a blow dryer and Bernoulli's Principle to perform gravity-defying feats!

This one-hour workshop for ages 6-10 will be held on Saturday, Oct. 19th at 10:30 a.m. at the Main Library. Registration is required. Beginning Monday, Oct. 7th, register online, in person, or by calling (617) 376-2411.

BOO!

While most children revel in the idea of wearing costumes and soliciting free candy from neighbors, many parents regard Halloween as a potential nightmare. Child safety aside, many see sugar as the primary threat. Not only has sugar emerged as Public Enemy Number One in the fight against obesity, but it has always been regarded as a threat to tooth enamel. While it is true that sugar and carbohydrates feed the bacteria responsible for tooth decay, we can take steps to minimize the threat. It is generally a good idea to brush and floss immediately after eating any food, especially candy. More than pure chocolate, sticky candies pose the biggest problem. Remove them with floss before they do harm.

Halloween is around the corner, which for most children means bags of free candy. We urge you to maintain good oral health for your children around the Halloween holiday and throughout the year. Call us at 617-479-6220 today to schedule an appointment. Good oral hygiene is important, not only for looks, but for general health as well. Regular checkups and cleanings can prevent dental problems, as well as provide good oral hygiene. You can count on us for family-oriented dental care. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Halloween is only one night. The biggest threat to children's teeth comes from eating sugary foods and drinks all year round.

2013 Winter Parking Rules

To find out if a snow emergency has been declared call 617-770-7669 for a recording. If you have cable TV, tune to channels 8 or 11. On your computer, go to the City's web page at www.quincyma.gov. You can also receive ALERTS directly to your personal e-mail or your cell phone by signing up at <http://www.quincyma.gov/CityLink/>. If a snow emergency has been declared, get further help by calling the Snow Hotline at 617-376-1927.

The following winter parking rules apply during every Snow Emergency.

No parking allowed on either side of Emergency Arteries during a Snow Emergency. Residents on side streets (non Emergency Arteries) are allowed to park on the ODD SIDE of the street this snow season. This is determined by which year the snow season begins. During odd year snow seasons (2013), parking is permitted on the odd side of the street.

Overnight parking on the street is prohibited all year without a resident parking permit. Permits are available at the Quincy Police Department, One Sea Street.

Vehicles in violation of winter parking rules will be towed at owner's expense. Also, if your vehicle is hampering snow removal operations (i.e. parked too close to an intersection, etc.) it will be towed. The average tow fee is $125, plus cost of storage. No exceptions can be made for short term parking.

NQ Tops Quincy 1-0

By BILL GRIFFIN

A goal seemed quite unlikely.

North Quincy and Quincy had battled through 78 minutes of well-played, scoreless soccer. Neither team had scored in each of its last two games. That's almost five full matches and nearly 400 minutes of soccer without a goal. As darkness fell and a cold chill crept into the air, a goal seemed as far off as the moon.

Enter Abby Smith. Abby Smith decided to forget about all that foolishness of passing, dribbling, controlling, aiming and just give the old soccer ball a good kick.

Her left-footed rocket sailed into the far corner off a beautiful assist from Courtney Campo with 2:15 left in the second half to give North a 1-0 Patriot League decision over a gallant Quincy squad who played a match of which the Presidents could be well proud Saturday at Veterans Stadium.

"Courtney made the play," said Smith. "She left the ball for me just outside the penalty area. I saw someone coming at me fast, and I just let it go. I was surprised I got so much on the kick because I didn't use my dominant foot. I didn't have time."

Campo made a great soccer play, a quick, twisting run through the defense to set the ball in just the right spot slightly to the left of center at the top of the scoring box. Smith then proved the timeless truth that when a player shoots the ball on net, good things happen. Think of all time coaches and fans plead: Just shoot the ball. Smith shot the ball.

"I know it hit the corner, But I honestly didn't aim for it. I just hit it and that's where it went," smiled Smith.

North (5-3-2) richly deserved its win, but Quincy (3-7) played a terrific match. Led by the midfield play of Olivia Wallace, Michelle Lam and freshman Joelle Robinson, the Presidents clearly outplayed the Red Raiders in the first half and were it not for a diving stop by North's freshman keeper Shannan Kennedy on a low, hard drive from junior Julia Donovan labeled for the far corner, Quincy would have been up by a goal at intermission.

GIRLS SOCCER

"North Quincy is a great team and it shows how far we've come that we could play them evenly. This is the most competitive we've been with them in years," said Quincy coach Courtney Harnais. "We stayed with our checks, we had chances, and our keeper (Natalie O'Donovan) played a great match. I could not be prouder of my team."

"Courtney did a great job preparing them. Quincy probably deserved to win the match," said North coach Paul Bregoli.

Quincy played with grit and an extra measure of effort in the first half. The Presidents won the one-on-one battles, took control of contested balls in the air, and doggedly stuck to their marks. North needed to match this intensity in the second half so it could better showcase its skilled players.

"We had to play like they were playing. We needed more effort in the second half, we needed to win the 50-50 balls," said Bregoli. "The girls stepped up and we played smart, fast soccer. We were quicker to the ball and we stopped rushing into mistakes."

Campo was the central figure in the turnaround. She dominated the midfield over the final 40 minutes. She switched the flow of the game, and turned defense into offense which let the Red Raiders play most of the second half in the Quincy end. She was in the middle of three golden scoring chances before she set up Smith for the game-winner.

"She gave us what we needed and played great in midfield in the second half," said Bregoli.

It was a difficult loss for Quincy and especially for O'Donovan, a senior, who was exceptional in goal especially in the second half. Early in the second half, North freshman Marissa McGue fed Ciara Ford off a direct kick. Ford slipped it to Emily Anglehart who hit a low drive which O'Donovan handled.

O'Donovan tipped high a chip shot by Campo who broke in cleanly with 21:30 left and made the save of the game, a sprawling dive to tip aside a Haley Houlihan shot from close range with 16:00 remaining. For the entire game, her decision-making was excellent. When she needed to hold her mark, she held it. When she needed to come out and beat North's attackers for possession, she came out quickly and decisively.

"She was down after the game," said Harnais. "I told her that one goal doesn't take away from all the great saves she made. She was outstanding."

In a 1-0 game, there is obviously quality fullback play. For North, Arianna Viscione, Molly Kate Cannon and Haley McKay were rock solid on the back line. Sydney Chang was excellent for 80 minutes with her hustle, rushes, and long, strong kicks. For Quincy, junior Lauren Matthies, playing her third game at sweeper for the injured Kayla McArdle, played with poise, skill, and toughness. She blocked shots, passes, and controlled the ball in the scoring area. Freshman Nina McDonald also played well on defense.

"I also thought Emma Papile created good chances in the first half," said Harnais. "She's been sick all week and she had to play through it in the second half."

In other action last week, North defeated Cambridge, 3-1 on two goals by McGue and one from Delia Devane. Campo, Ford, and Houlihan had assists. Chang and Molly Donahue played well in midfield.

The Red Raiders fell to Scituate, 1-0. Viscione, McKay, and Cannon controlled the defensive area. Alyx Patey and Chang had solid matches. Patey, Cannon and Charlotte Chretien played well in a 6-0 loss to Duxbury.

For Quincy, Matthies and Colleen Madden had strong games in losses to Duxbury and Pembroke.

When it was over, the best of the city rivalry was played out. Both teams were warmly applauded as they left the field. In the tunnel under the stadium, players from each side stepped out of the dressing rooms, smiled and hugged. And senior Abby Smith talked about a goal she will never forget.

"It means a lot because it's one of my last games at North, one of my last games against Quincy. I'll always remember it," she said.

Quincy Wins 6-1 Battle With North Quincy

By BILL GRIFFIN

Bend It Like Beckham.

Junior Yuri Mascarenhas made a memorable varsity debut by curving home a classic shot directly out of a movie title early in the second half to break open a tie game and guide the Presidents to a 6-1 victory over North Quincy in the nightcap of a city soccer double-header at Veterans Stadium Saturday night.

In the first game, North's girls edged Quincy, 1-0 on a late goal by senior Abby Smith.

In the boys game, North (1-7) battled favored Quincy (6-3-1) evenly through the first half and drew square at 1-1 on a goal by Miguel Alfonso 14 seconds before intermission. Just over five minutes into the second half, James O'Shea set up a direct kick for Quincy by forcing a foul on a flying rush through the North defense.

Introducing Mr. Mascarenhas. The direct kick came from the right wing at the top of the penalty area. He started the kick outside the far post and curved it back into the corner past a diving Joey England. It was unstoppable. Someone should sent it to ESPN. It was Bend It Like Beckham.

"It was a beautiful goal and we needed it to re-establish ourselves," said Quincy coach Mark Spendlove. "We let them back in the match late in the first half and we needed something to inspire us. That goal did the trick."

Mascarenhas is from Cape Verde and he has been working with the Presidents in practice over the past few weeks. His first game was Saturday against North. There was more than just The Shot. He had two goals and one assist. He plays highly-skilled soccer. The thought of Mascarenhas and O'Shea working and blending their talents together over the second half of the season has Spendlove looking forward with great anticipation.

BOYS SOCCER

"It's like a Christmas present," said Spendlove. "He's not only a talented player, he's not a me-first player. He's a distributor and he showed that after his first goal."

His score set up a Quincy run of three goals in just over four minutes. Not only did the Presidents score, they scored with style on fine, unselfish passing plays. Aidan Smyth headed home a perfect corner from Cian Moriarty. Mascarenhas sent in O'Shea with a chip pass through the defense and O'Shea tucked it in the far corner for a 4-1 lead.

"We've been working with Aidan on getting in the right position for the header and he did it. Yuri and James have been working together in practice and everything is starting to click," said Spendlove.

Mascarenhas moved quickly to a loose ball at the corner of the net and buried it for a 5-1 lead. Enrique Figueiredo finished the scoring with a long, high drive with 3:00 left in the match.

"I thought in the second half we established our game and played well," said Spendlove.

The Red Raiders were excellent in the first half. T. J. Marshall, Dennis Calero, Ivan Zeng and John Lopes protected well the scoring area. Mouad Abibi, Thomas Murphy and Paolo Filippi were strong and aggressive in midfield checking Quincy's skilled players. Andrew Jayne and Angelo Taho worked well in the offensive end.

"I thought we played an excellent first half," said North coach Rich Hanlon. "The defense was good and Joey England made some nice stops in goal. We did a good job shutting down James O'Shea who is probably the best player in the league. In the second half, we just made too many mistakes."

Quincy opened the scoring with 18:36 left in the half. Hashim Hamdi took a pass from Ciaran McDervitt and chipped a high shot into the corner of the net. North answered in the dying seconds of the half. Murphy boomed a fine corner in front of the net. Alfonso took a header which was blocked. He battled, secured the rebound and slipped it home for a 1-1 tie at intermission.

Quincy's defense controlled the flow of the match. Roy Bander was a force in the middle with his powerful leg. Smyth, Connor Porter

Presidents Defeat Whitman-Hanson 33-21

By BILL GRIFFIN

A month ago, Quincy was a talented young team which needed to grow quickly into football played at varsity speed. There has been more than a little growth as the Presidents demonstrated well with a convincing 33-21 Patriot League Keenan Division victory over Whitman-Hanson at Veterans Field last Friday night.

There is the defense. They are fast, big, deep, quick to the ball and they hit. Forget the 21 points. This could have been a shutout. W-H scored the first TD of the game early after recovering a punt which deflected off a Quincy blocker. The Presidents had shut them down on a three-and-out on the first series of the game. The final two touchdowns came late after Quincy had run 33 unanswered points for a 33-7 lead. In between, when the game was decided, Quincy gave nothing, holding the Panthers to 32 yards rushing for the game.

Junior linebacker Jake Bergonzi was the best player on the field, both plugging the middle and roaming to the sidelines to make plays. Tackles William Young and James Askins were powers in the middle of the line. Ends Matt Hines and Matt Kozlowski overpowered blockers and pressured quarterback James Intravaia. Alex Alexandre and Aramari Cardoso led a secondary which defended the pass and flew to the ball on the run.

"The defense played well. My defensive coordinator Kevin Carey doesn't get much sleep coming up with these schemes and the kids ran them well," said Reardon. "What I liked was we were fast, we moved to the ball and we were physical. There was a lot of gang-tackling and that's what we want."

There were big plays. Alexandre jumped a route and had an interception to stop a W-H drive late in the first half. Lakuan Mason had an excellent open-field tackle to prevent a certain first down and set up a touchdown early in the third. And there was depth. Reardon is increasingly able to run out more people on defense which cuts down on two-way duty for his players. Garrett Cronin and Alex Leo both made fine defensive plays late in the game.

"The depth is a big thing. We've been able to develop it as the season has gone on," said Reardon.

There is junior quarterback James Lam who ran for two touchdowns, rushed for 77 yards, went 4-4 throwing for 80 yards and dropped in a touch pass for a 52-yard touchdown to junior J.T. Bain. He is a scoring threat running or throwing the ball on every snap. He has the acceleration of a halfback and the size of a linebacker.

"In thought James threw the ball very well today, maybe as well as he has all year," said Reardon. "His decision-making was good. When he saw the opening to run, he took it."

There is a terrific sophomore running back in Jahvae Handsome-Fields who returned a kickoff for a touchdown for the second time in three games. He also scored on an 11-yard bolt off the right side in the second quarter. He had 52 yards in 11 carries and a 21-yard punt return. He played his third straight impact game on defense. If tacklers are behind, even, perhaps even in front of him in the open field, they will not catch him. From scrimmage, he needs only a crack.

"We ask a lot of him for a sophomore," said Reardon. "He returns kicks, punts, plays defense and has been getting more touches on offense. We may need him even more because I think Alex (Alexandre) is banged up a little."

There are the special teams. They showcase well Quincy's depth. The Presidents are able to bring a fresh wave off the bench to cover kicks and through three quarters against the Panthers, they gave less than 40 yards in returns off punts and kickoffs. They are a mirror image of the defense. They are quick, swarm to the ball and tackle in bunches. Reda Laftih, Jalen Chase, John Crump, Thomaz Silva, Leo, Cardoso, and Cronin all had solid games covering kicks.

"That shows our depth too," said Reardon. "Dan Morrell does a great job with the special teams. He's always after me to give him more of our top guys, but he has his pick of some pretty good players."

Oh, there's one more thing. After four games, Quincy is one point from being unbeaten. The Presidents are 3-1 with a 17-16 loss to Braintree as their only defeat.

"We're growing up each week," said Reardon. "I thought after we got settled tonight we played well. I like where we are right now. We have a lot we can improve on, but every week I see us getting better and that's what I want."

There are still those mistakes that coaches do not like. There were three bobbled snaps, the mistake on the punt, a couple of coverages in the secondary which could have been tighter. But remember well, this is a team which returned only four starters from last year. They have come a long way in a short time.

"When a punt goes up we have to react like its poison and get away from it," said Reardon. "That's a mistake we can't make. We want to clean up the snaps and couple of late penalties which hurt us. We have to keep working on the mistakes."

After the Panthers went up, 7-0, Handsome-Fields scored on an 11-yard slash when Young, Hines and Kozlowski caved in the right side of scrimmage to cut it to 7-6 early in the second quarter. Robbie Munroe had catches of 15 and 10 yards on the 41-yard drive.

Before halftime, Quincy recovered a bad snap on the Panthers 20. Lam set up a first down on the five with a 15-yard scramble on which he picked up a dropped snap, broke two tackles in the backfield, raced down the left side line and ran over two defenders at the end of his little journey.

"We do put a lot on him, but he can handle it," said Reardon.

The key play of the game came on fourth down from then one when Lam wedged himself between Abraham Hoti and Steve Scolaro on a sneak for the touchdown and a 12-7 lead.

"It was a little shaky early. It was important for us to get in the end zone at that point," said Reardon.

Quincy put it away with a 21-point blitz in less than seven minutes in third. Handsome-Fields started it on the second half kickoff. He scooped the ball running at full speed at his 25. He slashed through the middle, snapped free along the left sideline, out-ran the entire coverage team, and broke a tackle inside the five for a 65-yard score and an 18-7 lead. He went 93 yards for one against Braintree. The only fear right now is that teams stop kicking to him.

"He does have a burst," said Reardon.

On the next possession, Lam lofted a long floater towards Bain on the right sideline. Bain beat the coverage, came back for the ball, stepped out of a tackle and finished a 52-yard scoring connection.

"We saw something. When we were in a certain set, they had J.T. covered one-on-one. I like J.T. in that situation," said Reardon.

Alexandre ran for the two-point conversion, and before the quarter ended, the Presidents put up another score. After Handsome-Fields had run for 34 yard on three carries, Lam put the ball in Handsome-Fields' stomach on the read-option, took it out and raced 17 yards for the touchdown. It was the option executed just right. Silva kicked the point after Lam's touchdown for the 33-7 lead.

"That option play was nice," smiled Reardon.

Quincy is at Silver Lake Friday.

and Ben Morse were strong on the fullback line in front of keeper Connor Dane.

"The fullback line has played well all season for us," said Spendlove.

In other action last week, Quincy fell to Duxbury, 4-0 and defeated Pembroke, 3-2. Moriarty, O'Shea and Bjorn Armiri scored for the Presidents against Pembroke. Moriarty connected on a penalty shot following a strong rush by O'Shea in the first half. Armiri took a feed from O'Shea and scored for a 2-1 lead in the second half. After Pembroke tied it at 2-2, O'Shea left-footed home the winner.

North lost to Scituate (6-0) and Duxbury (3-0). England played a strong match against Duxbury.

Quincy is at Middleboro Thursday. North is at Whitman-Hanson Thursday. Both matches start at 4:00 p.m.

"It's good to have England back in goal. Tonight was only his second game back. We're finally starting to get healthy," said Hanlon.

HS Cross Country Against Hanover

The Quincy and North Quincy boys and girls traveled to Hanover for a meet with the Indians. Weather and conditions were perfect and the NQ girls racked up another win, a 19-38 win. Emily and Julia Bryson again went 1-2 to pace the NQ attack. Samin Charepoo was 4th, Julia Brady was 5th and Marguerite Belcher was 7th. Amelia Ho was 10th for the Raiders. The Quincy girls were close but without the services of Maura Crump, out with a hip injury. Inaya Paul was 2nd, LaQueen Arias 3rd, and Victoria Deery 5th, by Maryann Ly was the only other President to crack the top ten and Quincy was edged 26-32. On the boys side Mike Mullaney again went wire to wire for the win. Other Raiders in the mix were Jimmy Cannon 5th, and Aidan Golden 11th. North lost 22-39. The Presidents were led by Peter Saccoach 5th, and Kevin Fitzgerald 7th. Nick Cheney was 11th for Quincy in a 16-45 loss. "Hanover was a fantastic host" said Head Coach Geoff Hennessy. "They had a well marked course and lots of goodies after we finished. None of our top runners are seniors, which hasn't hurt the girls, but for the boys, most of our opponents are solid senior-led squads and we've taken our lumps. October has a few invitationals, which we will be running in, with freshman or freshman-sophomore division. That's where we'll do some damage."

North hosted Silver Lake Tuesday at Pageant field.

Chiropractor

YOU'RE OUT OF LINE!

Vertebral misalignment, known as a "subluxation," occurs when one or more of the bones of your spine (vertebrae) move out of position and create pressure on (or irritate) spinal nerves. As a result, you may feel pain, tingling, and/or muscle weakness. Moreover, subluxation in the topmost region of the spine may give rise to organic disorders that the average person might not expect. For instance, misalignment of cervical vertebrae may cause headache; dizziness; deafness; sinus trouble; and other maladies of the head, neck, shoulders, and the tissues and organs that are closely aligned with them. By performing a series of chiropractic "adjustments," the chiropractor can reposition the misaligned bones, which helps remove the cause of pain and other symptoms.

At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we are specially trained to locate the real source of pain and restore proper functioning to the area. We believe that regular spinal checkups should be included in a person's personal healthcare program. Regular chiropractic care makes good sense. Chiropractic benefits people of all ages from infants to those in their golden years. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we are currently accepting new patients. We always address the cause, not just the symptoms. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. Flood Insurance Program Topic For PASS Realtors

Members of the Plymouth and South Shore Association of REALTORS® (PASS) recently discussed upcoming changes to the National Flood Insurance Program at a recent membership meeting. The far-reaching changes are expected to have a significant impact on homeowners in the region.

National Flood Insurance Program New England Region 1 Manager Tom Young updated the 300 Realtors on new flood maps and regulations under the Biggert-Waters Flood Insurance Reform Act, which took effect Oct. 1.

Cities and towns across the South Shore, the state and the country have been hosting special meetings to inform home owners of the new FEMA maps and flood insurance rate changes. This is no longer just a coastal issue; many inland homes are now affected and require flood insurance policies. Homes that have always been in flood zones may have been placed into higher flood-risk zones and will see increases in flood insurance premiums. Many homeowners remain unaware of the impact these issues have on their properties. The PASS meeting reviewed how the new changes will affect real estate transactions.

Young reviewed mitigation options to reduce flood insurance rates and encouraged Realtors to have clients speak to insurance agents about insurance coverage.

PASS is the second largest REALTOR® Trade Association in Massachusetts under the auspices of the National Association of REALTORS® (NAR).

For more information on PASS or its members, call 781-826-5139.

On Saturday, September 21, 2013, at approximately 6:55 P.M., Officer Paul Foley was conducting traffic enforcement in the area of Willard and West Street when he observed a vehicle with a broken front passenger head light.

The Officer activated his emergency lights and siren and stopped the vehicle at Shea Rink on Willard Street. After requesting license and registration from the driver, the Officer noted that the registration had a different name and address on it. The driver said he did not have a license with him. Since the passenger did not have a seatbelt on, Officer Foley asked him for his identification, adding that he would get a warning. As the passenger passed his Mass. ID out the window, his hand shook uncontrollably. Through training and experience, the Officer recognized that this could be an indicator of stress or nervousness but the passenger already knew he was getting a warning.

The ID identified the passenger as a Quincy resident. When asked if he still lived at the address, the passenger said he did. Officer Foley recalled that the QPD Drug Control Unit had arrested him recently with approximately 70 grams of the street drug, "Molly." This drug is particularly dangerous - causing numerous overdoses in the Quincy area and beyond in recent weeks. A criminal record check showed that the driver's license was suspended. He also had 23 court appearances on his criminal record, including several driving and drug offenses. At this time, Officer Foley called for assistance and moments later Officer Dan Parisi arrived on scene. Officer Parisi questioned the passenger while Officer Foley brought the driver to the rear of the vehicle.

Officer Foley told the driver that his passenger was a known drug dealer and wanted to know why. The driver said that the passenger was a long time friend and they were on the way to the South Shore Mall to buy clothes. When asked if there was anything illegal in the vehicle, the driver stated, "There's some weed and some of my girlfriend's Adderall in the center console." At this time, the driver was placed under arrest because his driver's license was suspended. Officer Foley then told the passenger that the vehicle would be towed and that he would need to make other arrangements for transportation. The Officer then requested a drug detection dog to either confirm or refute suspicions of possible illegal drug activity. Officer Jim Cassidy arrived on scene with his K9 partner Khiya (trained and certified drug detection Police dog). The marijuana and Adderall were located under the driver's seat.

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

There were two pills and 21 hand rolled cigarettes in the center console. While Officer Parisi transported the driver to Police headquarters, Officer Cassidy conducted a sweep of the vehicle with K9 Khiya. Upon completion, Officer Cassidy stated that Khiya had indicated a presence of a narcotic odor on the front passenger seat. Despite a thorough search of this area, no drugs were found; however, it was believed that the passenger may have the drugs on him.

Based on the totality of the circumstances, the Officers had probable cause to believe that the passenger had illegal drugs on his person despite his repeated denials. Khiya was brought to the passenger, who was now standing outside the vehicle. The K9 unit showed a positive response to drugs on the passenger. At this time, the passenger revealed a thin fanny pack that was strapped around his waste just under his boxer shorts. Inside the fanny pack were 8 small plastic sandwich bag corners as well as $2,000.00 U.S. currency. Five bags contained an off white colored hard crystallized substance believed to be Methyline or "Molly." The other three contained a soft white powdered substance consistent with cocaine. An additional $171.00 was located in the passenger's pocket. Based on the fact that the hidden cash (85 - $20 bills and 3 - $100 bills) was actually stashed along with the hidden drugs, it was believed that the cash was part of illegal drug sales. After waiving his Miranda Rights, the passenger confirmed that it was the drug, "Molly." The passenger, a 30 year old Quincy resident, was charged with,

"Possession of Class B (cocaine) with Intent to Distribute and Possession of Class C (Methyline) with intent to distribute." During the booking process at the station, two Suboxone patches were located in the cargo pocket of the passenger's shorts. Because he did not possess a prescription for this, he is also being charged with possession of class B (Suboxone). During the inventory process of the drug evidence, Officer Foley discovered numerous off white mushroom stem type substances located in two separate bags mixed in with the previously mentioned cigarettes. These substances had the appearance of Psilocybin mushrooms (magic mushrooms). These mushrooms are a hallucinogenic and are a Class C substance. There was approximately 11 grams of these mushrooms. In addition to being charged with possession class B (Adderall), the driver, a 27 year old Scituate resident, was also charged with an additional count of "Possession of Class C drug (Psilocybin mushrooms)." Nice Work!

NQ Win Timeless Rivalry Over QHS

By BILL GRIFFIN

It is always a grand rivalry, but when the two teams enter with identical records, talented teams, passionate fans and rich tradition, it takes on an extra measure of meaning.

The gym was crowded an hour before the match. It was packed before warmups were finished. Players drove smashes, leaped high for blocks, and dug and dove to keep points alive before a loud, appreciative crowd which roared from the first serve until the final point.

Seniors Carolyn Schwartz and Maya Umoren highlighted a brilliant front line which carried North Quincy to a 3-0 volleyball win over Quincy in a Patriot League match which showed well the best of high school sports and the best of a timeless rivalry.

Each team started the match with 7-1 records. Each team had lost to Duxbury. Quincy had beaten North twice last year. Everything was in place for a memorable day of sport, and North grabbed the prize with a 25-15, 25-16, 26-24 decision.

"You can't beat this," said North coach Kerry Ginty. "This was a regular season high-school volleyball match and it felt like a state tournament. The crowd was great. The kids know each other. They're friends, they hang together. They play on the same summer team. I've coached half the Quincy kids. But when the match begins, it's all forgotten."

North's front line was more than power. There was depth and touch and balance and teamwork. When they moved, they moved not as individuals, but as a unit. Schwartz (five kills), Umoren (12 kills), Lauren Magoon (five kills), Isabelle Flaherty (five kills), Abby Mayo (five digs), Camille Mullaney (three blocks) ended points with both smashes and a touch-volleys. They moved from a side to side along the net and blocked Quincy's big hitters in pairs, not as solo performers. They covered for each other and with Cindi Hazelton (22 assists, four digs) setting the ball, they had at least six players who put away points.

"I think the key for us was to stay in control and not be too aggressive," said Ginty. "We wanted to stay away from hitting errors and make sure we were behind the ball in good position when we approached for a shot."

Schwartz did what all excellent players do. She gave her team whatever it needed. Her line of 15 service winners, seven digs, five kills, two blocks and three block-assists showed well her value. From serves, to passing, to smashes, to blocks, to saves, she played a complete match.

"Carolyn was fantastic, a great all-around match," said Ginty.

"I think blocking was a big thing for us," said Schwartz. "We knew they had big hitters in the middle, so we tried to have two blockers ready to meet them."

Umoren was overpowering at the net and added hustle and quickness with nine digs. She drilled hard finishes and she rolled a little tap shot over Quincy's front line when the Presidents concentrated on blocking her hard shot.

"Maya has always been powerful," said Schwartz. "But this year her strategy is great and she has that beautiful touch shot. She played a great match."

Quincy's best player was junior Emma Kelly (12 digs) who flew around the court retrieving smashes, setting up her hitters and keeping points alive. The best point of the match came in the third game on a rally which seemed to last until sunrise. Kelly made a backhanded return of a ball that scraped the ceiling and placed it so well that it forced a North error, and drew the Presidents even at 20-20.

"Emma was outstanding."

She has excellent speed and great instincts. I thought she was a standout for us," said Quincy coach Jacqui Niosi.

Sophomore Nicole Jorgensen (eight kills) and senior Rachel Papile (seven kills) played strong matches at net for Quincy especially in the final game when the two teams raised the level of the volleyball and the level of noise in the building. Emma Kimmell served well and had two aces.

"I thought North started very aggressively and it took us three games to match it," added Niosi. "We need to block better the next time we play. When they swing like that, you have to get up for the blocks."

After North rolled in the first two games, the two played a classic in the third. Quincy led for most of the game with advantages of 16-10, 22-20, and 24-22. However Schwartz hit a winner and, fittingly, Umoren finished it with a smash and a tap into an open spot over the front line. Power and touch both served her and her team well through the final points of the match.

"This is Quincy and it's a game we really want, maybe at all costs," said a smiling Schwartz. "People always compare us. I'm a senior and they beat us twice last year. I only have one match left against them, so this means a lot to me."

In other action last week, North defeated Whitman-Hanson, 3-0 behind nine kills from Umoren and seven each from Natasha Sautter and Magoon. Angela Kou had three aces, four digs and 25 assists. Mayo had four aces and 17 points won off her serve.

Duxbury edged the Red Raiders, 3-2 in a five-set thriller which was decided by two points. The scores were 22-25, 25-22, 25-21, 23-25, 20-18. Nancy Huang, who had nine digs against Quincy, had 13 in the Duxbury match. Umoren had eight kills and five aces while Schwartz had eight kills and five blocks. Mayo (seven digs) also played well.

North also defeated Silver Lake, 3-1.

Angela McDonald and Jorgensen played well for Quincy in a 3-0 win over Hanover. Sarah Gibbons and Courtney Ryan led Quincy to a 3-0 decision over Middleboro.

Quincy hosts Duxbury Friday at 5:30 is at home to Whitman-Hanson Monday at 5:30. North is at Hanover Friday and at Pembroke Monday. Both matches start at 5:30.

P.S. The Quincy-North rematch is October 23 at Quincy.

million. Barron said Tuesday there was chance the front façade could be preserved, but that will need to be determined by structural engineers.

"They might be able to save the façade, but there's not much inside they can save," Barron said.

Leo Martin, a Quincy realtor who was in the process of purchasing the building, said Tuesday that the façade looked okay. Under the purchase agreement with the Masons, the building's top two floors would have been converted into condos while the basement would be preserved as space for the Masons. Martin's office is a short distance down Hancock Street from the temple, and he witnessed the fire firsthand.

"It was horrifying," Martin said.

Two workmen were in the basement Monday performing exploratory demolition in the building when the fire started. Those workers could have started the fire, officials believe.

"There were workmen working in the basement using tools – grinding tools and that type of thing – so that potentially could be a source," Keenan said. "Everyone got out of the building, there were no injuries. When they realized the fire had gotten into the walls and the insulation they called 911."

Barron said Tuesday the work in the basement was likely the cause of the fire, but added that the state Fire Marshall's Office and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives (ATF) were still investigating the fire along with the Quincy Police and Fire Departments. The ATF was on scene because of the building's high value.

Mayor Thomas Koch, who visited the scene of the fire Monday, said he hoped the building's structure could be preserved.

"I hope that the structure can be saved," the mayor said. "You can march down Hancock Street and point to a number of structures important to our history, and certainly this is one of them. It's not a happy time or a happy moment for the city, whether you're viewing it as just a building or whether you're viewing it as those who have been involved in the activities at the building."

Koch wasn't the only one who was sad to see the Masonic Temple catch on fire. Jim Bennette, a Weymouth resident and Mason, rushed to Quincy Center when he heard the building was on fire.

"I've been affiliated with the building for a while – in fact my great-grandfather was a member of this building when they built back in the 1920s," Bennette said. "It's such a sad day for Quincy because the building is such an architectural jewel. They had some occasions for the public to come into the building, and it's a shame more people didn't see it because it's probably ruined now. It was an incredible piece of art, in addition to being something special for the Masons."

FIRE MONDAY at the historic Quincy Masonic Temple building was called in around noon and quickly went to four alarms. Officials expressed hope Tuesday that the façade of the limestone building erected in 1926 can be saved.

$1.5M Ok'd For QHS Landscaping

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council Monday approved a $1.5 million bond to pay for landscaping and related site work to create new green space at the former Quincy High School site.

The site – where the old Quincy High stood for 87 years before it was razed this summer – will have 60,000 square feet, approximately 1.4 acres, of new green space, Al Grazioso, the city's director of operations, told the council. Nearly four-dozen new trees will be incorporated into the site, including 14 large trees to screen out the Presidents

Place parking garage and 32 smaller ones. In addition to those trees another 5,000 square feet of ground plantings will be added, and its possible a garden could be planted that would allow culinary students to grow their own produce.

The site will also have a new cement walkway extending from the westernmost portion of the new Quincy High to Coddington Street. Running along the inside of the walkway will be a fence, similar to the one installed at the new track at Faxon Field. The School Department wanted the fence placed there to help define Quincy High's campus. The site design also calls for 20 new parking spaces near Coddington Hall that could be used by school staff.

The new site was designed by Halvorson Design, the same firm responsible for designing the Adams Green park. School Department Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro and QHS Principal Larry Taglieri were involved in the design process, and Taglieri told the council he was excited about plans for the site.

Effects Of Government Shutdown Felt Locally

As the shutdown of the federal government enters its second week, local charities may soon begin feeling its impact while tourism has already taken a hit.

The shutdown, which began at midnight on Oct. 1, was caused by an impasse over a new federal budget measure in Congress. The Republican led House passed temporary budget measures that would either defund or delay the Affordable Care Act. Those measures, however, were rejected by the Democratic controlled Senate. The shutdown forced the closure of all federal agencies deemed "non-essential."

Beth Ann Strollo, the executive director of Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP), fears the shutdown could affect the

Marine Recalls Horrific Beirut Bombing

Commemoration Dinner Oct. 19 At Quincy Neighborhood Club

By SCOTT JACKSON

Steve Godfrey, then a 20-year-old Marine, was stationed at a checkpoint in Beirut, Lebanon, on the morning of Oct. 23, 1983.

Godfrey had been on machine gun watch starting at midnight that day, and got off watch at 6 a.m. Twenty-two minutes later and three miles away from Godfrey's checkpoint, an Iranian national aligned with a group known as "Islamic Jihad" drove a truck packed with explosives into the Marine Corps barracks inside Beirut's airport causing the four-story building to collapse, killing 220 Marines, 18 sailors, and three soldiers.

"It sounded like a mortar shell had gone off right in front of the door I was at – it was a horrific blast," Godfrey, now a sergeant with the Massachusetts State Police, recalled recently.

"We had been mortared and shelled and shot at for months, so this was not an unusual occurrence to have a rocket go off pretty close to you and a lot of times it was just harassment fire – they would lob one or two. So I sat up in the cot I was in and I was waiting for another explosion – if another one went off it means they could be getting closer. When I didn't hear anything after a couple seconds I went to lay back down and I heard one of the Marines on post, above me on top of the building, yell it looked like a nuclear explosion. I immediately jumped up and opened the steel door – it looked like a nuclear bomb had been detonated, this huge mushroom cloud was going up in the sky. I knew it was three miles away, but it looked like it was a lot closer."

At first Godfrey and the other Marines stationed at the checkpoint didn't know what happened; he initially thought that an explosives disposal team had detonated an ordinance stockpile.

"I thought they must have collected all this ordinance – they're always finding booby traps, mines, grenades from years of warfare in this very smoothly – zero to minimal disruption to our students. Now as we look forward to the next phase of putting this in I think it's going to be terrific for our school," Taglieri said.

"Having some kind of definition to the campus I thought was important for the safety and security of the school – having that fence would somewhat define the campus. The additional spots of parking I think are beneficial; those are not existent right now. I think it will be a terrific program and to even add to the interdisciplinary stuff that we do and bring in potentially the garden into this and have our culinary department actually growing their own vegetables, going out there and preparing them, is extraordinary."

The council was originally asked to pass a $2.5 million bond to pay for demolishing the old school, capping a wall of the new school that abutted the old one, and landscaping costs in June. At that time Councilor Doug Gutro requested that $1.5 million be cut from that bond because the council wasn't provided detailed site plans or costs breakdowns. He supported the new bond Monday night after hearing the presentation.

"I'm delighted that you all have had input in the campus. I think it's going to be a beautiful addition," Gutro said.

The council voted 8-0 in favor of authorizing the bond. Councilor Joe Finn was absent. There is no definitive timeline on when the park will be completed or when the wall will be capped, but Grazioso said he expected that work would start as soon as possible.

Special Education Meeting

The Quincy Parents Advisory Council to Special Education (QPAC) will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at Quincy High School, 100 Coddington St.

This is an open, public meeting.

A QPAC volunteer will be available to parents and guardians at 6:30 p.m. to offer individualized assistance and support.

Government Shutdown Impact Reaches Quincy organization's fuel assistance program. QCAP currently offers heating fuel assistance for residents of Quincy, Weymouth, Milton, and Braintree living in low-income households. The program is funded through the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

"We are watching the fuel assistance program very closely," Strollo said. "If the shutdown continues it could begin to jeopardize whether we could keep it open."

QCAP also operates a Head Start program, which provides early childhood education for children from Quincy, Weymouth, Hull, Braintree, and Milton. The program is partially funded through HHS grants, but Strollo said they don't expect the shutdown to impact that Head Start itself, but is concerned about the Head Start food service program, which provides breakfast, lunch, and snacks to the students and is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

"We have been notified by the USDA that they have some limited funds," Strollo said. "If the shutdown continues we're not sure there will be funds."

Another concern is that federal employees tasked with dispersing funds to organizations like QCAP are among those that have been furloughed.

"There are no staff working to provide resources so we can provide resources," Strollo said.

The shutdown also caused the closure of the National Park Service. That means the Adams National Historical Park has remained shuttered for the past week. The park includes the birthplaces of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams and the Old House at Peace field, also known as the Adams Mansion.

The closure of the Adams National Historical Park has caused a noticeable drop-off in visitation at another major landmark in the City of Presidents.

Gary Haynes, who runs the visitors program at the United First Parish Church where John and John Quincy Adams and their wives, First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams, are entombed, said visitation is down since the shutdown began. During the first day of the shutdown, for example, the church had 12 visitors compared to the 30-40 they would see on a typical October weekday.

"We're much slower – it's definitely affected us," Haynes said. "I would say quite a few of our visitors have been recommended by the Park Service to visit the crypt and it's part of what I call the Adams experience – you tour the birthplaces, Peace field, and then they come here to see the presidential crypt. And of course now they don't have this opportunity to do the entire Adams experience."

Jack Heald and Caroline Maloney, a couple from Chandler, Arizona, visited the church on the second day of the shutdown, Oct. 2., with her son Liam. Maloney, who grew up in Quincy before moving out west 11 years ago, was disappointed they were unable to visit the Adams National Historical Park and other sites throughout the Boston area, including the USS Constitution, closed because of the shutdown.

"Our plan was to hit the historic sites of Massachusetts. Because I grew up here I wanted to hit Adams Mansion and everything having to do with the history of Quincy. It was very disappointing to not be able to go inside the Adams home, it really was," Maloney said.

"This is a big trip, this is an expensive trip to come from out of state. And then you can't go to the places you want to go because they're closed. When you go over to the Adams historic site and there is a paper sign saying 'due to our federal government you can't go in,' that's just very frustrating."

Heald, however, wasn't as upset over the shutdown.

"This is the place I wanted to see – this was on my must see list," he said, referring to the church. "There's plenty to see and do in Boston that doesn't require the government. I'm not remotely upset by it."

$3.5M Overhaul For Fort Square Sewer Station

By SCOTT JACKSON

At Monday night's City Council meeting, the council authorized $3.5 million worth of repairs and upgrades for the Fort Square sewer pumping station, which will help modernize the 28-year-old facility.

The facility, at 127 School St., was constructed in 1985 and has had no modifications since. A 2012 report by engineering firm Woodward & Curran recommended 44 different upgrades to the station that would bring it up to modern standards.

Included among those recommendations are upgrades to pumps, motors, meters and related systems to improve energy efficiency and reliability of the station; repair of pavement and fencing around the site and replacement of an underground fuel storage tank; structural upgrades to maximize the facility's life; replacing deteriorating odor control and air handling systems; replacing mechanical controls with a programmable logical control (PLC) system; and replacing existing electrical and lighting equipment.

"This is a most significant step to make sure that one of our sewer pump stations right in downtown Quincy and South Quincy won't be majorly impacting the area," Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi told the council. "Keep in mind that this is an offshoot of the downtown. This station will also service the redevelopment of downtown and that makes it more critical."

The $3.5 million cost for the upgrades will be paid for by a loan from the Massachusetts Water Pollution Abatement Trust fund. Loans taken from the fund have a subsidized interest rate of two percent over the loan's 20-year repayment period. Council President Michael McFarland said the city was making a smart decision to take advantage of the loan.

"When it is available we are really fiscally prudent to grab on to it," McFarland said. "At the end of the day we end up paying about 70 cents on the dollar. It's very cost effective for the City of Quincy to borrow money from this fund. The money's not always available - this happens to be a nice little chunk of dough for us."

"It's not the full cost of borrowing they're giving us, they're picking up half of the finance costs," added Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee, vice chairman of the council's finance committee. "It is a subsidized loan at a very good rate. It makes a lot of sense."

The council voted 8-0 in support of the loan to pay for upgrading the station, with Councillor Joe Finn absent. Raymondi said the city's next priority will be the pumping station that serves Quincy Point.

"The Quincy Point pump station will be soon to follow," he said. "We're looking at the sewer main line in Quincy Point. That was our most critical need, to make sure that that line is working properly and we have emergency plans in place if we need that and then we'll look into the station."

QUINCY COUNCIL ON AGING Director Thomas Clasby recently presented a $1,200 check for the Alzheimer's Association to Quincy Attorney Robert Romano, the Regional Chairman of the 2013 South Shore Alzheimer's Walk. The money was raised by members of the Kennedy Center (QCOA). John Boyle (center), a volunteer at the Kennedy Center, led the fund drive.

• On Oct. 26, 1825, the Erie Canal opens, connecting the Great Lakes with the Atlantic Ocean via the Hudson River. Built in only two years, 83 canal locks accommodated the 500-foot rise in elevation. The canal was 363 miles long, 40 feet wide and 4 feet deep. In nine years, tolls had paid back the cost of construction.

• On Oct. 25, 1861, the keel of the Union ironclad Monitor is laid at Greenpoint, N.Y. The vessel -- 172 feet long and 41 feet wide -- had a low profile, rising only 18 inches above the water. The ship had a draft of less than 11 feet so it could operate in the shallow harbors and rivers of the South.

• On Oct. 27, 1904, the New York City subway opens. The first line, operated by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company (IRT), traveled 9.1 miles through 28 stations. That evening, the subway opened to the general public, and more than 100,000 people paid a nickel each to take their first ride under Manhattan.

• On Oct. 24, 1945, the United Nations Charter, which was adopted and signed on June 26, takes effect and is ready to be enforced. Representatives of 50 nations attended the first conference.

• On Oct. 21, 1959, on New York City's Fifth Avenue, thousands of people line up outside a bizarrely shaped white concrete building that resembled a giant upside-down cupcake. It was opening day at the new Guggenheim Museum, home to one of the world's top collections of contemporary art.

• On Oct. 22, 1962, President John F. Kennedy announces that the Soviet Union has placed nuclear weapons in Cuba and that the United States will establish military blockade to prevent any other offensive weapons from entering the island nation just 90 miles from the Florida Keys.

• On Oct. 23, 1989, a series of explosions sparked by an ethylene gas leak at a plastics factory in Pasadena, Texas, kills 23 people. Approximately 85,000 pounds of highly flammable ethylene-isobutane gas were released into the plant. Within two minutes, the large gas cloud ignited with the power of two-and-a-half tons of dynamite.

Gloria Noble: A Community Treasure

Quincy lost a community treasure with the passing of Gloria Noble Oct. 1.

Gloria and her beloved husband, Bob Noble, formed an inseparable tandem who embraced community, civic, veterans and other worthy causes to make Quincy a better place.

GLORIA

Where there was a need, there was Bob and Glo. A team of selfless community activists who put the "do" in 'dynamic duo.'

The Nobles arrived in the Montclair section of Quincy from Dorchester 61 years ago. Like many parents they became active in the community through their children including school PTOs, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and neighborhood associations.

They also actively supported Democratic candidates seeking public office at the local, state and national levels.

Bob once remarked that "If you got one of us, you got both. Although for the first 30 years, I was known as Gloria's husband."

Together, they served and volunteered for many local groups including the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee and First Night.

They both supported veterans causes especially former POWs and their families. Bob, an ex-POW of World War II, has served as the commander of the American Ex-Prisoners of War, Department of Massachusetts. He and Gloria also served as commander of the Southeastern Chapter, American Ex-Prisoners of Wars.

The Nobles also helped serve their community as individuals.

Gloria served as a member of the Wollaston Mothers Club, the Furnace Brook School PTO and was a former member and director of DOVE. She also served on the board of Directors of the Sisters of Maria Droste Agency, the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library and Quincy Historical Society.

Bob is a member of the Morrisette American Legion Post, the Bryan VFW Post and the Quincy Cavanagh DAV Chapter.

He's also been one of our intrepid Quincy Sun photographers taking countless photos at hundreds of community events over the years.

Gloria was also a pioneer of sorts. She and her good friend, the late Joyce Baker, helped form the South Shore Women's Political Caucus. The group's mission was to encourage more women to be more politically informed and run for office. Their first candidate - the late Pat Toland - would go on to serve terms on the Quincy School Committee and the City Council, including an historic term as the only woman President of the Quincy City Council.

Since then, many more women have been elected to public office in Quincy, including one of the Noble's daughters, Alicia, who served as Ward 6 councillor.

In 2008, The Quincy Sun honored Bob and Gloria as the first husband-and-wife recipients of the newspaper's "Citizens of the Year." Henry Bosworth, the Sun's founder, put it best when he said at the reception for the Nobles: "If there's a worthy cause somewhere, chances are you will find Bob and Gloria there. Not just attending, but rolling up their sleeves to help make sure it is a success."

The reception was a touching tribute with beautiful words spoken by so many, including members of the Noble family.

"They have truly lived by the motto, it's not what you say. It's what you do," said son Robert Noble.

Daughter Alicia Gardner added: "Through their words and actions, they have taught each of us so much." Speaking about her mother, Alicia then added, "Commitment to her family is her middle name. All of her children, grandchildren and now her great-grandchildren have learned so much by her words, actions, and deeds."

Gloria was a dear friend to us here at The Quincy Sun.

There were many occasions when we'd call Bob to see if he would like to take photos for us at some event or ceremony.

And quite often it was Gloria who answered the phone.

And you'd be glad she did.

"Helloooooo, Robert," she'd say after I dialed their number looking for Bob.

She was one of the few people who still called me Robert ... and it was such a pleasure to hear her voice.

Before passing the phone over to Bob, Gloria would strike up a conversation. Sometimes it was about current events, other times it was about family, or perhaps something she saw in The Sun.

She always took the opportunity to tell us she enjoyed reading The Sun.

I remember the time when she told me she had enjoyed reading the Sun from cover to cover one week. She had stayed up well into the night reading one of our issues because she just couldn't put it down.

That was Gloria. Always offering us encouragement and giving us praise.

By the time our conversations were over, more often than not I had forgotten why I had called Bob in the first place.

But that was fine. It was welcome. Talking to Gloria was like putting on the brakes to a busy day. You soon were smiling and enjoying some story that she was telling you.

It was all about making time for Gloria.

Because she always made time for you.

"She was a special lady because she took an interest in people's lives and she let them know that," her beloved Bob said.

Gloria Noble touched many lives. She had a gentle smile and warm personality that put you at ease the first moment you met her. She was generous, gracious and giving.

Quincy is a better place today because of Gloria Noble and Bob Noble.

Thank you to the Noble family for sharing Gloria with so many of us in the Quincy community.

She will never be forgotten.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 real photo postcard view of the Penniman Garage that was at 104 Washington Street on the corner of Wibird Street near Quincy Center. Starting in 1887 Charles H. Penniman had provided horse-drawn taxi service at the Quincy Depot and the Greenleaf Hotel where he later had one of the first Model T Ford taxicabs in the country. He operated this garage until the late 1920's. On the back of this postcard Penniman noted that he had "just purchased a new Maxwell town car that he intended to keep for calling weddings and nice work." The Penniman family provided livery service in Quincy for over 50 years. He lived with his wife in the house on the left. Later, for many years, the garage was home to the Quincy Automatic Transmission Co., but on this corner now are the Presidents Landing condominiums. Also, today, on the right foreground of this view, a small island of land remains between Wibird Street and McGrath Highway. It was a much larger parcel of land in the 19th century - there were three houses there including the homestead of the Crane family; the Thomas Crane Public Library's original benefactors. Government Center Commission Named

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor James R. McIntyre appointed five civic leaders to a new commission to oversee his proposed new municipal center.

McIntyre's proposal called for creating a 14-story office building and an adjoining three-story civic auditorium on land diagonally behind the current the City Hall. The new office building would house the City Council chambers and municipal offices on its first three floors, with the remainder of the building leased out to federal and state agencies.

The auditorium space would accommodate between 1,500 and 2,000 people. It would also house other function rooms, and be capable of feeding up to 1,000 people for special events. A two-story underground garage would be constructed under the auditorium.

McIntyre said that by leasing office space and the auditorium, the complex could be a virtually self-supporting facility. It was estimated to cost between $10 and $15 million.

Named to the commission were Bernard V. Dill, executive director of the Massachusetts Purchasing Group; Anthony Losordo, a developer and president of Frank Losordo and sons; George D. Reardon, president of President Chevrolet; Frank E. Remick, president-treasurer of Remick's of Quincy; and John E. Tormey Jr., a district sales manager for Zurn Industries. Carmen D'Olimpio, business agent for Bricklayers, Masons, and Plasterer Local 52, was named labor liaison to the commission.

"The commission will initially have responsibility for formulating plans for the construction and acquisition of tenants for the government center," McIntyre said. "The primary task is to see if we can get tenants and then proceed to build the center."

MAYOR THREATENS LEGAL ACTION AGAINST MDC

Mayor James R. McIntyre threatened to take the Metropolitan District Commission to court if necessary to alleviate morning traffic jams at the Neponset Bridge.

The mayor said congestion on the bridge between 7 and 9:30 a.m. was unbearable for Quincy residents trying to drive into Boston.

"The MDC is trying to funnel traffic from Hancock Street and Quincy Shore Drive into two lanes during these rush hours, and it is just too much squeezing," McIntyre said. "We have asked the MDC to make the traffic four lanes one-way north during these hours but so far our pleas have fallen on deaf ears."

McIntyre said he would ask Gov. Francis W. Sargent to intervene on the city's behalf. If the governor didn't act, McIntyre's next step would be legal action against the MDC.

Traffic on the bridge had been made two-lanes during construction of a new, $5 million bridge over the Neponset River.

"The construction will take another year and a half to complete," McIntyre said. "Quincy cannot stand this traffic mess. I just cannot understand why this cannot be worked out. There is a solution."

Retire The Wrecking Ball

It seems that ever since Tom Koch took office, we have lost about 63 businesses in and around Quincy Center. Koch took about 26 shops for the cross-town connector. That road does not pay taxes, but the shops that were torn down did.

The homeowner has seen our property taxes go up three-fold, with the loss of businesses in that area. Now Koch has torn down another 20 or so shops and businesses for his "redevelopment."

More tax revenue lost, and the homeowner has to pick up the lost revenue.

We also lost three businesses for the "New Central School."

I say, retire the wrecking ball and bring revenue back to our city, fast. The taxpayer can't afford any more loss of revenue.

Charles Dennehey Jr.

Examine Alternative Renewable Energy

While Mayor Koch quite rightly cancelled the installation of a wind turbine at Squantum, the city should look at alternative renewable energy possibilities. These would not only address the issue of climate change but also create savings for taxpayers. Such as the installation of solar panels on the roofs of city owned buildings.

Scituate has a great success in the installation of a solar panel system on a 12 acre site in that town.

A solar panel system at Squantum would meet the objections which the residents had to the wind turbine.

Quincy Garden Clubs Collect Citizens' Signatures For Updated Bottle Bill

By PAT ARTIS

With a deadline of mid-November looming, members of all three of the garden clubs in Quincy are collecting signatures for a petition drive to bring the "bottle bill" issue directly to the people for a referendum vote in November of 2014.

The Up-Dated Bottle Bill, which would add the 5 cent deposit to beverage containers like water bottles, sports drinks and teas, has been pending in the state Legislature for years.

Despite overwhelming public support for this law, opposition from the big bottlers and beverage companies have kept it "bottled up." Local organizers believe it is time to take this issue directly to the voters. Signing one of the petitions will help get this issue onto the state ballot in 2014.

Since the Bottle Bill became law in 1983, over 35 billion beverage containers have been redeemed, making Massachusetts a cleaner, healthier, and more sustainable place to live. Updating the Bottle Bill is good for the environment. It will increase recycling, decrease litter on our streets and in our parks, and save our cities and towns money in disposal and clean-up costs. Updating the bottle bill creates jobs and saves energy; every state that has up-dated its deposit system has gained local jobs.

Many of these jobs are in the recycling sector, which produces important - and sustainable - raw materials needed in American manufacturing. Most of the containers under the update are made of PET plastic, 99% of which is petroleum. Recycled PET is badly needed for textiles like Polartec fleece, made right here in New England.

The National Garden Club and the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts have encouraged the local garden clubs to support and advocate for the Up-Dated Bottle Bill in Massachusetts. Both the Wollaston Garden Club and the Houghs Neck Garden Club contacted their city councilors and asked for their support of the Up-Dated Bottle Bill, and on Dec. 5, 2011 the Quincy City Council voted 8 - 1 to support a Quincy City Council Resolution "Supporting the Up-Dated Bottle Bill (HR890/S1650). By February of 2012, our entire Quincy delegation at the State House reported in favor of the Up-Dated Bottle Bill. This made Quincy one of the 208 Massachusetts cities and towns in support of the proposed bill.

Now is the time for individual citizens to make their voices heard!

Garden club organizers are looking for signatures from registered voters from Quincy. If you are interested in helping club members get these petitions to local senior centers, PTO's, and church and/or civic groups, contact Gail Freel at 617-773-1130 or Pat Artis at 617-328-5520. The deadline of mid-November (2013) forces us all to make the "updated bottle bill" an issue for immediate action.

Pat Ellis Artis is a longtime Quincy resident and past president of the Wollaston Garden Club.

'A Storm Too Soon' Slide Presentation Oct. 15

A slide presentation by Michael Tougas entitled "A Storm Too Soon: A True Story of Survival and a Remarkable Rescue" will take place Tuesday, Oct. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Crane Public Library.

The presentation is based on the 2013 book from Simon and Schuster.

Seventy foot waves batter a tattered life raft 250 miles out to sea in one of the world's most dangerous places, the Gulf Stream. Hanging onto the raft are three men, a Canadian, a Brit, and their captain, JP DeLutz, a dual citizen of America and France.

Trying to reach these survivors before it's too late are four Coast Guardsmen battling hurricane force winds in their Jayhawk helicopter. The pilots wonder if they have a realistic chance of saving the sailors clinging to the broken life raft, and if they will be able to retrieve their own rescue swimmer from the towering seas. Once they commit to the rescue, they find themselves in almost as much trouble as the survivors, facing several life and death decisions.

Author Michael Tougas will use slides of the storm, the survivors, and the rescue. Amazingly the Coast Guard helicopter crew photographed the men in the raft being pounded by towering waves. A book signing will follow the program, and the presentation is suitable for all ages.

'Iron Man 3' At Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy, will screen the film "Iron Man 3" tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m.

Gluten-Free Breakfast Cookies

Years back we hardly ever heard of gluten-free products. But now it is so popular that most of the supermarkets are carrying various items that are gluten free.

Today's recipe is for a gluten-free breakfast cookie, which I found recently. Of course they can be eaten any time of the day, but it's always nice to have something different at breakfast.

GLUTEN-FREE BREAKFAST COOKIES

2 bananas
1 cup unsweetened applesauce
1 1/2 cups gluten-free oats
1/2 teaspoon Kosher salt
1 tablespoon honey or maple syrup

2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
3 cups freeze dried fruit
1/2 cup nuts of coconut flakes

Preheat oven to 350 degrees
Smash the bananas with a fork, add the oats, salt, and stir in the apple sauce. Add the vanilla, nuts or coconut flakes and honey. Place the fruit in a plastic bag and crush with a rolling pin. Place in a bowl and let it sit for 15 minutes. Mix with the banana mixture and stir until it is a smooth batter.

Use two tablespoons of the batter, and place on a baking sheet about an inch apart.

Bake for 30-35 minutes. Cool for 10 minutes.

Coconut Shrimp With Mango Sauce

One of my favorite things to eat is a coconut shrimp, which I have made several different ways.

Today's recipe is for coconut shrimp with mango sauce — so delicious!

COCONUT SHRIMP WITH MANGO SAUCE

Shrimp

1- pound bag of shrimp (Peeled, deveined, tails on)
1/3 -cup honey
2 teaspoons soy sauce (I used low sodium)
2 cups unsweetened coconut flakes
2 teaspoons vegetable oil

Mango Sauce

1 large mango, peeled and pitted
2 tablespoons plain rice vinegar
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons ground ginger

Place these ingredients in a food processor. (I used a blender)

Place in a dish. Set aside. Pat the shrimp dry. Stir together the honey, soy sauce, oil.

Place the shrimp in the mix and then the coconut flakes. Place in a slightly greased baking pan and bake for 6-8 minutes or until the shrimp is firm and coconut is golden brown.

Serve with the sauce on the side for dipping.

HoJo's Book Author At Historical Society

Author and historian Anthony Sammarco will present an illustrated talk based upon his just-published book, A History of Howard Johnson's, at a Quincy Historical Society program, Thursday, Oct. 24, at 7 p.m., at the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

The book's subtitle, "How a Massachusetts Soda Fountain Became an American Icon," accurately captures the focus of Sammarco's text and presentation. Providing highlights of the stories of both the man and his company, Sammarco concentrates on Howard Johnson's era of remarkable success and expansion from 1925 up to and into the 1960s.

For most of these years Johnson ran the expanding empire from his Quincy headquarters. Sammarco's account is particularly enlightening on the earliest years of this period, when—beginning with a Wollaston soda fountain—Quincy and neighboring towns were instrumental in the formation of the Howard Johnson brand identity.

The audience will learn the stories behind the pie-man logo, the distinctive orange-roof design and its various modifications, the 28 flavors, and the fried clams. Sammarco's presentation also focuses on the people involved: from designers, entrepreneurs and famous chefs to workers in the restaurants and food plants. At the center is the driving personality of Johnson himself.

Sammarco is a prolific writer and lecturer on Boston history, concentrating particularly the stories of neighborhoods, famous brands like Howard Johnson and Baker's Chocolate, and topics that evoke nostalgia. He has more than a score of books to his credit.

Everyone is welcome. There is no admission fee.

A book signing will follow Sammarco's presentation. The program starts a half hour earlier than the Historical Society's usual starting time—at 7 PM.

Officials Celebrate Start Of City Hall Renovations

By SCOTT JACKSON

Officials gathered late Tuesday afternoon in the McIntyre Mall to celebrate the beginning of $8 million worth of renovations to the old City Hall.

The building, also known as the James R. McIntyre Government Center, first opened in 1844. Once the renovations are completed in approximately 12 to 14 months the building's great hall, where the City Council met until the building closed in 2011, will be restored to its original dimensions with enough room to seat 200 people, two-and-a-half times its current capacity.

"For the first time really since the building was built in 1844 our old Town Hall, today's City Hall, is going to undergo a major, complete restoration which will include a restoration to its original dimensions," Mayor Thomas Koch said at Tuesday's ceremony.

"The great hall will really be the centerpiece of the restoration of the beautiful structure behind me."

The renovations are being done in concert with similar work ongoing at the Coddington Hall. That project, with a cost of $10 million, will turn the building into a new headquarters for the School Department. About half of the $18 million total for the two projects will be taken from Quincy's Community Preservation Act (CPA) account, with the rest financed through bonds. Once both projects are completed the School Department will be able to move out of leased space on Burgin Parkway and the City Clerk's Office can return to City Hall from rented space in the Munroe Building.

"When you really do the numbers, between the CPA moneys and the rent we'll be saving, it's almost a wash for the city and we're rehabilitating two architectural gems. It's a really a terrific project," Koch said.

Work on the City Hall project began last month as workers began removing bricks from McIntyre Mall. City Clerk Joseph Shea said he was excited to see the project begin, and looked forward to moving back into the renovated building from his temporary office next door.

"Everything is in place - I love to see this equipment here because there's no turning back," Shea said. "I want to thank you and tell everyone how excited we are. It took a longtime Planning for the renovations began in 2011. City Council President Michael McFarland, who served as the council's representative on the committee that planned renovations, echoed Shea's sentiments, calling it an exciting project.

"I never expected it would take this long and require this much work and go through as many renditions of the projects as we

Montessori School Students Attend Model UN

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Ten students from the Adams Montessori School in Quincy recently traveled to New York City to participate in the Montessori Model United Nations (MMUN) program where they became delegates for Vietnam and Turkey and debated real issues with students from Montessori Schools all over the world.

"We learned how to understand people from different countries," said Maddy Ablett who attended the program for the first time. "We were able to meet a lot of different people from different cultures. It was fun and interesting that's what is so great about it."

The students, ages 9-12, spent two to three months preparing for the trip writing papers and speeches along with researching their countries and its viewpoints. As a part of their trip the students attended opening and closing ceremonies at the United Nations conference facilities, the last group to do so before renovations begin on the building.

"It allows for the students to step out of their comfort zone and out of the American perspective and understand the viewpoints of different countries," said upper elementary teacher Michelle Scholfield. "In many cases the students found that their own viewpoints on a subject weren't always like the countries they were representing. It was a very exciting experience for them. It was a lot of work but they were totally into it."

the school, spent four days working with over 500 other students from around the country and world developing workable resolutions to some of the world's most talked about issues such as non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, removal of landmines, malnutrition, prevention of malaria, and food security and safety, among many other high profile topics.

"I have participated the last three years and found that each committee room is totally different," said sixth grader Hailey Peckham. "The hardest part is to not give your own opinion on the subject but to think more like the country you are representing."

For 10-year old Will Maxwell the hardest part was getting past his nerves to present his speech, which was on non-proliferation of nuclear weapons.

"It was fun, really fun," said Maxwell. "I was shaking in my shoes the first day knowing I had to make a speech."

For parent and chaperone Kara Kurtzmann Daghlia being able to attend the program and watch the kids in action taught her a few new things.

"It's amazing how much I learned just from watching them," said Daghlia. "As an adult I was impressed to have learned so much about their abilities along with the world events I didn't know about. They were clearly so excited and passionate about the entire experience."

The school has been participating in the student run program since 2009 allowing for a number of students and adults to experience and learn about the many complex issues around the world.

"It shows the adults how complex the situations are and allows for them to look at the issues in a very broad and global view," said Head of School Rosine Afshar. "It's wonderful to see the students thinking in that same manner. They were able to get the foundation of what the UN (United Nations) is and how they are involved in solving problems between different countries."

READERS FORUM

New Bronze Statues: 'No Guts, No Glory'

I urge my fellow readers of The Sun to Google images of the works of the sculptors who are under consideration. My research was not encouraging. The majority of works span the range from banal to bland. Only Eylanbekov and Jencks' Harriet Tubman/Thomas Garrett memorial shows real drama. That is worth looking at.

For all of you Red Sox fans, check out "Teammates" by Toby Mendez. Can you imagine any sculpture more dull or boring? How did the sculptor manage to get away with portraying four superb athletes in such a static and rigid composition? Two of the figures have their knees locked! Where are the grace, beauty and excitement inherent in baseball? In contrast, think of the wonderful sculpture of the Long Jumper at Columbus Park in South Boston. Teammates is a failure and I blame The Client. Please let our elected officials know that we are The Clients and we do not want to look at expensive junk.

Personally, I despise the notion of spending money on bronze pigeon perches. It is my fervent desire that this city will have Art that will Make History not just be about history. The New Quincy ought to have daring contemporary art using 21st century technologies — something kinetic would be a good start... Yeah, yeah. I am a dreamer.

Let me remind the Selection Committee that for the first half of the history of the United States, foreign rulers referred routinely and doubtfully to our government as "The American Experiment." Be not afraid to be experimental! If we must have bronze statues, I beg you to insist that they be thrilling and dynamic, to be emblems of the energy of America released by the generation of the Revolution. Just remember what the Adams Family and Hancock knew: No guts, no glory.

Front Façade Of Masonic Building Can Be Saved

By SCOTT JACKSON

Engineers have determined that most of the burned-out Masonic Building in Quincy Center will need to be razed, but the building's limestone façade on Hancock Street is structurally sound and can be preserved.

Jay Duca, the city's director of inspectional services, said two structural engineers examined the temple in the days after a four-alarm fire gutted the historic building. They determined that the front façade – which features four Ionic columns and golden Mason symbol – was spared from damage because of a thick wall separating the façade from the rest of the building.

"It was a heavy-duty, thick wall," Duca said. "It kept the heat and flames back."

Duca said those engineers are now working on a plan to demolish the remainder of the building, taking into account the need to preserve the front portion and to minimize disruption in the area.

"They're moving as fast as they can formulating a plan," Duca said.

Bill Seeks Harsher Penalties For Animal Abusers

House Majority Leader Ronald Mariano (D-Quincy) has joined Representative Tackey Chan (D-Quincy) and Representative Bruce J. Ayers (D-Quincy) in co-sponsoring a bill that would impose severe penalties to animal abusers.

Last week, State Rep. Louis Kafka (D-Stoughton) introduced House Bill 3883, An Act relative to Animal Cruelty, inspired by "Puppy Doe," a dog that was found severely abused and abandoned in Quincy in late August. Massachusetts' current animal cruelty statute, which hasn't been amended since 2004, fails to cover the type of extreme abuse that this puppy endured. According to authorities in Quincy, the 2 year old pit bull was gruesomely beaten, mutilated, and starved.

Rep. Mariano said he believes the bill is a step forward in working to protect vulnerable animals. "The people of Quincy and across Massachusetts have a visceral reaction to animal abuse," he said. "Animal abusers have to be held accountable for their actions, as a society we have to take such acts incredibly seriously."

The bill will give police and prosecutors more tools to work with when sentencing for these extremely heinous crimes. The proposed legislation includes provisions to increase jail time to a maximum of 10 years and to raise the maximum fine from $2,500 to $25,000, specifically in instances of the "worst" type of cruelty, including torture, mutilation, beatings, and death.

Rep. Ayers attended the event Sept. 28 to memorialize the puppy. "I was proud to speak at the Puppy Doe Vigil held at Pageant Field in Quincy against the heinous acts committed by animal abusers. The Puppy Doe animal abuse case just emphasizes the need for harsher penalties for animal abusers in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It is hard to comprehend that someone could impose such harm and torture to a defenseless animal."

Rep. Chan said he is also a strong supporter of the bill, "People who hurt animals in such a malicious and cruel manner are likely to hurt people too, especially the most vulnerable. Increasing the penalties for animal cruelty and abuse will keep these violent people off our streets for a much longer time and hopefully deter others from doing it."

The story of Quincy's "Puppy Doe" has infuriated Massachusetts residents and has been referred to as the worst case of animal abuse ever seen. The incident has drawn significant attention from local animal welfare organizations, which raised a combined $10,000 for a reward to find who is responsible. Authorities have pleaded with the public for any information, but the search for the abusers is still on-going.

Anyone with any information about the dog can call the Animal Rescue League of Boston at (617) 226-5610, or call Quincy Police Detective Thomas Pepdjonovich at (617) 745-5774.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor

A NARROWING MARGIN

"Spinal stenosis" is caused by a narrowing of the spinal canal (the cavity within the vertebrae that houses the spinal cord), which results in a pinching of the nerves that branch out from the cord. This age-related condition occurs as the protective cartilage covering the joints between vertebrae deteriorates to the point where the spaces between the bones narrow. Osteophytes (bone spurs) may also contribute to the narrowing, resulting in bouts of back pain and a "rubbery" feeling in the legs. In many cases, chiropractic treatment can prove to be effective. By manipulating the spine to restore spinal movement, the chiropractor may be able to reduce pressure on the affected nerves, relieve pain, and restore muscle strength.

The spine is a very complex system made up of many different parts that all come together to allow humans to walk upright, bend and twist. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we are seriously concerned with the education of our patients about health and the body's natural state. Regular chiropractic care makes good common sense. We invite you to call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We can help you the natural way, without the use of drugs or surgery. Quincy and Boston fire-fighters about four hours to contain the blaze, and portions of Hancock and Adams Streets were closed for most of that afternoon. The roof in the rear portion of the building completely collapsed during the fire, and the roof near the front partially collapsed, Duca said.

Officials from the state Fire Marshall's Office ruled the fire was accidentally started by construction workers in the building's basement.

"It was caused by workers doing grinding and cutting in a tight spot in the basement when they accidentally ignited some insulation," said Jennifer Mieth, a spokeswoman for Fire Marshall Stephen Coan.

The building, at 1170 Hancock St., was constructed in 1926 and added to National Register of Historic Places 63 years later. It had an assessed value of $3 million, according to the city assessor's website, and a total gross area of 41,748 square feet.

The burned out building did not have a sprinkler system installed, because it was grandfathered in. Under new Massachusetts building codes, a new building would require sprinklers if its gross area exceeded 7,500 square feet.

Quincy realtor Leo Martin had been in the process of purchasing the building into condominiums while keeping the basement as a space for the Masons.

Gloria Noble: A Remarkable Woman, Special Lady

Legacy Of Beloved Community Activist Will Live On

BY EMILY ARMSTRONG

Many who knew her describe her as an incredible and remarkable woman who was very active and involved in the Quincy community, but to those closest to her, Gloria Noble, who died Oct. 1 at the age of 87, was a loving wife and a devoted mother, grandmother, friend.

"Gloria was a remarkable woman and part of a remarkable duo together with her husband, Bob. She was truly part of the fabric of our community, involved in so many aspects of civic life throughout her years," said Mayor Tom Koch.

"Our City is a great community precisely because of people like Gloria, who gave so much of herself for no other reason than to make Quincy a better place. My prayers are with Bob, Alicia, Nancy, Andrea, Bob, Jr. and the entire Noble family."

Noble passed away peacefully surrounded by family after battling a long illness; she was 87 and leaves behind her husband of 63 years Robert G. Noble Sr. and their four children, Alicia Gardner, Nancy Noble, Robert G. Noble Jr., and Andrea White.

She is also survived by 10 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. (Obituary on Page 22).

"Gloria was a friend to so many, and a kind, caring and generous woman," said longtime friend Bette Campbell.

"She was ahead of her time in so many ways and tried to make a difference in the city she called home. She is an example to many women for her goodness and generosity and she showed you that you could get out and help your community."

Originally from Dorchester she moved to Quincy with her husband in 1952 where they both immediately got involved in their community.

"Gloria was a pretty special person," said state Senator John Keenan. "She was a devoted wife and mother all while being a true role model in being an active and involved citizen. I will dearly miss her energy and spirit and my prayers are with Bob and her family."

Mrs. Noble was a committed volunteer and supporter of the Quincy community. She served as president of the South Shore Women's Political Caucus, a past Commander of The Southeastern Chapter of the American Ex-Prisoners of War, a board member of Domestic Violence Ended/Dove, the Good Shepherd Maria Droste Agency counseling services, Ex-Prisoners of War Local Chapter, a member of Wollaston Mothers Club, a 25 year member of The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee, a 10 year member of Quincy's First Night Committee, a member of the Quincy Historical Society, a member of Quincy Democratic City Committee Ward 2, a member of Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library, The Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, and The Family Autism Center.

Mrs. Noble was also an active parishioner of Saint Albert The Great Church, Weymouth and a dedicated Democrat, participating in many political campaigns on the local, state and national level.

"I grew up with her kids and have known them for a very long time," said Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey. "Even though she was originally from Dorchester she really is a Quincy-ite. She instilled in all of her family members to be active and to get involved in their community. She was interested in improving the quality of people's lives. She will be missed by a lot of people."

In April of 2008 Gloria and Bob Noble shared the honor as The Quincy Sun Citizens of the Year for their services to the community for more than half a century. The duo also received the Jewish War Veterans Citizen of the Year, the Dennis F. Ryan Democrat of the Year award and July of 2011 they received the Elizabeth

A. Swanton Community Service Award from Manet Community Health Center.

"Mrs. Noble was an elegant person, a community leader and real contributor, who instilled in her family her deep sense of community social responsibility and genuine caring," said Manet Community Health Center Chief Executive Officer Henry Tuttle.

"Perhaps that's because she was born on the Fourth of July, was aptly named, and lived life gloriously. As a beacon of community spirit and a modeler of community engagement for us all to emulate, she is irreplaceable, and her guidance and graciousness will be sorely missed.

"On behalf of Manet's Board of Directors, staff, and patients who entrust us with their care, we will cherish our memories of her, and our hearts go out to her loving husband, Bob, her children, grand children and great grandchildren."

"Gloria was very devoted to her family, friends and community," said State Rep. Bruce Ayers. "She had a lot of friendly persuasion. She led by example and was a role model to many in the City of Quincy for her values and beliefs."

"The City of Quincy is a better place because of Gloria and her legacy will live on."

Quincy Family Holding Pub Crawl For Little Hearts

BY EMILY ARMSTRONG

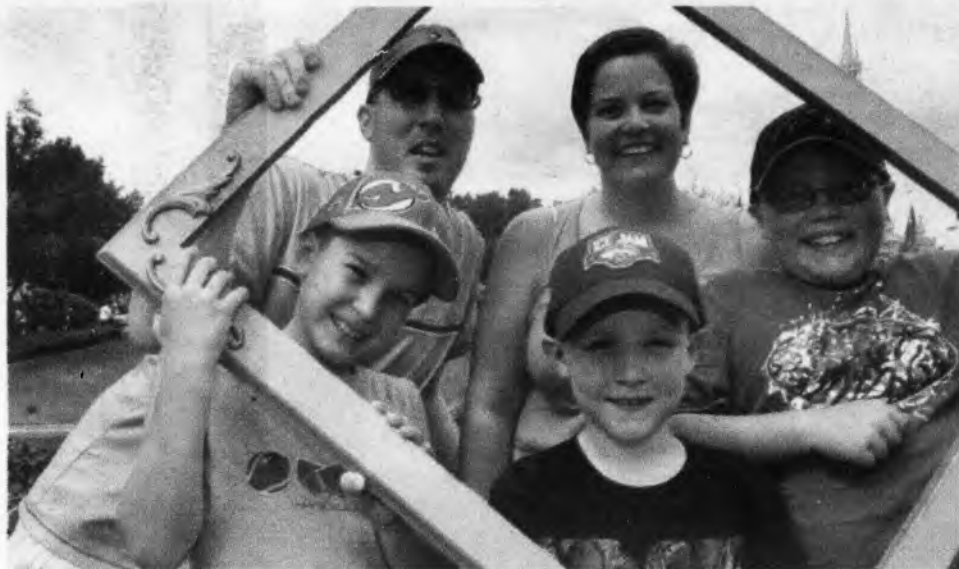

Twelve years ago Quincy residents Jessica and Tom Maher were expecting their first child, David, when they found out that their son had a heart defect, which would require several surgeries before even celebrating his third birthday.

"When I was pregnant with David we were told he had a heart defect and at that point it was early on in my pregnancy so they were uncertain exactly what it was. Around 24 weeks we were told he had Hypoplastic Left Heart Syndrome, which is a heart defect where the left side of the heart doesn't develop," said Jessica Maher.

"They developed a relatively new three-surgery stage that repairs the heart as much as they can. So David had his first surgery when he was five days old, he had his second surgery when he was seven months old, and then he had his third surgery when he was two and a half."

For the Maher's it was something they couldn't have imagined for their first born, but for their family and friends it was a time to show their support and encouragement by helping the new family in anyway they could think of.

"Tom and I were the first of our friends that got married and the first to have kids. David was the first child amongst all of our friends and everyone was excited that he was coming," said Jessica. "With all of the surgeries our friends wanted to help and they weren't really sure how to help. They wanted to do a fundraiser for us to benefit us directly, but luckily we had very good insurance so that money wasn't going to change our lives."

When the couple heard what their friends were trying to do they came up with an idea to raise money for Little Hearts, the one organization that showed them they weren't alone but that they were a part of a large community of families and individuals with similar stories.

"When David was born a really small coalition of the willing started a door knocking campaign through Quincy Center, they went to bars and started to try to raise money to help us," said Tom. "We told them that money wouldn't change our lives but if we were really going to try and do a good thing and do something good we should be helping someone like them (Little Hearts) because we indirectly and directly benefit from them. Over time that pub-crawl changed from that coalition of the willing and small door knocking and just mushroomed into this larger event where more and more people come."

"There's so much good news about the friendship aspect and what your friends really mean to you. When things are really going bad for you, you know where your friends are, and I know where mine are and I know what they are doing. It's a community event and it's a special thing that has a lot of impact on every level," Tom added.

Little Hearts is a national organization providing support, education, resources, networking, and hope to families affected by congenital heart defects. Membership consists of families nationwide who have or are expecting a child with a congenital heart defect.

For David Maher, who is now a seventh grader at Broad Meadows Middle School, the fundraiser is something special.

"I was kind of nervous standing on a podium in front of a bunch of people outside a pub but when you think about it you're actually doing something really cool," said David. "What they're doing for me and all of the kids in my position is kind of special."

David said he also plans on doing his own fundraisers for Little Hearts throughout the school year.

"Last year we raised enough money, through ODW (Operation Days Work), to build a schoolhouse in Kenya, so I am hoping this year we can raise money for Little Hearts," said David. "I want to put some jars out at different events so people can donate, or do something on Valentines Day to raise money at school for Little Hearts."

"I think that it's fair to say that Jess and I are proud of a kid who has overcome so much in his life and continues on. He is talking about giving back but it would be really simple to look inward and say 'what about me?' Instead he turns and looks out and says 'what about them?' That is something that makes us proud every day," added Tom.

Each participant is expected to raise at least $75, $25 for their tee shirt and registration and then $50 on top of that. Last year, the pub-crawl raised over $30,000, making it the largest fundraiser for Little Hearts. Over 200 people are registered for this year's event, which will take place on Oct. 19th starting at 10:30 a.m. at the Irish Pub in North Quincy. Ten to 15 pubs are visited throughout the ten-hour day.

"This is so far beyond anything I think any of us really imagined. I can't imagine us saying we are disappointed in a number," said Tom.

"We know that we are doing good things, we are doing right things, and we are impacting people that are like us. I think it's just impressive that 12 years later we are still doing it and there is still so much support for it. Helping the people that are like me and helping the kids that are like David and making sure they know that they aren't alone."

"The time that was so really horrible for the two of us to go through has turned into something filled with such love, and friendship, and joy, and help for other people. It's just huge that we've been able to turn what was a horrible time for us into something that has impacted so many people in a variety of ways," added Jessica.

John Adams Health Walks At Pageant Field

The John Adams Health Walk Committee will meet the next three Saturdays - Oct. 12, 19 and 26 - at 8:15 a.m. at Pageant Field, One Merrymount Parkway, to walk together three to four miles in and around historic sites in Quincy.

Parking is free.

There is no sign up fee or fee to walk. Walks are rain-or shine events.

The mission of the John Adams Health Walk initiative is to draw attention to the goal of establishing a permanently marked trail in the City of Quincy to combine the goal of increasing the knowledge of the Adams family history while encouraging daily walking.

John Adams lived to be 90 years old without the benefit of modern medicine. The committee believes this was due in part to his commitment to daily physical exercise.

QHS Students Submit Video For Katy Perry Contest

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Two Quincy High School juniors – Marina Chafa and Carly Brilliant – are vying for a chance to win a live concert by Katy Perry at the high school after entering the Katy Perry “Roar” Video Contest put on by Good Morning America.

Chafa and Brilliant decided to enter the contest after stumbling upon it online one day.

“I was actually online one day and happen to find the video and I was like wow this is so amazing why not have the chance to enter this,” said Brilliant. “It’s such an incredible prize and especially since it’s only for high schools, it’s perfect.”

The contest requires a two-minute video submission of participants performing their own rendition of Katy Perry’s “Roar” for a chance to win a live concert by Katy Perry at their school on or around Oct. 25th. The concert will also be broadcast on Good Morning America.

Over 500 students, faculty, and staff of Quincy High School participated in the two-minute long video that both Chafa and Brilliant describe as a story of QHS.

“We were talking to one of our teachers and he came up with the idea of making it a concert in Quincy High. So we filmed a concert with Katy Perry, which was Carly, and we filled up the auditorium and had everyone dancing,” said Chafa.

“In between the concert, so it just wasn’t a whole concert, we took snippets from the daily life of Quincy High and just showed everyone’s talents. We even have one of our janitors tap dancing. We really wanted to show Quincy High’s cultural diversity. We wanted to get all ages, all ethnicities. There are like 85 countries represented in the school so we wanted to show that off. It definitely united the school in a way. Win or not, we reached our goal overall. We are happy about the whole thing.”

“We tried to get everyone involved and it came out amazing,” added Brilliant.

“Even if we don’t win I think it is still amazing what we put together. I feel like I know so many more people (in school) because of the video, it definitely a connection thing. Everyone’s talking about it now and has one common goal to win. Everyone is super excited about it, it’s amazing.”

The video, which has been on Youtube for less than a week, has received over 2,000 views so far, and the girls have made sure to spread the word through as many social media outlets as possible that the video is out there.

“We want to make sure we get it out there and make sure people know how much effort was put into it and that it is a student-run thing,” said Chafa.

“We’re getting about a thousand views a day. It’s pretty amazing. We have been posting on Twitter and Facebook. We have a hash tag, #KatyPerrytoQHS, and we got (103.3) AMP Radio to tweet the link,” Brilliant added. “There is a lot of good videos out there, ours is really unique because it does kind of tell a story with the Katy Perry concert whereas most of them just do a traditional lip-dub of the song. Ours is more creative.”

Fundraiser For Kevin Cellucci Nov. 2

By SCOTT JACKSON

Family and friends of Kevin Cellucci, a father of three critically injured in a car crash last month in Jamaica Plain, will hold a fundraiser to support his family on Nov. 2 at the IBEW Hall in Dorchester.

Cellucci, a finish carpenter with Local 40, was driving to work on Sept. 6 on the Arborway in Jamaica Plain. As Cellucci was driving, an SUV traveling in the opposite direction at an alleged 80 miles per hour crossed into Cellucci’s lane and struck his vehicle.

Cellucci was critically injured in the crash, and has remained in a medically induced coma since. His cousin, Pete Alvarado, said the family remains optimistic that Cellucci can make a recovery.

“We’re hopeful he can make a recovery,” Alvarado said. “It’s tough not being able to talk to him. It keeps wearing on you.”

Cellucci, 33, has been married to his wife Tina for five years. They have three sons – Stephen, age 4; Declan, age 3, and Paul, who is just two months old. The fundraiser will help raise money for Cellucci’s medical expenses and help out his family.

“[The fundraiser] is to get them comfortable,” Alvarado said. “We’re trying to do what we can.”

The fundraiser will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 2, at the IBEW Hall, 256 Freeport St., Dorchester. The event will include entertainment, and live and silent auctions. Tickets cost $20 in advance of $25 at the door. To purchase tickets or donate items contact Alvarado at kevincelluccifoundation@gmail.com.

Donations can also be made online at kevincelluccifoundation.com or by check to the Kevin Cellucci Foundation, Hanscom Federal Credit Union, 495 Summer St. Room 115, Boston, MA 02210.

Defeat Middleboro And Raise Money For Quincy Carpenter Injured In Auto Accident

Two Big Wins For North Quincy Volleyball

By BILL GRIFFIN

There were two winners in North Quincy's volleyball match against Middleboro last week.

The first was North who showed no letdown after its emotional win over Quincy. Senior Carolyn Schwartz played another excellent all-around match and the Red Raiders showcased their depth and balance in a 3-0 decision over the Sachems in a Patriot League match.

The second winner was the Kevin Cellucci Foundation. Cellucci is a carpenter from Quincy who suffered critical injuries in an auto accident last month on the Arborway in Jamaica Plain. Cellucci has a wife (Tina) and three sons: Stephen (4), Declan (3) and Paul (2 months).

Last week the theme for North was "Kills for Kevin." For each kill North had in the match, the volleyball program donated $10 to the foundation. Signs with the letter "K" decorated the gym. North had 29 kills and donated $290 to the foundation which is raising funds to cover Cellucci's medical expenses. Fans who attended the match also made donations.

"We have fund-raisers and we raise money selling concessions," said North coach Kerry Ginty. "This is just something we wanted to do. It's such a good cause."

North controlled the match with its accurate, hard serves. Schwartz ran 10 straight points off her serve in the first game which the Red Raiders won, 25-10. Lauren Magoon ran eight straight in the second game which North took, 25-13, and Abby Mayo had eight straight service points in a 25-14 verdict in the third game.

There were aces and services winners, but more often there was consistent, well-placed serves which forced the Sachems into merely retrieving the ball rather than setting up an offense.

"We were trying for consistency rather than being aggressive with our serves," said Ginty. "We wanted to cut down on mistakes and place the ball in good spots."

Schwartz was once again the best player on the floor with 10 kills, five assists, four blocks and four digs. She impacts a match in countless ways.

"She's played like that for us all year," said Ginty.

The Red Raiders were missing starters Maya Umoren and Nancy Huang who were sidelined by the flu, but North showed its depth. Magoon (two assists, two kills, two digs) and Mayo (11 digs, three assists, four kills) were powers at the net. Freshman Isabelle Flaherty (six kills, four blocks, two digs, one assist) continued to shine not only at the net with blocks and smashes, but with her all-court play in her first varsity year.

"Abby had a great match and Lauren has developed a line drive shot which makes her tough," said Ginty. "Isabelle continues to play well. It's a tribute to our middle-school program that she has adjusted to varsity so well."

Senior Noelle Brady and junior Gabrielle Flaherty each had three kills. Jane Minton had five digs and received serve well. Ivy Pham had two digs while Camille Mullaney had an assist, a dig, and a block. Cindy Hazelton, who played so well against Quincy with 22 assists, had another fine match setting up the big hitters.

"That was a great showing from Noelle. Jane has done a good job in the backline for us all season," said Ginty.

North also defeated Hanover last week, 3-0 behind a great match from Lagoon who had six kills, 10 digs, eight aces and won 17 points off her serve. Schwartz had eight kills while Isabelle Flaherty and Umoren chipped in with six apiece.

Huang had a career-high 34 digs while Hazelton had 12 and Minton added 10. Mullaney had four kills and Brady played another strong match on the outside of the attack line.

The Red Raiders were 10-1 at the end of the week with only a narrow two-point loss to Duxbury on their record. Ginty has liked what she's seen so far, but she knows her team will have to continue to progress as it hits the testing part of its schedule.

"So far, we're doing all the things we should be at this point of the season," said Ginty. "We have experience and I am happy with the way we played so far. We're going to have to get better in the second half because we are on the road against good teams."

North hosts Hingham Wednesday at 5:30 and Brockton Thursday at 5:15.

There will be a fund-raiser for The Cellucci Foundation November 2 at 7:00 p.m. at the IBEW Local 103 Hall on Freeport Street in Dorchester. There will be entertainment, a live auction and a silent auction. Tickets can be purchased at the door for $25 or $20 in advance.

Ryan Sets Up Quincy In Volleyball Win Over W-H

By BILL GRIFFIN

She is the setter. She controls the net and she directs the offense. The height and pace of her passes can help finish or grab control of a point.

She has to know her hitters, where they like the ball, and which one of them is on fine run. She has to hit the floor, dig out the ball and keep points alive. She has to be satisfied with her passes, her sense of team while others enjoy the rush of big-time, crowd-pleasing kills and smashes.

Quincy has a terrific setter in senior Courtney Ryan. Ryan handed out 22 assists and played an excellent all-around match to help the Presidents to a 3-0 volleyball win over Whitman-Hanson in a Patriot League meeting Monday afternoon.

"Courtney has played well all year at setter," said Quincy coach Jacqui Niosi. "A setter needs great hands and decision-making ability, and Courtney has both. Her leadership skills are also very good."

A setter can't focus on one hitter. She needs to spread around the chances and spread them around high and easy, or low and quick depending on the situation. A look at Quincy's balance in yesterday's match shows this well. Sophomore Nicole Jorgensen had 11 kills despite playing just two of the three games. Caroline McBride had seven kills, and Gabby Zorkers added six. Senior Rachel Papile and sophomores Sarah Gibbons and Maggie Parker had good hitting chances as well.

The setter did her job. Everyone had a chance.

"A setter has to set with purpose, not just put the ball up in the air. Courtney did that today," said Niosi.

Ryan and Jorgensen connect particularly well. Ryan knows when to capitalize on Jorgensen's 6'5" height with a set that almost touches the ceiling and she knows when to use Jorgensen's power with fast sets just above the net before the defense can position itself.

"The two of them are connecting better and better," said Niosi. "They work the '1-sets' especially well. Those are the quick sets close to the net."

Ryan (three digs, three aces) also has a strong, topspin serve. In the first game which Quincy won, 25-15, she ran eight straight service points. After Jorgensen had four consecutive kills (Ryan had four assists in the final eight points) to finish Quincy's 25-19 decision in the second, Ryan had a run of six straight service points in the 25-18 clincher in the third game.

"The topspin makes her serve difficult to handle," said Niosi.

Gibbons, Parker and fellow sophomore Jillian Mulvaney made important contributions in the win. Mulvaney served well, had three aces and played excellent defense. Gibbons and Parker continue to make improvements on the front line.

"Maggie has been playing well for us for some time," said Niosi. "We brought Sarah up from the JV so she could get varsity experience. Jill is a scrappy defender. It's always good to see three sophomores making progress"

Senior Taylor Parry had four aces, served consistently and had a solid game in the middle of the court. Emma Kelly, who has been outstanding all season, retrieved hard drives on the backline and added 10 digs.

"Emma always plays well. If she doesn't, we're in trouble," said Niosi. "Taylor has a good serve, not just for speed, but for placement as well."

In other action last week, Papile led the Presidents past Silver Lake, 3-0 and first-place Duxbury stopped Quincy, 25-15, 22-25, 25-19, and 25-19. Duxbury swept the Presidents in three games in their first meeting and Quincy's improved showing against the Dragons in the second match is a good indicator of the progress the Presidents have made this season.

"We were much more competitive against Duxbury in the second match. We not only won a game, but all the games were more competitive," said Niosi. "We have made progress. We're blending in new players with our veterans. I think the area where I've seen the most improvement has been on defense."

Quincy is 9-3 with two losses to Duxbury (11-0) and one to North Quincy (10-1). Quincy is at Fontbonne Wednesday (5:00) and at Hingham Friday (5:30).

Cross Country Results

The Raider girls continued to rack up wins and the Lady Presidents broke into the win column for the first time as The Quincys hosted Silver Lake in a Patriot league battle.

North girls chalked up an unusual shut out made even stranger by the non-participation of Anna Pearsons, Silver Lake's ace runner who was undefeated going into Tuesday's contest.

"It was like the Patriots going into Denver and then finding out that Peyton Manning was not playing," said coach Geoff Hennessy.

A pleasant problem for the Raiders who took the top five spots versus the Lakers. Pearson was allegedly dealing with a mild injury suffered at the McIntyre Invitation held the previous weekend, a meet Quincy passed up to get in more training for the post season.

Leading the challenge were Emily Bryson and Julia Bryson who again went 1-2 leading freshmen Samin Charepoo and Julia Brady for 3-4. Marguerite Belcher was 5th with Amelia Ho and Emily Zheng placing 7-8. With Pearson a non-factor, the Lady Presidents went 1-2-3 with Inaya Paul, LaQueen Arias and Victoria Deery sweeping the top spots clinching a win for Quincy. On the boys side North was without ace Mike Mullaney who was ill. Freshmen Jimmy Cannon was 4th and Aidan Golden was 9th as the Raiders lost 17-39. The Presidents, also laden with underclassmen also lost 18-38. Peter Saccoach (10th) and Kevin Fitzgerald (9th) were top 10 for Quincy. On Tuesday North runs its final home meet against Scituate, a meet that may well decide the Patriot Fisher division. "Last year was weird as Scituate beat us, Pembroke beat Scituate and we beat Pembroke for a three-way tie. We'd like to win outright. Our young athletes are progressing rapidly. We have one senior (Amelia Ho) in our scoring seven on both genders," Hennessy said.

NQ Bows To Hanover

By JOE REARDON

When you go back and take an unbiased look at North Quincy's 34-6 rout at the hands of Patriot League opponent Hanover on Friday night, the Red Raiders only had one disastrous quarter of football. And with a team as young as Mark Nutley's squad, it's inevitable during a long season that inexperience will show up more often than not.

Playing on Harry Gerrish Memorial Field on Friday night, North Quincy's second quarter lapses resulted in 28 unanswered Hanover points in the Red Raiders' Patriot League opener. The loss dropped North Quincy to 1-3 on the season and 0-1 in league play.

The Red Raiders' got on the board with just under 2 minutes to play in the game when talented junior quarterback Andrew Kiley fired a strike to Matt Donovan in the end zone to close out the scoring, 34-6.

The second quarter was North Quincy's toughest of the season and Nutley hopes the Red Raiders have it out of their head moving forward. A fumble on a punt snap deep in North Quincy territory resulted in an Indian player pouncing on it in the end zone for a touchdown. A fumbled kickoff return by North Quincy resulted in a Hanover score just five plays later with less than a minute remaining in the half. The Red Raiders headed to the end zone down 28-0 and the game was all but over.

"The second quarter was when everything exploded on us," said Nutley. "We got out of the first quarter and it was 6-0. It's not just a fumble here or an interception there. It's a fumble and they scoop it up and score a touchdown, or it's a bad snap over the quarterback's head. He dives on it and it squirts out and they dive on it for a touchdown. When it rains it pours."

Still, Nutley believes there were positives that came out of the lopsided defeat. The Red Raider defense stopped the Indians twice inside the 10-yard line and North Quincy continued to play hard despite the deficit. And when mistakes are made or assignments are blown, the players still have to go hard for the remainder of the play.

"We're going to make mistakes, but we have to make them full speed," Nutley explained. "We can't be going half speed. When we miss a block we can't just stand there. We have to block someone else. We're not a team that can spot teams points. We're just not good enough to do that. If we go down and score on that first drive, who knows what happens. The first quarter it was 6-0 and was kind of a stalemate really. After the game I told them we're not good enough to keep shooting ourselves in the foot. We'll look at the films and see where we're at."

The Red Raiders simply have to put the loss to Hanover behind them and concentrate on Middleboro. North Quincy faces the Sachems in Middleboro, Saturday at 1 p.m. The Sachems have battled spurts of inconsistency so far this season. Middleboro turned the ball over five times against Hanover and still hung on for an 8-7 contest. And in their showdown against Pembroke, Middleboro was an easy 21-7 winner.

Nutley believes the Sachems will get their defense very involved on the field, particularly the linebackers, who North Quincy had a tough time with against Hanover.

A win for North Quincy is very possible and would certainly give the Red Raiders a much-needed boost. "If we play the way I know we can, we have a good shot," said Nutley.

Quincy Falls To Silver Lake

By BILL GRIFFIN

The great coach Vince Lombardi once said: There is no shame in getting knocked down. The only shame is in not getting back up.

Quincy will have a chance to prove the old coach's words true when the Presidents return from a bye week to face Patriot League powers Hingham (Oct. 18 at home) and Duxbury (Oct. 25 on the road).

Last Friday night, Jeff Reynolds scored on a six-yard run with three minutes left in the game and Silver Lake held off a furious Quincy drive in the final seconds to upset the Presidents, 21-20 in a Patriot League contest.

"I told the team after the game that I was proud of them," said Quincy coach Bill Reardon. "There's no quit in them. There are some things we have to work on, but they played hard right to the end."

How tough was the loss? Quincy is 3-2 and has lost two one-point decisions in five games. The Presidents are two points away from being unbeaten. Against Silver Lake, they lost eight points on two close calls by the officials. They were nine yards and four seconds away from victory. A fumble led directly to one Lakers' touchdown. The Presidents had the ball and a six-point lead with 4:00 left. They were close.

"We had a little rust early in the game, but I thought we improved and played well after the first quarter," said Reardon. "We really ran the ball well."

Senior tailback Alex Alexandre went over 100 yards and sophomore Jahvae Handsome-Fields had several big runs in the second half behind the blocking of William Young, Steve Scolaro, Matt Kozlowski, Abraham Hoti and Matt Hines.

"Alex had a big game, his best since the opener against Malden Catholic. He ran hard," said Reardon.

Quincy was up, 20-14 with four minutes left and possession of the ball on its 35. A couple of first downs would have killed the clock, but the Lakers held firm and forced a punt.

Silver Lake quarterback Dan Finn had connected with Matt Tringali for a pair of TDs in the first half, and Finn went to work again following Quincy's punt. He hit a couple of big gains up the right side to set up Reynolds' scoring run which tied the score at 20-20. Matt Haite, whose conversions supplied the margin of victory, kicked the extra point for a 21-20 lead with 3:00 left.

"Early in the game we didn't have the pass rush we needed and we had a couple of mistakes in the secondary," said Reardon. "We corrected them in the second and third periods, but they came back in the fourth period."

But Quincy did not die. The Presidents took the ball at their 35. Handsome-Fields had a pair of long runs. Quarterback James Lam connected with Hines and J.T. Bain on key passes. The Presidents moved to the Silver Lake nine with four seconds left. Quincy tried a fade pass to Robbie Munroe in the corner of the end zone which just fell incomplete.

"I was proud of that final drive. We just missed on the last pass," said Reardon.

Quincy started the scoring on its first possession with a 65-yard drive. The Presidents kept it on the ground with Lam and Alexandre doing most of the running. Lam went in from the five for a 6-0 lead.

The Lakers then scored twice on passes from Finn to Tringali. The second TD was set up by a fumble recovery on the Quincy 15. Silver Lake led, 14-6 at the half.

The Presidents had an apparent 40-yard touchdown pass from Lam to Bain called back in the first half by an offensive pass interference call in the end zone.

"It was a close call," said Reardon. "We played better in the second period. Matt Hines gave us a pass rush and Armani Cardoso played well in the secondary."

Cardoso had a terrific interception in the right flat early in the second half to set up Quincy at the Lakers' 45. Alexandre busted a 35-yard scoring run up the middle, breaking several tackles along the way to cut Silver Lake's lead to 14-12. Alexandre's rush for the two-point conversion, which would have tied the game, came close.

"One official signaled that he made it, a second official ruled he came up short," said Reardon. "They talked about it, and decided he didn't get in."

Quincy scored on a 75-yard drive which was highlighted by a fake punt in the final five minutes of the third period. Lam faked the punt and rolled out for the first down. Handsome-Fields bolted in from the 18 and Lam rushed for the points for a 20-14 lead which held up until the final four minutes.

The loss had playoff implications for Quincy who is in Division 2 South. The playoff teams will be selected after the seventh game of the season. Duxbury is Quincy's seventh game. The Presidents will likely have to, at least, beat either Duxbury or Hingham to qualify. Last year, Quincy had a memorable 42-39 win over Hingham. The Presidents fell to Duxbury, 37-28, last year, but were within six with possession of the ball midway through the fourth period.

It is easy to forget how young Quincy is. The Presidents only returned four starters. They are a young team which is still learning. A tough loss can be a great teacher.

"We'll circle the wagons, come together, and go forward playing good football," said Reardon. "If we can cut down the mistakes and turnovers, and play a clean game, we'll be fine."

Injuries Plague NQ Girls Soccer

By BILL GRIFFIN

It is the time of the season when injuries can influence greatly the play of a team. That is the case with North Quincy's girls soccer club.

The depleted Red Raiders beat Cambridge Rindge & Latin, 3-1 in a non-league match, but fell to Hingham (4-1) and Whitman-Hanson (3-0) in Patriot League contests last week.

Haley McKay (hamstring) and Arianna Viscione (strained knee) are playing through difficult injuries. Sophomore Julia O'Donnell missed three games due to illness. Key performers such as Abby Smith, Charlotte Chretien and Haley Houlihan are all nursing a variety of injuries.

Freshman keeper Shanahan Kennedy, who has had a fine season, suffered a leg injury which sidelined her in the Hingham game.

"The kids continue to play hard, but the injuries have shown our depth problem," said coach Paul Bregoli. "There are courageous efforts on the part of many players. I'm proud of them."

North finished the week at 6-5-2 and needed six points in its last seven matches to qualify for the tourney.

The week began with the loss to Hingham. North fell behind, 3-0. Ciara Forde had a great chance from 18 yards out in the first half which was turned aside.

North scored on a perfect pass from junior midfielder Courtney Campo to Houlihan who buried a low, hard drive from 20 yards inside the post.

Kennedy had a good match in goal, but suffered a lower leg injury. Sophomore Annie Doherty, Alyx Patey, and Chretien played solid games for North.

The Red Raiders then responded with their second win of the season over Cambridge by a 3-1 count, which was the score in the first match between the two teams.

The Raiders started the scoring 20 minutes into the first half. Ali Coleman connected with North's leading scorer Marissa McGue inside the penalty box. McGue, only a sophomore, scored on a low drive inside the far post for a 1-0 lead.

McGuie returned the favor minutes later. She fed Coleman just outside the 18-yard marker and Coleman scored on an accurate shot to the right of the keeper.

Pee Wee B2 Team Wins

In South Shore Hockey Conference action this past weekend, Joey Murphy and John Bell each had two goals to lead the Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee B2 team to a hard fought 5-2 victory over the Seahawks of Norwell.

Cambridge closed within 2-1 at the half, but the Red Raiders scored an insurance goal on a well-executed corner kick. Coleman boomed it to the back post and McKay was in perfect position to knock it home for her first goal of the season.

In the W-H game, the Panthers took a 2-0 lead at the half. One of the goals came off a close call which gave the Panthers a penalty shot.

"I thought it was questionable," said Bregoli.

Campo was the main offensive threat for North with two clean break-ins that were stopped.

Freshman Mandy Hazeltin, who stepped in for Kennedy, had a good game in goal. Sydney Chang, Patey, Viscione, and McGue also played well for the Red Raiders.

North has a rematch at Scituate Wednesday. The two played a 1-0 thriller the Sailors won in their first meeting. North then hosts Pembroke at Veterans Stadium Friday at 6:00.

Murphy, Sean O'Brien, and Chris Hussey provided assists, while Ryan Graf was stellar in net, turning away 23 shots. The team is off to a strong 2-1-1 start and travels to Bridgewater to battle league leading Hingham in a couple weeks.

Elks, Manets Win; QYFL Honors Fallen Legend

By SEAN HALPIN

Quincy Youth Football kicked off Week 5 with a battle for first place in the Desmond Division between the West Quincy Elks (3-1) and the North Quincy Apaches (2-2) in the heavy rain.

Elks return man, Davi Soares, took the opening kick-off back 75 yards for a TD. The conversion failed as the Elks lead the Apaches 6-0, just seconds into the ballgame. The Defense was stingy throughout most of the first three quarters as Elks LB Anthony Rizzatano blocked a punt and Apaches LB Dara Griffin intercepted a pass.

The Elks got on the board again, late in the third quarter as RB Adam Vu Scored on 42-yard run. PK Curtis Frazier kicked for the extra points as the Elks extended their lead 14-0. Elks finished of the day when QB Curtis Frazier hit Corey Shaw on a 40-yard TD pass. The Elks defeated the Apaches and continue to sit in first place in the Desmond Division at 4-1.

The West Quincy Elks face The Storm next Sunday at 4:20 as the North Quincy Apaches battle the Milton Mustangs at 1 p.m.

The heavy rain cleared briefly but, there where heavy hearts all over Veterans Stadium as the Quincy Youth Football League held a special tribute to the legendary, William "Chubba" Myers of the Quincy Point Panthers. Mr. Myers passed away on Oct. 1st. During his 50-year career with the Point Panthers and the QYFL, Mr. Myers served as head coach, general manager, franchise holder and League official. Since 1998, the League's Myers Division has been named after him.

The Special Tribute ceremony was held at the 50-yard line at Veterans Stadium and was attended by all six QYFL teams as well as many former players, coaches and league officials. QYFL Vice-president, Sean Halpin read a narration of Billy Myers Life and Legacy in the QYFL. A bagpipe instrumental of "Amazing Grace" was played as Panthers Athletes carried out a framed picture of Mr. Myers to midfield and Panthers Franchise Holder George Maze released green and gold balloons into the sky. It was truly a touching tribute to a man who means so much to Quincy Youth Football.

Following the tribute, the rain came down again as The Storm hosted Myers' Quincy Point Panthers. In another great tribute to Mr. Myers, the two teams battled to a scoreless tie. Both defenses were stifling. The Storm was lead by the play of Mark Monahan, Raphy Veras, Cullen Walsh, Tim Layden, Austin Currie, Max Storch, Colin McGrath, Josh Jackson Antonio Allen and Andrew Airosus.

The Point Panthers were sparked by the play of Mario Vrap, Cullen O'Connell, Robert Wilson, Bryan Hanly, Jackson Quinn, Nick Cedrone, Jayo DaRosa, Jason Fratus, Joey Spano, Domenic Laptiste and Nick Mayberry.

The Quincy Point Panthers (4-0-1) take on the Houghs Neck Manets next Sunday at 2:30 p.m. The Storm battle the West Quincy Elks Sunday at 4:20 p.m.

The final game of the afternoon was a Myers Division match-up between the Milton Mustangs and the Houghs Neck Manets with playoff implications. The Manets came out strong on their second offensive play from scrimmage as RB Wilmer Duran raced around end for a 39-yard TD run. QB Anthony Epps rushed for the conversion as the Manets lead 7-0. Later in the second quarter, The Mustangs fumbled the snap on a punt and Manets LB Jason Lam recovered the ball in the end zone for a TD.

On the next series, DB John Early intercepted a Mustangs pass, setting up a 68-yard TD run by RB Wilmer Duran.

Manets DT Zack Walsh recovered a fumble that led to a 38 yard TD run by QB Anthony Epps before the end of the half.

Wilmer Duran added another TD on a 30-yard run in the second half, as the Manets got their first win of the season 32-0 over the Milton Mustangs.

The much improved Houghs Neck Manets (1-4) host the Quincy Point Panthers (4-0-1) in a Myers Division battle next Sunday at 2:40 pm. The Milton Mustangs visit the North Quincy Apaches Sunday at 1 p.m.

Papiles Paces Quincy Past Middleboro

By BILL GRIFFIN

Emma Papile steps into the spotlight from the instant she touches a soccer ball.

She is fast enough to outrun a wave of defenders and quick enough to accelerate off the first touch to set an offense in motion. She has the awareness of a great point guard, that unteachable sense of knowing who and what is around her without looking or pausing. Her passes catch her teammates in stride. Her shot is powerful and swift.

Papile scored in the first three minutes of the match and then produced a fistful of golden offensive chances to lead Quincy to a 1-0 win over Middleboro in a Patriot League match at Veterans Stadium last week.

"We always talk about the difference between an athlete and a soccer player," said Quincy coach Courtney Harnais. "Emma has great speed, but she is a soccer player first. She has a sense, a feel for the game you can't teach. Her move off her first touch is excellent and she's one of those players who knows where everyone is on the soccer field. That's what sets her apart."

Papile, a junior, scored the only goal of the match less than three minutes into the half, taking a through-pass from senior Michelle Lam, bursting into the clear and driving home a high finish. She had another boomer from the top of the penalty area which sailed just high with 10:00 left in the half.

The scoring was finished, but Papile was not. Her dribbling, control and change of speeds produced two clean break-ins which narrowly missed in the first 20 minutes of the second half. She also used her touch, vision and accurate passing to set up Lam (twice), freshman Joelle Robinson, and Gabby Jerrehian for excellent chances. Papile and Quincy easily could have had multiple scores.

"What you're seeing is a product of hard work," said Harnais. "Emma has ability, but she also works so hard on her game. It shows when she plays a match."

It was not a one-player victory. Lam hustled, won countless one-on-one battles and used her speed to find the open spaces to accept passes. She helped in the midfield, and she was a constant threat on the forward line.

"She never stops hustling," said Harnais. "Sometimes I can see she is tired, just dying out there, but she keeps going. She had some great chances today."

Quincy controlled the match for the first 70 minutes and the big reason was the play in midfield. Senior Olivia Wallace passed, rushed and used her powerful foot to translate defense into offense. Kerry Phelan, Emily Hatfield, and Jerrehian also had strong games in the middle of the field as the Presidents controlled the flow for most of the match.

"Olivia played very well," said Harnais. "One thing we've stressed all season is we want our midfielders to connect our defense to our offense. We don't want any gaps. Today we kept together well."

Junior Lauren Matthies had another fine match at fullback. Defenders Nina McDonald and Tayla Tervakoski also made important plays to preserve the lead in the face of a strong Middleboro surge late in the second half. McDonald, a freshman, blocked and cleared a dangerous corner kick with a big assist from Phelan. Tervakoski halted a Middleboro run, took away possession and rushed the ball through midfield in the final minute.

"Nina holds her own. She's a tough player. She's a freshman and she gets knocked down a lot, but she always gets back up," said Harnais.

Senior goalie Natalie O'Donovan, who was so good in the 1-0 loss to North, was solid throughout and made an exceptional save with 22:00 left in the match to hold the lead. Middleboro moved the ball through midfield with beautiful checkerboard passing to Jessica Baldassini who was completely clear at the left corner of the net. O'Donovan held her line, played the angle and made the waist-high stop.

"Once again she was solid, a rock for us in goal," said Harnais.

In other action last week, Quincy fell to Silver Lake, 3-0 despite strong matches from Wallace and Matthies. The Middleboro win lifted the Presidents to 4-8 and Harnais has liked what she's seen from her young squad this season.

"One thing I've been happy about is the way we've worked on possessing the ball," she said. "Our short passing has been better and we've been smarter with the ball when we do have possession."

"We've also worked on playing the full 80 minutes no matter how tired we are. We have some players who are playing through injuries and I can see they are tired. But we've worked on playing the full 80 minutes and I think we've done that well."

Quincy hosts Hingham (4:00) Wednesday and Silver Lake (3:30) Friday.

Lions Club To Host Bulger Author Oct. 17

Bob Halloran To Be Joined By Brother Of Bulger Victim

The Quincy Lions Club will host author and sportscaster Bob Halloran together with Steve Davis, the brother of Whitey Bulger victim Debbie Davis at their next meeting Thursday, Oct. 17.

The meeting will be held at 12 noon at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, 27 Glendale Road.

"We are thrilled to welcome Bob and Steve so soon after the Sept. 18 release of Impact Statement: A Family's Fight for Justice against Whitey Bulger, Stephen Flemmi, and the FBI," said club President Jeffrey Poirier. "Bob's account of the devastation inflicted on the Davis Family by Whitey Bulger and Stephen Flemmi brings a new, more human perspective to a story that has dominated the headlines for so long."

Halloran, an Emmy award winning sportscaster and author of several previously released books including the acclaimed Irish Thunder: The Hard Life and Times of Micky Ward, wrote Impact Statement working closely with the Steve Davis and his family to document the pain and loss they endured as a direct result of their connection to Bulger and Flemmi. Through observation of the Bulger trial alongside Davis and through access to trial evidence and exhibits, Halloran's book offers an inside look at the horrific effects of these criminals on one family and that family's continued quest for closure.

"I am excited to bring Impact Statement to the Quincy Lions Club," Halloran stated. "Given the club's legacy of service, I anticipate a great deal of empathy for the burdens carried by Steve and his family."

"With the Davis Family now looking to bring their fight for justice to the state courts," added Poirier. "Our members are looking forward to hearing more about Impact Statement and this family's story."

Halloran and Davis will make their presentation at a regular meeting of the Quincy Lions Club. Usually held on the first and third Thursdays of the month, these are lunchtime meetings featuring guest speakers and club activities. The cost of lunch is $13 and all are welcome to attend.

Jack 'n' Jill Child Care Celebrating 70th Anniversary

Jack 'n' Jill Child Care will celebrate its 70th anniversary with a weeklong celebration of activities Tuesday, Oct. 15 through Friday, Oct. 18.

The childcare center has three locations: in West Quincy, Marina Bay and Whitman.

Jack 'n' Jill Child Care offers full, part and year-round programs and enhanced curriculum for children ages six weeks to six years.

There is a private kindergarten available at the West Quincy location. Yoga, music and drama programs at all locations.

Educators are trained in first aid, CPR and OSHA.

Here are the activities planned next week in celebration of Jack 'n' Jill Child Care Center's 70th anniversary.

- Tuesday, Oct. 15 – Birthday Tuesday – A Gift Giving Day – celebrating Literacy and the Arts.

- Wednesday, Oct. 16 – Birthday Wednesday – Piñata Party Day – Celebrating Culture.

- Thursday, Oct. 17 – Birthday Thursday – Cake and Ice Cream – Celebrating Togetherness.

- Friday, Oct. 18 – Birthday Friday – Pumpkin Painting and Dance – Celebrating Music and the Arts.

Choosing childcare is one of the most important decisions a family can make," said Kelley Joyce, vice president of Jack 'n' Jill Child Care Centers. "We at Jack 'n' Jill believe that you can change the world when a high-quality childcare enriches your children, families and the community. We are proud of our rich heritage; acknowledge the importance of adding a personal touch while caring, and delighted to be celebrating 70 years."

Harriett Drew founded Jack 'n' Jill in 1943 in "the little old house at 39 Station Street in West Quincy." Harriett's husband Dana was injured and hospitalized in the war and she needed additional income. She and her friend Flo Nyros placed an ad in the local paper, hoping to place 10 children to care for in Harriett's home. Eighty-six people responded to the ad. It was wartime, and many working women needed childcare.

In preparing for this endeavor, Harriett and Flo recruited two retired teachers to help with the children. By the end of the first year they had 40 children enrolled. Harriett said, "We cleared out everything in the downstairs of my home. I went to the bank, took out a loan, and in four weeks we expanded the center. We charged $10 per week back then, and everyone thought that was expensive! We even provided transportation. I cooked, I drove, I cleaned, I ran the school, and did all the book-keeping."

Local mothers worked nights at the Quincy shipyards, so Harriett took in children to stay overnight. "We had a waiting list you wouldn't believe!" exclaimed Harriett. She put more additions onto her house to support the growth of her business.

Dana Drew (Harriett's son) was born in 1946. He is a Jack 'n' Jill graduate and took his first job as an employee of Jack 'n' Jill cleaning the school each night. When Dana turned 16, he started driving the Center's school bus. When Harriett retired in 1984, Dana took over the family business, expanded from 40-90 children, and encouraged staff to provide a higher level of Quality care.

Today, JNJ meets all EEC & NAEYC standards and Dana remains as the President at Jack 'n' Jill.

Jack 'n' Jill has acquired additional centers throughout the South Shore. Following the successful opening of the Marina Bay center in 1994, the Center expanded again to Whitman in 1999.

"Each expansion was to better serve commuting parents with locations that were a comfortable distance from work and home. Although each center has its own personality, we adhere to our mission statement and values which keep our reputation and character uniformed," Joyce said.

Extraordinary teachers have remained with Jack 'n' Jill for 10, 20 and even 32 years. An annual pin ceremony acknowledges those who remain dedicated to Jack 'n' Jill. Nearly all of the staff, directors, and teachers bring or have brought their own children, grandchildren, nieces or nephews to Jack 'n' Jill. The staff remains motivated to provide quality care by maintaining accreditation status by The National Association for the Education of Young Children. www.naeyc.org

Joy's Sports Programs, Director Rich Hanlon, 617-827-8697

On Monday, September 30, 2013, at approximately 3:00 P.M., Officers' Chris Klier and Brian Mahoney were dispatched to a Quincy address to investigate a call of "an assault & battery that just occurred." Upon arrival, the Officers were met by the caller, who said that she stopped by her 83 year old father's home to check on him, as she does most days. She stated her father has been drinking lately and making new friends with younger women that she believes are taking advantage of him because he is wealthy. She believed that her father has given away approximately $20,000 to $30,000. When the caller stopped by on this date, she noticed her father had been drinking wine and appeared intoxicated. She noticed the name of a woman that appeared on the caller ID of her father's phone several times, so she asked her father why he was in contact with her, expressing her concern to him that younger women were trying to take advantage of him. As they were having this discussion in the kitchen, a woman walked down the steps and into the kitchen screaming and yelling at the caller. The caller attempted to calm this woman by telling her that she was not referring to her as someone taking advantage of her father, but rather, another woman. This woman apparently didn't accept this explanation and grew angrier, escalating to this woman attacking the caller, hitting her in the head and body with her fists. The caller reached for the phone that was mounted on the wall in the kitchen and attempted to call "911." As she did this, the woman ripped the phone out of her hands. The caller then ran out of the house to a neighbor's home and called "911" from there.

The caller said that she was not injured and although there were no signs of injury, there was some redness on the caller's neck. Officer Klier then interviewed the father, who appeared intoxicated and was bleeding from his right ear area due to a small laceration.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

Fallon ambulance responded and provided first aid, but the wound was not serious.

The father said that the woman is a friend and she frequently comes over the house but does not live there. He confirmed that a fight occurred in the kitchen between the two women, but could not state what happened. He thought that his ear was scratched some time during the altercation. The father said that the woman was now upstairs in one of the bedrooms and he gave permission for the Officers to go upstairs and talk to her. As Officer Klier climbed the stairs, he called out to the woman, asking her to come down. She responded, "No, you don't have a warrant." (No warrant was needed since the owner of the home gave permission to access the bedrooms and the woman had no authority since she did not live there) As the Officers reached the second floor landing and turned to the bedroom where the woman was, the woman slammed the bedroom door in their faces. After knocking several times and the woman refusing to open the door, Officer Klier pushed the door open as the woman attempted to push the door shut.

Once inside the bedroom, Officer Klier informed the woman that she was under arrest which resulted in the woman swinging her arms and torso to break free from the Officer's hold. She continued to attempt to free her arms from the Officer's grasp, so the Officers brought her to the bed and then handcuffed her. The woman, a 51 year old Quincy resident, was charged with, "Intimidation of a Witness, Assault & Battery and Resisting Arrest." In addition, an oral and written report was filed with Elder Protective Services to further investigate the father's competency. Nice work!

SCAM: Someone claiming to be from your utility company calls to say that you are about to lose your power because you failed to make a payment. A check of your caller ID indicates that the number is from the correct area code. Panic sets in because you need your electricity and although you believe you paid the bill, you do not know what to do. The caller says that a prompt payment will keep the electricity flowing, but the payment has to be made quickly by following his instructions. In most cases, the victim will be instructed to make payment by wiring money. Once this is done, you will not be able to recoup your loss. Best action: check you utility bill, find their telephone number and inquire about your status. Utilities will contact you via mail if there is a billing issue.

OBITUARIES

William J. Myers, 79

A celebration of life for William J. "Chubba" Myers, 79, of Palm Springs, CA and formerly Quincy will be held at St. Joseph's Church, Quincy, at a later date.

Mr. Myers died Oct. 1.

He was born on Feb. 15, 1934, in Quincy. Green and gold ran through his veins because he was a Point Panther through and through. As one of the founders of the Quincy Youth Football League, Chubba was a dedicated and inspiring role model, volunteer and mentor for 50 years with the program. He relocated to Palm Springs in 2000 and the team still thrives today. One of the league's two divisions is named in his honor. His memory lives on through the Panthers organization even after his death.

Mr. Myers was retired from the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office and also served as a deputy sheriff. However, his love for football and teaching spanned decades. While starring for Quincy High in football and baseball, he began his lifelong work on Fore River Field with the city's youth. He spent countless hours at the grassroots level, helping his neighbors get in the game. After playing baseball in the Cape Cod League, then professionally in the South, Pacific Southwest and Canada, he was drafted into the Army, Special Services Division and pitched for the Army baseball team.

He eventually returned to the "Point" for the fall seasons, took over the head coaching duties and ran the team as a lifelong community leader for five decades. Alongside was his wife, who would often design and sew the cheerleaders' uniforms. His two daughters cheered for their team — and their Dad. Eventually, they followed in their Dad's footsteps as coaches in the Panthers' cheer program. It was a family affair for a family man with thousands more in his "extended" family.

Mr. Myers was inducted into the QHS Football Hall of Fame, he was also part of the group that coordinated the lighting for Veterans Memorial Stadium. His name is on a monument at the stadium as part of the small group that started Quincy's version of "Friday Night Lights."

He was a longtime member of the Knights of Columbus, served as a basketball coach for St. Joseph's Church CYO program and was an avid traveler, especially to warm climates. He enjoyed his Caribbean vacations, cruises and a trip across the country. His latest excursion was to Alaska last summer. He also enjoyed the computer and kept up with all the Boston sports teams regularly. He also loved watching his granddaughters join their cheer teams.

Beloved husband of 56 years of Marcella "Betty" Myers. Loving father of Patti Myers and Kathy Bryant and her husband Paul, all of CA. Cherished grandfather of Kelsey and Kylee.

Memorial donations may be made to Quincy Point Panthers c/o Quincy Credit Union, 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy, MA 02169.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A colleague might offer to open a door for you professionally. But before you walk through it, be sure this "favor" isn't attached to an obligation you might find difficult to discharge.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your creativity, your persistence and your reliability could lead to a major career shift. Be sure to use that other Taurean trait, your practicality, when discussing what the job offers.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A changing situation might require some adjustments you might not have been prepared to make. However, flexibility in this matter could be the best course to follow at this time.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're in a period of fluctuating moods, which is not unusual for the Moon Child. Your emotions stabilize by the 25th. Meanwhile, try to hold off making major decisions until then.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) That keen sense of perception helps you hunt down those minute details that others overlook. And, of course, your Leonine ego will accept the expected praise with good grace.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Be careful not to be confrontational when raising a work-related issue. Better to make a request than a demand. And, of course, be prepared to back up your case with facts.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your ego might be hurt when a colleague turns down your offer to help.

But accept it as a rejection of your offer, not of you. A friend from the past could re-emerge by week's end.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A flow of positive energy turns a work project you didn't want to do into something you actually love doing. Now, take that attitude into your social, intimate life -- and enjoy what follows.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Working hard to meet your professional goals is fine. But don't neglect your private life, especially where it concerns your more cherished relationships.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) "Patience" remains the key word in dealing with an emotionally sensitive situation involving a close friend or family member. Help comes your way by week's end.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) With new information coming in, it's a good time to rethink some of your goals without taking suggestions from others, no matter how well-meaning they might be.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Making progress on your project is relatively easy in the early part of the week. A problem could arise midweek. But all goes swimmingly once it's resolved.
BORN THIS WEEK: Holding fast to your principles, no matter what, inspires others to follow your example.

30 Years Later, Marine Recalls Horrific Beirut Bombing area and they'd stockpile it and the EODs (explosive ordinance disposal) would blow it up. I thought it must be something like that," Godfrey said.

"It was shortly thereafter that the radio went silent, it was all static. It was shortly thereafter we could tell it was the battalion, or that area, that got hit. Right in front of the battalion there was a basketball court. Looking through the binoculars I could see through the smoke and I could see the basketball court but I couldn't see anything behind it. That was a four-story structure, and it was just smoke and debris."

Godfrey spent the next four days at the checkpoint. He didn't know it at the time, but Godfrey's family in Massachusetts was given no update on his status. It wasn't until the fourth day that Godfrey was able to contact his parents to tell them he was okay.

"For four days I was at that particular checkpoint. Unbeknownst to me my family had no idea what my status was. For four days I was on this missing list. On the end of the fourth day they brought in relief for our post and brought us back. They shuttled us to the new headquarters and we were told to call home and that's when my family finally found out that I was alive," Godfrey said.

STATE TROOPER Steve Godfrey was a U.S. Marine stationed at a checkpoint in Beirut, Lebanon when the Marine Corps barracks inside Beirut's airport was bombed on the morning of Oct. 23, 1983. The attack killed 241 U.S. servicemen, including 220 Marines.

"We were lucky - they were lucky. They got the good call. Two-hundred forty one families didn't get the same news."

The bombing of the barracks in Beirut was deadliest day for the U.S. Marine Corps since World War II. Among those killed Bruce Owens, a member of Godfrey's platoon who had been called to the barracks in the airport for mess duty just two weeks before the attack.

"Bruce was a good kid."

He was 19 years old and probably never knew what happened," Godfrey said.

Godfrey is now the treasurer for the Beirut Veterans of America and an assistant treasurer for the Massachusetts Chapter of Beirut. The organization is hosting a reunion Oct. 22 and 23 at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Other events commemorating the Beirut bombing will be held here in Massachusetts. That includes a commemoration dinner at the Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Rd., Quincy, on Oct. 19. There will be a cocktail hour from 5-6:30 p.m. that night, followed by a dinner and program from 7 to 11 p.m. The guest speaker will be Gen. Alfred M. Gray Jr., a retired commandant of the Marine Corps. For more information on that event, contact Bob Godfrey, Steve's father, at 617-750-5900.

Money raised at that event will go towards restoring the Massachusetts Beirut Memorial, which is located in Christopher Columbus Park on Atlantic Avenue in Boston's North End. A rededication for the memorial will take place on Oct. 20 at 1 p.m.

Winter Parking Rules 2013

To find out if a snow emergency has been declared call 617-770-7669 for a recording. If you have cable TV, tune to channels 8 or 11. On your computer, go to the City's web page at www.quincyma.gov.

You can also receive ALERTS directly to your personal e-mail or your cell phone by signing up at <http://www.quincyma.gov/CityLink/>. If a snow emergency has been declared, get further help by calling the Snow Hotline at 617-376-1927.

The following winter parking rules apply during every Snow Emergency.

No parking allowed on either side of Emergency Arteries during a Snow Emergency. Residents on side streets (non Emergency Arteries) are allowed to park on the ODD SIDE of the street this snow season. This is determined by which year the snow season begins. During odd year snow seasons (2013), parking is permitted on the odd side of the street. Overnight parking on the street is prohibited all year without a resident parking permit. Permits are available at the Quincy Police Department, One Sea Street. Vehicles in violation of winter parking rules will be towed at owner's expense. Also, if your vehicle is hampering snow removal operations (i.e. parked too close to an intersection, etc.) it will be towed. The average tow fee is $125, plus cost of storage. No exceptions can be made for short term parking.

The dangers of snow and ice begin at your front door. Be a good neighbor on snowy days.

New Central School Opens For Students Monday

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The new Central Middle School will open its doors to students next Monday (Oct. 21) following a ribbon cutting and open house Sunday.

The one feature of the new school that will not be finished before the school officially opens is the auditorium. City leaders said the auditorium is expected to be completed in a few more weeks.

"We are ready to open the new school on Oct. 21st as planned, but the auditorium will probably take another week or two to complete," Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro informed the school committee on Oct. 9th.

"All of the staff has been trained and the parent drop off information is being sent out. Teachers have had around four to six hours to really get to know the building and feel comfortable in there. They will have the opportunity to go in there a few more times if they want. We wanted to have enough time for the staff to be teaching and learning ready and I think we are there."

A ribbon cutting and dedication ceremony is planned for Oct. 20th at 4 p.m. where attendees will have the opportunity to walk through the new school.

Councillors Seek Cable Competition

By SCOTT JACKSON

Three city councillors want to allow new cable providers into Quincy to create competition and drive down prices.

Comcast is currently the only cable provider with a license to do business in the city. A resolution sponsored by Councillor Doug Gutro and co-sponsored by Councillors Kevin Coughlin and Brad Croall that will be introduced during Monday's meeting asks officials from Verizon, RCN, Charter Communications, and other cable providers doing business in the state to appear at a future meeting to gauge their interest in coming to Quincy.

Gutro explained that having more cable providers in the city would provide residents with a choice and could lead to competitive pricing and better programming options. He added that residents citywide have brought the issue to his attention.

"When I'm out knocking on doors it's an issue that you hear across the city," Gutro said. "I think it's a fair question."

The council last considered the issue of cable competition in 2008 or 2009, according to Gutro. At that time Verizon was asked if they would accept the same deal that Comcast has with the city, but they declined. Gutro said now is an opportune time to revisit the issue, since many surrounding communities have licenses with multiple cable providers.

"We figured enough time has passed and the market has changed. Many of the communities around us have gone from one cable company to two," Gutro said.

Past, Present Officials Divided Over Binding Ballot Question

Pros, Cons
Of A 4-Year Mayoral Term

By SCOTT JACKSON

City officials — including two former mayors — are divided about a Quincy Chamber of Commerce-backed referendum on the Nov. 5th ballot that would change the mayoral term from two years to four years.

Francis McCauley, who served as mayor from 1982 until 1990, has long supported extending the mayoral term to four years. In the past he backed efforts to amend the city's charter to change the mayoral term through a home rule petition in the Legislature, though none of those efforts were successful.

"The mayor's job has increased its job requirements. A mayor should have more leeway than a two-year job," McCauley said, adding that first-term executives are most effected, as they might only have one year to step into their new role before having to campaign all over again.

Planning Underway For QMC Maternity Ward, Upgraded Surgical Suite

By SCOTT JACKSON

After opening a new lobby, Quincy Medical Center's leaders are now working on a plan to open a new maternity ward and renovate its surgical suite.

The new two-story, glass-enclosed lobby was revealed at a ribbon-cutting ceremony Wednesday, Oct. 4. Located in rear of the hospital, the new lobby includes a centralized area for patient registration and new waiting areas. Donna Rubinate, the interim president of Quincy Medical Center, said the hospital has received positive feedback from patients who have used the $3 million lobby.

"It makes the hospital look nicer but it's about patient needs," Rubinate said in a recent phone interview. "Patients say they love it and the ease of registration. It makes for a pleasant atmosphere and the staff all love it."

The lobby is one just one of the projects QMC's parent company, Steward Health Care, has planned as part of a $30 million investment into the hospital.

Among the remaining projects is the creation of a new maternity ward – the hospital closed its maternity ward in 1998. The new, 22,000 square foot maternity ward will be located on the hospital's sixth floor. There is currently no timeline for when the maternity ward will open, as the hospital has to find space to accommodate facilities currently on the sixth floor.

"There are a lot of other things we have to do," Rubinate said. "It's sort of a domino effect."

Senate Passes Bill Expanding Veterans Services

Senator John F. Keenan announces the state Senate has unanimously passed comprehensive legislation, called The VALOR ACT II, to improve and expand the delivery of veterans' services.

"This legislation continues the proud tradition here in Massachusetts of supporting our veterans, active military personnel, and their families," said Keenan.

The legislation includes a requirement that all veterans' benefits and service officers in Massachusetts be certified and tested on knowledge of employment, education, health care, retirement and other veterans' benefits. There is currently no provision mandating such training or certification. "We are fortunate here in Quincy, and in the towns throughout the South Shore, to have extremely capable veterans' services officers," said Keenan, "but in some other areas of the state there is a greater need for training, particularly given the complexity of coordinating state and federal benefits."

The legislation also requires that the State establish guidelines for a veterans' home modification program. Presently, there is a long waiting list for home modifications, such as adding ramps and making interiors wheelchair accessible, and new guidelines will shorten that waiting list and streamline the process.

Also included in the legislation are provisions clarifying the term "Gold Star", which is widely used in the military community to identify a service member killed in action while on active duty, but this term is not currently defined by law. The bill also establishes a definition for killed in action, to distinguish between a family that lost a loved one in combat and a family that lost a loved one who was not in combat.

The legislation also:

- Makes "Gold Star" families eligible for funds from the Military Family Relief Fund;

- Updates the design of the license plate for individuals who have been awarded the Order of the Purple Heart to also read, "Combat Wounded," to clearly characterize the nature of this honor;

- Creates a new "Support our Veterans" license plate in honor of the men and women who have served in the U.S. Armed Forces;

- Expands the award qualifications for the Commonwealth's Medal of Liberty to include service men and women who die in service in a designated combat area in the line of duty

- Designates the Massachusetts Turnpike as the "Purple Heart Massachusetts Turnpike;"

- Renames Route 44 as the "Gold Star Highway," between the Towns of Plymouth and Middleborough;

- Prohibits a person from claiming to fundraise for a designated veterans' charitable organization when donations would benefit a different organization;

- Assists students who are called to active duty by allowing them to better coordinate future coursework or receive full refunds of fees or tuition;

- Allows private employers, at their option, to establish veterans' preference hiring policies;

- Increases the buffer zone of 500 feet to 1,000 feet for demonstrations at any military funeral; and,

- Creates a two-year veterans' court pilot program in Norfolk County.

The legislation now goes to the House of Representatives for consideration.

Coddington Hall Renovations Seen Done Next June

Old Quincy High School Site Cleared By End of Month

By EMILY ARMSTRONG
Coddington Hall renovations are on schedule and expected to be complete by next June and the site of the old Quincy High School is expected to be cleared by the end of the month along with repairs to the existing wall to begin late October early November.

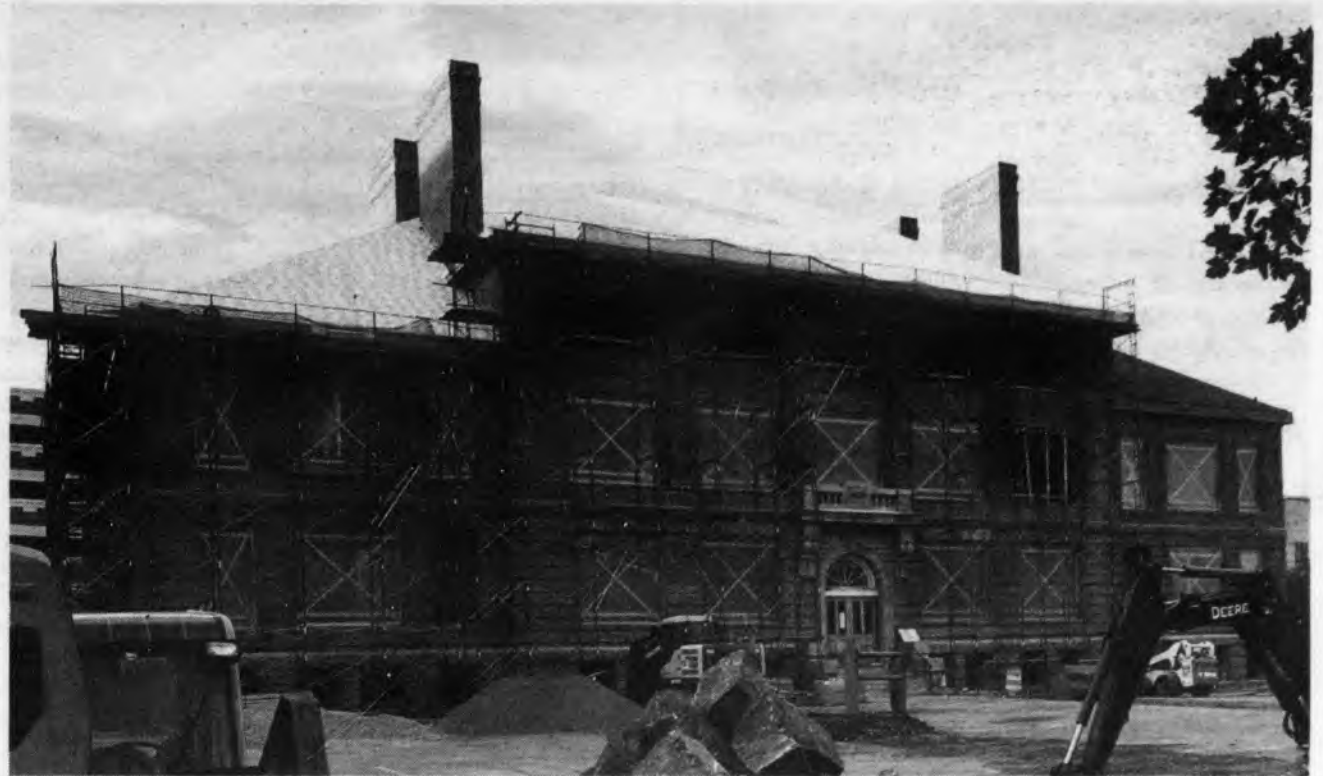

"We started the Coddington project in June and we're moving along really well on it, we're happy with the progress," said Project Manager for the Building Department Walter McDonald. "The building appears to be on schedule as far as everyone can see. It's moving along well and we anticipate a June completion."

McDonald told the school committee at a recent meeting that a laundry list of items has already been completed with even more pieces that have already begun to be worked on including window removal, roof removal, and the re-pointing of the chimneys.

"All of the abatement and demolition is complete. We've removed the old roofing and installed ice and water shields and we're ready to install the slate roof and the snow guards," said McDonald.

"Eighty percent of the building is re-pointed, the building has been washed twice, and in many areas it has been washed three times. It looks fantastic; the

RENOVATIONS AT Coddington Hall are on schedule and city officials say they expect the project to be completed by next June. Officials also said the adjacent site of the old Quincy High School should be cleared by the end of the month along with repairs to the existing wall to begin late October early November.

DOVE Vigil Remembers Domestic Violence Victims

BY KRIS KALABOKAS
The mood was somber and reverent at last Thursday's DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) vigil which took place at Wollaston's First Baptist Church, honoring victims who lost their lives due to domestic violence.

After the church choir sang "Home" by Heather Sorenson, a song whose lyrics promise peace and rest to the lonely and suffering, Pastor Mike Cunningham welcomed the crowd.

"A memorial service for people we have lost to domestic violence is like a multiple funeral," he said. "The grief of one family multiplied by many."

Sue Chandler, Executive Director of DOVE, Inc., spoke to the small, yet emotionally invested crowd about her mission.

"It's not a festive occasion," she said. "This is one of the services that we do every year to remember those whose lives have been lost in the wake of domestic violence—touched directly or indirectly; folks who have been touched directly or who have been bystanders or impacted."

"The good news is there are fewer domestic violence homicides this year; fewer names to read in memory."

Chandler emphasized that the vigil had an additional purpose; to reach out not only to those who had escaped the clutches of abuse, but to those still suffering at the hands of abusers.

"The work that we do every single day is intended to prevent what we're here tonight to acknowledge," she said. "In addition to the folks whose lives have been lost we also do want to honor those who have survived domestic violence or those who may be enduring domestic violence."

One by one, members of the community, including Councillor Doug Gutro, stood up and read a para-

Pros, Cons Of A 4-Year Mayoral Term

In addition to extending the mayoral term to four years, McCauley said he would be in favor of giving city councillors four-year terms and ending staggered terms for the School Committee so all officials would be on the ballot every four years. He noted that in Boston, where the mayor has a four-year term and the council has two-year terms, municipal elections in the years without a mayoral contest draw considerably less interest. If Quincy moved its municipal elections to a four-year cycle, the city would save upwards of $160,000 or more that it spends on election costs, McCauley explained.

"Eventually we should go to four-year terms for everybody," McCauley said. "It would be something people think about later on, especially if this one passes."

While McCauley supports the longer term, one former mayor disagrees. William Phelan, Quincy's mayor from 2002 to 2008, said he will vote against the question on election day, Nov. 5.

"I'm going to be voting against it," Phelan said. "A two-year term is appropriate. It keeps the mayor accountable and answerable to the people."

A four-year term, Phelan said, would magnify the advantages an incumbent has in an election, especially the ability to raise money for a campaign.

"With a four-year term an incumbent could raise close to three-quarters of a million dollars for his or her campaign's war chest," Phelan said. "It would be very difficult for anyone to challenge an incumbent with that kind of money."

Phelan added:

"While the business community has some valid points about the benefits of a four-year term to their community, it's not the benefits to the business community that should be paramount, it should be about what's best for the people."

School Committee member Anne Mahoney, who challenged Mayor Thomas Koch in 2011, agreed that having a four-year term for the city's chief executive would allow the mayor to accomplish more. But she would want the city to consider putting in place term limits that would prevent a mayor from serving more than two four-year terms in a row.

"I would want to investigate term limits," Mahoney said. "The mayor could serve two terms, take one off, and then run again."

Members of the City Council are also divided on extending the mayoral term. Council President Michael McFarland said he supports the referendum, because it would allow a mayor to focus less on campaigning and more on more on governing.

"I think it's a very good idea," McFarland said. "Most of the other towns around us — Braintree, Weymouth, Boston — have four-year terms. It gives the mayor a chance to lead and not worry about an election. I think it would be a positive for the voters."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, on the other hand, said he was opposed to the four-year term. He said the shorter term makes the executive more accountable to residents.

"Personally I will not be supporting this measure although I know and respect the fact that there are valid points for both sides," Croall said. "Keeping personalities aside and sticking to principles, if an individual has done their job, remained engaged, and made a positive impact as a leader in the city then I believe the voters will recognize that. On the other hand if they have not done these things then the voters will have the opportunity to notify them in two years versus waiting four years. That being said the good news is the people will have a chance to voice their opinions in November."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee is also opposed to extending the mayoral term. He said the present two-year term has been beneficial to the city.

"I'm not for the four-year term. I think the two-year term has served the city well — it gives the voters an early referendum on leadership," McNamee said. "I think the most desirable thing is for residents to be able to exercise their franchise more frequently."

Councillor Joe Finn also said he strong reservations about extending the mayoral term. He said the longer term would give an incumbent a strong fundraising advantage, and questioned how advisable having different terms for the mayor and council would be.

"Some people will say they have to be campaigning all the time (under the two-year term), but a four-year term gives the mayor a fundraising advantage," Finn said. "This would be a four-year mayor with a two-year council. I'm not sure how advisable that is."

Other councillors, including Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, said they saw merits in both four-year and two-year terms.

"I'm undecided at this point. I see value in the four-year term in terms of continuity but I still have concerns about accountability," Coughlin said.

"I think there are benefits to a four-year term but the two-year term has served Quincy well. A two-year term makes the mayor more responsive, and responsive is good," Palmucci said. He went on to add that four-year terms for mayors has led to less turnover in communities such as Boston, where Thomas Menino has served as mayor for 20 years, and in Braintree and Weymouth, where incumbent mayors haven't lost an election since those towns adopted a mayor-council form of government.

Councillor Doug Gutro said he would support whatever decision the voters make.

"Whatever the will of the voters is," Gutro said, "I'm for it."

Palmucci's opponent in next month's election, Michael Healy, said he would be in favor of the four-year term for the mayor, provided that the council's power is expanded as well. He recommended creating a charter commission to review the role of the council under a four-year mayor. Newton and Salem, cities with four-year mayors, have charter commissions.

"I'm for a four-year term. I would like to see provisions in the charter to give the council more authority," Healy said. "The city needs to take a strong look at the charter. Other cities and towns with a four-year term have charter commission."

Also in favor of the four-year term is Sen. John Keenan. A former city councillor, Keenan cited five reasons for backing the change. He said the extended term would eliminate the need for a mayor to fundraise every two years; provide continuity for long term projects, such as school construction and the downtown project; make appointed positions within city government more desirable to candidates; give the mayor's budget a chance to work in full; and reduce the effect politics has on executive decisions.

Koch, who is running unopposed for a fourth term two-year term in November's election, has declined to publicly take a position on the ballot question.

If the binding referendum passes in next month's election, the first election for a four-year term would take place in 2015.

Bricks Intended To Be Returned To City Hall Area

Planning for the new park in front of City Hall intends to incorporate the engraved bricks donated by residents years ago as part of any new design, officials said.

The bricks are now safely catalogued and stored, required to be removed by underground utility work related to the restoration of the old City Hall building. A new park plan, the Adams Green, will substantially expand the public space between City Hall and the First Parish Church in coming years, and the City intends to incorporate the bricks into that design, Mayor Koch's office said.

Mayoral Spokesman Chris Walker said the goal has always been to re-incorporate the bricks, and that is why they were carefully removed and preserved. In abundance of caution, the City outlined a potential back-up plan in which the bricks are not re-used. In that event, all of the engraved messages would be included on a new permanent monument and the bricks would instead be offered back to families to have as a keepsake.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1926 real photo postcard reproduction looking west on Beale Street in Wollaston from the foot of Winthrop Avenue which is on the left. Safford Park on the left was the site of the first Wollaston School built in 1873 and demolished in 1913 when the present school building was opened. On the right – on the corner of Safford Street – was the wooden Wollaston Methodist-Episcopal Church built in 1874. The school and the church were among the first buildings erected in this part of Wollaston when it was laid out for development in 1870. This church was one of five Methodist-Episcopal churches built in Quincy in the late 19th century; they have all been demolished. The corner where the church stood is now home to a commercial building with several small businesses. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

DeCristofaro Named QHS Hoop Coach

By SCOTT JACKSON

The School Committee appointed Richard DeCristofaro as the new basketball coach at Quincy High School, replacing Joe Amoroso.

DeCristofaro had spent the past three years as an assistant to Eddie Miller at North Quincy High after serving as the Red Raiders' freshman coach for one season and girls junior varsity coach for two years before that. Miller recommended DeCristofaro take the new job with the Presidents.

"I'm a Quincy High graduate and played there three years and I thought it would be fantastic," said DeCristofaro, who was captain of the Presidents basketball team during his playing days.

"I finally leaned toward it because Eddie Miller thought the time had come for me and he asked me to apply for the job. The only thing holding me back was leaving Eddie. He had been sort of a mentor."

Miller said he was delighted that his former assistant would now be coaching at the rival school.

"I'm delighted that Rich was appointed and he should do a fine job," Miller said. "He was outstanding as my assistant and I know he will pretty much use our system and our teams could look a lot alike this year. I wish him the very best."

Amoroso left the Presidents bench to become an assistant coach at Boston University. DeCristofaro scouted for Amoroso for one season before heading to North.

SCOTT GORDON BUILDING TO BE RAZED

The Scott Gordon Building, located on Chestnut Street in Quincy Center, was slated for demolition to make way for a parking lot.

The building had been home to the Quincy Market for many years. South Shore Bank purchased the building in 1981. The furniture store moved out then, and the building was left vacant. William Austin, president of South Shore Bank, said there was no long term property plans for the site, other than turning it into a parking lot.

"We hope to see it down by the end of the year," Austin said. "The Scott Gordon Property is not first on my list of priorities. At the moment the only plans are for it to become a parking lot. We are out for bids to get an estimate of the cost."

The previous year South Shore Bank also purchased the adjoining property, the Strand Theater, and it tore it down to make for an employee parking area.

Replace Or Refurbish Nickerson Beach Sign

The Nickerson Beach sign in Squantum should be refurbished and repaired.

According to Constituent Services, all Quincy beach signs will be replaced. In the meantime, the Nickerson Beach sign should be rehung to prevent it blowing away in a storm.

The Google Earth satellite photograph shows a large beach north of the Long Island Causeway also in Squantum. It is inaccessible because of a steep drop-off to the beach. A modest staircase could be built allowing access for Squantum residents and others.

Concerned Puppy Doe Torturer Still At Large

It has been more than a month since Puppy Doe was found – battered, abused, and broken – in a Quincy park, and her torturer is still on the loose. This should concern everyone.

Through my work in the areas of trauma and violence prevention, I know all too well that unless they are apprehended and receive proper treatment, people who abuse animals are rarely one-time offenders. Their crimes often escalate in severity and their targets often expand to include human victims. Albert DeSalvo (the "Boston Strangler"), Jeffrey Dahmer, Dennis Rader (the BTK killer), and many other serial killers also abused and killed animals.

Someone out there knows who tortured Puppy Doe.

Let's hope that he or she comes forward before this poor dog's abuser selects another victim.

'Good News' TV Church Program Marks 900th Show

On Sunday, Oct. 20th the "Good News" program will tape its 900th program which will air on Wednesday Oct. 23rd at 6 p.m. on Quincy Access Television Channel 8. A definite milestone in local community television history.

"Good News" began from an idea originated with Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon, then the pastor of Quincy Point Congregational Church, when the program began in November of 1991 and with the technical assistance of Bob Gohl, a television graduate from Emerson College in Boston and a lifelong member of the Quincy Point Congregational Church.

The program format was simple: record on videotape the Sunday morning service and deliver it to Quincy Access Television for showing to the entire city of Quincy. The mission: to spread the "Good News" of the church and religious beliefs to others in the community.

It took a considerable effort as there were no cameras, microphones or other equipment needed to do a quality television program. The Board of Deacons supported the concept as did the Board of Trustees financially and the members of the congregation that allowed cameras into the church.

The program began humbly. Eventually everything worked and most importantly, the congregation and the cable viewers in Quincy embraced the program and the cable audience has grown over time. Many heartfelt notes have been received complimenting the content and people appearing on the program.

The key to success has been teamwork. Bob Gohl has led the charge and continues to do so as the producer/director and has encouraged everyone to do their best and they have!

Team members have included: on cameras: Jack Bissett, the late Glen Sheriff, Robbie Kyler, Antonio Alves, Daniel Sweeney, Lauren Kearns, Lynda Page, and Ginny Lindsay. Joe and Gene Suzedell both camera operators and Assistant Directors.

Rob Kearns has been a cameraman, producer and director and the glue in the production team that makes it all work so well. He is a key to the success of the "Good News."

Other important players include: Franco Leon, Ben Maferri, for their musical expertise in leading our choirs and soloists, Don Smith for delivery of the tapes and DVD's to Quincy Access Television each week, the church secretaries: Janice O'Donnell and Peggy-Ann Murray, the church bulletins each week and to Laurie Gohl for printing the labels for the tapes and discs.

Finally and most important is Rev. Ann Suzedell. Her leadership, enthusiasm and support for the program and all it's parts is so important for the success of "Good News."

HEAVENLY DIAMONDS

Because diamonds have long been compared to twinkling stars, it is nothing short of ironic that they may be just that. This very interesting discovery comes via the Space Telescope Imaging Spectrograph on the Hubble telescope, which analyzed a mystery substance in dust clouds enshrouding newborn stars. When scientists compared its ultraviolet signature to that of diamonds discovered in some meteorites, they found such a tight match that they labeled their discovery "interstellar diamonds." Astronomers believe that the diamond grains (about a billionth of an inch across) were produced in the searing heat and extreme pressure of ancient supernova explosions. Based on this discovery, it is estimated that the Milky Way may contain trillions of tons of diamonds.

Fundraiser For Kevin Cellucci Nov. 2

Family and friends of Kevin Cellucci, a father of three critically injured in a car crash last month in Jamaica Plain, will hold a fundraiser to support his family on Nov. 2 at the IBEW Hall in Dorchester.

Cellucci, a finish carpenter with Local 40, was driving to work on Sept. 6 on the Arborway in Jamaica Plain. As Cellucci was driving, an SUV traveling in the opposite direction at an alleged 80 miles per hour crossed into Cellucci's lane and struck his vehicle.

Cellucci was critically injured in the crash, and has remained in a coma since. His cousin, Pete Alvarado, said the family remains optimistic that Cellucci can make a recovery.

"We're hopeful he can make a recovery," Alvarado said. "It's tough not being able to talk to him. It keeps wearing on you."

Cellucci, 33, has been married to his wife Tina for five years. They have three sons - Stephen, age 4; Declan, age 3, and Paul, who is just two months old. The fundraiser will help raise money for Cellucci's medical expenses and help out his family.

"[The fundraiser] is to get them comfortable," Alvarado said. "We're trying to do what we can."

The fundraiser will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 2, at the IBEW Hall, 256 Freeport St., Dorchester. The event will include entertainment, and live and silent auctions. Tickets cost $20 in advance of $25 at the door. To purchase tickets or donate items contact Alvarado at kevincelluccifoundation@gmail.com.

Dependable Cleaners Raising Funds In Fight Against Breast Cancer

In recognition of National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Dependable Cleaners is partnering with the Ellie Fund and its annual Do Good Campaign, raising funds for local families to ease the fight against breast cancer.

During October, Dependable Cleaners is offering 20 percent off the dry cleaning of all pink items. Five percent of the cost of dry cleaning these items will be donated to the Ellie Fund, a non-profit organization based in Needham. Dependable Cleaners has committed to raising a minimum of $1,000 for the Ellie Fund throughout the duration of the campaign.

Additionally, Dependable Cleaners asked fashionista Christina K. Pierce to help with some tips on how to wear pink in ways that will keep you looking fresh and trendy this fall season. Here are three stylish ways to incorporate pink into a wardrobe:

• Pink suede is a great way to add texture and a pop of femininity to any outfit. It pairs great with any neutral base such as beige or brown and even compliments navy and winter white. Incorporating pink suede into your footwear is a great way to spice up a desk to dinner outfit while grabbing drinks with your girlfriends.

• Contrast Trim: A more contemporary way to wear pink and incorporate some edge is to pair the color with black and grey. Selecting a soft blush pink is a great shade to pick when wearing this trend. Look for blouses with piping or contrast color collars to add a sharp contrast to an otherwise soft, feminine look.

• Cutouts are a fun way to set a top or cocktail dress apart from the rest and despite popular belief you don't need to be magazine toned to pull off the look. Look for shapes that are less form fitting and won't allow for cutouts to be too tight that can make even the tautest of skin look like it is trying to break free. Cutouts by the shoulders, decollete and arms are also ways to pull off the trend more subtly and conservatively.

Dependable Cleaners' participation in the Do Good campaign will run through Oct. 31st. Dependable Cleaners 16 locations are participating in the campaign, as well as their 30 home delivery areas. For a full list of locations, visit www.DependableCleaners.com. To learn more about the Do Good campaign, visit www.Elliefund.org/DoGood.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Rita's Raspberry Squares

While at my daughter Rita and Jonathan's home in Scituate, Rita was baking her delicious raspberry squares, which I had a chance to watch. Even though there are several steps in the recipe, it actually is not very hard to do.

Apricot preserve can also be used.

RASPBERRY SQUARES

Preheat oven to 325 degrees

Grease a large, heavy duty cookie sheet

3 cups flour

3 cups quick oats

2 teaspoons baking powder

2 cups brown sugar

12 ounces butter or margarine

20 ounces of raspberry or apricot preserves

- warmed in the microwave or double boiler for easy spreading

1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans (optional)

Mix the first four ingredients in mixer. Add the butter or margarine cut in small pieces, and mix well until well blended. Do not over mix.

Spread half of the mixture over large sheet pan, press down bottom layer to form crust.

Spread preserves evenly over bottom crust. Crumble remaining mixture over the top, and add the nuts if desired.

Bake at 325 degrees for approximately 40 minutes, until edges are browning and top is set. Allow to cool well before cutting into 24 even squares.

Caramel Rice Krispy Treats

Throughout the years of cooking and baking, I have made the children rice krispy treats dozens of times. They were one of the easiest desserts to make, and always a favorite.

Recently, I found a recipe for caramel rice krispy treats - so easy and such a wonderful flavor. We all liked it better than the original one.

CARAMEL RICE KRISPY TREATS

1 stick butter

1 cup brown sugar

1 bag small marshmallows

6 cups rice krispies

1- teaspoon salt

Melt the butter, and add the brown sugar. Cook on medium heat until smooth.

Add the marshmallows and the rice krispies and mix until well blended.

Spread on a greased cookie sheet and let set until squares can be cut easily.

million renovation of the hospital's surgical facilities. The project will include renovations to operating rooms, perioperative bays, and patient and family support space. At the moment, the hospital is determining which specific areas will need renovations.

"We're still trying to assess the number of suites that need to be upgraded now," Rubinate said.

Rubinate was named Quincy Medical Center's interim president in July, after serving as chief operating officer of Good Samaritan Medical Center in Brockton, which is also owned by Steward. She was named to the position following the resignation of Daniel Knell, who had been QMC's president since November 2011.

A recent by the Massachusetts Center for Health Information and Analysis found that the hospital lost $5.6 million over the first three months of 2013. But Rubinate said that the hospital should be able to reverse its losses if it continues to increase the number of patients it sees.

"We continue to make improvements and if we get some volume back here we should be able to change that," Rubinate said.

Christopher Murphy, a Steward spokesman present during the phone interview, also noted that the company expects it will take three or four years before a hospital begins to make a profit. Steward, a for-profit chain, purchased Quincy Medical Center in October 2011.

As a result of that state report, City Councillor Doug Gutro filed a resolution last month asking Rubinate and other Steward executives to appear before the council to provide an update on their plans for the hospital. The resolution was referred to the council's environmental and public health committee. When asked if Rubinate would appear before the council, Murphy said it was premature to make that determination.

"Seeing that it's in committee I think it would be premature for Donna to answer," he said.

Legislature OKs Increase In Downtown Liquor Licenses

By SCOTT JACKSON

Both houses of the state Legislature Tuesday passed a home rule petition that would grant the city 27 additional liquor licenses to be used in Quincy Center.

There are approximately two-dozen establishments in Quincy Center that currently have liquor licenses. Mayor Thomas Koch sought the additional licenses — 23 alcohol licenses, two hotel licenses, one beer and wine license, and a retail license — in anticipation of the $1.6 billion Quincy Center redevelopment project. The City Council approved the petition in January.

Licenses granted as a result of the petition would be specifically marked as such and would be non-transferable to any business outside the zone. The licenses would also have a $5,000 premium application fee on top of the $2,000 fee that's currently charged by the city.

The home rule petition will still require the signature of Gov. Deval Patrick before it is enacted.

DOVE Vigil Remembers Victims

graph describing the circumstances surrounding the deaths of people killed by their domestic partners in the last year.

The victims—men and women, old and young—were remembered and honored with the lighting of a candle and the ring of a bell following the telling of their stories.

The youngest victim, 19-year-old Tyshianna Atkins of Springfield, was allegedly shot and left on the sidewalk by her 22-year-old boyfriend Terrance Brown. Brown claimed Atkins had been targeted by a stranger who fled in a car, however police concluded Atkins had been killed by her boyfriend.

Emphasizing that domestic violence is not a problem restricted to young and middle-aged couples, the story of an anonymous 71-year-old substitute teacher was read aloud to the crowd. The woman, who was killed by her second husband in an apparent murder-suicide, had been married to the perpetrator for 18 years.

"... this year in particular a very visible, well-known public figure's... alleged murder of his girlfriend has brought a little bit of important attention to this issue," said Chandler, who was speaking of 27-year-old Jennifer Martel of Waltham. The incident dominated local news media due to the high-profile status of the alleged perpetrator—son of Major League Baseball broadcaster and former MLB second baseman Jerry Remy. Jared Remy has since pleaded not guilty to murder charges. Martel leaves behind a 5-year-old daughter who she fathered with Remy and who was in the home at the time of the murder.

Closing remarks were delivered by Detective Lieutenant of the Quincy Police Department Patrick Glynn who oversees the local domestic violence unit.

"Welcome to everyone because you're all part of our family," he said.

Glynn went on to relay an experience which left an indelible mark on him as a young officer.

"One of my first calls on my first evening was a domestic violence call and laws were a lot different [in 1986]," he said. "I had a 21-year-old woman...pulling on my pant leg with the tears coming down looking in my eyes to say 'help me.' I remember that every single day when I hear a domestic violence call, and there wasn't a lot we could do then, but luckily the laws have changed and we can assist people more."

"There's no doubt the Quincy Police is committed," he said.

Before Glynn finished addressing the crowd, he expressed his hopes for seeing the end to domestic violence.

"As we see some of the candles that are lit this evening, hopefully one night we can come here in the future where there are no candles to be lit."

A survivor of domestic violence who attended the vigil and wished to remain anonymous had a message for victims. "Do not be afraid to ask for help," she said. "People should teach people to try to help those that need help."

Her partner, who also wished to speak anonymously, stated that "as a friend or family member a lot of times it's hard for that person to listen to a friend or family member trying to tell them that what they're involved in is wrong, but you just have to try and lend that person the information and hope that they at least look into it."

New Central Opens Monday

6, 7, and 8, along with local school and city officials, plan to walk from the old Central Middle School, 1012 Hancock St., to the new school next Monday morning to mark the students first day in the new school. DeCristofaro said they plan to block off the portion of Hancock Street that the students will be walking that morning.

Before walking to the new school, a ceremony at 9 a.m. will take place at the old middle school where the sign will be taken down and carried to the new school. Mayor Tom Koch, along with the student "mayor" of Central Middle School, will unveil the new Central Middle School sign.

Public Buildings Director Gary Cunniff said the school is really beginning to take form with the final landscape and hardscape being completed, all of the furniture is moved in and most of the teachers have their books and material they need to finish out the year moved into their assigned classroom. Cunniff also noted that the kitchen equipment is in the kitchen and up and running and the custodial staff is being trained.

"I know that the custodians are in there frequently between moving but they are also available and scheduled for training on a number of the systems. The kitchen staff has received their training on a couple of days last week so they are all set, and the health department has seen the kitchen," said Cunniff.

"While challenging I think the project team is pursuing every aspect of the finishing touches to ensure we have a safe and functional school on opening day. It's really looking like a functional school. Obviously it's hectic but exciting at the same time, we are looking forward to it being finished. I think the building is an architectural show piece, it has some of the most inviting and well-lit equipped classrooms I've ever seen so I think it will be an architectural gem, certainly in the city system, in Massachusetts and probably beyond. It's quite a school."

School committee member Anne Mahoney asked Cunniff if there would be construction going on during school hours and if those workers will be or have already been CORI checked.

"Central is opening on the 21st, is the only thing that is not done is the auditorium?" Mahoney asked. "Who will be in the building when the students are in the building, this is the question parents have asked me as far as will the construction be complete or will there still be construction going on in the building and if there is construction going on in the building will those workers be CORI checked?"

"Yes there will be construction going on, primarily in the auditorium," answered Cunniff. "Everyone coming onto the site after school opens they're in the process of getting their CORI check filled. There will be a punch list of items to complete in the classroom wing and that will be done after school hours. If they don't have their CORI check filled they can't work."

Cunniff added that the auditorium would take about two to three weeks to complete depending on how quickly construction workers are CORI checked.

A black vinyl chain link fence has been installed and separates the new school from the hotel next door. Cunniff said that black slats could be placed between the links allowing for a solid looking fence if necessary. Cunniff also said that the commissioning of the school is on going and will be complete before opening.

The new $50 million middle school was originally set to open on Sept. 4th but the date was pushed back when the schools gym, cafeteria, and auditorium weren't complete. Eighty percent of the schools costs will be reimbursed by the Massachusetts School Building Authority, the highest state reimbursement rate possible after the Koch administration worked with the MSBA to involve the project in the state's Model School Program. Central is the first middle school in the state to be built under the model school program.

The old Central building opened in 1894 and housed Quincy High School before it became a middle school in the 1920s when a new Quincy High opened. The building has been discussed for replacement since the early 1970s.

Morrissey Sponsors Training On Emergency Response For Nurses

Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey sponsored a national training for Norfolk County's public school nurses, addressing how nurses can best integrate into a community's response to a school disaster - either natural or man-made - as part of his ongoing campaign to enhance school safety.

Eight Quincy Public School personnel were among the more than 80 nurses taking part in the day-long seminar: Rita Bailey, Noreen O'Connell, Jane Kisielius, Kathleen Torracco, Georgina Sullivan, Diane Coletti, Barbara Campbell and Nancy Tierney.

"We are thinking through every aspect of student safety and trying to provide Norfolk County schools with as many tools and as much training as we can to improve security," District Attorney Morrissey said after the conference. "Nurses form a natural part of the response to any school incident with injuries. We looked nationally, and this training program appeared to be among the best and most comprehensive available."

District Attorney Morrissey used funds forfeited in successful drug prosecutions to pay for the National Association of School Nurses' Chris Tuck, a Kansas-based trainer and member of her state's Committee on Safe and Prepared Schools, to come to Massachusetts and conduct the seminar.

Morrissey said the training was a natural next step after providing I.M.P.A.C.T. assessments, from the MetroLEC regional law enforcement coalition, for one school in each Norfolk County community this spring. The Incident Management Protocols and Critical Tasks - I.M.P.A.C.T. - program is designed to help schools and police decrease or prevent injuries if a violent school event occurs. Bank of Canton President Stephen Costello donated the use of the seminar room at his corporate headquarters, as he has repeatedly done for law enforcement trainings.

"The nurse's training, the I.M.P.A.C.T. evaluations, our school safety grant program - none of it would be possible without the partnership of local school, police and community leaders," District Attorney Morrissey said. "I want to thank the many nurses who attended and the administrations who are working with us to make our schools as safe as we can."

QMC Celebrates Opening Of New Lobby, Patient Registration Area

Employees, patients, community members and elected officials were on hand Oct. 9 at Quincy Medical Center (QMC) for a ribbon cutting ceremony celebrating the opening of its new lobby and patient registration area.

"I am pleased to welcome you today to help us celebrate the opening of this brand new lobby and patient registration area, which represent this hospital's ongoing transformation as Your New Quincy Medical Center," said Donna Rubinate, QMC's interim president. "While this space is beautiful, it is not just a cosmetic upgrade. It serves a very important purpose. It is a welcoming gateway that eases our patients' ability to register for their appointments, enables them to get the information they need quickly and efficiently, and facilitates their experience at the hospital."

Rubinate also detailed the numerous improvements that have been made in the two years since QMC joined Steward Health Care System, including new nurses stations, a new surgical unit on the second floor, a new radiology waiting area, renovated patient rooms, a major conversion of the Hospital Information System and the introduction of robotic assisted joint replacement, noting that these improvements would not be possible without the support of the leadership at Steward.

In his remarks to the audience, Mark Girard, president of Steward Hospitals, pledged Steward's ongoing commitment to and investment in Quincy Medical Center. Mayor Thomas Koch also greeted the group and reiterated his longstanding support for the hospital and its important role in the City of Quincy.

Rubinate also acknowledged the creative vision and talents of Steffian Bradley Architects and Suffolk Construction, who worked side-by-side with the facilities and project management teams at QMC and Steward to complete the project. In addition to the spacious lobby with soaring ceilings and glass façade, the easily accessible space includes comfortable appointed waiting areas and a patient-friendly registration area. The project also includes improvements to the parking lot adjacent to the lobby.

Recreation Dept. Holds 3 Vs. 3 Hoop Tournament

The Quincy Recreation department recently held its annual city-wide 3 vs. 3 basketball tournament. All teams in attendance earned an opportunity to represent their park by placing in their respective district tournaments.

Competitors were broken up into three divisions by age: Midgets (Ages 8-10), Juniors (11-12), and Seniors (13-16). Recreation leaders referee games in which competing teams play to 11 points or 8 minutes, whichever comes first, with girls and boys competing separately. Sports Specialists Colin Ryan, Paul Carson, and Eddie Grennon ran the event.

In the Midget Boy's division the championship saw youngsters from Beechwood and Fore River parks matched up in an epic battle for the title. Beechwood took the lead early, riding the passing of Michael Levine and Matt Kelly's hot shooting from the field. Shawn Kozlowski and Harrison Stengel showed great teamwork for Fore River as they kept it a close game, but in the end Beechwood would prove to be the better team. Patrick Bates and Scott Gutro both played great in the championship for Beechwood, while Paige Maza and Jacorey Wiggins showed good hustle for the runners-up.

The Midget Girls championship came down to Perkins and O'Rourke playing in a deciding game three. Fallon Hobin and Ashley Grehan showed their sharp shooting and Maggie Lynch provided a huge energy boost as Perkins gave it their all in what was a close game until the end. O'Rourke would go on to win it because of the great play of Kenzie Matulonis. Melissa and Caitlin Ainsley showed great teamwork and scoring skills as they all worked together to win another championship for O'Rourke.

In junior division action, the boy's championship saw two teams from Forbes Hill matched up against each other. James Crump, Aaron O'Toole, and JJ Camera had a well-balanced attack and played well. Their competition, however, would be too much as the other Forbes Hill team won the championship because of the shooting of Colby St. Marie and the offensive talents of twins Colin and Brendan Keaveny.

The Junior Girl's championship saw Labreque and O'Rourke set against each other in what was a very exciting game. Priscilla Boni-ca and Julianna Tracey both scored some nice buckets and Abigail Hanly played tenacious defense in a game that was neck and neck the entire time. For O'Rourke, Olivia Murray was seen dribbling around the competition and Sarah Ainsley used her height advantage inside to power her team to victory.

The senior division was hotly contested, with Mass Fields and Montclair moving on from tournament play to face each other in the championship game. The teams were very well matched with Montclair players Wilson Chen and Matt Eagles making plays early. Dhaaky Drake and Conor Pound both played hard for Mass Fields and Jack Loughnane hit some shots to cut what was a sizable Montclair lead.

In the end, the sharp shooting duo of Jackie Chen and Matt Gerakis was too much for Mass Fields to handle, and Montclair would walk away senior division champions.

Overall, the event was very well attended and was a huge success. Players from all age divisions and ability levels showed great teamwork and sportsmanship. Congratulations to all who participated.

Coddington Hall Renovations Seen Done Next June

mortar on the building is in great shape. We've rebuilt all the chimneys and re-pointed them and they look fantastic. All windows have been removed and we've put temporary protection in their place. The roof has been insulated with foam insulation and weather tight.

"We're actually in the process of completing the school committee room with the help of the school department, (Supt.) Dr. (Richard) DeCristofaro, Keith (Segalla). We're also working on that space with QATV and their audio visual and lighting consultants. We're also finishing up the security on the building, what we want for cameras, areas to be locked, card access," added McDonald.

Gary Cunniff, Public Buildings Director, updated the school committee on the progress of the old QHS site.

"We spent a large part of the summer doing abatement of hazardous materials at the old high school, and to say the obvious the building is gone now, it was down before school started," said Cunniff.

"We expect that the contractor who is currently working there will have the site clear of all the demolished materials before the month is over. As a part of his contract he is to basically make the site safe, so he will eliminate any kind of hazards in terms of cliffs that may have occurred, stabilize the soil and he'll be done."

Cunniff said that there are two aspects of the old QHS lot project that they are looking to finish.

"One is, since the old building came down on the new building you notice there is kind of a bare section of wall. We elected to finish that wall off, we've elected to use a combination of the matching red brick with some metal panels that match the top floor of the high school now, to sort of break up the facade and architecturally integrate it into the rest of the building," Cunniff said.

"The other aspect is there is a big patch of land where the old high school stood that's been discussed, designed, and refined. We've had a team of landscape designers, architects, we've had good input from the school department, the principal, the mayors office, public buildings, civil engineers so we've really planned a really beautiful expansion of the Quincy High School site and campus.

"It will end up being a large grass area, a large flat area in the middle suitable for playing on, we've got some sunny areas for sitting, a lot of trees, both for shade and to kind of soften the edges of some areas and kind of also screen the parking garage and some of the detractive areas but nicely framing the new Quincy High," added Cunniff.

Some features of the plan for the lot include a small picture memorial of the old building along with the corner stone and a walkway through the fenced-in site.

"We are going to incorporate some type of a small picture memorial of the old high school along with the corner stone of the old building, which we salvaged," said Cunniff.

"There's a walkway through the site as well as a fence that does several things. One it keeps the site lines. It also sort of delineates what we feel is the Quincy High campus, and not such a public area from where we still want the public to take advantage of the space out there. Even though the entire site is not fenced and gated the fence that we are proposing serves as a nice way to delineate the campus without having it exclusive or segregated.

"I think the whole project will tie in nicely to link, cohesively, the downtown development with the work going on at Coddington and just linking Quincy High with that entire area."

Red Raider Rally Falls Short Against Middleboro

By BILL GRIFFIN

In the end, it was not so much a game decided by 14 points. It was a game decided by two turnaround fourth-down plays.

Middleboro converted a fourth-and-14 deep in North Quincy territory in the second quarter to maintain momentum and build a comfortable lead. On fourth down from the Middleboro eight midway through the fourth period, North Quincy had a screen pass set up just right, but it was tipped away by the pass rush which ended the Red Raiders' last, best chance.

The Sachems jumped to a 15-point halftime lead and then held off a strong North Quincy rally over the final two quarters for a 28-14 decision over the Red Raiders in a Patriot League contest on Homecoming Day in Middleboro Saturday afternoon.

"I was very happy with our second half," said North coach Mark Nutley whose club fell to 1-4 with the loss. "We could have folded, but we didn't. That's something we can build on. The fourth-down plays played a big part in the game."

North opened with a scoring drive about which coaches dream. It took 17 plays, covered 78 yards, produced six points and killed all but 1:04 of the first quarter. The Sachems rallied for a 7-6 lead, but were stalled with a fourth-and-14 at the North 28. A stop here, North gets the ball and its dangerous senior tailback Antoine Allen, who had 102 yards in 18 carries, 52 return yards and a two-point conversion run after North's second touchdown, gets more touches in a one point-game.

Instead, Middleboro quarterback Cody DiBiase found Paul Sances in a crease in the North secondary for 25 yards and first down at the three. Two plays later DiBiase scored and the Sachems went on to build a 21-6 halftime lead on a five-yard run by Casey Tucker.

"We missed a coverage on the fourth-down play. Mistakes happen, but that's a situation where the defense has to get off the field on fourth down," said Nutley.

North's defense gave only seven points after halftime. They hit harder and put up a touchdown when senior Alex Chen (also a key fumble recovery) picked a bobble out of midair in the Middleboro backfield and returned it 43 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter.

The Red Raiders were within 28-14 early in the fourth when they started a drive from their 30. Allen and Dayvon Jones shared the running load. Jones had a 14-yard run. Allen had a 12-yard blast.

Quarterback Andrew Kiley (5-13, 67 yards) hit Zach Dangora, who took a tough hit to make the catch, for 22 yards. Kiley set up runs for Jones and Allen on the march with crisp faking and ball-handling.

"Andrew handled the ball very well. It helped the running game," said Nutley.

North moved to the Middleboro seven. On third down, Allen looked to have a hole in the middle of the line on a trap play, but he slipped. If he doesn't slip, he scores. On fourth down, North called a screen pass. Kiley drew the defense towards him, Allen was clear in the flat with blockers in front, but the Middleboro rush tipped away the ball to end the threat.

"We had a screen pass called and it was right there," said Nutley. "Antoine was open, but they tipped the ball away. Antoine did have an opening on third down. He just lost his footing. If we score there, it's a 28-20 or 28-22 game and who knows what happens."

Allen was the focus of the first-quarter march which took more than ten minutes off the clock. He powered for 43 yards on the drive behind the blocking of Vinny Tran, Nick Manning, Don Sharp, Derek Hounh, Seamus Broughton and Dangora. Kiley hit Jones for 15 yards, Matt Donovan for six, and Donovan for eight for the touchdown.

"I think the big Homecoming parade they had right before kickoff might have given us a little motivation. We just basically ran the same play to Antoine," said Nutley. "It's hard to say enough about Antoine. He's just a tough, tough kid, and he's a threat every time he touches the ball."

Donovan's catch on the scoring play was like something from television's best on a Sunday afternoon. It was highlight-reel stuff. He leaped in the far corner between two defenders. While falling backwards, he tipped the ball in the air and caught it one-handed as he hit the ground. Watch a lot of high school games, and it would be hard to find its equal.

"It's funny, we call Matt 'the old man,'" said Nutley. "He always has some ailment or other, and we kid him about it. That was a great catch. Not only was it one-handed, there were two defensive players right there."

Sports Round-Up

By BILL GRIFFIN

James O'Shea and Cian Moriarty scored to give Quincy boys soccer team a 2-2 tie with Whitman-Hanson in Patriot League action last week.

The Presidents lost senior keeper Conor Dane to injury in the match.

In other action, Quincy fell to Hingham and Silver Lake.

"We have some tired legs," said coach Mark Spendlove. "The boys are playing hard and we are working for the last three points we need to make the tourney."

Quincy is at Randolph Thursday (4 p.m.) and faces North Quincy at Veterans Stadium at 4 p.m. Saturday.

A.K. Nguyen and John Lopes each scored twice to lead North Quincy's boys soccer team to a 4-3 win over Middleboro in a Patriot League match last week.

Paolo Filippi and Ivan Zeng each had assists. Joey England played well in goal and Zeng was solid on defense for the Red Raiders.

In other action, North fell to Scituate (5-1) and Pembroke (5-0). Eftim Butka scored for North in the Scituate game on an assist from Miguel Alfonso.

"The boys are playing their hearts out, but injuries keep hurting us," said coach Rich Hanlon. "We were down to 12 players for one match. We're trying to get healthy for our final week."

Quincy's volleyball team rolled to a 25-9, 25-18, 26-24 win over Hingham in a Patriot League match Friday. Earlier last week, the Presidents fell in four games in a non-leaguer against Fontbonne.

Quincy finished the week with a 10-4 record.

NQ Girls Cross Country Chasing Title

North Quincy Red Raider girls are on a path to the Patriot League Fisher Division championship and can do no less than tie for it due to the fact that Scituate has already beaten Pembroke.

The Raiders have a bye this week and will run in the Frank Kelley Two-Light Invitational down at the Barnstable County fairgrounds in Falmouth.

The Pembroke meet is Oct 22 on the Titan's home 2.75-mile course. The girls defeated Scituate last week on the heels of a 1-2 finish by Emily and Julia Bryson. Emily eclipsed her old course record of 15:17 set last year against Pembroke, with a 15:14 wire-to-wire run.

Samin Charepoo and Marguerite Belcher were 4-5 and Amelia Ho was 12th to secure a 24-36 win.

Freshman standout Julia Brady was out with a knee problem as was Emily Zheng.

The Quincy girls lost 26-34 but had great performances from Inayah Paul(2), LaQueen Arias(3) and Victoria Deery(5) but Maryanne Ly could only muster 19th. Scituate has great depth at the 4-13th runners, all running within 15 seconds of each other.

"Everyone is getting faster, times are coming down nicely as we get fit and the weather cools down" said Head Coach Geoff Hennessy. Indeed all girls ran their best times of the year on the 2.5-mile Pageant field course.

On the boys side North Quincy's Mike Mullaney again was victorious in 14:01. Sophomore Peter Saccoach of Quincy and freshman Jimmy Cannon of North were 2nd and 4th. Neither team could muster a win but the rest of the runners are mostly freshmen boding well for the future and there will be a freshman boys race at the Cape Invitational.

"We have seven hard working young freshmen and their coming out party will be the 19th down the Cape," said Hennessy. The freshman run a shorter 2.1-mile course while the sophs, JV and varsity all run a three-loop 3.1-mile course around the fairgrounds. The races are run "under the lights" which is a concept started in Texas and California. It was the brainchild of Jim Hoar, Dennis Yarmouth coach and Quincy High grad '66.

"The kids can't wait for this meet, and frankly neither can I," said Hennessy.

Red Raiders Still In Hunt For Postseason Spot

Pembroke Defense Frustrates NQ Offense

By BILL GRIFFIN

The issue for North Quincy's girls soccer team was not the quality of their play. The issue was turning scoring chances into goals.

Pembroke scored twice in the first six minutes and then set up a defensive wall backed by goalie Allie Bostwick for a 3-1 decision over North Quincy who controlled most of the Patriot League match at Veterans Stadium Friday night.

The loss dropped North to 6-7-2 and as of the end of last week, the Red Raiders needed six points in their final five matches to make the post-season tournament.

"I thought we outplayed them," said North coach Paul Bregoli. "I thought we had the better of the play and more chances. We have had trouble scoring lately and that's what happened tonight. We just didn't put enough balls in the back of the net."

After scoring two early goals, the Titans went into lockdown mode, focusing their efforts on protecting their lead and frustrating the North Quincy attack especially talented junior forward Courtney Campo who was frequently marked by at least one and frequently several players. The defensive strategy worked because of Bostwick who robbed North several times in close and also roamed far and wide to control the ball and break up scoring threats.

"They play a direct defensive style which we hadn't seen before and that may have played a part," said Bregoli. "Their goalie was excellent and their fullbacks kept us from getting too close to her which helped her out."

North nearly evened the score and could have well taken the lead in the minutes immediately following Pembroke's early two goals. Delia Devane made a steal and drive on net which Bostwick stopped. Senior midfielder Abby Smith sent in Molly Donahue with a through ball for a clean shot which Bostwick handled.

Devane closed it to 2-1 with 28:58 left in the half. Campo ignited the play, dribbling and rushing through a pack of Pembroke defenders and making a perfect cross to Devane who hit the open corner for the goal.

"Delia had a good clean finish on the goal and she could have had least one more," said Bregoli. "Campo made a nice play to set it up. Molly Donahue played a great game for us."

After that, it was a pa-

Girls Soccer

rade of opportunities for North, especially for Campo who shook free from Pembroke's defensive clamp for a fistful of chances. She sliced through an opening for a clean breakaway which Bostwick turned back. Her quickness forced a foul and a direct kick for Donahue which sailed just high. She one-timed a rebound from a blast by Haley Houlihan which Bostwick turned back. A terrific feed from Donahue set up Campo for a rocket which rattled off the post after cleanly beating Bostwick.

"Courtney played great and she had chances. That shot she came out off the post was a huge play," said Bregoli.

Minutes later, Smith sent in Ciara Forde, but Bostwick turned back another shot. The trend continued in the second half. Donahue, who did a great job on corner kicks all night, set up several scoring chances in front. The best came at the 20:00 mark of the second half. Campo controlled the corner. Her first shot was blocked and the rebound flew high over the crossbar.

"We were right there all night. We created chances, we just didn't capitalize," said Bregoli. "We also had a couple of breakdowns we don't usually have."

Terese James and Julianne Watts scored Pembroke's early goals, and Watts made the final 3-1 on a breakaway in the second half.

Despite fighting through multiple injuries, North played well and the Red Raiders had several standouts. Smith and sophomore Marissa McGue had fine games in midfield. McGue moved back from the attack line and played strong, aggressive soccer. She won countless one-on-one battles. She dribbled, passed and rushed the ball from defense to offense before leaving with a leg injury late in the second half.

Smith showed great ball control and set her attack in motion with short, crisp passes. Devane and Campo were excellent up front. Senior Arianna Viscione controlled the fullback line with blocks, outlet passes and a strong leg which cleared away scoring threats well past midfield.

"I moved Marissa back because Pembroke's best player is in midfield. I thought Marissa outplayed her," said Bregoli. "I thought it was, by far, Abby Smith's best game of the year. She kept it simple and moved the ball well. Arianna was excellent once again despite playing with a strain in her knee."

Earlier last week, Scituate dropped North, 5-0. Forde had a drive which hit the crossbar with North trailing, 1-0 just before halftime. Houlihan had a good scoring chance, while McGue, Donahue and Alyx Patey played solid games.

North is at Abington (4 p.m.) on Friday.

Gritty Quincy Showing Progress

By BILL GRIFFIN

There is a goal she set for her team which Quincy soccer coach Courtney Harnais has talked about since the first match of the season. She wants a full measure of effort from her club for 80 minutes no matter the score, the opponent or the situation. No excuses. Play hard from the opening faceoff to the final whistle.

Quincy delivered exactly that and maybe a bit more in last week's match with Hingham.

Hingham scored twice in the final 20 minutes for a 3-1 win over the Presidents at Veterans Stadium, but the quality and grit of Quincy's play revealed exactly how much progress they have made this season.

"I thought Quincy played a great match, they played hard right until the final minute," said Hingham coach Ryan Puntiri. "I've been here eight years and this is by far the best Quincy team, and the best performance I've seen from them."

Hingham (8-3-1) is a traditional power in the Patriot League. The Harbor-men are annual league and tournament threats. They are highly-skilled and well-coached. Last year the score might have been 6-0 or 7-0 with Quincy fading at the end. Last week, it was a competitive, well-played match with the Presidents player harder and better as the match wound towards its end despite missing three key players with injuries.

"It's a mentality I want the players to have. We work on it and talk about it every day. Play hard until the end," said Harnais. "I also think we're playing smarter soccer. We're not trying to outrun the soccer ball. We're passing it and that is less tiring."

Quincy played without three key players in Colleen Madden, Julia Donovan, and SIX PAST AND present captains and teammates of North Quincy girls soccer recently got together at a recent game between Framingham State University and the University of Southern Maine. Kayla McArdle. There was little depth. Players were working through injuries. It was not an easy ride.

The score was tied 1-1 at intermission. However, despite Hingham's two late goals, the battle for territory and scoring chances was more even in the second half. Part of the reason was the effort never diminished and part of it was the work of junior Olivia Wallace and sophomore Gabby Jerehian who took over in the midfield and smoothly changed defense into offense.

"I'm hard on both of them because technically they are so sound. They are capable of a great deal on the soccer field," said Harnais.

Wallace used a booming kick and strong rushes through the middle of the field while Jerehian settled loose balls, dribbled and passed crisply, and moved back on the outside to help the fullback line.

"Gabby has great footwork and Olivia is strong with the ball," said Harnais.

Senior keeper Natalie O'Donovan backboned her team's effort. She was steady and sure in the face of Hingham's attack, stopped 17 shots and controlled the ball well. She had no chance on the three goals. She had two beautiful saves with the score tied 1-1 early in the second half. She robbed Emily Rosso who was in clear at the right corner of the net and made a diving stop on a Julia Patterson drive from 15 yards out which was ticketed for the far corner.

"A good goalie can influence a game. She can change the momentum in the blink of an eye with a big save. That's what Natalie does for us," said Harnais.

Sweeper Lauren Matthews was excellent again blocking shots and roaming from sideline to sideline to break up Hingham attacks. Michelle Lam, Emily Hatfield, Tayla Tervakoski, and Stacey Gallagher all played hard and well. Quincy's trio of freshmen: Nina McDonald, Joelle Robinson and Ali MacPherson continued to show they are solid varsity players at a young age.

"I thought Lauren was great," said Harnais. "She's playing with a leg injury, but her defense was fantastic."

Hingham marked well Quincy's gifted junior forward Emily Papile with one and, at times, two defenders. Still, she broke free for a rush which set up Quincy's goal, ignored the special attention, and played an effective all-around match.

"You have to watch her at all times because she is so dangerous," said Puntiri.

"The word is getting around the league. Emma is getting special attention," said Harnais. "What I liked tonight was she came back from the forward line and helped us in midfield. She helped connect the offense to the defense for us."

After Eve Hewins put Hingham up, 1-0 with under 10 minutes left in the first half, the Presidents tied it just before intermission. Papile flew up the right wing, made a strong cross which skipped to the far post. Dominique Lucier was well-positioned. She kept her poise, controlled the ball and calmly tucked it into the corner to tie it at 1-1 with 2:38 left before halftime.

Patterson scored twice for Hingham in the final 20 minutes for the margin of victory.

"I liked the way we played the whole match. Like everyone, we're battling injuries, but the girls maintained their effort for 80 minutes," said Harnais.

In other action last week, Quincy (4-10) lost to Whitman-Hanson, 3-0. Hatfield and Lam played strong matches for the Presidents. Quincy hosts Randolph Thursday at 3:30 p.m.

PREGNANCY AND DENTAL CARE

There was once a time when pregnant women were cautioned against scheduling dental exams, but all that has changed. Now, in recognition of the fact that hormonal changes associated with pregnancy can exert significant effects on dental and oral health, pregnant women are being encouraged to visit the dentist before, during and after their pregnancies. Bacterial growth in our mouths that is influenced by hormones has the potential to create problems related to bone density, as well as to potential difficulties in pregnancy. With this in mind, pregnant women and those with intentions of having children have every reason to visit the dentist. In fact, pregnant women should view dental visits as part of their comprehensive parental care.

Too many pregnant women are not getting timely dental care. Dental treatment during pregnancy is considered beneficial and delaying oral care may be capable of having serious consequences. We keep abreast of all the new techniques that are available in today's world of dentistry. Call 617-479-6220 today and schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com. P.S. Hormonal changes experienced by (post-)menopausal women should prompt regular visits to the dentist.

Cal Ripken All-Stars Honored By City Council

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council recently honored the dozen members of the Quincy's Cal Ripken 12-year old All Star Team that competed in the Cal Ripken World Series over the summer.

The team was one of 10 teams nationwide to compete in the Cal Ripken World Series, held in Hammond, Ind., in August. Quincy advanced to the World Series after defeating Raynham to capture the Eastern Massachusetts title before going undefeated in New England regional play. Many of the players on this summer's squad also won the New England title in 2012 as 11-year-olds, though there is no World Series for that age group. Councillor Doug Gutro said the team's success was an inspiration to athletes throughout the city.

"Make no mistake, what you have accomplished gives inspiration to every Quincy athlete in any sport," Gutro said. "Thanks to a terrific youth sports program, amazing volunteer leaders and coaches, each of you have proven that Quincy student-athletes can compete with the best teams in the country and we're supremely proud of you."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin thanked the team's coaches and parents for helping making the team's success possible.

"We are tremendously blessed in this city, not only with great parents and volunteers but all those who support youth programs," Coughlin said. "Obviously there's talent that is latent in all these young men who are here tonight, but it wouldn't happen if it wasn't for the coaches who are sitting here and the parents who make sure the kids all get to the practices and the games and get the equipment they need and support the program."

"Congratulations to you all," Council President Michael McFarland said. "You've brought immense pride to the city and also you look like you had a lot of fun doing it."

Mike Lynch, the president of Quincy Youth Baseball, told the council the squad's team-first mentality is what gives them an edge over their competition, and embodies what the organization tries to instill in its players.

"What these players accomplished is truly remarkable. There are over 4,000 teams that start the season with the hope of getting to the Cal Ripken World Series and these guys are one of 10 teams to reach that dream," Lynch said.

"They're obviously a talented team at the plate and in the field, but what sets them apart is their team-first mentality and their approach. The 12 players and four coaches all have the same mindset, they truly embody what our league tries to teach our kids. They're kind of like this year's Red Sox team, except they don't have the beards."

Mark Free, the team's head coach, thanked the squad's parents and his coaching staff – Tom Nazzaro, Gerry Frazier, and Tim Kelly – for making the season possible.

"It doesn't happen by itself, it is a huge commitment for the families," Free said. "You talk about the third place – home, work, the baseball field was our third place this summer. We spent a lot of time together and it's an outstanding group of parents, an outstanding group of players, and an outstanding group of coaches."

NQ Defeats Brockton, Pembroke, Hingham Red Raiders Volleyball Improves To 13-1

By BILL GRIFFIN

The true test comes on the road. At home, the living is easy. The gym is familiar, the crowd is friendly, every quirk and bounce of the floor is known well.

On the road against a quality team, it is tough. The setting is strange, the crowd is hostile. The foreign gym is packed and the level of noise roars grows louder with each point. Mistakes are cheered. The pressure and tension are greater, and if a team survives a hard challenge on the road, it has taken a huge step forward.

North Quincy's volleyball team met and passed its test at Brockton last week. Senior Carolyn Schwartz played another brilliant match. The Red Raiders showcased tenacious defense digging out balls and keeping points alive from start to finish for a 3-1 decision over the Boxers in a non-league contest.

The 25-23, 25-18, 19-25, 25-19 decision put an exclamation point on an excellent week for North. The Red Raiders also swept past Pembroke and Hingham in Patriot League action, and finished the week with a 13-1 record.

"We lost the last two times we traveled to Brockton," said coach Kerry Ginty. "It was great for the team to experience that kind of atmosphere. The crowd was loud and noisy. It was like a tournament setting. I was pleased with the way we responded."

Schwartz, who is establishing herself as one of the finest players in the league and on the South Shore, played a match which covered offense and defense, kills and digs, serves and blocks. Just as she did in the Quincy match, she gave her team what it needed to win. Against Brockton, that meant she gave her team everything.

Her line of 13 kills, 13 digs and five blocks shows well the variety of talents she brought to North's victory.

"She was all over the floor," said Ginty. "She played defense in the middle, she had kills at the net. She kept points alive. Carolyn is a leader. She's a positive, energetic player and she's always trying to improve."

The key to the victory was the defense and the key to the defense was North's hustle which kept countless points alive. The Red Raiders were missing their libero player Nancy Huang. Ivy Pham stepped in with 23 digs. Angela Kou had 22 digs and 20 assists. Jane Minton had nine digs and Cindi Hazelton chipped in with eight. Add the digs from Schwartz, Minton, Pham, Hazelton, and Minton, and the total is 76. That is 76 points five players kept alive by going to the floor to get the ball.

"Our defense led us," said Ginty. "We got a lot of balls back and when you do that, you force mistakes. The hitters are frustrated and they try to do too much. This leads to errors."

The defense was especially important as North raced out to a two-game lead. Neither team had a consistent net game in the first two sets, so North went with its strength which is playing steady volleyball, limiting mistakes, playing each point to its last breath and forcing Brockton errors.

"The way the first two games developed, there really weren't a lot of good hitting opportunities," said Ginty. "So we volleyed with them and tried to be consistent. Some of the points were unbelievable. One had to go back and forth over the net 15 times. We tried to force errors because in volleyball, the team that makes the fewest errors usually wins."

Brockton's hitters warmed up and posted a win in the third game. It was now 2-1. The crowd was into the match. The sound in the gym built and built. This is life on the road. North responded, by not only staying steady on defense, but by adding another dimension at the net in the fourth game.

"In the fourth game, we had a lot of kills," said Ginty. "Our hitters warmed up and we started setting the ball in good position for them."

Along with 13 put-aways from Schwartz, Maya Umoren added 11 kills and Lauren Magoon had seven. Isabelle Flaherty had five kills. Hazelton added eight assists while Umoren and Abby Mayo had two aces apiece.

"Maya, in particular, had a big final game. We made smarter decisions at the net," said Ginty. "Lauren Magoon played a great match. Angela was very solid on defense and set the ball well for our hitters."

With the season more than half over at the end of last week, North had won 13 of 14. The only loss came by two points in five games against Duxbury. This is a solid, experienced team which is getting steadily better and Ginty hopes the development continues in the stretch run for the Red Raiders.

"I'm pleased that we have stayed as focused as we have been," said Ginty. "I've seen no drop-off in intensity in game or at practice. We have a lot of seniors and their leadership has played a big role."

In other action last week, North swept to 3-0 victories over Pembroke and Hingham. Against Pembroke, Schwartz had seven kills and five blocks. Magoon (four kills, four assists), Huang (12 digs), Minton (seven digs), and Hazelton (six digs, 14 assists) all played well. Camille Mullaney, who will likely fill in for the injured Natasha Sautter, had a solid match with four kills and four blocks.

"Camille will play some in that spot. She's a strong blocker," said Ginty. "Gabby Flaherty will also see a lot of action for us."

Against Hingham, Umoren served well and mixed in nine aces with three kills to lead the Red Raiders. Mullaney had seven kills while Hazelton added five kills and three blocks. Huang had 12 digs and three assists while Isabelle Flaherty chipped in with four kills.

North Quincy is at Duxbury tonight (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m. in a battle for first place in the league and a chance to reverse the two-point loss earlier this season to the Dragons.

NIGHT MOVES

Chronic neck and/or shoulder pain sufferers should check to see if their pillows may be adding to their woes. First of all, individuals with neck pain should avoid sleeping on their stomachs with their necks turned to their sides because this positioning compresses the cervical (neck) joints. When sleeping on their sides or back, neck-pain sufferers should choose a pillow with a thickness equal to the space between their neck and shoulders. Doing so will help maintain the head and neck in neutral positions. If shoulder pain is also a problem, sleepers should avoid sleeping on the side with the painful shoulder. It is better for them to sleep on their backs with a small pillow supporting the bad shoulder.

Tennis Tournament Marks 43rd Year With 146 Matches

It was forty three years ago when the Quincy Recreation Department started the unique tradition of gathering city residents to see who among them would be the best tennis players in the City and be crowned City Champion. In a tournament that has been honored by the New England Tennis Association and is considered the longest uninterrupted municipal sponsored tournament in New England, Quincy residents answered the call in large numbers to once again participate in this popular fall classic.

"The theme of this year's 14 day event was family participation as father and sons, mothers and daughters, brother and sisters, husbands and wives, young and old all joined forces to play along side or compete against family members in the tournaments 13 divisions of play," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

"The 43rd annual event demonstrates without question that tennis continues to be very much alive and well in Quincy as 146 matches were played in this year's tournament. With longtime tournament officials John Franceschini and Michelle Hanly at the helm and the financial backing of the Quincy Credit Union, new and old residents competed day and night on the five courts located on the grounds of Quincy High School on Russell Park. Spectators gathered daily to watch the high quality of play and drama of the single elimination matches."

Welch added:

"The tournament reflects the popularity of tennis in our community through the years and as a Recreation Department we have continued to embrace our growing, diverse population who consistently spread to word to others the merits of this community sponsored championship that is both fun and competitive."

"We are indebted to the Quincy Credit Union for their continued sponsorship; they stepped up thirteen years ago and have not waived in their commitment to the community building goals offered by this event for countless participants. John and Michelle are the glue that holds the event together as both have been directing the play and participants for over 20 years. It would not be the same quality event without their dedicated service."

The Henry "The Master" McAuliffe Bowl is presented to the champions in the Men's Double. The father-son team of Robert Yee and Robert Yee were last year's winners who in defending their title will make an easy job for the trophy engraver. Yee and Yee, who are no strangers to pressure, played in a marathon match to claim victory in three sets, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, over Auh Phi Tran and Reinaldo Lopez. Tran and Lopez advanced to the finals over Adam Honathanthara and Jakub Janiga, 6-0, 6-3. Yee and Yee defeated Tyler Perron and Kevin Paterno, 6-3, 6-4 in their semi-final match.

The premier event and the largest draw in the tournament saw Robert Yee, the younger, hold on tight to the Lionel "Shine" Buckley Bowl and the crown of Men's Singles Champion with a three set final win. Yee fell 4-6 in the first match to Kevin Paterno but rallied to take match two 6-0 and the clinching match 6-1. Paterno had charged into the final with 6-2, 7-5 scores over Jin Zeng. Yee who coaches tennis at Curry College advanced to the final with 6-2, 6-2 scores over Reinaldo Lopez.

A Women's Singles rematch was a showdown between last years champion Helen Mao and four-time champion Phoebe Chan. One of the most awaited matches of the tournament ended when Chan earned her fifth women's singles title in three hard fought sets, 3-6, 7-6, 6-0. Mao had defeated Larissa Santos 6-1, 6-0 while Chan posted 6-3, 6-4 victories over the tournament champion Kathleen Brennan.

Justin McGaffigan now has three championships in a row as he goes out with a third title in his last year of eligibility for the Boy's 16 and Under Singles. McGaffigan leaves this division in style by winning a two set victory 6-4, 6-1 over Tin Tran. Tran had better luck with younger brother Peyton McGaffigan 6-4, 6-0 in the semi-finals while Justin McGaffigan won a two set match 6-1, 6-0 over Shane Lerkvikam in the semi-finals of this highly contested division.

In the Girls 16 and Under Singles, Lydia Chan proved to be one of the up and coming new players on the Quincy tennis scene as she defeated Larissa Santos 1-6, 6-1, retired. Santos had earned her way to the final by besting Vivian Tran 6-0, 6-0 in the semi-final. While Chan moved past Kilima Bukenya, 6-0, 6-1.

In the Quincy City Employee Singles, Peter Dionne, Principal of the Bernazzani School, won his third straight championship by defeating Park Director Chris Cassani 6-0, 6-0. Cassani defeated Fran Sandonato 6-0, 0-6, 6-2 in the semi final. While Dionne defeated Larry Taglieri 6-0, 6-4 in the battle of Quincy school principals.

In the Mixed Doubles, the long reign of Ron Able and Aileen Eleey ended when the William F. Ryan Bowl passed to Robert Yee, the younger, and his partner Marybeth Torpey. Yee and Torpey defeated the father-daughter team of Job and Lydia Chan 6-4, 6-2 in the finals.

The Women's Doubles team of Helen Mao and Ann Forsman retained their hold on the championship cup making it three 3 championships in the last four years. They defended the division with a 6-0, 6-3 victory over Emily Sato and Michelle Lee. In semi-final action, Lee and Sato defeated Sharon Napier and Celeste Linardi 6-0, 6-1, while Foresman and Mao found themselves forced to three sets 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, by the mother-daughter team Phoebe and Lydia Chan.

Ann Foresman is now a two-time champion in the Women's 35 and Over Singles as she won a two set victory 6-4, 6-2 over Phoebe Chan. Foresman last held the same title in 2010. In semi-final action, Foresman defeated Celeste Linardi, 6-0, 6-0 and Chan defeated Kathleen Brennan by the same score.

Jakub Janiga remains the person to beat in the Men's 35 and Over Singles. Janiga won his third straight championship 6-0, 6-1 over long time participant Job Chan.

Chan had taken a well-played 7-5, 6-0 win from Men's 50 and Over champion Mark Donaghue in the semi-finals. Janiga defeated Chi Man Wong, 6-1, 6-2, to make the final.

In a new division added to this year's tournament, Bill Eaton was crowned the first champion of the Men's 60 and Over Singles. Eaton and William Egan took to the court as the events premiere finalist's with Easton winning 6-0, 6-2.

A crowded and competitive field competed in the Men's B Singles featured 16 first round matches. Ruslan Kasymov emerged from the crowd to win the championship 6-4, 6-4 over Suresh Valvarthi. Vishal Trivedi advanced to the semi-finals before falling to Kasymov, 6-2, 2-1, retired. Kadirvel Subramanian advanced to the other semi-final before falling to Valvarthi in a highly contested 7-5, 7-5 match.

Mark Donaghue battled for three sets to claim victory and to retain his hold on the Richard Meade Bowl in the Men's 50 and Over Singles. Shuman Xue gave Donaghue all he could handle in the 6-2, 5-7, 6-1

Fall Automotive Care

Motorists Urged To Prepare For New Season Of Driving

With summer gone and winter approaching, AAA Southern New England reminds motorists that cars need periodic checkups to maintain safety and maximize efficiency.

AAA recommends motorists use a simple checklist to determine their vehicle's fall and winter maintenance needs. Many of the items on the list can be inspected by a car owner in less than an hour, but others should be performed by a certified technician.

Motorists can identify reliable, high-quality repair shops with certified technicians by looking for the AAA Approved Auto Repair sign. These facilities must meet and maintain high professional standards for customer service, technician training, tools, equipment, warranties and cleanliness. Nearby shops can be located at AAA.com/repair.

WINTER CAR CARE CHECKLIST

Battery and Charging System – Have the battery and charging system tested by a trained technician. A fully charged battery in good condition is required to start an engine in cold weather. AAA members can request a visit from a AAA Mobile Battery Service technician who will test their battery and replace it on-site, if necessary. AAA Approved Auto Repair shops can also test and replace weak batteries.

Battery Cables and Terminals – Make sure the battery terminals and cable ends are free from corrosion and the connections are tight.

Drive Belts – Inspect the underside of accessory drive belts for cracks or fraying. Many newer multi-rib "serpentine" belts are made of materials that do not show obvious signs of wear; replace these belts at 60,000-mile intervals.

Engine Hoses – Inspect cooling system hoses for leaks, cracks or loose clamps. Also, squeeze the hoses and replace any that are brittle or have an excessively spongy feeling.

Tire Type and Tread – In areas with heavy winter weather, installing snow tires on all four wheels will provide the best winter traction. All-season tires work well in light-to-moderate snow conditions provided they have adequate tread depth. Replace any tire that has less than 3/32-inches of tread. Uneven tire wear can indicate alignment, wheel balance or suspension problems that must be addressed to prevent further tire damage.

Tire Pressure – Check tire inflation pressure on all four tires and the spare more frequently in fall and winter. As the average temperature drops, so will tire pressures

AAA Reminds Drivers October Is Car Care Month

– typically by one PSI for every 10 degrees Fahrenheit. Proper tire pressure levels can be found in the owner's manual or on a sticker typically located on the driver's side door jamb.

Air Filter – Check the engine air filter by holding it up to a 60-watt light bulb. If light can be seen through much of the filter, it is still clean enough to work effectively. However, if light is blocked by most of the filter, replace it.

Coolant Levels – Check the coolant level in the overflow tank when the engine is cold. If the level is low, add a 50/50 solution of coolant and water to maintain the necessary antifreeze capability. Test the antifreeze protection level annually with an inexpensive tester available at any auto parts store.

Lights – Check the operation of all headlights, taillights, brake lights, turn signals, emergency flashers and back-up lights. Replace any burnt out bulbs.

Wiper Blades – The blades should completely clear the glass with each swipe. Replace any blade that leaves streaks or misses spots. In regions where snow is common, consider installing winter wiper blades that wrap the blade frame in a rubber boot to reduce ice and snow buildup that can prevent good contact between the blade and the glass.

Washer Fluid – Fill the windshield washer fluid reservoir with a winter cleaning solution that has antifreeze components to prevent it from freezing.

Brakes – If there is any indication of a brake problem, have the system inspected by a certified technician to ensure all components are in good working order.

Transmission, Brake and Power Steering Fluids

– Check all fluids to ensure they are at or above the minimum safe levels.

Emergency Road Kit – Carry an emergency kit equipped for winter weather. The kit should include:

Mobile phone pre-programmed with rescue apps and important phone numbers including family and emergency services, and car charger

Drinking water

First-aid kit

Non-perishable snacks for both human and pet passengers

Bag of abrasive material (sand, salt, cat litter) or traction mats

Snow shovel

Blankets

Extra warm clothing (gloves, hats, scarves)

Flashlight with extra batteries

Window washer solvent

Ice scraper with brush

Cloth or roll of paper towels

Jumper cables

Warning devices (flares or triangles)

Basic toolkit (screwdrivers, pliers, adjustable wrench)

Android and iPhone users can download AAA Mobile, AAA's mobile smartphone app that provides AAA services for all motorists, such as mapping and gas price comparison, as well as member-exclusive benefits including roadside assistance and discounts. AAA Membership is not required to download and use AAA apps, but is necessary to take advantage of unique member benefits such as roadside assistance. For more information on AAA Mobile, visit AAA.com/Mobile.

Kids, Cars And College

Nearly 22 million students headed to college this fall. However, while many parents prepared their teens with instructions about personal safety, laundry and cooking, they sometimes forget to address the important subject of automobile maintenance and repair before sending their young adult off to college with a vehicle.

"Frequently, a teenager's vehicle is maintained by parents while living at home, and lessons on proper car care are only briefly discussed and seldom utilized," said John Paul, AAA's Car Doctor "It is vital that your college student fully understands how to independently take care of their vehicle."

Before sending a son or daughter off to college with an automobile, AAA encourages parents to sit down with the child and discuss a plan for proper vehicle maintenance, as well as how to deal with unexpected problems when parental rescue is more than just a few minutes away.

Check and Maintain

Tires

Tires are one of the easiest components of a vehicle to maintain, but they are frequently overlooked until something goes wrong. Every student should have a tire pressure gauge in their vehicle, know where it is located, and understand how to use it properly. While there are a variety of tire pressure gauges, those with electronic readouts might be the easiest for the teen to use. Explain that tires should be checked at least once a month when the tires are cold.

Show your young adult where to find the vehicle manufacturer's recommended tire pressure – typically on a label located on the driver's door jamb or in the glove box. It is important to let them know they should not use the inflation pressure found on the tire sidewall. That is the tire's maximum pressure level, but it might not be the correct pressure for the tire when used on their particular vehicle.

To demonstrate proper tire care, AAA offers a number of short videos that can be viewed on the AAA YouTube channel. These videos can be easily saved and sent as reminders to your child to take a few minutes and check their tires.

ber of short videos that can be viewed on the AAA YouTube channel. These videos can be easily saved and sent as reminders to your child to take a few minutes and check their tires.

Know the Vehicle's Maintenance Schedule

Performing the manufacturer's regularly scheduled maintenance on a vehicle will greatly extend its life and help ward off more costly repairs down the road. While it's a good idea to make sure your student's car is current with all maintenance items prior to sending them off to college, it's possible some items will be due while they are away.

Sit down and go over the owner's manual with your son or daughter. Explain the recommended maintenance schedule and remind them that in addition to basic oil changes other important items such as filters, batteries and brakes must also be regularly checked and maintained. AAA recommends that parents and teens create a shared calendar with
